The club will stage a skating carnival this year, it was decided at the meeting, the date being set for the middle of February. Out-of-town talent will have a place on the program. The carnival committee appointed included Mrs. Georgia Smith, Lillian Sprackett, Mrs. Olivia Weese, Bill Davies, Mike Ridley and A. F. Y. Leslie.

An even greater interest in figure skating would be shown in the city but for the fact that the ice surfaces used by the Quinte Club are in the extreme east part of the city, it is thought. Distance therefore prevents many children from the west part of the city from attending regularily to get the needed instruction. Despite this fact, however, the two rinks operated by the club are crowded nightly, one expressly for the use of figure skaters and the other for those members who have no inclination at the moment for fancy skating.

With the influx of airmen into the district, it is felt that there may be living in Belleville or district many lovers of fancy skating among the fliers or their wives. To these people a hearty invitation is extended by the club members to take part in the forthcoming carnival. Those people are advised to get in touch with any of the executive members.

Four Arrested At Port Hope

Port Hope, Jan. 11. (CP)—Four youths, aged 16 to 19 who gave their names as John Caride, Joseph Eafflyn, Alf Watts and Dugal Brunette, all of Toronto, were arrested early today after a chase in which the car they were riding sped at 70 to 80 miles an hour.

Police here said they found a quantity of clothing, confectionery and tobacco in the trunk of the car. They added the car had been stolen in Toronto and a general store at Lakeview robbed. The youths were charged with the robbery.

Gideon's Bibles Are Presented To Q. V. School

Fifty copies of the Holy Bible were presented to Queen Victoria Public School at the opening exercise period this morning on behalf of the Gideons. The Rev. Dr. James Semple presided at the interesting ceremony of presentation and the Rev. J. G. Hornsby spoke during the service. Mr. H. B. Petterly made the presentation on behalf of the Gideons and Principal A. C. Wilkin accepted the copies of the Scriptures. The children of the school sang during the service, "Jesus Loves Me, This I Know."

During the service it was noted that never in history were the Scriptures so widely read and never were there such a number of school children reading the Bible as today.

NATIONAL

Must Renew Statute

Unless the stabilization statute is renewed,' he said, the country can expect "price chaos by summer." He said positive action must be taken to maintain the integrity of the dollar.

The President touched with relative brevity, at the outset of his message, on the war conferences which took place overseas in the final weeks of 1943. He hailed them as intended to prevent mistakes made at the conclusion of the last war.

"Of course, we made some commitments," he said. "We most certainly committed ourselves to very large and very specific military plans which require the use of all Allied forces to bring about the defeat of our enemies at the earliest possible tie.

"But there were no secret treaties or political or financial commitments.

"The one supreme objective for the future, which we discussed for each nation individually, and for all the United Nations, can be summed up in one word—security.

"And that means not only physical security which provides safety from attacks by aggressors. It means also economic security, social security, moral security—in a family of nations."

Transcends All Politics

Mr. Roosevelt warned against over-confidence and complacency, asserting the way to fight and win the war is "all out" and not with half an eye on battlefronts and half an eye on personal, selfish, or political interests at home.

He said he hoped Congress would recognize that while 1944 is a political year, "national service is an issue which transcends politics."

He said he believed the American people would welcome a measure based on a just principle of "fair for one, fair for all."

Asking Congress to look into means for implementing what he termed an economic, second bill of rights, Mr. Roosevelt vigorously assailed "whining demands of selfish pressure groups who seek to feather their nests while young Americans are dying."

He spoke of the need for unity at home, pounding away on a theme he has used before—that there is only one front in the war.

Second Bill of Rights

"Each and every one of us," he declared, "has the solemn obligation under God to serve this nation in its most critical hour—to keep this nation great and to make this nation greater in a better world."

His second bill of rights, under which he said a new basis of security and prosperity could be established for all, included these points:

1. The right to a useful and remunerative job.
2. The right to earn enough to rovide adequate food, clothing and recreation.
3. The right of every farmer to a return for his products which will provide a decent living for him and his family.
4. The right of every business man to be free from unfair competition and domination of monopolies.
5. The right of every family to a decent home.
6. The right to adequate medical care and an opportunity to achieve and enjoy good health.
7. The right to adequate protection from econoic fears in old age, illness, accident and unemployment.
8. The right to a good education.

"All of these rights spell 'security'," the President said. "And after this war —is won we must be prepared to move forward in the implementation of these rights, to new goals of human happiness and well being.

Must be Security at Home

"America's own rightful place in the world depends in large part upon how fully these and similar rights have been carried into practice for our citizens. For unless there is security here at home there cannot be lasting peace in the world."

If history were to repeat and America were to return to the so-called normalcy of the 1930's, he said, it is certain that though we have conquered enemies on battlefields abroad "we shall have yielded to the spirit of Fascism here at men, he added, share a concern over home." All clear thinking business the grave dangers which would ensue from a "rightist reaction" in America.

It is definitely the responsibility of Congress, the President emphasized, to explore methods to effectuate the economic bill of rights.

NO OTHER NATURAL CEREAL GIVES IT SO RICHLY

With less meat today, wise women are happy to know that by serving Quaker Oats for breakfast, they can give their hard-working family a rich source of meat's main element—protein. No other natural cereal is so rich in this vital factor for energy and growth as whole-grain oatmeal. And it is richest of all natural cereals in Vitamin B₁ needed for sound nerves and energy! No wonder more families than ever are calling delicious, hot breakfasts of Quaker Oats daily a "must" for wartime diets.

Jet-Propulsion Plane

Many advances have come during the war in all branches of science and the latest is the plane with jet propulsion which has arrived. Announcement has been made by the British Royal Air Force and the United States Army Air Forces. This is the rocket plane which fulfills a vision which the world did not expect to see realized as yet. The plane has had several hundred test flights and has been pronounced a success. Production in quantity is planned soon. So great has been the advance of Allied technology.

Group Captain Frank Whittle of the R.A.F. as long ago as 1939 was working on the plan. There is every belief that the plane will fill a new role and start where the present propeller-drawn planes leave off as far as speed is concerned.

The jet principle implies a series of power explosions to push the plane forward instead of being pulled forward. This makes a vast difference for there is a rarified atmosphere in the stratosphere where the rocket plane will go. In the familiar plane of today the propeller is used to "bite" into the air and so get the pull that moves the plane.

There are many guesses as to the speed of the jet-driven plane, some say a rate as high as one thousand miles an hour may be attained in the stratosphere. That would mean that one could cross the Atlantic in a few hours and come down in Europe.

The new plane gives a fillip to the imagination, which likes to toy with possibilities of mechanism and new fields to conquer. It also shows how infinite are the number of roads along which mechanical science can progress. Further it gives reason for belief that these scientific steps of progress will influence the manners and habits of earthdwellers.

The plane has come forward at an amazing rate. The First World War saw it effective as a weapon but limited by lack of development, but today what we might have called practically the perfect plane is in action as a weapon of war but there is this new invention which looks as if it will blaze a trail of still more progress. From the first successful flight by the Wright brothers, December 17, 1903, forty years ago, there has been an immense development. A whole new world of possibility has been steadily opening up. The first glider made by the Wright brothers, Wilbur and Orville, dates from 1900 and in 1902 they made numerous glider flights at Kitty Hawk, N.C.

It is practically impossible for humans today to think back to the day when there were no planes.

Great Journalist Passes

One of the outstanding newspapermen on this continent has passed away in John Wesley Dafoe, editor-in-chief and president of the Winnipeg Free Press. His loss will be felt in Canada. In the words of Arthur R. Ford, London Free Press president and president of The Canadian Press, "Mr. Dafoe was not only a moulder of Canadian public opinion. He was an international figure with an international outlook." Mr. Dafoe was also one of the founders and a strong supporter of The Canadian Press.

Prime Minister King spoke of his death as a national loss. "He was everywhere recognized as the dean of Canadian journalism and the foremost living Canadian journalist . . . He contributed to the shaping as well as to the writing of the history of our country. He was a recognized authority on international constitutional and political questions. On public affairs his views and opinions were widely sought. To leaders in public life he was a wise counsellor and helpful friend."

Progressive Conservative Leader John Bracken paid tribute to the man he knew well. "With strong convictions and well-based principles he exercised a wide influence throughout the land. The field of journalism was particularly enriched as a result of his vigorous pen and powerful personality . . . He had a breadth of vision that never left him parochial in his views. He never championed a cause that left Canada, as a whole, poorer for his action. John W. Dafoe stood for those things that make for Canadian progress and he seldom stood on the sidelines."

"His keen mind and capacity for tireless labor gave him an authority possessed by relatively few Canadian newspaper editors," said Wesley McCurdy publisher of the Winnipeg Tribune and president of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Association.

Mr. Dafoe preferred his editorial position to diplomatic posts and cabinet offers and he declined a knighthood with characteristic style in 1919 at the time of the Paris Peace Conference with these words: "What would I do with a title? I shovel my own snow and tend my own furnace."

From 1937 to 1939 Mr. Dafoe was a member of the Commission on Dominion-Provincial relations. He occupied the presidency of the Institute of Pacific relations and the chairmanship of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs.

Motorways for the Future

(London Times)

The advantage of motorways—roads 100 feet wide, divided into two 30-foot one-way carriageways by a centre strip planted with flowering trees and shrubs and open only to fast running motor traffic—are demonstrated at an exhibition opened in Lower Regent Street by Sir William Rootes. There are diagrams, photographs, and working models. A network of such new roads, amounting to 11,000 miles, compared with a present total of 181,500 miles of roads of all kinds, was recommended by the County Surveyors' Society in 1938. The exhibition showed, Sir W. Rootes said, that a modern road system need not desecrate the countryside, and that 1,000 miles of new construction, designed by the county surveyors, with their local knowledge, could enormously benefit the life of the community.

Call for Snow

(Lethbridge Herald)

"I wish it would snow," a rancher said to us the other day.

Here we are basking in California weather and someone wants snow! Will people never be satisfied?

Yet the rancher voiced the uneasiness of people whose business is agriculture. They are looking ahead. Agriculturists are always looking to "next year." They fear a drought and the winterless winter may be the sign of a drought in 1944. Again, it may not. We have seen open winters followed by very dry summers, and we have seen them followed by wet summers. We must leave that in the hands of the Weather Man.

But the fact remains that, after several years of better than average rainfall, with 1942 an abnormally wet season, we cannot overlook the fact that a dry year may be in store for us. It might be as well to keep the possibility in mind while making plans for the 1944 farm program.

Coin Confusion

(Leeds Yorkshire Post)

Look carefully at the first of these two coins (showing a small illustration). I know what your answer will be—why should you trouble to examine a common British shilling. But I repeat, examine the coin. Compare it with the head side of a shilling, and see what you find.

You cannot detect any difference? I admit it is slight, but undeniably there is a difference. This coin is no shilling. For those who still have doubts I turn it over and reproduce the other side. Now it stands plainly revealed for what it is—a Canadian 25-cent piece.

It was unwittingly accepted—and doubtless given in all innocense—as a shilling in change. And little wonder. For, seen head-side uppermost, the coin is almost indistinguishable from a shilling, even at a close glance.

LETTER TO GRANDCHILDREN

Your grandpa thought you'd like to know,
Since where you live there'll be no snow,
A storm came from the north last night.
The robins' nests this morning seem
Like cups of chocolate topped with cream.
The roofs of houses look like shops
For ice cream cones and lollypops.

Today, the dogs let out to run,
It seems, are having double fun,
For helter-skelter, as they go
They're leaving footprints in the snow.
And grandma says: "When they come back
Good gracious, all the house they'll track.
You dry their paws before they do
And also wipe their noses, too."

Then grandma says: "Please shut the door.
Of winter's beauty say no more.
I much prefer the days of spring,
When all the trees are blossoming.
I'd rather see the children run,
Their faces shining in the sun,
Than hear the biting north wind blow,
And stay indoors and look at snow."

P.S.: Your grandma's getting old,
And old folks never like the cold.
'Tis only grandpas, as you know,
And children small who like the snow.

Belleville defeated Port Hope here in an exciting game of hockey, the final score being 8 to 2. McGuire of the Belleville team was unable to play owing to a bad ankle and his place was taken by Johnson. It was not a rough game, but ten local players and eight of the Port Hope men were ruled off. Umpire Rose was very strict and it did seem that there was a little too much Johnson on the fence. E. Guss Porter, M.P. addressed the players before the game and faced off the puck. The following composed the teams: Belleville, Winchester, McMillan, Brown, Burrows, Kennedy, Johnson and Marks. Port Hope: McMillan, Roach, Brown, McLean W. McMillan, Sowden and N. McMillan.

$2,500,000 Loss In Salt Plant

Marysville, Mich., Jan. 11 — (AP) —Fire last night destroyed the Morton Salt Company's largest midwest plant, razing principal buildings and several smaller structures and causing damage estimated by general manager Fred Philbrick at more than $2,500,000.

Firemen from three Hearney communities battled more than 7 hours before gaining control of the blaze, which originated in a dry kiln and, fanned by high winds, swept through a five-storey dairy mill, vacuum mill, grainery, two warehouses and powerhouse, leaving only the offices, machine shop and boiler and mill rooms standing.

The plant, located on a two-acre site on the shore of St. Clair River, had an annual capacity of 250,000 tons of salt. It employed about 400 workers.

Sugar Gives Immediate Energy to a Failing Heart.

I have spoken before of the experiments conducted by Harvard Research workers during the running of the Boston Marathon several years ago. The results showed that the amount of sugar present in the blood at the end of the race indicated the condition of the runner. The greater the amount of sugar present in the blood, the better was the physical condition of the runner and the nearer he was to being among the leaders at the finish. By having certain runners take more sugar daily during the following year and during the race of that year, these runners not only finished in better condition but were higher up in the race than they were the previous year.

Why is sugar—dextrose—so helpful in giving energy to the muscles?

Sugar taken into the mouth is almost immediately absorbed into the blood and gives energy in about a minute whereas other forms of carbohydrates (energy giving foods) take much longer.

As the heart is made up entirely of muscle it is easily understood why sugar is now often given in heart disease where the heart muscle is growing weak or 'failing'.

In the Cincinnati Journal of Medicine, Dr. Edward Podolsky, Brooklyn, states that treatment by dextrose (sugar) is one of the most valuable procedures in the treatment of heart disease. The chief reason why dextrose is so helpful in heart disease is that it supplies so readily the necessary food for the hard working heart. Another reason is that dextrose helps to dilate or open up the bloodvessels so that it requires less effort for the heart to pump blood through them.

Fortunately dextrose can be taken by mouth; the patient takes 2 to 3 ounces of sugar dissolved in a glass of water or weak tea 3 or 4 times daily for a period of 2 to 3 months. This produces a "lasting" effect.

When sugar cannot be given by mouth or by hypodermic injection it may be given in the form of an enema. Two ounces is injected into rectum and after an hour, by which time the two ounces has been absorbed into the blood, 4 ounces is given and 2 hours allowed for absorption.

The thought, then, when we are tired from muscular exercise or work, or in cases of a weak or failing heart, is to use sugar or candy to supply "quick" nourishment to the heart.

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Jan. 11 —(AP)— Sea and air attacks on Japanese plane and supply centres accented Allied warfare in the Southwest Pacific, with the enemy's lifeline along the New Guinea northeast coast taking a heavy hammering.

The big base at Madang and its nearby protecting airdromes and defence points were hit with 168 tons of bombs, the Allied communique said today, making a total of 986 tons laid on supply dumps, gun positions and air fields there in the past 10 days.

Medium bombers ranged about Madang to Ulangi destroying three loaded barges and leaving pillars of smoke and fire rising above wrecked installations and gun positions.

PURSE RECOVERED JUST IN TIME

London, Ont., Jan. 11 — (CP) — After losing a wallet on the last day of his leave in London, OS. Albert Kirby had just about given up hope of returning to his Halifax station on time. But 13-year-old Doreen Field returned the wallet, containing railway ticket and money, to city police and Kirby made his train with only minutes to spare.

Turkish Paper Predicts Trouble For the Germans

Istanbul, Jan. 11 (AP)—The Turkish newspaper Tan yesterday predicted trouble for Germany in the Balkans and hinted that Turkey might play a role in the coming events.

"The Balkans are the weakest point of the fortress of Europe," said an editorial. "Therefore Turkey has become very important to Germany. Consequently the Germans were most pleased when Turkey announced after the Cairo conference here that her foreign policy remained unchanged.

"Today, from one point of view, the fate of the Balkans depends upon the Bulgarians' decision. If Bulgaria throws off the military and political pressure on her it will become very difficult for Germany to hold the Balkans."

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Children Think Divorce Would be Better Than Bickering at Home

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I notice in your column that you often advise people to keep a home together for the sake of the children. We were victims of that type of home, my brother, my sister and myself. My mother and father hated each other, and incidentally I believe they hated us because we were the children of parents who felt only bitterness and hatred.

It was a dull day in the "home nest" when father didn't go storming around, and mother, bless her dear broken heart, didn't dissolve into tears. Father was in love with a woman he wanted to marry. Mother took to religion and the home was a frightful place. There were silent meals with mother wiping her eyes when dad fussed, and he fussed about everything and nothing. When they had a good family row, we kids took refuge at the neighbors'. My sister eloped at sixteen; I went to live with mother's mother as soon as I was able, and my brother remained at home, to protect mother from father's wrath.

Father could have married his girl at this time, but he didn't, because I think his blustering and rowing had become an obsession with him. He finally died and it's a horrible thing to say but an atmosphere of relief settled on the family. Please say a good word for divorce in such a home as this.

M. L. G.

Decidedly divorce would have been better for you than for children to continue to live in such a household. But families like yours are the exception rather than the rule. Divorce is often necessary, even as a surgical operation is necessary, and when there are no children, and teperamental difficulties are insuperable, the best thing for all parties concerned is a divorce.

But when it's a case of undisciplined people who really care for each other at bottom, but haven't enough self-control to avoid squabbling before children, divorce is a mistake. Children who live part of the time with "Mom" and part of the time with "Dad" seldom turn out well. They're anti-social.

Better for parents to bear and forbear than to subject children to living with step-parents who probably dislike them on general principles, and scanty alimony. The question of divorce is almost overwhelming.

Wife is the "Little Woman" Type—He's Bored to Tears

What's to be done with the wife temperamentally incapable of keeping pace with a husband who is ambitious and successful. My wife has had no background She was an orphan who had had no advantages when I married her She was pretty and sweet, and still is. We have three children, but I can never invite anyone to the house because she doesn't know how to receive people, has no conversation, doesn't even know how to entertain, and is just dumb.

At the present time I require a capable wife to help me along and the children require a worldly wise mother. Can anything be done with a plain "little woman" who has no ambition and doesn't even know what a millstone she is?

P. G. F.

What's the matter with giving your wife a little background at the present time? You tell me you have been successful. Why not make a success of your wife. She probably doesn't meet enough people. Have her join several war-winning agencies. Send her to a Red Cross sewing class; she'll hear enough talk there. Have her join a good dancing class, where she'll meet the right people,—be particular about this. Have a good professional in to teach her bridge. Put her through a course of educational and social sprouts. Make her realize it's not only necessary for you but for the children to have a mother who can hold her own with the type of people you are associated with at present.

WEDDINGS

RISING—BEER

The Church of the Redeemer, Toronto, was the setting for an interesting ceremony, when Miss Barbara Frances Beer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Schofield Beer, formerly of Rothesay, N.B., and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Henderson Beer of Saint John, N.B., was married to Lieut. Gerald Estabrooks Rising, R.C.N. V.R., son of Mrs. Rising and the late William Carlyle Rising, formerly of Saint John and grandson of Mr. Theodore Harding Estabrooks and the late Mrs. Estabrooks of Saint John. Canon R. A. Armstrong, formerly of Trinity Church, Saint John, officiated at the service, which was fully choral, with Dr. Healey Willan at the organ.

The bride's graceful gown of pink bridal satin was scalloped at the oval neckline and low waistline, the skirt forming a long train. Her long veil was held with a halo of rose point lace, loaned for the occasion, and she carried white sweet peas and gardenias. Her matron of honor, Mrs. John McColl, the former Joan Balfour, of Hamilton, was frocked in pink. Wren Eleanor Rising, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Yvonne Wells, of Ottawa, bridesmaids and Miss Nancy Mackay of Rothesay, junior bridesmaid for her cousin, wore turquoise blue. They had little caps of tinted feathers to match, with shoulder veils and carried frilled nosegays of pastel sweet peas and roses. The groomsman was Mr. Thomas Patterson, of Belleville and the ushers Mr. William G. Beer, R.C.A.F., twin brother of the bride; Lieut. Andrew Wedd, D.S.C.; Surgeon Lieut. John McLachlin, all of the R.C.N.V.R.

The reception was held at the Badminton and Racquet Club, and later the couple left for Saint John where they will be guests of the bridegroom's grandfather, Mr. T. H. Estabrooks. The bride attended Netherwood School, Rothesay, and is a graduate from the University of Toronto; her husband attended Appleby College, Oakville and the University of New Brunswick until his enlistment.

Pte. Cyril Hermon Honored by Marsh Hill Friends

On Saturday evening, January 8, friends, numbering fifty, gathered in the Marsh Hill Church to honor the latest member of the Armed Forces, Cyril Hermon, who joined the R.C.A. and was home for a few days' leave before commencing training. Rev. E. M. Cooke was chairman and opened the program by all singing "Onward Christian Soldiers," followed by "The More We Get Together."

Rev. Cooke gave an address. A solo by Mr. John Chard; piano selection, Gena Vanderwater; reading, Mrs. H. Coulter; duet, Misses Margaret and Gena Vanderwater; reading, Miss V. Benns; solo, Miss Margaret Vanderwater. All joined in singing "The Maple Leaf." Mrs. R. Vanderwater presided at the piano throughout the evening.

Cyril was asked to come forward and an address was read by Mrs. Percy Meale and the presentation of a watch, engraved, was made by Leonard Marisette. The address was signed by Margaret Vanderwater, Allyn Finkle, Leonard Marisette, Harry Coulter, Garnet Sarles, Verna Benns, Gordon Tanner, Ivy Meale.

Cyril made a fine reply, thanking his friends for the gift. Short speeches were made by W. Rodgers and Col. Vanderwater, who both assured Cyril he has the best wishes of the community, also their thoughts and prayers would go with him wherever he may go.

Prayer by Rev. Cooke, followed by the National Anthem closed the program. Lunch was served and a social time spent by all.

MRS. M. MILLER came from Aberdeen, Scotland, She has a nursing home in Swift Current, Sask.

"I learned many of the uses of mustard and its value in home nursing while I was in training in Scotland," explained Mrs. Miller. "One in particular was the method of causing a patient to perspire freely, thus helping to break the fever and eliminate poisons from the body." She described how a flannel blanket is dipped in boiling water containing a half a cup of mustard and then wrung out and wrapped around the patient to induce perspiration.

Bronchial Trouble in Babies

"I never hesitate to use a mustard poultice on small babies in case of bronchial trouble," states Mrs. Miller. "It helps to give quicker, safer relief than any other remedy. I saturate the chest or back with olive oil and apply mild poultices mixed one part mustard to five parts of flour on the affected areas." Just by knowing this simple fact, thousands of babies may be relieved from bronchial suffering. Never leave a poultice on longer than twenty minutes.

Pure Mustard is Safe Mustard

The best proof of the value of mustard in treating so many common ailments is the fact that thousands of people like Mrs. Miller depend on it year after year. Keep mustard always handy in your home to help relieve Chills or Colds, or when you feel depressed by Grippe or other Winter infections. Use it to help relieve pains of Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Arthritis, Neuritis, over-tired muscles, etc. Call your doctor if symptoms are serious. Be sure that you use famous Keen's D.S.F. Mustard, made entirely from mustard seed of highest quality and packed to preserve its uniform quality and full medicinal strength. Sold by grocers and druggists everywhere.

MARKED FOR DEATH

The clandestine French newspaper Bir Hakeim says that the underground has passed a death sentence on Danielle Darrieux, screen actress, on charges of collaborating with the Nazis. She made one movie in the U. S. after a successful career in France and is reported to have left Hollywood for Paris in 1938, remaining there under German rule.

The Marry-Go-Round

Post-Christmas Reflections

'Twas the night after Christmas, and believe it or not, not a creature remembered who gave what he got!

But oh joy! Dad can now stealthily shed those beautiful new house-slippers you gave him and slip his feet back into the old moth-eaten ones you were planning to give to the ash-man. (They'll do it every time!)

We are right in Leap Year; which merely means that a marriage-shy man will have to be a little more agile in leaping from girl to girl, without losing his balance or his grip on his freedom.

Also, if a girl lets her mind leap to the altar at the first kiss, she will have to wait patiently for a man's consciousness to limp along and catch up with it.

Roughly speaking, says Cynical Sybil, Christmas presents can usually be divided into two classes: those you get and don't like—and those you'd like and don't get.

If the average man were as good at making a lot of money in the market as he is at telling you how it could be done, his wife would be wearing that new mink coat this year.

An interesting example of a slow-motion picture might be a cross-section of a man's mind while he is deciding whether or not he is going to permit the girl, who sent him the expensive jewelled cigarette case, to go on loving him that way.

And now, when joy should be your lot,
It's very far from pleasant,
To find the friend that you forgot
Has sent the nicest present!

Albany, N.Y., Jan. 11 — (AP) — Nine-year-old Doreen Shook died yesterday after more than four years of uninterrupted sleep. The child was stricken Aug. 14, 1939, with an unknown form of encephalitis which physicians said destroyed her brain cells.

Women's Activities

MOUNT PLEASANT Y.P.U.

The Y.P.U. met at the home of Mrs. J. Boldrick on Friday evening. In the absence of the president, Mrs. John Lawrenson opened the meeting. After the business, Mrs. Lawrenson, convener for Missionary work, took over the meeting. The Scripture was read by Mrs. Garman Gibson. The topic was discussed by Mrs. A. Boldrick, Carmeleta Ashely, Madeline Ashely, Joy McKenzie, Barbara Emerson, Bessie Boldrick and Douglas Clause. The meeting was closed with a hymn and Mispah benediction. Contests and games were then enjoyed by all.

PLAINFIELD W. I.

The January meeting of Plainfield W. I. was held at the home of Mrs. Fred Hall, with a small attendance, due to icy roads. The president opened the meeting and Mrs. F. Hall led in community singing. Mrs. Norman Hall, Jr., acted as secretary in the absence of Mrs. Hazard. Letters of thanks were read from the service boys who had received their Christmas parcels. Two quilts were handed in for war work. The war work collection for the month amounted to $7.75. Mrs. Norman Hall, Jr., reported the program of the Girls' Club work. Plans were made for the officers' rally soon, which is a pot luck dinner to be held in the Orange Hall with Mrs Hayes as guest speaker of the day. Mrs. Clarence Hall had charge of the program in the absence of Mrs. Wootten. She gave a short reading entitled "The Meaning of Christmas." Mrs. Willie Sills favored with a solo. Readings were given by Mrs. Don Hall, Mrs. Clayton Hall, Mrs. Horace Palmer. The meeting closed with the National Anthem and the hostess served a lunch.

CENTRE, VICTORIA AND REDNERSVILLE W.M.S.

Gore—The Women's Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. Winston Pulver Wednesday afternoon with twelve members present. The meeting was called to order by the President, Mrs. Kay Giles. The president led in prayer. Splendid reports were given on the year's work. Mrs. Frank Townsend, leader of group one took charge. The theme for the month of January is "The Bible for All Canada's Children." Following a reading by Mrs. E. Tompkins, Mrs. F. Townsend, and Mrs. L. Brickman, Mrs. H. Pulver led in prayer. Readings on farmers of different parts of Asia, Africa, China and Burma were given by Mrs. A. Pulver, Mrs. E. Fox, Mrs. D. Spencer, Mrs. Roy Brickman, Mrs. M. Pulver. Mrs. F. Townsend read a chapter from the Study Book.

CANNIFTON Y.P.U.

On January 7, the Cannifton Y.P.U. were hosts to the other Y.P.U. on the Cannifton charge. The meeting opened with quiet music by Betty Twiddy. Vera Pound then opened the worship with a poem. Claudia Farnham read the Scripture. Vera Pound led in prayer. Collection was taken up by Garnet Latchford and amounted to $3.65. An instrumental guitar duet was given by Evelyn and Ethel Fox of Carmel. Rev. Mr. Trumpour introduced the speaker, Flt. Lt. Patton from No. 5 I.T.S., Belleville. The speaker left with everyone the thought that hope for the future lies in Christian youth. The meeting was closed and games were played. Lunch wasa served.

MARSH HILL W.M.S.

The monthly meeting of the Marsh Hill W.M.S. was held on January 4, at the home of Mrs. Frank Lough. The President, Mrs. E. B. Finkle, opened the meeting. The minutes of the last meeting were read and then the roll call, to which eleven members responded. The different secretaries gave reports for the past year. The story of the year was read by Mrs. J. Frederick. Rev. Mr. Cook then had charge of the installation of the new officers. He gave a very interesting and encouraging address. The worship service was taken by the president, the theme being "The Bible for All Canada's Children." Scripture readings were read by Mrs. J. Frederick and Mrs. B. Bleecker. Prayer for the children was offered by Mrs. W. Lindenfield. A reading on temperance was given by Mrs. F. Finkle. Mrs. J. Frederick had charge of the remainder of the program. She discussed the third chapter of the Study Book, "Skill and Joy in Work Dealing with the Rural Life in Asia and Africa." A reading, "A Feast of Tabernacles" was given by Mrs. W. Lindenfield. Mrs. J. Frederick then favored with a piano solo, "Evening Whispers." Mrs. L. Finkle gave a reading, "An Indian Village Transformed." Rev. Cook closed the meeting with prayer.

CHRIST CHURCH EVENING BRANCH W.A.

The evening Branch of the W. A. of Christ Church held its first meeting of the New Year in the Parish Hall on Monday night. Following the monthly and annual reports, Mr. Everett Smith conducted the election of officers. He also took the opportunity to congratulate the organization on the splendid reports and the year's work and urged the assemblage to carry on in the same way during the coming year. The following is election of officers: Hon. Pres. Mrs. G. G. Wright; Pres., Mrs. H. Pitt; Vice-Pres., Mrs. H. Woodley; Sec., Miss Frances Reid; Treas., Mrs. O. Ragsdale; Dorcas Sec., Mrs. D. Stewart; Assistants, Mrs. J. Spencer, Mrs. E. H. Ingram; Flower Fund, Mrs. Everett Smith; Rep. Church Council, Mrs. E. Smith. At the conclusion of the meeting, refreshments were served by Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Pitt.

CANNIFTON W.M.S.

The January meeting of Cannifton Women's Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. Charles Mills with an attendance of fifteen ladies and three children. Mrs. Armstrong, the President, said it was very encouraging to have such a good attendance when the roads were so icy. She also thanked Mrs. Mills for opening her home for the meeting. Mrs. Armstrong opened the meeting with a New Year's poem and gave some helpful suggestions for the year. To show thankfulness for all the past blessings all sang, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus." Encouraging reports were given by the following: Mrs. Empson, the treasurer, reported an increase over last year; Mrs. Roy Pound, leader of the Mission Band, increase in attendance and finances; Mrs. Cole, Community Friendship, reported eighty-four calls made to sick ones in homes and fifty-one calls made to ones in the hospital; Mrs. Harford Twiddy sent out twenty-one cards and three letters to sick and to the bereaved. A very helpful worship service was conducted by Mrs. Armstrong, the theme being "The Bible for All of Life." Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Empson. There was a reading given by Mrs. Beatty. The chapter in the Study Book, "The Grace of Living and Working Together" was given by Mrs. Armstrong, Mrs. Brenton and Mrs. Boyd. Mrs. Furmidge played her harp and sang. A reading, "The Common Folk," was given by Mrs. Trumpour. "Christian Homes in China and Other Countries" was given by Mrs. Mills and Mrs. Armstrong. Mrs. (Rev.) J. Trumpour invited the ladies to hold the February meeting at the parsonage. Mrs. Williams closed with prayer.

INFLAMMATION OF THE TENDONS

The tendons in the body connect the muscles with the bones. Around each tendon there is a fibrous sheath. Now and then one of these tendons in the sheaths become inflamed. This of course produces a great deal of pain particularly on movement of the muscles. If this inflammation persists for some time, calcium or lime is deposited along the tendon and the condition is known as tendinitis with calcification.

Tendinitis with calcification has been treated in various ways, particularly by operation and removal of the hard calcium deposits. Doctor Paul W. Lapidus of New York City, suggests treatment of this condition without operation. The disorder occurs most often around the shoulder joint but may also affect the knee, elbow, foot, hip and wrist. His treatment consists of injecting a pain-deadening substance into the tender spots. He has found that doing this will relieve the pain even though the hard calcium material is not removed. The procedure which he carried out is as follows: First, the local anaesthetic is injected into the tender spot. Then an X-ray is taken to make sure that the needle is in the correct position. Then from one to two ounces of a warm salt solution is slowly injected into and around the hard calcium deposit. Then with a hypodermic syringe this fluid is withdrawn and often brings with it some of the calcium deposit. For from one to three days following the treatment the pain may be more severe but after this time it completely disappears. After the treatment the patient is encouraged to practice exercises and to relax the shoulder muscles with warm baths. If during this three day period the pain is severe, sedative drugs as prescribed by the physician are utilized.

At first the motion of the shoulder or whatever part is treated is restricted but after two days to two weeks, normal movements of the part treated become possible. The amount of solution injected depends on the extent of the disturbance and how deep in the tissues it is located. According to Doctor Lapidus, this method of treatment shortens the painful acute period of the disease and keeps it from recurring. In fact, he has found that the treatment is useful even in those instances in which there are no calcium deposits. It has not been found helpful in patients who have had the disorder for a long period of time.

In more than 30 patients with tendinitis who were treated good results were obtained in practically all of them. The benefits were obtained even in those patients with tendinitis who did not have the calcium deposits. In fact, it was only in rare instances that it was possible to withdraw the calcium material through the hypodermic syringe.

Since this treatment for tendinitis can be carried out without any extensive operative treatment it will be welcomed by those who suffer from this condition.

Alemite, Belleville Sargent Win Opening Cage Games Of War Industries League

SMART CONTESTS

Alemite and Belleville Sargent won their games in the opening tussles of the Belleville Ladies War Industries Basketball League at the Y. M. C. A. Monday evening when the Alemite lassies triumphed 46 to 20 over Reliance in the curtain-raiser, while Belleville Sargent downed the Deacon A. C. lassies 28 to 10 in the nightcap affair in a dual bill of girls' basketball scheduled each Monday evening at the "Y".

In both games the ultimate winners took a commanding lead in the initial half of their respective games and continued to add to the count as the games continued. However, it was the first public appearance for many of the girls and the class of basketball was to be commended despite the nervous tension under which the lassies labored in their initial public appearance. Girls' city league basketball will continue each Monday night at the "Y" in doubleheaders, that saw a goodly gallery stamp the hand of approval on the inaugural last night.

Squad of Veterans

Flooring a smooth working squad of veterans Coach Frank Martin's Alemite quintette proved a well-oiled machine as their scoring proved with the starting team pretty much grabbing off the scoring honors, as each stood well in the box score. At the half way mark the Alemite led Coach Betty Shorey's Reliance team 26 to 14 and then raced through to add a score more of points, while Reliance garnered but three baskets in the last half. A stiff defence was set up by the "East-Enders" with Peg Rowbotham and Marion Salisbury halting the Reliance drives. Offensively Doris Mansfield and Marion Salisbury led the winners on the attack with Betty Gilbert and Dot Ronsky well to the fore in the scoring bracket.

For Reliance it was pretty much Kay Coathup all of the way, as the elongated Reliance centre player accounted for 16 of her team's 20 points, A. Gilbert getting three and Betty Hastie one. The Alemite experienced players went through and around the striving Reliance defence to finally break down resistance.

In the nightcap Belleville Sargent, paced by Evelyn Allison, raced through to a 12 to 1 lead at the halftime mark and continue to dominate the scoring to win 28 to 10, as Deacons' defence stood rather wearily in their initial game.

Evelyn Allison sank four baskets for Sargents before Deacons got into the play as Coach Jack Dickens' quintette were ganging the ball and leaving their home citadel unprotected. After getting 12 points in the initial half Coach Bert Reid's "Lock-makers" came back stronger than ever in the last stanza and out-scored Deacons 16 to eight.

Ev. Allison with 17 points led the winners on the attack with Ruth Gariepy getting six points and M. Barnhart five to account for all of the Sargent scoring. As a matter of fact five players scored all of the points in this game with "Stewie" Stewart getting six and Joyce Woodhouse four for the losing cause.

Although the opening games of city girls' basketball in Belleville, the style of play indicated the game will ultimately become as popular as girls' softball as a filled gallery welcomed the opening of the season when J. E. Shortt, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., welcomed the patrons and urged support of the game in Belleville.

Will Take Time To Boost Cowley Out of Lead

Montreal, Jan. 11 (CP)—Bill Cowley will be missing from the Boston lineup for some time due to injuries, but it looks as though it will be a week or so yet before he can be boosted out of first place in the National Hockey League scoring race.

The great centre continues at the head of today's official statistics with 52 points, eight more than his line-mate Herbie Cain and nine more than Lorne Carr of Toronto Leafs who holds down third spot.

Canadiens' Elmer Lach has moved up into fourth spot, a point behind Carr and two ahead of Bill Mosienko of Chicago. Tied for sixth place are Doug Bentley of Chicago and Buddy O'Connor of Canadiens, with 37 points each.

It looks as though Cowley's leadership in the assist column will go before his total-point margin. His 33 assists still leave him tops at present, but Lach has crept up to 30, and O'Connor has 29.

Cain stil leads the goal-getters with 26, while Gerry Heffernan of Canadiens and Mud Bruneteau of Detroit are tied with an even 20 each.

'Jug' McSpaden Stages Strong Finish to Capture Golf Tourney

By The Canadian Press

Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Philadelphia staged a garrison finish yesterday to win the Los Angeles $12,500 Open golf championship by posting a 66, four below par, for the final stretch of the 72-hole competition on the Wilshire country Club course. His aggregate of 278 was three better than the record established by Craig Wood, duration champion of the United States, in capturing the feature in 1943. Johnny Bulla of Atlanta, Ga., also came with a rush in the closing stages to take second prize with a grand total of 281, equalling the previous course mark.

Wood was forced to share third place with two other players, two strokes behind Bulla. The shotmakers in this tie were Leonard Dodson of La Jolla, Calif., and Byron Nelson, the latter having been up among the leaders all through the tourney. Among those who fell by the wayside in the final round were Olin Dutra of Los Angeles and Sammy Byrd of Detroit, former New York Yankee, both of whom slipped above par on the first nine yesterday.

Vice-president Roy Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics told directors and stockholders at the club's annual meeting yesterday a determined effort should be made "to quit the American League cellar this year." Connie Mack, his father, was re-elected president and treasurer.

Club owners of the National Football League will meet Commissioner Elmer Layden at Chicago tomorrow and Thursday to discuss post-war expansion of the pro sport, with the immediate prospect the loop will operate with 10 teams next fall as a start.

Wally Kilrea of Hershey Bears shared first position with Tom Burlington of Cleveland Barons in the American Hockey League's scoring table for the week, both players having 40 points. Gautheri of Hershey was three points behind.

Tony Lazzeri, former second-baseman of the New York Yankees, yesterday found himself released as manager of the Wilkes-Barre team in the eastern baseball league and complained that the decision had not been made by the club until "all baseball jobs have been taken."

Among the veteran stars of major league baseball awaiting the season's call is Mel Ott of the New York Giants who will be starting his 18th year in the big circuits, possessing a home-run total of 463. Others still active are Paul Waner of the Brooklyn Dodgers and manager Joe Cronin of Boston Red Sox, with a similar length of service.

Toronto, Jan. 11 — (CP) — The C.A.H.A.-N.H.L. arrangement by which amateurs may play in the major professional league without losing amateur standing is profitable to players concerned. The Toronto Star quotes manager Paul Thompson as saying he paid the Toronto amateurs, George Grigor and Whitey Farrant, $100 each for their appearance against Leafs here the other night. In addition to the 100 seeds and by way of bonus, Thompson added his gratitude. "I figured they were willing to help us out and I felt grateful to them as well as giving them what I did." That angle must have been a hangover from mediaeval days when "gratitude" was the only reward of an amateur athlete.

HALIFAX SENIOR LOOP DISBANDS

Leading Team Will Play Exhibition Games Till Playdowns Start

Halifax, Jan. 11 (CP)—Army and R.C.A.F. orders restricting activities of service teams brought disbandment last night of the Halifax senior hockey league, for years one of the leading loops in the Maritimes.

A meeting of the league decided that the regular schedule will be discontinued, with the leading Navy team meeting the R.C.A.F. in fortnightly exhibition games and playing outside teams in occasional exhibitions.

At the time of its breakup, the circuit was composed of Navy and Air Force and civilian Crescents. It started out the season as a four-team league, but the Army had to drop out earlier.

QUEBEC LOOP NOT WORRYING

Montreal, Jan. 11. (CP)—Quebec Senior Hockey League officials showed little concern last night over an army ruling barring army personnel from cup-seeking teams.

"We have nothing to worry about this time", said George Slater, president of the league that has survived loss of three teams through previous service regulations.

Ottawa Commandos would be the only team in the four-club loop affected by the ruling, he said, "and Ottawa has only three or four army men, and they have recently acquired a few non-army additions".

"It was the only thing the army could do following the R.C.A.F. move", he added.

FO. TONY GOLAB SAID MISSING ON ACTIVE SERVICE

GREAT FOOTBALLER

Ottawa, Jan. 11 — (CP) — FO. Anthony (Tony) Golab, 25, who starred for several seasons with Ottawa Rough Riders, has been reported missing on active service with the R.C.A.F. overseas, his wife was notified last night. Golab, born in Windsor, Ont., first attracted attention for his football feats when he and Joe Krol formed a powerful combination for Kennedy Collegiate Institute, Windsor. Later, Golab played for Sarnia Imperials in the Ontario Rugby Football Union before joining the Rough Riders in 1939.

Under the guidance of coach Ross Trimble he developed into a strong forward passing and defensive star, and was noted as a driving plunger. With Riders he played on three Eastern Canadian championship teams, and in 1941 was named winner of the Jeff Russell Memorial Trophy, awarded annually to the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union player chosen the most sportsmanlike and most valuable to his team.

In the same year he was named "Athlete of the Year" in The Canadian Press sports poll. Golab joined the air force in 1941, and later was commissioned a pilot officer.

His last fling at championship football was in 1942, when he starred with the R.C.A.F. Uplands team in the Ottawa City League. He arrived overseas about a year ago.

Last July a Sicilian dispatch from Ross Munro, Canadian Press war correspondent, mentioned that Golab was flying out of Malta and had been on operations over Sicily. In August, while stationed in Sicily, he was promoted to flying officer.

Later he was posted to a North African base. In October his R.C.A.F. unit was sent to Italy. Last May, FO. Golab's brother, Sergeant Frank M. Golab, was reported a prisoner-of-war of the Japanese.

CANADIENS VISIT TORONTO LEAFS

Hap Day's Team Have Chance to Break Winning Streak of Habitants

Toronto Maple Leafs entertain Montreal Canadiens in tonight's only National Hockey League game, and if the Leafs can repeat their performance of Saturday night they might trounce the league-leaders. On Saturday the Leafs walloped Boston Bruins 12-3 to gain a two-point advantage over the Bruins.

But the Leafs in second place are still 13 points back of Canadiens, and the latter have won their last nine starts. And the Toronto team will be minus captain Bob Davidson and Mel Hill, who were both in the line-up when Toronto beat Canadiens a month ago. The injured Davidson had a little skating practice yesterday and may be back in the line-up by the weekend.

There's a vast difference between Leafs and Canadiens in the goals-against column. So far 54 goals have been scored against the league-leaders, while 104 pucks have found their way into the Toronto nets. The game however promises to show a duel between the rival netminders, Paul Bibeault of Toronto and Bill Durnan of Canadiens. Coach Hap Day says Bibeault is a better netminder than Durnan, and tonight he has a chance to prove it.

ST. CATHARINES WINS

Hamilton, Ont., Jan. 11. (CP)—St. Catharines Saints defeated Hamilton Majors 8-7 in a Senior "A" O.H.A. game here last night, withstanding a late rush by the majors which threatened to tie the score.

Backor scored three for the winners and Reynolds got two goals. St. Catharines' other counters came from Concessi, Mundick and Bellinger.

KINGSTON ARMY BARRED FROM OHA COMPETITION

New Order Issued by Defence Headquarters on Monday Night

THREE TEAMS LEFT

Ottawa, Jan. 11 — (CP)—Officials of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and organized leagues today studied the effect of a defence headquarters order forbidding army hockey teams and players from playing in organized leagues whose championship would qualify them to play off for the Allan Cup or the Memorial Cup.

The army order, announced Monday night, places army and R.C.A.F. teams upon the same footing, since on Jan. 5 the Air Force forbade players and teams from engaging after that date in anything but garrison and defence loop competition.

George Dudley of Midland, Ont., past president and now treasurer of the C.A.H.A., said he believed enough civilian teams would be left to stage the Canadian championships this season, but in view of the loss of army teams under the ruling the whole matter would have to be studied.

"The announcement is unfortunate — but then, wars are unfortunate," Dudley commented, adding: "There should be enough teams left to play for the (Allan and Memorial) Cups."

Only Three Teams in Senior

The Senior O.H.A. loop started out with six clubs, but under previous rulings Toronto Army Daggers and Toronto R.C.A.F. were compelled to withdraw. The withdrawal now of Kingston Frontenac Army will leave only three teams in the loop — St. Catharines Saints, Hamilton Majors and Toronto Navy.

At Nanaimo, B.C., President Jack Ryan of the Pacific Coast senior hockey league said it has withdrawn from all Allan Cup competition, but any team in the circuit could challenge for the Cup, when the playdowns begin.

Sea Island R.C.A.F. Seahawks were withdrawn from the P.C.S.H.L. in line with Air Force headquarters instructions, but an R.C.A.F. spokesman at Ottawa said the air force team, despite the league's intention to withdraw from Allan Cup competition, would not be permitted to return to it.

Army Teams Continue

The army's hockey policy previously had been interpreted as permitting army teams and players to continue competition in their present leagues but forbidding them from entering Allan and Memorial Cup playdowns.

Now army teams are permitted to play inter-mural games in local garrison leagues, and they may also play exhibition games against teams of the other services, providing these are within the same geographical boundaries as the command or district to which the army team belongs.

The army ruling means that many civilian clubs in quest of either the Allan or the Memorial Cup will lose the use of their army players in play-offs. Army players might assist a club such as Ottawa Commandos of the Quebec Senior Hockey League to win the championship of that loop, but the Commandos would have to drop army players when they entered the playdowns.

The army's hockey policy was based upon the consideration that participation in hockey or any other sport could not be allowed to delay "the complete and earliest training" of every soldier for dispatch overseas.

Text of Statement

Army personnel, said a headquarters statement of Jan. 7, "being either in training or in readiness to proceed overseas, cannot engage in any activity which might take them away from their stations for period of time which would be necessary if they became eligible for cup playdowns."

Text of the headquarters order to all commands and districts follows:

No officer or soldier of the Active Army may take part in hockey contests in any organized leagues the championship of which would qualify the team to play off for the Allan Cup or Memorial Cup.

Army hockey teams may play in inter-mural games in local garrison leagues and may also play exhibition games against teams belonging to the other armed services who are located within the same geographical boundaries as the command or district to which the army team belongs.

Such exhibition games will not be held more than once every two weeks.

No Comment From Hewitt

Toronto, Jan. 11. (CP)—"I have no comment to make", declared W. A. Hewitt, secretary of the Ontario Hockey Association and secretary-registrar of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, when told between periods of the Senior Amateur fixture at Maple Leaf Gardens Monday night of the National Defence Headquarters order prohibiting further participation by Canadian Army teams or Army personnel in any hockey competition pointing to either the Allan Cup or Memorial Cup.

When told the edict was effective immediately, Bill Hewitt exclaimed: "Gosh, the Kingston Army team is out there on the ice right now! And they're leading against Navy, too!"

Hewitt intimated he was not in position to issue a statement immediately but would consult O.H.A. President F. W. (Dinty) Moore at Port Colborne and President Frank Sargent of the C.A.H.A., Fort William after studying the order from Ottawa.

The withdrawal of Kingston Frontenac Army would leave only three teams in the Senior O.H.A., St. Catharines Saints, Hamilton Majors and Toronto Navy. The series started out with six clubs but Toronto Army Daggers and Toronto R.C.A.F., were compelled to drop out under previous rulings.

CASUAL COMMENT

by K.J.C.

According to Robert (Believe it or not) Ripley, one of the strangest of all coincidences in the history of the high seas is that of the unsinkable "Hugh Williams." On December 5, 1664, a boat sank in the Irish Sea—of the eighty-one passengers who escaped, only one survived: Hugh Williams! One hundred twenty-one years later another boat sank in the same spot and of sixty passengers, only one escaped: Hugh Williams! Twenty-five years later another vessel was wrecked in the same spot. Of twenty-five passengers, one survived—Hugh Williams!

Coach Mike Dziura took his Air Force galaxy of former junior "A" stars into Stirling Monday night for all intent and purposes of showing the folk around the Quinte area how the game of hockey is played. However, they returned to the Trenton Air Station quite convinced that hockey in Eastern Ontario is something well worth considering. The answer: "Well, 'Wally' Hilton's "Combines" pinned the junior Flyers' ears back to the tune of 2 to 0 and all scoring was done in the last period as the Combines literally checked the youthful Flyers off their proverbial feet. Doug Patterson rapped home the first goal, late in the third period, on a pass from Bert Bastedo and then for good measure and to show there was no hard feelings, Doug slipped the old boot heel to Bert for a second count and now Coach Holway's Belleville charges have something new to worry about. What? Why the "Combines" invade the Hume Arena Friday night and after the showing the Combines made Monday night for once the hockey patrons of Belleville can be assured of a real hockey game. Get your tickets early, folks.

Sport fans taking in the opening dual bill of girls' basketball at the "Y" last night were doubly surprised. Unfortunately the winning teams, Alemite and Belleville Sargent won by a goodly margin, but judging from the initial appearance of the squads, the "Y" gallery won't accommodate the fans once the lassies get under full power.

Last night Ev. Allison led the Sargents to win over Deacons 28 to 10 with Ruth Gariepy and M. Barnhart adding to the victors scoring. For Deacons two softball players, Joyce Woodhouse and "Stewie" Stewart accounted for all points, as the losers lacked defensive measures.

When it came to the Alemite—Reliance game experience proved the factor for Frank Martin's Alemite 46-20 win as the Alemite starting quintette scored all points, paced by Doris Mansfield, Marion Salisbury, Dot Ronsky and Betty Gilbert in order. For Reliance it was all Kay Coathup, who sank eight baskets in a losing cause.

(Remember when—)

Montreal's two teams—Maroons and Canadiens—set a National Hockey League scoring record six years ago tonight, when the Maroons defeated the Habitants 11 to 7. The game produced a total of 45 scoring points, 28 for the Maroons and 17 for Les Canadiens. The goal-scoring record still stands, although Toronto Maple Leafs and Boston Bruins tried hard for a new scoring record Saturday night when the Leafian marksmen ran in 12 goals while the Bruins were registering three.

(Remember him?)

James Leo "One-eyed" Connelly, noted gate crasher of the roarin' 20's, has settled down as a chef in a Lake County, (Michigan) tourist camp. Previously he was working in a Detroit defence plant, but had to give up on account of ill health. Connelly's gate - crashing was legendary in the golden age of sport —the 20's.

(Did you know—)

Frank McCallum, who played first base for the Oshawa Generals in the old C.O.B.L., was elected president of the Oshawa Kiwanis Club recently?....When the lowly New York Rangers obtained defenceman Bob Dill from the Buffalo Bisons last week the Montreal Herald headed the story—Rangers get Dill, hoping to get out of the pickle"....It was Johnny Semark, not Jack Wardhaugh, who broke a tooth during the opening O.H.A. game here last week.....Earl Hilligan, statistician for the American Baseball League points out that loop's service bureau probably didn't accentuate sufficiently that the 1943 season was an unusual one in overtime . . . In all there were a total of 91 extra-inning games played in the A.L. last season which set a new record for the majors . . . The previous high was 80 back in 1916 ...The Red Sox played the most overtime—31 games including two ties. . . They also won the most of those extra inning battles by coming out on the long end of the score on 15 occasions . . . But the Washington Senators had the best percentage in the overtime league winning 11 out of 19 games.

GARRISON LOOP TO OPERATE

Calgary, Jan. 11 (CP)—Officials of the Alberta Services senior hockey league Monday night indicated the organization will be replaced by a garrison league following a meeting of the executive today. The proposed garrison loop would have the same teams—Calgary Currie Army, Red Deer Army Wheelers and Calgary Tecumseh-Mustangs, a combination of R.C.A.F. and Navy players.

There you see the remaining cards of a deal after ten tricks have been played. Three cards are left in each hand. The contract was in spades. South is declarer.

Declarer has already won the first ten tricks. The lead is now in his south hand. He would also like to take the last three tricks with the cards he still has in his own hand and dummy.

If south now leads a club, he will lose a club trick. If he leads a diamond, he will lose a diamond or a club to west in the end. That would not give him all the tricks.

To take all three tricks, south must not lead a club or a diamond. Instead, he should lead his last trump. On that trump lead, he will sluff the small club from dummy.

Meantime, west must play one of his cards on that lead of the last south trump. And whichever card west coughs up in that spot, declarer is in the driver's seat.

Suppose west lets go of the club queen. South wins the last two tricks with club jack and diamond ace. Suppose west gives up the diamond queen. Dummy wins two last diamond tricks.

It makes no difference which foe has all three of those big opposing cards. When south led the last trump, the opponent who had them was a squeezed goose.

When the threatening cards are where you expect them, a squeeze is relentless. When the last trump is led, something in another suit has to give.

Some persons hate to give up their last trump until the last trick. Like pinochlers and other low forms of card life.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Flesh and Fantasy"

"Flesh and Fantasy", the production which has probably aroused more curiosity and comment than any film in recent seasons, came today to the McCarthy Theatre. Presented by Universal and co-produced by Charles Boyer and Julien Duvivier, the extraordinary new picture is totally unlike any previous screen venture. It has an element of novel striking surprise which, in itself, is gripping entertainment while the story, or stories, it tells will be remembered as amazingly and dramatically thrilling.

Many noted stars appear in vivid roles as the multiple plot unfolds. They include Bob Benchley, Betty Field, Robert Cumming, Edward G. Robinson, Charles Boyer and Barbara Stanwyck. Distinguished dramatic portrayals are delivered by Edgar Barrier, Thomas Mitchell, C. Aubrey Smith, Anna Lee, Dame May Whitty and Charles Winninger.

Three separate but inter-related tales by Oscar Wilde, Laslo Vadnay and Ellis St. Joseph respectively, have been cleverly merged in the screen play by Ernest Pascal, Samuel Hoffenstein and Ellis St. Joseph. Presented as episodes, the stories are linked by an ingenious plot structure and the unified result is completely fascinating.

The first episode, dealing with the psychological transformation of an unattractive woman into a glamorous creature, has Betty Field and Cummings in the leading roles. Through supernatural, yet logical means the action blends into the second episode which reveals Edward G. Robinson as the potential murderer who is unwittingly doomed by a clairvoyant. Merged into this situation is the absorbing performance of Charles Boyer as the circus tight wire artist involved with a refugee crook, portrayed by Miss Stanwyck.

A spectacular climax, unique in every cinema respect, brings the film to its startling conclusion. Boyer's keen conception of entertainment value is evident throughout the production and the superlative direction by Duvivier gives each scene a high degree of importance.

AT THE BELLE

"This is the Army"

The motion picture version of the all-soldier musical, Irving Berlin's "This is the Army," produced by Warner Bros., for Army Emergency Relief, is now attracting large audiences to the Belle theatre.

The film, recently completed in Hollywood, was produced by Jack L. Warner and Hal B. Wallis. Michael Curtis directed. The entire company of 350 soldiers, who appeared in the musical on Broadway and during its cross-country tour, appears here with the soldiers in their original roles in the picture, which includes the entire stage production of "This is the Army" as well as additional material from Irving Berlin's World War I soldier show, "Yip, Yip Yaphank."

Irving Berlin makes his picture debut in "This is the Army", singing his famed lament, "Oh, How I Hate to Get up in the Morning," as he did in the stage version.

Also included in the cast, for purposes of a slight story content, are George Murphy, Joan Leslie, Lieutenant Ronald Reagan, Alan Hale, George Tobias, Charles Butterworth, Una Merkel and Sgt Joe Louis. In addition, it is in "This is the Army" that Kate Smith makes her first screen appearance in ten years and new Berlin songs are sung by Frances Langford and Gertrude Niesen.

The Canadian Movietone News and a funny Bugs Bunny color cartoon completes the program.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Edge of Darkness"

Superlatively mounted, magnificently acted and eloquently written, the finest and most inspiring story that has come out of this war was presented in Warner Bros.' "Edge of Darkness", which came to the Capitol Theatre last night.

It is the story of the "people's war" against the predatory beasts of Nazism; the story of bitter, unyielding resistance against a brutal, depraved mentality that knows only force as its weapon and domination as its creed. The drama of the film rises, through the poignancy and tragedy of stuggle to the transcendent beauty of a just triumph. "Edge of Darkness" is the shining promise of eternal light.

Errol Flynn and Ann Sheridan make straight-forward, dramatically intense recordings in their leading roles. As Gunnar Brogge, leader of the underground, a grimly serious Flynn seems utterly worthy of the confidence reposed in him by the folk of the little town of Trollness. He more than rises to the requirements of an exacting role, and gains a new power and greater stature as an actor.

"He Hired The Boss"
(Comedy)

Paced by some fast-moving action and scoring laughs at every turn, 20th Century-Fox's "He Hired The Boss", which opened yesterday at the Capitol Theatre is a grand picture all the way through.

Featuring soft-spoken Stuart Erwin as a meek bookkeeper and lovely Evelyn Venable as his sweetheart, the film is an hilarious comedy drama of modern American life. Incidentally, it is Hollywood's first story of the air raid warden service.

"Stu" Erwin has one of his funniest roles as the bookkeeper who postpones marriage from year to year hoping for a raise that never comes. At night he is an air raid warden and, until you see him in action, you have no idea what functions on air raid warden can perform.

"He Hired the Boss", is a surefire "blitz" on the blues. It's a picture guaranteed to leave you laughing.

Sports Roundup

New York, Jan. 11 — (AP) — The oddest of the "screwy season" ideas about baseball to turn up this winter is the suggestion offered to the Sporting News by advertising man William C. D'Arcy of St. Louis ... He proposes a 16-team major league "road show" to pay week-end visits to smaller centres and thus stimulate interest and participation in the game ... besides requiring some 300 more players of major league ability the program would need adequate parks in the small towns and some substitute for the minor leagues to develop young players ... the fans would hardly support bush league baseball on week days when they could save their dimes and watch big leaguers on Saturday and Sunday.

First Down, Referee Ditto

In a letter to Asa Bushnell, outlining his protest about football officials who get too close to the scene of action, Columbia Lou Little explains: "Next fall, if these officials do not stand where they belong, I am going to coach my men (if I have any who can run) to trample right over the official and not pay any attention to him."

AT THE BELLE — Kate Smith sings the song she made famous, "God Bless America," for Warner Bros. Technicolor filmization of Irving Berlin's "This Is the Army," now delighting large audiences at the Belle.

What's Doing in Sport

Waterloo —(CP)— With $50,000 available from the civic treasury, a seven-man committee was organized at a meeting last night to deal with the erection of a local recreation centre to be operated under the joint auspices of the municipality and the Waterloo Lions Club. Construction of an arena may be started this summer.

New York, Jan. 11 —(AP)— The unwanted 1943 Major League baseball championships—the dubious honor of striking out the most times—went to Chet Laabs, of the St. Louis Browns, and Vince DiMaggio, of the Pittsburgh Pirates. DiMaggio fanned 126 times while Laabs whiffed 105 times.

Washington —(AP)— Vic Creelman, New York lightweight, suffered his first defeat in 31 fights last night when he lost the decision in an eight-round go to Billy Banks of Washington at Uline Arena. Aaron Perry, local welterweight, knocked out Red Brown of Detroit in the second round of their eight-round bout.

Stirling-Marmora Combines Defeat Trenton R.C.A.F.

Stirling, January 11 —The first game of the Stirling-Marmora "Combines" in the Jr. "B" Hockey League was played Monday evening on home ice against Trenton R.C.A.F. with the Combines winning 2-0. The local arena was packed with fans.

The first period opened fast with both goalies being called upon to make several saves. At times the Flyers pressed hard and in this stanza, only the good work of McInroy in the Combine's net kept the Flyers off the score sheet. The play ranged back and forth with numerous off-sides and frequent changes of lines without either side being able to score. Towards the end of the first period, most of the lights went out, due to a blown fuse. Time was called and the extra minutes played in the second period.

During the elongated second period, both teams made repeated attempts, by scrambles in front of the nets to bang it home but the goalies were always on the puck. Several combination plays by the Combines' forward line of Doug. Bastedo, Bert. Bastedo and Doug. Patterson, failed to click. Second period ended with no score.

Early in the third period, on a scramble in front of the Flyers' net, Doug. Patterson banged it home for the first goal of the evening. The Flyers then put on the pressure and for a time the puck was held in the Combine's zone. Frequent combination plays were tried by the Combines, and at about the three-quarter mark, Doug. Bastedo and Bert. Bastedo combined on a breakaway with Bert. driving it home in the smartest play of the night. The Flyers tried hard but to no avail and this ended the scoring for the first game of the season. Both goalies played remarkable games but the defence of the R.C.A.F. appeared weak at times. Combines outshone them in combination play.

The lineups—Combines: goal, McInroy; defence, McIntosh and Utman; Forwards, B. Bastedo, D. Bastedo, D. Patterson; Alternates, Whitehead, E. Leonard, G. Lavender, Cousins, Tramble and Goodchild.

R.C.A.F.: Goal—Benson; defence, Ellis, Chartis; forwards, Schmidt, Stewart and Kohler; alternates, Flynn, Jochwitz, Harlte, McGee, Porteus and Green.

DUE TO OXYGEN SUPPLY

Fresno, Calif., Jan. 11 —(AP)— Hammer Field authorities yesterday announced the death of three gunners aboard heavy bombers due to failure of their oxygen supplies while at high altitude. They said they knew of no similar accident having occurred before. The deaths occurred Saturday night while one plane was over Tonpah, Nev., and the other over its base here.

THE WAR TODAY

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Note the highly-important declaration of James C. Dunn, United States State Department adviser on European political relations, that but for the agreement reached at the Moscow conference by Russia, Britain, America and China, a 3rd Great War was certain.

"These four nations," said Mr. Dunn in a week-end broadcast for the State Department, "committed themselves to a policy of continuing co-operation. If they hadn't done so the dread certainty of a third world war would have settled on us even before World War II was finished."

While he didn't mention "alliances", his disclosure fits well with a statement made in this column about a month ago on the question of peace versus war.

In the previous column I recorded that there's a considerable school which feels that, looking at the matter from a purely horse-sense viewpoint, the maintenance of peace must depend on a military alliance among the Big Three — Britain, America and Russia — just as the winning of this war hinges on the continued co-operation of these three dominant world-powers on the battle-field.

Maintain Peace by Force if Necessary

It strikes me that if the lesson of the League of Nations means anything, it is that any peace organization to be successful at this junction of our history must have as a nucleus an alliance of the dominant powers which are agreed to maintain peace by force if necessary. Around this nucleus may be formed a United Nations. Certainly China should be included in the alliance, but at the moment her strength is potential rather than actual, because of the ravages of her protracted war with Japan.

Since we were in an alliance in the last war, and are in another now, it's argued that it's a logical step to continue the pact for the purpose of maintaining peace and security.

There's one fear which I constantly encounter in discussing this burning problem. Many people are afraid that an alliance with Russia may in some way result in Communism being thrust upon their countries, or at least in the barrier to it being lowered. They seem to have the idea for some reason that they must be kind to the 'ism' because of friendship with the Soviet Union. However, I haven't yet found anyone who can explain why we are under obligation to foster any political belief we don't want, any more than Russia is under obligation to accept our form of government.

WORKERS RETURN TO JOBS

Philadelphia, Jan. 10 —(AP)— Thousands of employees of Cramp Shipbuilding Company trooped back to their jobs today, ending a four-day strike that halted all production and brought protests from the United States Navy, the War Labor Board and their own union.

About 11,000 day shift workers reported this morning and several thousand others went back at midnight. The rest of the plant's 117,000 workers were expected to report for the afternoon swing.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a Sunday walk with pop yesterday and trying to argue him into believing that one ice cream cone couldn't spoil my dinner, and I said, Hay pop,

At your service, night and day, in 24 hour shifts, pop said.

Meaning what, and I said, How's business?

It was never worse, thanks, such as it is, pop said, and I said, Well G, pop, is there any chance of you going into bankruppsy?

There's something disturbing about the gloating way you ask me that, pop said, and I said, Well I was only thinking, I mean I just read a swell lyberry book called Dick Manly Comes Through, and Dick Manly was such a rich boy he had all the luxuries he wanted and even a lot he didn't want, so Dick Manly got kind of spoiled, and all of a sudden his father lost all his fortune and went into bankruppsy, and Dick Manly stopped being spoiled and started to sell papers on the street to help support the family, and he had a lot of all kinds of adventures and helped his father to get his fortune back by outwitting his enemies. So that's what I meant, pop, I mean I always wanted to sell papers on the street and I bet I wouldn't be too proud to do it if I had to, either, I said.

I'm sure it would strengthen your voice and broaden your outlook, pop said. Unfortunately it isn't necessary just yet. I'm still able to provide you with untold luxuries, including ice cream cones. I fact I was just about to break down and get you one, but now I've got a better idea. I'll pretend I haven't got a penny to my name and you pretend you're giving up ice cream cones without a murmur, with your chin out and you stummick in: It will be excellent practice for you, he said.

Proving it's better to just be patient and wait for trouble to come naturally by itself.

CHAPTER 17

Early next day Irina was on the trail. With her dog racing ahead, smelling excitedly at every rabbit run, she followed the Trappers Lake trail, and reached Colin's cabin a little after one. Rae's team and toboggan were gone, but the door was unbolted, and, taking off her parka, she settled herself to wait. But barely had she lighted a cigarette when the pup looked up with a low growl and, at the sound of footsteps, Irina ran to the door, calling: "Colin?"

"Wrong!" answered Jonathan Dove as he opened—and closed—the door.

The cabin had become deathly cold as he walked slowly toward her.

"I have been looking for you, Irina." His eyes held a look of overwhelming sadness, but his mouth was a straight line. Then again the quiet, regretful voice, "Don't bother lying to me. I heard you and Blair Benedict talking last night."

Dove laid his gloves on the table and his eyes never left her. "I have made two mistakes. You were one, and Colin Rae was the other."

For the first time Irina spoke and then in desperation. "You lied to me about that powder. It was strychnine."

The under-cover Nazi nodded. "Yes, it was strychnine. But at the inquest I think Dr. Benedict would have been persuaded not to find it so. Thanks to you, I must choose another way."

Dove moved closer. "For two days I have hunted him—now I will make him hunt me. Somewhere along that trail I will be waiting."

Irina forced herself to speak. "Can you be sure he will follow?"

"Surely! For he will hate me madly—soon."

"Why?" Her heart was racing.

The Nazi agent's hands began rising. "You know why, Irina. I can see the fear in your eyes."

He took a step toward her, and with a choked cry she made for the door. Catlike he was after her, two arms reached out to her, two great hands opened and close. For one brief, agonized moment small fists beat futilely against his face and chest .. then the fists opened; a body slipped to the floor.

Dove raised her to the chair beside the table, laid the pale face down, cheek resting upon her arms. With his hand he smoothed back the tousled hair; then stepped back as an artist might, viewing his lethal handiwork.

Motionless, with meditative eyes, the Nazi might have been lost in reverie; at least he lifted the whimpering dog in his arms and closed the door behind him.

The sun sank lower. Slowly a shaft of light crept over the cabin floor and touched to golden brilliance the head that lay so quietly on the table.

Long shadows lay across the lake when Colin and Selkirk stepped from out the spruce that lined the shore. Their eyes were fixed on something high up in the air—four tiny specks droning toward them from the south, scudding before the wind; three fighter planes and a large two-motor transport. One by one they leveled off and landed and on the wings Colin saw the insignia of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Eagerly he ran to meet the tall army officer who descended from the transport.

"Righto! You're Colin Rae, of course." His eyes passed to Selkirk and he smiled. "We met last summer." Another brief handshake, then he turned to Colin again. "Ready to guide us to that air base?"

"We can leave now."

"How many men did you see there?"

"At least thirty. Maybe more."

Dowling looked back at the transport plane. "I brought a few machine gunners who'll be very glad to entertain them. You said you had a sketch map of the shoreline—where is it?"

"In my cabin."

Together the three men hurried up the path, but just outside the cabin Colin paused. Curled in a patch of sunlight, Irina's pup lay faintly whining, and with a vague sense of disquiet Colin threw open the door. But now he smiled in relief—head on the table, cheek pillowed in her hand, Irina sat, her parka flung over her shoulder.

Still smiling, Rae glanced back at Selkirk and stepped inside. Then—his heart stopped. An old memory, a memory cold as death itself clutched out at him. Again he envisioned Van Downe slumped forward at his desk. He took one shuddering step forward and raised the girl's shoulders. The head fell limply back. In that second the world turned red.

Without speaking, Colin walked across the room and took an automatic from the wall. He reached for his snowshoes.

"Where are you going?" asked Colonel Dowling.

"After Dove." There was death in Colin's eyes.

"Are you sure Dove did this?"

"So sure, I'll get him if it takes a lifetime."

Dowling seized him by the shoulders. "But, man, you can't — not now! There's something more important. No one else can lead us to the air base."

Deliberately the officer shook him back and forth. "Listen to me, Rae! I want Jonathan Dove just as much as you, but up on the bay enemy bombers are making ready to drop destruction. One bomb bursting on America is worth a thousand Doves to Hitler. We must prevent that."

"Even if Dove escapes?"

With stern, drawn faces the two men stood at gaze, then Colin repeated, "I'm going after Dove! Out of my way, Colonel—"

But Selkirk cut him off. "If Nazi bombs fall on Canada or the United States what answer will you make to the dead and dying?"

A tremor passed through Colin's body, then very slowly he straightened. "I'll go," he murmured.

Dowling hurried out to the planes. But within the cabin Colin stood, his somber eyes on an aging, broken man and the cold white face of a girl who had kissed him once; who had sat there smiling on his bunk, not so very long ago.

With strangely clumsy fingers, Colin lifted a strand of the hair that had always reminded him of a wolf's pelt. "I'm going now"—his lips were stiff—"I'm going, but I'll be back—for Dove."

Seated beside Colonel Dowling, Colin felt the transport climb for the upper air. He looked about him; the plane was filled with soldiers in army overcoats, each holding an automatic rifle, and through the window he saw ice-covered Nelson, its banks already in shadow beneath the sinking sun.

The Colonel began talking of Dove. "It was the picture you found in Van Downe's cabin that gave us the clue. Two days ago I had a complete report from Intelligence in England. An amazing tale! A mild-mannered, public-spirited citizen of Canada, Dove served Germany for over a quarter of a century.

"We first got track of him when he joined the Royal Air Force, in 1916, under the name of Proctor. He was in the same aviation class with Van Downe. In spite of his small size he soon became an exceptionally able flier. When his squadron got to France he was made test pilot. Again and again, according to the records, he showed himself thoroughly dependable. Finally they gave him a newly perfected bomb sight to test—something the Allies had been working on for more than a year. The thing was to be kept absolutely secret and that very day Dove flew with it over the lines and landed at a German airdrome.

"That was the first scrap of evidence the army had that this man, Proctor, or Dove, as he later called himself, was a German spy. Dove's commanding officer barely missed court-martial. Six months later Dove was reported killed. But his death turned out to be a little premature. Recently, the British agents learned that Dove was not dead. His plane had crashed and his face was so badly battered that he was unrecognizable. It was built up again by plastic surgery, completely changed so that only the eyes remained the same.

"We lost sight of him until in the Hitler regime he came back to Canada with a different face and name, to join the fifth column working here and in the U.S.A."

Col. Dowling stroked his chin. "You can't help admiring the thoroughness of those Teuton termites. For the last few years it's been Dove's job to learn more about the south shore of Hudson Bay than any living man. We've always recognized that, in case of war, the bay is our weak link. It's the second largest bay on earth, and it's not an Arctic sea as so many people think—it's no farther north than London or Berlin. Its waters are navigable the year round.

"With long cruising bombers, the Germans could paralyze the nerve centres of all eastern America—provided they could find suitable places to base along the bay. That is what Dove's been working on, and that's why I tell you I want him as badly as you do. He probably has a more complete set of pictures of the south shore, with its landing possibilities, than we have. And I can't let those pictures reach the German High Command."

"Haven't they already?"

Dowling shook his head. "I doubt it. Those midnight trips to meet the reconnaissance plane would mean that Dove's job isn't quite finished."

The Colonel leaned forward. "What's your idea about that plane?"

"It came from the south—maybe Winnipeg, or the United States. Wherever it came from, I believe it would start out innocently enough, as if on a pleasure trip or a hunting trip and when it got to their meeting place, Dove would help refuel it and install the cameras. On its return, he would take out the cameras and film and the plane could go back in perfect security and land at any Canadian or U.S. airdrome. But he knew he had to hurry, for the United States is cracking down more and more on private planes.

"Then Dove kept the photographic equipment here in Learmonth."

Colin nodded. "In a secret room that he built himself at the school. He had drums of film, developing pans, chemicals—everything."

Dowling laid his hand on Colin's knee. "And Dove would have got by with it, too, except for you."

"And Blair Benedict," Colin added. "She did more than I."

The officer glanced at his watch, then peered out the window. Steadily the winter sun sank until it touched the lake, turning the great expanse of ice to softest opal.

At last Colin pointed toward the northern horizon. "Up there is where Blair and I landed. We're about seven miles from the air base now and it's not safe to go much closer. You'd better come in low."

A word from Dowling to the pilot and the three planes began spiraling downward. It was almost dark when they landed in the spectral twilight of an Arctic night. The men busied themselves making ready for the night. No fires were allowed but they heaped up mounds of snow and laid their sleeping bags behind them, while Dowling gathered his squad leaders about the rough sketch map Rae had drawn.

"Timing is the important thing," the Colonel cautioned his men. "You pilots give us two hours' start, then come over low. Try not to destroy their bombers unless they resist or take off. If they do—riddle them!"

Dowling drew his eiderdown closer about him and settled himself for the night.

"They'll hit some pretty heavy going. There's a patrol of pursuit planes strung across Canada—every last plane fit to fly is in the air. Meantime, Winnipeg, Ottawa, and Toronto are blacked out—we are calling it a practice manoeuvre."

Few slept that night. Long before daylight the gunners began putting the last loving touches to their weapons.

Dawn crept over the world as a red sun touched the southern ice to fire and, with that first beam, Dowling and his men followed Colin out over the frozen snowfield.

Less than two hours brought them to their goal. Well hidden in a sheltered elbow of the bay, the German air base looked quietly innocent beneath the morning sun. Two low, squat buildings, covered with ice to camouflage them from the air and three huge white canvas hangars staked down against the wind.

"Establish your machine guns where we agreed," he gave his crisp orders. "At the first sign of resistance we'll rake them with three fires. You have exactly thirty minutes to make ready."

Separating into groups, the gunners moved closer, keeping well back behind the shoreline, while Colin led Dowling and a squad of men to the shelter of a hummock. There they halted and Colin heard the metallic click of machine guns loading; then Dowling whispered, "We can blow the very Hitler out of Fritz from here!" Watch in hand, Dowling waited. In thirty minutes, precisely to the second, Dowling turned to his nearest gunner.

"Fire a burst just this side of the building," he commanded.

Shots rattled and puffs of shattered ice sprang up before the Germans' hut. It was like stamping on an anthill as a score of men in white parkas came piling out, some with rifles, but at sight of that waiting circle of men and guns, they drew quickly back and began huddling around a tall officer standing in the doorway.

He's going to blow up the bombers!" Colin shouted, but Dowling already had nodded to his gunner. A burst of shot and the running Nazi sprawled on the ice just as the Canadian fighter planes came screaming in, barely clearing the hummocks, circling over the air base so low that the barrels of their machine guns glinted in the early light.

The Nazis gave up all show of resistance. Throwing down their guns, they crowded back toward the cabin, while their officer worked forward with raised hands. "Nicht mehr!" he called.

Leaving a strong guard over prisoners and planes, Colonel Dowling and Colin Rae were on their way back to Learmonth. "No one," the former grumbled, "who holds down my job should be surprised at anything. But this plot came so near succeeding I get a cold chill. They had bombs and drums of gas enough for twenty trips. They had flight maps for every airplane-producing centre in the United States and detailed routes to Detroit and New York. It could have been a major catastrophe of the war."

"How did they get those planes here?"

"They might have come in on submarines, but I doubt it. They could have flown them in without the least difficulty. Why ten years ago, Germany made a test flight from Iceland to Chicago and Detroit in an old crate of a flying boat. Made it nonstop. Think how simple it would be now. It was partly because of that danger the United States landed troops in Iceland. Those bombers may have come from Norway, via Greenland perhaps."

Colin had been looking out the window. Suddenly, he asked, "Do you need me after we get to Learmonth?"

"Why?"

"Because I'm starting out after Jonathan Dove."

The Colonel frowned. "Be sensible, Rae. Men are on the watch for him now throughout Canada. Dove can't stick his nose out this country."

"Yes he can."

"How?"

"By meeting that plane he used for the photographic work. He can hide out until it's due, and then get away."

"Where will he meet it?"

"I know where," Colin answered shortly, "and I'm the only one that's going to know."

"All right." Dowling's shoulders rose in reluctant consent. "Have it your own way." He looked into Colin's eyes. "But when you get back, I've got a job for you."

"What kind of a job?"

Dowling pointed toward the north. "How do we know the danger's over up there? Somewhere on the bay there may be other Nazi bomber nests. This thing today has taught me the need of a ground patrol, winter and summer, until the war's won. Air patrol alone isn't enough—they can camouflage their bases too well.

"I want you to organize a ground patrol for the country around the bay. Already Japan and Germany are building planes that can reach here if they find some safe place to base. You've got to see that they can't. You know this country, Rae, you know the people—Crees, Eskimos and whites. You can build up your own organization and choose your own men." Dowling leaned forward, then very earnestly he said, "Let me count on you, Rae."

"When I come back," Colin answered, "you can count on me."

Tennant's wolf team lay in the trail outside Benedict's cabin and it was Nate who opened the door at Colin's knock. Across the room Blair was standing, and she ran toward him, clasping his arm in both hands, as if to make certain he had come back to her. Nate asked, "What happened up above?"

WOMAN SUFFRAGE LEADER DIES

Rochester, N.Y., Jan. 11—(AP)—Dr. M. May Allen, 74, physician, Women's Suffrage leader and pioneer in the establishment of school health clinics, died yesterday. A friend of Susan B. Anthony, she was distantly related to Louisa May Alcott, author of "Little Women."

OPPOSED TO WAR

Seafaring New Englanders were so opposed to the war of 1812 that they talked about seceding from the union.

Three Negroes, White Boy, Held

Toronto, Jan. 11. (CP)— Three negroes and a 15-year-old white boy were arrested last night in connection with kidnapping, assault and robbery of John Seyarto, 21, of Toronto, Sunday morning. Alfred J. Johnston and the white boy face charges of assault, robbery and car theft; William D. Erie is charged with receiving a stolen coat and is held as a material witness; the third negro is held on a charge of vagrancy.

Seyarto told police he was slugged near his home, forced into his car, driven to a sideroad near Oakville where he was robbed of $20, his overcoat and his hat and thrown into a ditch. His car was recovered in Brantford Sunday.

Torpedoed Cruiser Soon Repaired

Bremerton, Wash., Jan. 11. (AP)—The United States Navy said today a torpedoed cruiser with her entire bow shot off came into the navy yard here, was fitted up with a made-in-advance replacement and went back to prowl the Pacific.

The Navy release, without identifying the vessel or listing the date, said 'the veteran crew. . . .saw the severed bow go to the bottom even while the cruiser's guns still blazed at the Nips".

The ship started for Puget Sound with an emergency fore section. A replica of the severed section was made from the plans of a sister ship while the wounded cruiser was on its way. Welders went to work and the ship was made whole again.

U. S. Air Forces Reach Their Peak In Unit Strength

Washington, Jan. 11—(AP)—The United States Army Air Forces has reached the peak of its unit strength and is gradually shifting to a replacement training basis.

That explanation was supplied today for the closing of 69 air bases throughout the United States, a figure estimated by the Air Forces to represent between five and seven per cent of all A.A.F. installations in the United States.

New units will be organized as the war progresses, but for the most part they will be replacement organizations.

King Gustav V Says Sweden Must Remain Armed

Stockholm, Jan. 11. (AP) King Gustav V, in a speech from the Throne opening parliament, said today that Sweden must remain armed and on guard while the belligerents are "rallying forces with the aim of gaining a decision in the great struggle".

The government proposed a budget for the financial year 1944-45 calling for the expenditure of 1,820,000,000 crowns (about $443,160,000) for defence, or approximately half the total outlay of 3,774,000,000 crowns.

Sweden's relations abroad are good, the King said, "and I trust in our chances of maintaining peace also in the future".

Antigonish, N.S., Jan. 11. (CP)—Squeezing through an opening seven inches wide, Freeman Julian, 25-year-old Indian, escaped over the weekend from the Antigonish lock-up where he was awaiting trial on burglary charges. The 166-pound prisoner apparently tossed his clothes through the food-passing slit in his cell door and wormed his unclad body out after them.

Obituary

AMELIA ANN OUTINGDYKE
(Cobourg)

After suffering a stroke three weeks ago, Mrs. Amelia Ann Outingdyke, formerly of Ivanhoe, died early Tuesday morning, December 11th, at the home of her son, Mr. Osborne Seale, 468 King Street West, Cobourg. She had been residing with her son in Cobourg for the past five months.

Born at Ottawa 64 years ago, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Walton Featherston, Mrs. Outingdyke has been married twice, her first husband, Rev. T. A. Seale, predeceasing her in 1929. She was a member of the Standard Church and prior to going to Cobourg to reside with her son she had resided with a daughter, Mrs. Nathan Reid of Ivanhoe.

Surviving to mourn her passing are two sons, Osborne Seale of Cobourg, and Delmore Seale of Sharp's Corners, and one daughter, Mrs. Nathan Reid of Ivanhoe. There are eight grandchildren. Also surviving are three brothers, Walter Featherston and Delmore Featherston of Smiths Falls, and William Fetherston of Ashton, Ont.

Delores McAninch Given Mention For Fire Poster

Placing seventh in a field of secondary school student contestants from all parts of the province, Delores McAninch, pupil of Belleville Collegiate received honorable mention for her poster submitted to the Dominion Fire Prevention Association Poster Contest, according to notification received by Fire Chief William Lynch. The contest was staged last October in connection with Fire Prevention Week, the object of the posters being to give a fuller acquaintance in methods of fire prevention.

The prize winning poster was submitted by a Toronto school girl, her creation depicting a box of matches and a coiled snake, with the words "Harmless until they strike." Second prize suggested the possibility of fire through careless use of gasoline, cigarettes and the electric iron, while third prize was given to a poster emphasizing the importance of knowing, where the nearest fire alarm box is situated.

The poster submitted by the Belleville girl and which came in for seventh place bore a drawing of the torch of Freedom with the words, "Keep out the flame of Destruction so that the Torch of Freedom may burn." Two posters were submitted from Belleville, the other by Margaret Williams, Dufferin Ave., also of Belleville Collegiate. Posters were judged in New York City.

Honorable mention for their part in Fire Prevention Week has also been received from W. G. Scott, Ontario Fire Marshal, by the Belleville Fire Department. First prize for cities up to 25,000 population has been taken by Brantford, while two years ago this honor went to Belleville. Since then the local fire department has instituted no especial program for Fire Prevention Week owing to the lack of the necessary funds.

"Your achievement during Fire Prevention Week is indeed praiseworthy," stated Mr. Scott in his letter to the local fire department. "It shows, that you are fully aware of the importance of fire protection and prevention."

Says 350 to 400 Norse Students Deported To Germany

Stockholm, Jan. 11 —(AP)— The Stockholm newspaper Svensna Dagbladet said today that between 350 and 400 more Norwegian university students had been deported to Germany, presumably for labor service, after being arrested for acts which German occupation authorities regarded as unfriendly. Several hundred students from Oslo University were reported deported to Germany last month for similar reasons.

U. S. Navy Yard Worker Admits Theft Of Government Tools

New York, Jan. 11 —(AP)— A United States navy yard employee admitted to U. S. district court to stealing $4,000 worth of government tools and materials from the yard. The worker, the Federal Bureau of Investigation said, not only had more of certain items at his home than the navy yard had but also had some articles the yard lacks and can't buy because of shortages. The man's excuse: "I just like to take things home."

MONTREAL LIVESTOCK

Montreal, Jan. 11 —(CP)— All classes steady today on the livestock markets. Receipts: Cattle 150, sheep and lambs 135, hogs 600 calves 250.

Bulk of cattle offered were common to medium quality and sales were too few to establish a market. Indications were that prices when settled would be steady with yesterday's close.

Lambs 10.50 for ungraded lots. Sheep 3-7. Hogs 17.15 for B-1 dressed. Sows 13 dressed.

Veal calves 15-16 for good to choice with other grades down to 12. Grass calves mostly 8-8.75, a few tops 9 and culls down to 7.

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from J. S. McKeown or any I.D.A or other drug store and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money

TORONTO EXCHANGE

Toronto, Jan. 11 —(CP)— New York buying was reported in the market in the early session on the Toronto Stock Exchange today and new highs for a year or more were recorded. Most of the senior issues touched new tops. Base Metal and Industrial groups had index gains at noon and the Western Oils were about even with Monday's final prices. Volume was heavier at 411,000 shares for the first three hours.

Bralorne, Hollinger, Lake Shore, and Dome added ¼ to⅝, Kerr-Addison gained 45 cents to sell at 9.75 and gains of 5 to 10 cents came out for Wright-Hargreaves, Teck Hughes, Macassa, Pickle Crow, East Malartic, Central Patricia, Malartic Gold Fields and others.

Noranda, Hudson Bay, Falconbridge and Ventures were Base Metal gainers and in the Industrials the Senior Oil, Liquor and Paper stocks improved. Home Oil weakened 5 cents to 3.40 and East Crest was down ¾ to 11.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, Jan. 11 — (AP)—President Roosevelt's message was viewed as bullish in today's stock market and leading steels, rails, gold mines and specialties were lifted fractions to 2 or more points before the move was stemmed by profit taking.

Plus signs were well in the majority, however, near the fourth hour.

Among favored stocks, Delaware & Hudson and South Porto Rico Sugar again touched new 1943-44 peaks. In front were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Nickel Plate Preferred, Dome, Homestake, Alaska Juneau, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Bell Aircraft, Anaconda, Allied Chemical, Du Pont, Dow Chemical and Standard Oil (N.J.)

Canadian stocks were firm, with Hiram Walker, Lake Shore, McIntyre and Canadian Pacific all on the upside, and Distillers Seagrams unchanged.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Jan. 11 (CP)—Most of the cattle weighed up to midsession on the livestock market here today were sold late Monday. Prices were about 15 cents lower for the week in today's trade. Calves, hogs and lambs were steady. Sheep were weak.

Receipts reported by the Dominion marketing service were: Cattle 800, calves 130, hogs 700, sheep and lambs 400. Unsold from yesterday were 1,000 head of cattle.

Prices in the trade included:

Cattle: Weighty steers $11-$12.50, butcher steers and heifers mostly $10.25-$11.50, a few cows $7-$8.50, bulls $7.25-$9, fed yearlings $12-$13.50, stockers $8-$10.50.

Calves: $15.50-$16 for choice with other vealers downward to $10.

POLICE COURT

With tears streaming down his face and sobbing quite loudly 20-year-old Albert Brooks, of Trenton, appeared before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in police court Tuesday, charged with intoxication. He pleaded guilty and then sobbed louder. "It's a second offence", reminded Deputy Chief Harman.

"I'll lose a perfectly good job making doughnuts" sobbed Brooks and his pleas fell upon listening ears as both Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan and Magistrate Lloyd gave the lad consideration.

"If we don't make it a second offence will you quit drinking?" enquired Mr. Donnan.

"I promise, I'll never take another drink", replied Brooks in haste and the tears suddenly ceased to flow, but they had served their purpose as His Worship levied the conventional "ten and costs" drunk assessment. Here the accused youth got a little more consideration, he was given ten days in which to raise the $13.00. "I have seven dollars now", he remarked as he left the prisoners' dock, a happier lad.

Convicted of Careless Driving.

John Burkett, Belleville, was fined $25 and costs after being convicted on a careless driving count, while on a similar charge Stewart Hartley, Belleville, paid $7.50, including costs. "A woman was injured in the first case", explained Mr. Donnan. Failing to stop at a designated 'stop street' cost J. C. Smith, of Belleville, two dollars and costs, while Douglas Johnson, Belleville, was fined $10 and costs after admitting possession of an unregistered revolver. "The gun can't be fired as the firing pin has been filed off" remarked E. E. Follwell, counsel for the accused.

Charges of careless driving and driving without a license preferred against George Lobb of Milford, were adjourned for one week when the accused seemed at a loss to understand the exact court charges. "Consult a lawyer", advised His Worship as he enlarged the matter.

German News Agency Says Ciano Sentenced At Treason Trial

London, Jan. 10. (CP)—A German News Agency broadcast announced tonight that Count Galeazzo Ciano, son-in-law of Benito Mussolini and Italy's Foreign Minister when the country was led into war at the side of Germany, had been sentenced to death at a Nazi-sponsored "treason trial".

D.N.B. said all 19 members of the Fascist Council who voted July 29 for the deposing of Mussolini from his dictatorship had been condemned to death with the single exception of Tullio Cianetti, former Minister of Corporations.

Only six of the 19 defendants, including Ciano, were in Nazi-Fascist custody, however, the other 13 having escaped the clutches of the Germans and Mussolini according to German radio reports.

FAMOUS BATTERY BARKS ON NORTHERN RUSSIAN FRONT

Amid the deep snow in the forests of the north Russian front near Vitebsk, is this gun battery of Guards Captain M. Ponomaryov. The battery rendered a good account of itself, since in its last battle it helped to beat back four German counter-attacks, annihilated about a battalion of enemy infantry and silenced two enemy batteries. This is an exclusive radio photo from Moscow.

A Soldier Turns Observer

(The following letter was sent to his father some weeks ago by a young American who is serving with his country's forces in New Zealand. The father, who is a resident of Canada, sent a copy to The Montreal Gazette in the belief that parts of it might be of interest to Canadians. The personal parts of the letter are not reproduced.)

Was interested in your comments relative to Sir William Beveridge's testimony on this country's social insurance system. (Can't mention the name of the country, of course, but you know where I am.) With what little time I have taken off from camp for further edification of the mind, instead of worldly pursuit such as last year's movies, I have managed to pick up a little information about their scheme. Of course, its operation hinges on the party that's in power, and its success is relative in whether the government is good or bad. In theory, as with lots of Utopian schemes, it is a fairly perfect idea, but then the German socialization doctrine looks pretty good in theory.

Prior to 1938 there had been all sorts of arrangements for pensions, fre hospital treatment, unemployment relief, etc., but it wasn't until the "Social Security Act" was passed in that year, that these were all collected together and a consolidated program worked out. State-paid old-age pensions have been in effect since 1898. Unions have long been firmly entrenched and compulsory unionism was adopted in 1936 with the government handling it all. State housing, public hospitals, 40-hour week, free milk at school, and all sort of things have sprung up throughout this country of a little over a million and a half souls.

Now all these benefits are grouped under one head, and the citizen finds that 5 per cent. of his income goes into the Social Security Fund by regular taxation. The benefits payable from this are for old-age, illness, unemployment, widows and orphans, and family endowments. As it is true in the U.S., rates vary for the number of dependents, and there is a limit for old-age beneficiaries, but the standard rate at 60 is £78 or about $254 in our money. They add to that a 5 per cent. cost of living bonus, but even at that, it's nothing to brag about. Although, I will say you can live considerably cheaper over here. (The pound costs $3.25). This program of social insurance cost the Government last year £13,531,000; of this amount £7,000,000 went for old-age benefits; medical and hospital took £2,400,0000, and invalid £1,000,000. Can't give you any intesting figures to work with because I don't know the average per capita income. The only thing I can give you is that of the half-million people who work in shops, industry, farming, etc., only 1 per cent., of them have a taxable income of £2,000 or over.

One difficulty I've noticed with the close government supervision is the complete lack of initiative these people seem to display. They don't know what the word enterprise means—"my grandfather did it this way, it's good enough for me". Nobody works overtime, stores could make a mint of money from the Marines if they stayed open Saturday afternoons, but why bother. The movies put on one show at night, and every theatre has to turn away people, but why should they run the picture twice and make more money. The men who work on the docks unloading ships took one week to unload our ship, which we loaded in San Diego in one day. If work starts at eight, they drift in around nine, take an hour out for tea at 10, 11—2 hours for lunch, tea at 2, 3 and though they are supposed to quit at four you can't find any of them near the docks after 3.30. One day they all just up and quit for half an hour—I asked one of them where he was going and he replied "Oh, we never miss the Charlie McCarthy hour". And sure enough you couldn't drag them away from the radio. They should worry if they are fired, the government and compulsory unionism won't permit you to fire a man in the first place and secondly, if you could he'd get unemployment compensation.

No, Dad, it may have its faults, but I'm still a great believer in private enterprise with individual profit. The human race has not yet reached the scale of perfection where the theory of collective social security will operate successfully in all phases of life. All men do not come out of the same mould and, therefore, you can't treat them all alike, nor can you expect them all to follow identically the blue print of collectivism. Don't mean this in quite as radical terms as I seem to indicate, but social security can be one of the many steps to complete socialism.

Soviet Letter

Written for The Canadian Press
By Z. OSTROVSKY

Moscow, Jan. 11—(CP) — Alexei Topalsky, modest construction engineer who designed and built bridges in Leningrad, had never before served in the army and lacked combat experience. His arrival at the front co-incided with the crossing of the Dnieper by the Red Army last autumn.

Topalsky was summoned late one night to staff headquarters and ordered to build a bridge across the wide Ukrainian River. Cutters were towing barges and rafts loaded with machines and troops to the right bank when Topalsky reported to the general.

"You may see for yourself how much you are needed here," the general remarked, pointing to the bustling scene in front of him. "Time is precious. We've got to transfer thousands of machines to the other side and the quicker the better."

After a brief pause he added: "My men will bring up building materials and you do the construction."

Topalsky worked out the designs that night. The project was passed by the general the next day. Orders were issued to start driving in piles that same night. But it was necessary first to mark out the bridge with buoys. The construction engineer called for volunteers to enter almost freezing water and set up the buoys. Dozens of young officers stepped forward. Topalsky finally selected Senior Lieutenant Mikailov. He quickly undressed and established the first three marking points of the new bridge.

Then began a titanic struggle between the bridge builders and the elements. Topalsky and his small army of sappers worked for three successive days before knocking off for a few hours sleep. Standing waist-high in cold water, they drove piles by hand. The piles appeared simultaneously in eight different places near both banks and in the middle of the Dnieper. The ranks of the builders grew thinner after each German air raid.

One day when enemy shells no longer fell in the area, Russian artillery guns spoke and Soviet divisions on the right bank launched an offensive.

SARNY, KEY RAIL POINT IN POLAND, TAKEN BY REDS

Armies Advancing Toward Rumania Increase Threat

Nazis in Upper Dnieper Bend Are Squeezed Between 2 Ukrainian Armies

GERMANS REINFORCED

By JAMES M. LONG

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 12. (AP)—Russian troops of the 1st Ukraine Army have captured Sarny, Premier Stalin announced today, seizing the fortified railway junction 35 miles within Poland after an assault over the Sluch River.

The Soviet forces crossed the Sluch yesterday and then took Sarny by assault, said the order broadcast by Moscow and recorded by the Soviet Monitor.

The key railway centre, astride a north-south line and also on a line west to Warsaw, had virtually been encircled, and Soviet advance units already were pushing beyond Sarny. Towns on the railway north and south were taken yesterday, effectively breaking the Nazi supply route, and forcing the Germans to rely on the railway running through Brest-Litovsk 135 miles farther west.

Two Villages Taken.

Stryelsk, seven miles north of Sarny, and Nenovichi, seven miles south, were seized yesterday.

Stalin ordered a salute in Moscow tonight of 12 salvoes from 124 guns, and awarded the name "Sarny" to troops distinguishing themselves in the victory.

Fall of Sarny meant Gen. Nikolai Vatutin could use the rail centre as a pivot, with his right flank protected by the Pripet marshes, for attacks towards the other rail centres of Shepetovka, Rovno, Zhmerinka and Proshurov.

In the upper Dnieper bend sector, the Germans by hard fighting and heavy losses still were holding open their narrow escape corridor from the Smela-Kanev area where they were being squeezed between the first and second Ukrainian armies. No Russian report suggested a German withdrawal although the peril to the Nazis increased every hour.

The Nazis were mustering all available tank and infantry reserves in an effort to stem the Russian advance, Red Star dispatches said, and fighting all along the front was assuming a more violent character. At no point, however, the dispatches added, was the enemy able to stop the Soviet drive.

Furious Tank Charges

Furious tank charges against troops of Gen. Nikolai Vatutin approaching Odessa-Warsaw railway were beaten back, Red Star said, with guerilla detachments lending valuable aid to the Soviet regulars. The Germans were also reported launching fierce counter-assaults south and southwest of Berdichev, but these, too, were smashed, Red Star added.

From inside the Dnieper bend where huge concentrations of German troops face encirclement by the forces led by Vatutin and Gen. Ivan S. Konev, enemy resistance also was increasing, Red Star reported.

Wild Elephant Draws Jap Fire, Aids British Drive

New Delhi, Jan. 12 (CP-Reuters)—A wild elephant, which crashed through the Burma jungle when disturbed by a night patrol and drew Japanese fire that betrayed enemy positions, played a part in the British advance through the important village of Maungdaw, northwest along the coast from Akyab. The elephant escaped unhurt.

British troops now are in contact with the Japanese southeast of Maungdaw where light machine-fire is being encountered from the village of Kanyindan.

Meantime, the hitherto anonymous British force in Burma has been identified as the 14th army by Prime Minister Churchill in a letter to "S.E.A.C." new daily newspaper of the southeast Asia command.

"I know that with confidence in their commander and comprehension of the great issues which lie in their hands, they will acquit themselves with audacity, valor and resourcefulness which our country and common cause now need," the Prime Minister added.

$60,000 Fire In Toronto Church

Toronto, Jan. 12—(CP) — Two firemen were injured and six others showered with falling plaster from a collapsing ceiling as a $60,000 fire swept through Grace United Church and Sunday School at College and Sheridan Streets in Western Toronto early today.

Assistant Deputy Chief Peter Herd was taken to hospital with bruises on the right eye and forehead suffered when he was hit by a section of the falling ceiling. Fireman Samuel Armstrong was also treated in hospital for a cut in the right foot when he stepped on a six-inch spike.

More than 100 firemen fought the two-alarm blaze which ruined the interiors of the church and adjoining Sunday School. Cause of the fire was not determined immediately.

Families' Reactions Cause Some Anxiety

Washington, Jan. 12. (AP)— The home front in the United States has some army nurses worried.

Not the home front in general, but the reactions of families and friends and strangers to maimed and scarred casualties of war. They have seen a crippled soldiers recovery set back for weeks, perhaps prevented entirely, by some remark or obvious dismay of a thoughtless relative.

Nurses from the hospital ship, Acadia told reporters yesterday about their work and showed unmistakably that their greatest concern is not the morale of the hundreds of wounded men they have treated, but the impact of family reactions on that morale.

Allies Capture Cervaro Near Cassino Says Nazi Report

3-HOUR RUNNING AIR BATTLE OVER EUROPE FOUGHT

German Command In Special Communique Says 136 Raiders Shot Down

BIG FORCE USED

By GLADWIN HILL

Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Jan. 12—(AP)—The London Press speculated today that the United States 8th Air Force had lost about 60 bombers in yesterday's attack on undisclosed targets in Germany. The German News Agency D. N. B. claimed 136 bombers were shot down, and a German-censored report reaching Sweden estimated the U. S. Air Force lost 25 per cent of the planes sent over Western Germany.

All these figures were without official confirmation. The 8th Air Force still was compiling its reports almost 24 hours after the bombers' returns from the assault, which turned into a three-hour running battle.

One of Greatest Battles

A special communique from the German High Command, broadcast last night, also said 123 planes were shot down in yesterday's attack, but D. N. B. today raised this figure to 136. Meanwhile the Scandinavian telegraph bureau's Berlin correspondent said there was speculation that Nazi planes were equipped with a new secret device which improved their fighting effectiveness.

The Berlin correspondent of Stockholm's Aftonbladet said part of yesterday's attack, at least, was directed against Madgeburg, important arms and railroad centre about 100 miles west of Berlin, and Halbergstadt, in the same vicinity. The correspondent added that Fortresses flew across the outskirts of Berlin for the first time in attacking these places.

Aftonbladet said the American fliers feinted toward Berlin, and an alarm sounded there just before noon yesterday—the second time since the war's start that a real daylight warning has been given in Berlin. An "unimportant part" of the bombers swept over the outskirts of Berlin, and was met by anti-aircraft fire, while most of the planes turned south toward the main objectives, it added.

"No large damage was caused at any of these places," Aftonbladet asserted.

A preliminary U. S. announcement on the attack, unquestionably one of the greatest aerial battles of the war, said the bombers' escort included a new type of long-range fighter.

A preliminary U. S. communique issued Tuesday night said merely targets in northwest Germany had been attacked and that "strong fighter opposition" was encountered. This announcement gave no figures on plane losses, but a supplementary statement said the mission had turned into a three-hour running sky battle to and from the target.

"The Germans threw in virtually every type of aircraft that could give battle to the bombers and their assault was vicious and determined," the statement said.

The German claim that 123 Allied planes had been knocked down was identical with that made after the raid on Schweinfurt last Oct. 14, when the 8th Air Force officially acknowledged the loss of 60 planes — the greatest loss suffered by American fliers in any attack upon the continent to date.

Yesterday's raid was the fourth big American assault on Germany during 1944 and the first since last Friday, when the Germans reported Ludwigshafen and Mannheim had been hit.

Gov't Increases Hog Premiums For Select Grades

Ottawa, Jan. 12—(CP) — Agriculture Minister Gardiner announced today that thee government will pay premiums to farmers on high-grade hogs at the rate of $3 for Grade "A," or select hogs and $2 for Grade "B1."

Mr. Gardiner also announced that negotiations for a four-year bacon contract with Great Britain are in progress.

Mr. Gardiner said at a press conference that the present two-year bacon contract with the United Kingdom provided for the delivery of 900,000,000 pounds in two years, more than 500,000,000 pounds of which probably would be delivered in 1944.

The new premium payment authorized by the Dominion government is expected to have the effect of maintaining high hog production in the later months of 1944 and into the future, with the prospect Canada will be able to continue supplying the United Kingdom with 500,000,000 pounds of bacon annually for as long as it is wanted.

Food Minister J. J. Lewellin of the United Kingdom said in an addres here a month ago that more than 450,000,000 pounds of bacon annually was required from Canada to maintain the British four-ounce weekly ration.

Payment of the premiums was authorized by order-in-council yesterday.

Mr. Gardiner said that on the basis of the 1942 hog deliveries, the estimated cost of the premiums in a year would run from $10,000,000 to $12,000,000.

ONTARIO GOV'T WILL TAKE OVER THE STOCKYARDS

Commission Would Operate Yards for Benefit of the Farmers

MUST FIND MARKETS

Toronto, Jan. 12 —(CP)— More than 350 delegates representing most Ontario counties today will hear discussion of post-war agricultural reconstruction at the closing session of the eighth annual convention of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture. The convention started yesterday.

Last night Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Provincial Minister of Agriculture, announced legislation will be introduced at the next session of the legislature to give the government authority to assume control of union stockyards in Toronto.

A commission, established by the government, would operate and administer them "for the benefit of the farmers of Ontario," the Minister said in a speech read to the meeting by M. McIntyre Hood, Secretary of the Ontario Agriculture Commission of Inquiry. Col. Kennedy, ill with a cold for more than a week, did not attend.

Determine Price by Arbitration

A government spokesman later said the question of prices to be paid present shareholders of the stockyards, some of them representing United States interests, will be determined by arbitration.

Another bill under consideration by the government was to authorize and make plans for construction of a terminal warehouse for fruit and vegetables in Toronto.

"We are going to decentralize the work of the provincial department of agriculture," he said. Thus the farmers would participate in the forming of Ontario's agricultural policies. Under the plan, agriculture policies would start in different parts of the province and then would be presented to the department for approval.

Must Find Markets

Markets must be found for surplus farm products and an office already rented in London would be headquarters for marketing surplus Ontario produce in Europe. A similar system of marketing would be established across Canada.

Earlier yesterday the convention adopted a resolution endorsing the principle of commodity levy and urging that principal farm commodities be placed under the Ontario farm products control act to speed extension of commodity groups.

Later a spokesman explained that producers of some farm commodities have formed organizations for the purpose of gaining bargaining power in placing their particular produce on the market.

German-Born Husband Beats Wife Unconscious

London, Ont., Jan. 12 — (CP) — Charging her husband had often tied her up with ropes, and on several occasions had beaten her, and had ruled over her as though she were a two-year-old child, 20-year-old, Thelma Stork, told Magistrate Donald B. Menzies in city police court yesterday of events leading up to the time a city police officer found her unconscious on her kitchen floor. Allegedly she was beaten up by her husband Anton, with a broom handle Saturday.

Mother of a seven-months-old son she testified she had been married to her 41-year-old German-born husband for more than three years and during that time she said he was always cranky and had ordered her about.

The husband was charged with assault, after complaints of neighbors, who were alarmed by the girl's screaming.

Unable to arouse the girl, the officer took her to hospital, where she was admitted and treated.

In the witness box, the husband, in broken English, told the magistrate he was very sorry for beating his wife, and asked her forgiveness.

"If I forgive him this time I might not be able to get up from the next beating he will give me," his wife cried out.

"This woman fears for her life," the magistrate said.

In finding the man guilty, magistrate Menzies commented that the case was too serious to pass over lightly on one day, and remanded the husband to jail until Friday for sentence.

COL. DREW NAMES WM. J. STEWART HOUSE SPEAKER

Comes to High Office With Valuable Experience Says Premier

FORMER MAYOR

Toronto, Jan. 12. —(CP)—Premier Drew announced today that W. J. Stewart, Progressive-Conservative member for Toronto Parkdale, will be appointed Speaker of the Ontario Legislature.

Mr. Drews' statement said: "Mr. Stewart will bring to this highly responsible position great administrative experience acquired over many years as a member of the Toronto City Council and the Ontario Legislature.

"While mayor of Toronto for four years he showed great judgment and tact in presiding over public meetings of council and over various committees connected with its work. Since then he has acted with great ability and distinction as chairman of other important committees particularly the committee which dealt with the location of a new military hospital in Toronto a short time ago.

"Few Speakers in the history of Ontario have come to that high office with such valuable experience in presiding over important public deliberations".

Speaker of the last legislature, the 20th, was Maj. James H. Clark, Liberal member for Windsor Sandwich.

Mr. Stewart, 53-year-old funeral director, was Mayor of Toronto from 1931 to 1935. He was elected to the council as an alderman in 1924, serving in that capacity until his election to the mayor's chair.

On the date of his retirement, Jan. 1, 1935, he was named a Commander of the British Empire in the King's Honors.

CRISIS DEVELOPS BETWEEN HUNGARY AND RUMANIA

Transylvania Matter Of Dispute Between The Two Countries Since 1940

ARMED CLASHES FEARED

By JOHN F. CHESTER

Associated Press Staff Writer

Cairo, Jan. 12 — (AP) — The feud between Hungary and Rumania over Transylvania is approaching a new crisis which might lead to a major armed clash between the two Hitler satellites, according to reliable information filtering out of the Balkans today.

(Rumania reluctantly bowed to German-Italian arbitration of her differences with Hungary in August, 1940. Hungary was awarded approximately half of Rumania's Transylvania territory which Hungary had lost after the First Great War.)

The Nazis were described as straddling the question and giving promises to both sides in an effort to maintain the status quo and to free more German troops during this critical period.

The word reaching official sources was that many Rumanians literally are "living from hour to hour" in fear of both the Germans and Russians. It was emphasized there have been no signs of organized resistance against the Germans but there are definite efforts to placate the Russians.

The ruling powers in Hungary, as well as in Rumania, are reported still clinging to the Germans because of the slow Allied gains in Italy and indications there will be no immediate Allied invasion of the Balkans.

The situation in Greece was reported as particularly bad, with the famine in some cities approaching that in 1941-42, when the starvation death toll neared 1,000 a day. Clashes are continuing between the Edes and Elas guerilla factions.

U. S. Army Paper Deals More With Home, World Events

New York, Jan. 12. (AP)—Stars and stripes of the Mediterranean area, United States army newspaper, has eliminated pin-up girl pictures and cut down sports news —without receiving complaints.

Master Sgt. David Golding, Stars and Stripes' new home front correspondent, brought this new when he arrived here to take over the assignment.

Golding said the soldier newspaper is devoting more space to home front issues and international affairs because the American service man overseas is concerned about such things.

Golding plans to spend much of his time in Washington, reporting legislature and administrative moves on the soldier vote, on mustering out pay for service men and women and on plans to provide post-war employment.

FO. Tony Golab Is Now 'Safe'

Ottawa, Jan. 12 — (CP)—Wounded in both arms and both legs, FO. Anthony (Tony) Golab, former Ottawa football star, has returned safely to his Mediterranean base after being missing in air action over Italy, his wife here was notified officially today.

Mrs. Golab had been advised two days ago that her husband was missing on active service after air operations.

Golab, who starred for several seasons with Ottawa Rough Riders, was born in Windsor, Ont., and played for Sarnia Imperials of the Ontario Rugby Football Union before joining Rough Riders in 1939.

He played with Riders on three Eastern Canadian championship teams and in 1941 was named winner of the Jeff Russel Memorial Trophy, awarded annually to the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union player chosen the most sportsmanlike and most valuable to his team.

In the same year he was named "Athlete of the Year" in the Canadian Press sports poll. He enlisted in 1941.

Germans Dislodged In Hard Fighting; Seize High Ground

Cervaro Last Village Outpost Guarding Cassino, Opens Way To Capital

PIRAEUS ATTACKED

By JOSEPH DYNAN

Associated Press War Correspondent

Algiers, Jan. 12 — (AP) — The Anglo-American 5th Army has seized more high ground in Italy, in its steady progress toward Cassino, key to the Rome highway, Allied headquarters announced Wednesday.

The German communique said the Nazis had been thrown out of Cervaro, fortified village four miles east southeast of Cassino or the Rome road "after hard fighting" and also lost a mountain top to the northeast.

Allied headquarters did not immediately confirm the capture of Cervaro, but Allied troops have been reported in its immediate vicinity, closing in from the south and the northeast.

Cervaro was the last village outpost guarding Cassino.

The ground communique, saying the advance continued added that "some further high ground was seized. Enemy pockets of resistance were cleaned up and our front line straightened out."

One German patrol crossed the Garigliano river southeast of Castelforte, headquarters said, taking up positions in farmhouses. But an Allied counter-attack dislodged the enemy and forced them back across the river.

Artillery duels and patrol activity marked both the 5th and 8th army fronts.

Piraeus Attacked

In the air war Allied bombers struck a new day-and-night double blow into the Balkans, battering Piraeus, the port of Athens in Greece, in heavy force.

The one-two punch was started by four-engined American bombers in daylight, followed by R. A. F. Wellingtons swooping in at night. Sofia, capital of Bulgaria, was hammered Monday in the same kind of swift blows.

Crewmen declared many fires were started in the harbor area and a warehouse blew up. Bomber gunners downed five German fighters, and their fighter escorts bagged three more.

The Wellingtons hit about 10 p.m., starting at least nine large fires and touching off one huge explosion.

The British destroyers Troubridge and Tumult prowling the Adriatic coast Sunday night damaged railway trains by gunfire and hit a Schooner, driving it aground. Their guns also battered San Benedetto.

Eleven Planes Destroyed

Allied bombers hit the railyards at Falconara northeast of Rome, and Fabriano in North Central Italy, halting traffic in the Falconara yards at least temporarily, and blasting concentrations of rolling stock at Fabriano.

Others bombed and strafed two freight trains supplying the Germans on the Adriatic coastal front, and night bombers scored hits on blast furnaces and foundry buildings of the iron and steel works at Piombino on the Italian west coast 40 miles south of Leghorn.

'Beauty Shops' Of Fifth Army Lift Morale

Washington, Jan. 12 — (AP)— The 5th Army's newly developed "beauty shops" are lifting the troops' morale in a big way and they're going right along as the front line moves forward.

These "beauty shops"—the soldiers have dubbed them "revival tents"—were planned by the 5th Army's Quartermaster group.

Immediately after the fighting men are relieved temporarily from front line duty, they stream to the revival tents which were erected on the banks of the upper Volturno River.

Sgt. Sol H. Abrahams, Winthrop, Mass., in charge of the shower rooms, said that "wherever the infantrymen go, we travel somewhere close behind."

HELD ON CHARGE OF CONSPIRACY

Von Rautter, Said Born German Count, Held Under U. S. Espionage Law

New York, Jan. 12 (AP)—A 44-year-old naturalized American citizen, said by the Federal Bureau of Investigation to have been born a German count, was held in $25,000 bail today on charges of conspiracy to violate wartime espionage laws.

The prisoner, William Albrecht Von Pressentin Gennant Von Rautter, wept last night as a plea of not guilty was entered for him before U.S. Commissioner Jacob A. Visel.

He exclaimed:-

"I was forced into this almost at pistol point. I was brought into it while I was on a goodwill mission, an errand of mercy for my mother."

Message in Invisible Ink Charged

F. B. I. agents arrested Von Rautter yesterday in his apartment near the Brooklyn Navy Yard. They accused him of sending war information to Germany in invisible ink on the back of innocent looking personal letters.

F. B. I. Director J. Edgar Hoover said in Washington that the Count was trained in secret writing methods in Germany and sent the Nazis information on American airplane, ammunition, ship and explosive production as well as information on contemplated 1942 Allied invasion plans.

Hoover said he had worked here as a brokerage firm employee, financial expert and had been employed by the New York State Unemployment Service and by the Department of Agriculture.

Von Rautter spoke five languages, F.B.I. special agent E. E. Conroy said.

He will be given a further hearing Jan. 25.

Canadian War Correspondents Get Ready for Greatest Story of the War

By ROSS MUNRO

Canadian Press War Correspondent

London, Jan. 12 — (CP Cable) — Canadian war correspondents who plan to cover Canadian forces in the western European invasion campaign are gathering in London now as the Canadian Army Public Relations Department makes final preparations to handle the press corps on the greatest news story of the war.

This probably will be the line-up of Canadian correspondents for the invasion campaign, although there may be a number of changes and some additions:—

Ralph Allen, Toronto Globe and Mail. He now is on a brief tour of duty in Toronto after service in Sicily and Italy;

Frederick Griffin or Gregory Clark or both will represent the Toronto Star, with the latter expected to return to England from Italy soon Griffin came here from Italy several months ago.

L.S.B. Shapiro plans to be with the Canadian forces for Maclean's magazine and the North American Newspaper Alliance.

J.A.M. Cook probably will return from the Mediterranean to cover the story for the Sifton papers.

Gerald Clark represents the Montreal Standard and R. W. Clark the British United Press. R. W. Clark is an Englishman on the B.U.P. London staff.

Matthew Halton and Marcel Ouimet are coming back from Italy to be frontline reporters for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and Andrew Cowan will do general commentaries from London.

The Canadian Press western staff will be William Stewart, now recovering from a flu attack in an army hospital in Italy, Doug How and this writer, with Louis Hunter,

By C. R. BLACKBURN

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Jan. 12. (CP)—Hon. Leighton McCarthy today presented to President Roosevelt his credentials naming him Canada's first ambassador to the United States.

The ceremony was shorn of all traditional formality as the two old friends met in the President's White House office shortly before noon.

Canadians Outfought, Outlasted Cream of German Army at Ortona

By DOUGLAS AMARON

Canadian Press War Correspondent

With the Canadians in Italy, Jan. 12 — (CP Cable) — Fundamental qualities of Canada's soldiers as fighters and as men came to the fore in the Moro valley battle, which ended Dec. 27 when western troops of the Canadian 1st Division drove the Germans from the Adriatic coastal town of Ortona.

Stacked against the cream of the German army on ground which favored defence, the Canadians outfought and outlasted the enemy.

They have been praised by their commanders and now praise of another sort—for their courage—has come from a man who probably is even closer to the troops than their commanders.

This praise came from the padre of one of the battalions which captured Ortona, Maj. Roy Durnford of Prince Rupert, B. C., and was expressed in a simple sentence: "It is been wonderful to see."

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

POLICE CALLED TWICE TO QUELL TROUBLE

Police were called on two occasions to 14A and 17 West Bridge St. late Tuesday night when disturbances were reported in the neighborhood . Householders alleged that a man operating a nearby business was threatening the families at the above address. Police warned the man in question and all was serene after the polic warned court action would be taken in the event of repetition.

WORKMAN REPORTS THEFT OF BICYCLE

Ted Newman, 296 Charles St., reported the theft of his bicycle to city police early Wednesday morning. The bike was taken from the vicinity of the Canadian National Railway shops where Mr. Newman is employed. It was stolen while the owner was working on the night shift at the roundhouse.

ABANDONED CAR FOUND AT MARYSVILLE

Mystery surrounds the finding of a wrecked and abandoned motor car on Highway No. 2 some distance south of Marysville yesterday. Provincial Police were acquainted with the facts by employees of McCauley's garage at Marysville with the result subsequent investigations revealed a 1938 model Plymouth sedan, bearing Ontario licence number 72 F 43, was found abandoned in the ditch. It is believed to have been a stolen car.

"The two rear wheels were off the vehicle and found some distance north of the abandoned vehicle. Apparently the car was in an accident with the result the two rear wheels dropped off. The car proceeded several hundred feet south on the rims," revealed Inspector Storey of the O.P.P. today.

Two strange men were seen in the vicinity of the abandoned automobile on Tuesday, but they had disappeared before the arrival of police. "We are checking the licence plate number with the Department of Highways in Toronto today. There is little doubt but the vehicle was stolen before being wrecked and abandoned," added Inspector Storey.

CHIMNEY SWEEPS COULD DO GOOD BUSINESS IN CITY

If the soft coal, which many householders have been forced to burn this winter has done no other persons a good turn, it has at least brisked up business for the chimney sweeps—if there were any chimney sweeps in the city.

According to city firemen there has been no noticeable increase in the number of alarms rung in at the station because of chimney fires, but a complaint which is common wherever soft coal is being burned is that chimneys are becoming plugged with the increased soot. Quite common at the fire hall are requests from city householders for addresses of workmen who might come and sweep their chimney. "We don't know of a single man in town who can be termed a professional chimney sweep," firemen report.

GRASS FIRES COMMON AS IN FALL, SPRING

Although it will still be the middle of January grass fires are giving the local fire department as much trouble as might be expected in the fall or early in the spring before the fresh growth minimizes the possibility of such calls. Grass fires in various parts of the city have been common through December and so far in January with two alarms of this nature being answered on Tuesday.

The first occurred at Coleman Flats but as it was only a minor blaze it caused firemen no trouble. The second, however, starting in the long grass and weeds near the Belleville Beaches between the hospital and the Stephens Adamson plant, created quite a blaze and required watching for some time before all danger of further spread was past. The fire burned almost completely over the stretch of territory between the road leading south of the hospital, west to the Stephens Adamson plant.

Number of Boys Pass Swim Tests

Five boys in the junior section and 13 in the Prep section have passed their swim tests at the Y.M.C.A. and following the presentation of certificates are now qualified to study life-saving, it is announced by Mr. J. Shortt, "Y" secretary. The examinations were held on Saturday last and on Monday of this week. It was their first and second tests in a series of five.

Swimming tests taken by the "Y" classes are standard tests with the class members graduating from the first to the fifth tests. The first test requires proper surface dive following push-off from the side of the tank in deep water, while number two test required entrants to plunge 25 feet in good form or to scull on back 60 feet, head first. The third test calls for demonstration of back crawl a distance of 60 feet ,while a standing plain front dive from diving board is required in the fourth test. The final test is to swim 100 yards any style.

Following are the boys who have successfully passed their first and second tests:

MRS. ALICE LYDIA HARSHAW
(Formerly of Napanee)

Toronto, Jan. 12 — (CP) — Mrs. Alice Lydia Harshaw, former resident of Napanee, Ont., and widow of Archibald T. Harshaw, died at her home here yesterday. Archibald Harshaw of Montreal and James A. Harshaw of Hamilton are sons.

MICHAEL McDERMOTT
(Tyendinaga)

Michael McDermott died at his home in the 7th. concession of Tyendinaga Township, early this Wednesday morning. He was in failing health for some time.

The late Mr. McDermott, who was in his 57th. year, was born at Read in Tyendinaga Township and was a son of Mrs. Mary Ann McDermott and the late Lawrence McDermott. He resided in that district all his life, being engaged in farming. In religion he was a member of St. Charles' Church at Read and in connection with the parish he was a member of the Holy Name Society.

The funeral took place Friday afternoon.

Skill and Art Of Archery Shown Kiwanis Members

The regular Tuesday luncheon meeting of the Belleville Kiwanis Club held in the Hotel Quinte was somewhat different to the usual affair of this kind. A demonstration of the skill and art of archery was demonstrated to the members by Mr. H. W. Hamilton, who is an ardent fan of this form of sport, having made it a hobby practically all his life, as was evidenced by his displaying to the Club a bow he had made himself when he was only 12 years old.

Mr. Hamilton is Assistant Superintendent of the Canada Cement Co., was born in Bruce County and educated at Owen Sound and in New York. He has lived in Belleville for the past seven years and has been an exponent of the sport in this district during that time. His basement workshop has produced many fine bows and arrows and he issued an open invitation to any Kiwanian who wished to take up the sport to avail himself of this hobby shop in his home. Following a short descriptions of the usage of archery in mediaeval times and historical periods before the Western world became populated, or at least, known to historians, Mr. Hamilton gave a demonstration of the sport, firing several shafts into a target placed at one end of the room and then showed considerable skill by knocking a tin can from the head of a dummy. The demonstration and discourse were very much appreciated by all present.

Final Arrangements Made

The business meeting of the Club included final arrangements for the Belleville Club's visit to the newly formed Cobourg Club on their Charter Night which is tonight. A special coach will be supplied by the Canadian National Railways for the accommodation of the Kiwanians leaving Belleville and will be attached to the early morning train for the return journey. An expression of appreciation was voted to Kiwanian O. W. Duff for making this accommodation possible. Tickets were made available to the members present by Kiwanian Eddie Logan and most of those intending to make the trip purchased them at that time.

It was announced that a bow and six arrows would be made available to the club by Mr. Hamilton to be raffled. Mr. H. H. Reid, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee will be in charge of the promotion of this raffle.

The guest speaker was introduced by Kiwanian Al Reynolds and the Clubs appreciation and thanks for his address and demonstration were delivered to Mr. Hamilton by Kiwanian Mark Vanner. One new member was welcomed into the Club at this meeting, John Lattimer Black, who was introduced by Kiwanian Jack McIntosh and presented with his membership pin and certificate of membership by Kiwanian, and Past Governor Cliff Baragar, who pointed out to the novitiate the six objectives of Kiwanis. Tuesday's meeting was the first one to be presided over by the newly elected president for 1944, Kiwanian Jack McVeigh. He stepped into the chair and conducted the meeting like a veteran and proved that the Club was in capable hands for the year.

NEW RIBBON AFTER JAN. 15

Toronto, Jan. 12 — (CP) — The recently-created Canadian Volunteer Service Ribbon will be worn on [illegible] yesterday at Military District No. 2 headquarters here. Harry Storey Given Promotion To Inspectorship

Official confirmation of the permanent appointment of Acting Inspector Harry Storey, of the Ontario Provincial Police stationed here, to the rank of Inspector was announced here today. The permanent appointment of Inspector dates as of January 1st, 1944, the official confirmation read.

Inspector Harry Storey joined the O.P.P. at Toronto in 1922 and was immediately transferred to the Lindsay detachment. Later he was moved to Cobourg and in 1928 he was made Sergeant and located at District No. 8 headquarters O.P.P. here. Three years later he was transferred to Ottawa and later moved to Perth, No. 9 District headquarters, returning to Belleville in March of 1942. In December of the same year he was made Acting Inspector here and today received further promotion to the rank of Inspector.

Cpl. Alf. T. Platt Killed in Action

Overseas since December, 1939, Corporal Alfred T. Platt, of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, was killed in action in Italy on December 23rd., according to word received by his brother, Mr. John Platt, 4th concession Sidney Township.

Born in England 38 years ago Cpl. Platt came to Canada in 1921 and made his home in Sidney Township where he engaged in farming and bee-keeping. He was well-known in the Wallbridge and Frankford districts where his cheerful disposition made for him many friends.

Enlisting in September, 1939, he went overseas with the 1st Contingent. In September, 1942, he married Miss Hannah Kay of Bolton, Lancashire, England. Besides his wife he leaves his brother, John, in Sidney, and two sisters in England.

VATICAN'S HEAT SHUT OFF

New York, Jan. 12 — (AP)—The Vatican radio said today that Pope Pius XII had ordered the central heating systems in Vatican City shut down "owing to the serious times through which we are passing which demand great sacrifices and restrictions from everyone." The broadcast, reported by the Federal Communications Commission, said that "this order has been kept since the beginning of the winter both in the official rooms and in the Holy Father's private suite."

Elmer Dulmage Given Editorship With Newsweek

Announcement has recently been made of the appointment as Canadian editor of Newsweek Magazine of Elmer Dulmage, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark B. Dulmage, former Belleville newspaperman with The Daily Intelligencer where he first commenced his newspaper career. Mr. Mark Dulmage was born in Prince Edward County and has been associated with several Ontario daily newspapers during his long career and is presently managing editor of The Daily Sun-Times at Owen Sound. His son, Elmer Dulmage, commenced his career as a newspaperman on the editorial staff of the Daily Sun-Star in 1925 and has occupied executive positions with The Canadian Press for 15 years. He has for the past three years been New York superintendent of The Canadian Press, but has resigned his position there and has already entered upon his duties as Canadian Editor of Newsweek. He will move to Ottawa about the end of February, his family following later.

Mr. Mark B. Dulmage is well known throughout the district and will be recalled by many of the older residents of the city and these will be interested to hear of the appointment of Elmer Dulmage. Elmer Dulmage covered the Olympic Games both at Los Angeles and Berlin, Germany, for the CP.

The appointment of Elmer Dulmage to the important position with Newsweek is indicative of the increasing interest in Canada by such publications, and their desire to reach out for the best in Canadian news interpreters. Elmer Dulmage's two brothers are both in the R.C.A.F. George Dulmage, who also is a newspaperman, formerly a member of The Sun-Times staff, and until a few months ago a member of The Toronto Daily Star, is a Pilot Officer, and Corporal Jack Dulmage has been overseas for the past two years as radio technician with the R.C.A.F. in England.

EVACUATION UNDERWAY

London, Jan. 12—(CP)—The Cairo radio said today that evacuation of Sofia, the much-bombed capital of Bulgaria, now is underway on a large scale. The radio reported the latest raids on Monday inflicted considerable damage to industrial districts and added that the government and ministries were understood to be leaving the city.

THE WAR TODAY

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

While expectation of imminent wholesale Nazi collapse on the Russian front is unwarranted at this time, it is a fact they are laboring under such terrific Red pressure that both German and Allied high commands are bound to consider the contingency of disaster overtaking the invaders.

That doesn't necessarily mean that either command expects such a debacle. However, they can't overlook the axiom that potential catastrophe always hangs on the flanks of armies retreating under heavy attack.

Fronts Interdependent

A point of vast importance to both sides is that the Russo-German struggle and the projected Allied invasion of France are in considerable degree interdependent. Should the Germans crack in Russia, it might result in a speeding up of Allied plans for invasion, to take advantage of Nazi weakness.

Presumably a disaster in Russia would force Hitler to withdraw troops from Western Europe to defend his eastern frontier. Today's reports show Hitler rushing all available reserves into battle in the Ukraine theatre in an effort to halt the Red onslaught. Should he have to deplete his forces in France, obviously the invasion across the English Channel would be simplified.

May Open Way to Border of Germany

The Red Tactics are resulting in the development of the dangerous drive directly west into pre-war Poland, and further south we have the turning movement that has brought the Russians within a score of miles of the Warsaw-Odessa railroad upon which the Nazis depend so heavily. In this southern sector, the Hitlerites are threatened with being forced to retreat into Rumania, thereby opening the way for a Russian drive through to the German border and making it exceedingly difficult to move the Nazis back to the Reich from Rumania.

Despite all these potentialities, Hitler undoubtedly still is figuring on being able to pull the bulk of his eastern forces back to his own border for a final stand. And he may be able to do so.

Dewey, Willkie Top Candidates For Nomination

By JAN HARTNETT AND WILLIAM J. CONWAY

(Copyright, 1944, by the Associated Press)

Chicago, Jan. 12 —(AP)— Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and Wendell Willkie topped possible contenders for the republican United States presidential nomination today in a poll taken among members of the party's national committee.

The test of sentiment also disclosed that a large number had not yet decided which candidate they would prefer.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York 31.; Wendell Willkie, 21; Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio 5; Lt.-Cmdr. Harold E. Stassen 4; Senator Robert Taft of Ohio 2; Gov. Dwight H. Green of Illinois 2; Gov. Earl Warren of California 2; General Douglas MacArthur 1; Dewey or Willkie 1.

The poll also brought out that 23 still were open-minded on the subject.

The committee has 106 members. Ninety-five were represented at the meeting—76 in person and 19 by proxies.

While many of the committee members will be delegates to the National Convention, the selection of the nominee will be up to the full assembly of 1,059 delegates.

Meanwhile, republican committee members studied President Roosevelt's new "bill of right," proclaimed in his message to congress yesterday, and labelled it a preview of the 1944 democratic platform and set out to counteract it in detail.

HUNTER STALKED BY WARDEN

St. Thomas, Jan. 12. (CP) — Charles Smelt of Aldborough Township stalked a deer 12 miles through the district and a deputy game warden stalked Charles Smeltz. Smeltz didn't get his quarry, the deputy warden did—$20 and costs in county police court yesterday for hunting deer without proper authority.

In Mediterranean Theatre

Longtime correspondents still in the Mediterranean include Major Bert Wemp, of The Toronto Telegram, R. L. Sanburn of the Southam newspapers, Sholto Watt, of The Montreal Star and Wallace Reyburn, of The Montreal Standard but it is possible some of these may fly here.

William Wilson, who covered the Canadians in Sicily and Italy for the British United Press is just over pneumonia and will convalesce for several months.

Paul Morton is going to Italy from Britain to replace Gregory Clark and Clifford Sifton may replace Crook.

Peter Stursberg and Benoit Lafleur of Montreal are going to Italy as the CBC team in place of Halton and Ouimet. The CP team in Italy will be Douglas Amaron and Foster Barclay with Maurice Desjardins representing French-Canadian newspapers.

Public relations staff is established now at invasion headquarters here and Canadian, British and American army public relations units are co-operating closely with it in press preparations.

Propose High-Speed Wireless

Col. W. G. Abel is Deputy Director of Public Relations.

"Regarding the invasion campaign," he said, "a proposition is being made for high-speed wireless transmitters to operate as close to the front line as possible, eliminating the need for long, hazardous trips by dispatch riders over congested roads, taking press stories down the line."

Literally scores of American correspondents are arriving here now and London never has seen so many American army correspondents all waiting for the same show.

During the past six months The Associated Press London staff alone has increased from 15 to 26 with all accredited to the American army.

A number of veteran war reporters for British papers and news services are returning from the Mediterranean for invasion assignments and the BBC is planning on a large scale.

Toronto, Jan. 12 —(CP)—Yesterday was the 129th anniversary of the birth of Sir John A. Macdonald the Dominion's first Prime Minister and one of the Fathers of Confederation.

Born in Glasgow, Scotland, he came to Canada at the age of five.

This year also marks the centennial of his entry into political life. In 1844 he was elected for Kingston to the Upper Canada Legislative Assembly.

ALLIES ATTACK TAKAO

New York, Jan. 12 —(AP)— The Tokyo radio said today several Allied bombers had attacked the vicinity of Takao on the western coast of Formosa last night. The radio claimed damage was small. Formosa, Japan's big island colony 90 miles off the coast of China, was raided Nov. 25 by United States bombers and fighters.

CANADIANS

"Although we met the cream of the German Army our fellows faced the biggest noises the Germans could put up and did it well," he said. "Those lads fought with all the guts in the world."

The padre sat in his office in Ortona and talked of the men for whom he has phrased the Motto "fear" the Lord and Dig Deep."

He told of Christmas Day in Ortona.

The town was a battlefront with every house a citadel. The Canadians and Germans fought from house to house even from room to room. The spirit of Christmas, however, was kept alive.

The church, which had been holed by shells, was converted "to provide food for the body as well as the spirit." The Germans were only a few hundred yards away but from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. the Canadian companies were relieved and brought back for Christmas dinner.

"When the men came from line I gave them a chance to sing carols," the padre said. "Our signal officer, Lieut. Wilfred Gildersleeve of Vancouver, played the organ.

Men Bearded, Haggard

"We put a harmonium out in the cloisters only a few yards from a hole where a shell revealed the sepulchre with its bones. Here the men collected to wait their turn to go inside to eat.

"The men were bearded, haggard, drawn and scarred but one by one they began to sing to the accompaniment of the crump of shells which shook the walls. Gradually their spirits rose, the tenseness left them and they relaxed.

" 'What will we sing boys'? I would ask them."

" 'Hark the Herald Angels sing,' they would reply and then there would be the crump of a shell.

Someone would suggest 'Silent Night' and another shell would crash nearby.

"After a period of carol singing, the men went in for the meal where they sat down at tables covered with white cloths. The high altar was littered with provisions, and, although this might appear sacrilegious, it was nonetheless a sacrament even though it was tins of bully beef...

Probably Last Dinner

"As each meal ended, the men were asked to leave as quickly as possible to make room for the next group. They left with hesitation and reluctance, knowing full well they were going back to face death itself. For some of those boys that dinner was their last."

The Padre said some of these soldiers were "tough, hard-bitten boys who have always looked askance at religion."

"All that is fundamental comes up in men in times like these. Many of them told me they said their prayers for the first time and last Saturday the boys asked me if I would take a church parade for them. That never happened before.

"It has been wonderful to see. These boys have been frightened. Yet, despite their fear, they have gone back into the line. It takes courage to do that."

MILLION MORE BABIES BORN IN U.S. IN 1942-43 THAN IN PREVIOUS TWO YEARS

Washington, Jan. 11. (AP)—In the first two years of the present war, 1,000,000 more babies were born in this country than in the last two years of peace, the United States Census Bureau reported today, adding peak in the new births was reached about a year after Pearl Harbor, with a gradual decline noted since last February.

Save and Salvage Paper

There is a form of war effort in which practically every citizen can play his and her full part and that is in the salvaging of paper of all kinds.

Paper is one of the commonest things ordinarily, but now there is a definite shortage. There is a shortage of workers in the paper industry and a heavier than usual demand for paper in all its forms has developed.

So everyone should feel called upon to save and store up as much as possible of papers and other forms of paper that come into the home for the local collection.

Every form of paper is important as scrap—newsprint, glossed papers, rough wrapping paper, cardboard and corrugated board and light board paper in the form of boxes or packages.

In a city of Belleville's size there is a large amount of paper around homes and there is a large intake of paper. If this is collected and not thrown away in the discard, it ought to make a sizeable and worthwhile collection.

Citizens are therefore requested to save paper of all kinds. Do not destroy it. Save for the local effort and watch the newspaper issues for date of collection of paper salvage.

The importance of the collection is not measured by the little care that is required to salvage it and this little attention that is required is all the more reason why there should be a very large amount of salvage.

Reports Ciano Executed

Rumors which were circulating around the Italian frontier and the statement of the German News Agency, D.N.B., agreed that Count Ciano, former foreign minister of Italy under the Fascist regime had been executed on Tuesday morning and that four other members of the old Fascist Grand Council that was under Mussolini had been executed with Ciano for voting Mussolini out.

The Italian stories said that the executions took place at Verona, Italy, but the D.N.B. report did not specify any place. It however stated that Ciano was shot to death.

There has been such variety of stories about Mussolini and Ciano that there is a lack of definite news as to whether these men are still living or not. Stories have said that Mussolini was dead and the news about Ciano yesterday mentioned Mussolini as still alive, unable to leave his villa on Lake Garda. One story a few weeks ago said that Mussolini was a mental wreck and his physical health had gone.

Not long ago Ciano was reported to have been shot trying to escape.

One thing stands certain whether these men are alive or not, Fascism in Italy has gone for good. It was the ramshackle outfit that directed weakened Italy and put her into the war. It was the veneer front or cover which cloaked Mussolini's tyranny and aggression.

Italy now is being freed of the German domination with British, Canadian and American forces performing the operations with the purpose of driving home Hitler's battalions by creating the Italian front. Thereby Italy is being freed and as events develop, she will come to a state to undertake her own choice of government. Italy is assured of being free and strong enough to maintain her freedom against such tyranny as that of Mussolini who "played" Italy into German hands for the sake of his ridiculous pomp and self-glory.

Message to Congress

Britain and Canada which have had their national service acts in force for some years naturally are interested in the recommendation of President Roosevelt for a national service law in the United States. Mr. Roosevelt proposes a law for the duration of the war to prevent strikes and with some exceptions to make available for war production or other essential service every adult of the whole nation. Other points he recommends are a "realistic tax law," a cost of food law, continuation of the law permitting renegotiation of war contracts and re-enactment of the economic stabilization act, which will expire in June.

These occupied considerable space in the annual message on Tuesday of the President to Congress as effective in concentrating "all our energies and resources on winning the war and to maintain a fair and stable economy at home."

The President sees this "total mobilization of United States manpower and capital resources" as that which will win an earlier victory and says that although he is convinced the United States and the Allies can win without such a measure, nothing less than this will speed up the success of the effort to an earlier victory.

British and Canadian laws respecting national service have been in actual operation as Britons and Canadians know and the progress of the recommendation of the President will be followed with interest in the British countries.

The President hammered on the idea as he always has done that there is but one front in the war.

He called for an economic second bill of rights, based on a just principle of "fair for one, fair for all" and he assailed "whining demands of selfish pressure groups."

His second bill of rights includes the right to a useful remunerative job, the right to earn enough to provide adequate food, clothing and recreation, the right of every farmer to a return for his products which will provide a decent living for himself and family, the right of every businessman to be free from unfair competition and domination of monopolies, the right of every family to a decent home, the right to adequate medical care and an opportunity to achieve and enjoy good health, the right to adequate protection from economic fears in old age, illness, accident and unemployment and the right to a good education.

After the war, he said, the United States must be "prepared to move forward in the implementation of these rights, to new goals of happiness and well being." Without security at home there cannot be lasting peace in the world. The duty of Congress is, he declared, to explore methods of effectuating the economic bill of rights.

Hitler and Hess

(Manchester Guardian)

At last we have the authentic Hess story, and it is not so exciting after all. The unanswered question is still: Did Hitler know? Hess said he had come on his "mission of humanity" without the Fuehrer's knowledge. But all the same he could state what the Fuehrer's peace terms would be and that he "does not want to defeat England and wants to stop fighting." He saw Hitler on May 3—a week before the landing—and had his assurance that he had "no oppressive demands to make on England." If we read Hess's terms along with Hitler's speeches from January 30, 1941, to May 4 (the day after the conversation) we find exactly the same atmosphere, the same mis-readings. Hitler threatened us with the worst fate—starvation by the U-boat war and air bombardment. But there was doubt behind the threats. Here is the clue to the overture. With British air power mounting and American aid coming, the quick victory was no longer in sight. Hitler admitted it in the proclamation of June 22, when he attacked Russia. The High Command, he said, could no longer assure a quick victory in the West so long as powerful forces were tied up in the East. The Hess plan would have given him a free hand against Russia; we should have taken our turn later.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

(Copyright, 1944, Edgar A. Guest)

THAT OTHER I

Just once, before my time to die,
I'd like to be that other I;
That other I who shakes his head
At many a careless word I've said;
That other I who counsels "More!
More, even than the day before,
Still more to be and more to do,
With all the strength allowed to you!"

That other I; that dreamer vain,
Who points to goals this I should gain;
Who whispers: "Don't be so afraid!
Do more to cheer; do more to aid;
Do more to help your fellow man.
If you've the will, you can! You can!
Those little deeds. Don't let them wait!
Some other time may be too late."

That other I folks never see,
Because he's known alone to me,
Keeps hinting, day and night: "Do this.
Here is a chance you shouldn't miss."
But wrapped in self, and love of sham;
I stay the careless man I am,
Wishing I had the pluck to try
Just once to be that other I.

Complete Control Of Huon Peninsula Now in Sight

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Jan. 12 — (AP) — Complete control of the Huon Peninsula on northeast New Guinea is in sight for the Allies. Australians defeated the Japanese in a tank and artillery action there which ended with the victors crossing the Bupi river on the coast.

The Japanese, finding their position more and more untenable as the Australians force them up the coast toward American invasion troops at Saidor, staunchly resisted but finally left their dead on the field.

Allied headquarters' communique reporting the Australian victory also told of Allied air action against enemy barges and supply points along the New Guinea coast. Many barges, some bearing troops which the Japanese may be attempting to evacuate from the Allied nutcracker, have been destroyed recently.

Allied bombers visited the Bogadjim area, the communique said, dumping 76 tons of explosives on supply dumps and destroying eight bridges on the highway that leads to Madang.

United States Marines smashed back two Japanese counter-attacks south of Borgen Bay in Northwestern New Britain and advanced slightly in their fight for Hill 660, important height in the Cape Gloucester area. Allied heavy bombers helped with smashing attacks on enemy defence positions.

Never before in the history of the world has the old saying "Necessity is the mother of invention" been so well proven. In war industry, in civilian life, in medicine and surgery and other departments of life ,the fact that we have been deprived of some necessary products or the supply is insufficient, has caused thinking men and women to create, develop, or discover products to supply the need.

We have learned that a certain type of blood can be transfused into any patient suffering from shock caused by loss of blood and that blood plasma itself (without blood cells) can be used in transfusions. And now it has been shown in a few cases at least, that another substitute can be used safely and effectively in place of blood in cases of great loss of blood.

In the Canadian Medical Journal, Drs. H. E. Pugsley and R. F. Farquharson, Toronto, report the administration of isinglass (a sort of gelatin obtained from the sturgeon) to 61 patients in the Toronto General Hospital. The preparation of the isinglass used first and safely in experimental work with animals, was under the direction of Prof. N. B. Naylor and his associates, Department of Physiology, University of Toronto.

The purified powder was dissolved in physiological saline (salt) solution and sterilized under steam. It was used in concentrates of 4, 6, and 7 per cent. A total of 58 administrations were given to 51 patients chiefly for the purpose of detecting any rise in temperature or poisonous effects; the remaining ten patients were given isinglass solution for treatment of shock or loss of blood.

The 51 patients in whom the transfusions were made to test its effects were old or chronic cases with little or no fever. Only in eight cases was there any rise in temperature and it lasted but a few hours.

"Ten patients suffering with shock or severe collapse were treated by administration of isinglass solution into a vein. All patients responded favorably; in no instance was there evidence that the isinglass had given rise to any toxic (poisonous) symptoms". The dose of isinglass varied from 200 c.c. (about a cupful) to 8.800 c.c. (8 to 9 quarts) during the course of three days to a patient suffering from severe burn shock.

In a summary of their results, Drs. Pugsley and Farquharson state that isinglass solution, properly prepared, appears to be a safe substitute for blood.

Sir Wm. Mulock 100 on Jan. 19

Toronto, Jan. 12—(CP)—Sir William Mulock, who retired in 1936 as Chief Justice of Ontario, and who is active enough at 99 to attend many public functions and preside as chancellor at graduation exercises of the University of Toronto, still observes day-to-day developments of the Canadian scene with the same zest he showed in 54 years of political life.

Sir William, who celebrates his 100th birthday Jan. 19, still holds decisive, forthright opinions on a wide range of topics.

For instance, he opposes unrestricted immigration into Canada, scoffs at soap-box orators who talk loosely of social security, proudly says "I'm still a liberal," and holds impregnable faith in Canada's destiny.

He believes there is work for both provincial and federal governments in employer-employee relations. Strikes he describes as "unjustifiable."

How does Sir William approach his centenary?

"I am grateful for all that has come to me," he says simply.

REPRESENTATIVES AT LARGE

A member of the U. S. House of Representatives who is elected by the voters of an entire state instead of by merely those of a single Congressional district is called a Representative at large.

The Constitution provides that Representatives shall be appointed among the states according to population.

When the federal government was initiated each state was entitled to one member in the House of Representatives plus another one for each additional 30,000 inhabitants.

The Constitution itself specified the number of Representatives each state should have pending a national census.

The federal government decides by legislation on the number of members of the House any given state is entitled to under the constitutional apportionment, but each state is permitted to adopt its own districting system.

As a general practice a state passes a law dividing itself into a number of Congressional districts equal to the total number of Representatives to which it is entitled.

These districts consist of contiguous territory and are presumed to contain an equal number of inhabitants so far as such division can be made without dividing counties.

If a state is entitled to an increased number of Representatives the additional members may be elected by the voters of the entire state, pending the enactment of redistricting legislation.

Members so elected are known as Representatives at large. In such a case the state has more members in Congress than it has Congressional districts.

When the number of Representatives to which a state is entitled is diminished and the legislature fails to redistrict, all the Representatives of that state are elected at large.

The federal government cannot compel a state to enact redistricting legislation.

Naturally, when a state has only one Representative he is the Representative at large.

Arizona, Connecticut, Florida, Illinois, New Mexico, New York, North Dakota, and Pennsylvania at present are among the states that have more than one Representative and which have Representatives at large.

Some states are very prompt in redistricting after an apportionment, while others do not do so for years.

DISPOSE OF 60,000 NAZIS

London, Jan. 12. (CP)— A Moscow radio commentator said last night that in the first ten days of January the Russian 1st and 2nd Ukrainian armies had "disposed of" more than 60,000 Germans and captured more than 1,700 towns and hamlets. This implied 60,000 Germans were killed in the Ukrainian assault which has shattered the Nazis' eastern line.

SMALLPOX FOLLOWS FAMINE

Calcutta, Jan. 12 (CP Reuters)— Maj.-Gen. Douglas Stuart, commander in charge of Bengal, disclosed last night that a smallpox epidemic had followed the recent Bengal famine which took thousands of lives.

Gen. Stuart said there was a grave shortage of inoculators and vaccinators. He reported cholera still prevalent but decreasing.

Friends Honor Massassaga Couple On Golden Wedding

Massassaga—Mr. and Mrs. George Ackerman were pleasantly surprised recently when a number of their friends and neighbors of Massassaga gathered at their home, it being the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary, which they had celebrated on Dec. 27. An address was read by Mr. Robert Adams and Mr. Roy Valleau presented them with a beautiful electric table lamp. Mrs. Ackerman replied most graciously for the lovely gift and also for the beautiful words that were spoken of them. A social time was then spent in music and song.

MONTHLY MEETING OF C.W.L.

The first regular meeting of the Catholic Women's League for 1944 was held in St. Michael's High School on Monday evening with the President, Mrs. George Wilson, in the chair. After the usual opening exercise, reports of the various committees were given. First Vice-President, Mrs. E. Logan, reported on membership, which showed increases in each ward. Mrs. F. Fitzpatrick read the correspondence in the absence of the corresponding secretary. This included acknowledgments from bereaved families, an appreciation from the V.O.N. and from the Superior at St. Mary's Orphanage, Kingston, for a $50 cheque forwarded there for Christmas. Many letters had arrived from service boys expressing their pleasure for boxes sent to them by the sub-division. These boys included Bob Finkle, Tom Taylor, Gregory Butler, Pat Logue, C. D. Lunsden and Alec Tisdale. Mrs. M. Stork, hospital convener, reported regular weekly visits to the sick. Miss Kate Dolan, war work convener, reported that fifty-nine boxes had been packed and sent overseas and twenty more had been sent to boys in Canada. Appreciation was expressed to all those who had assisted in this work, especially to the Knights of Columbus, who donated $25 for this purpose. It was decided to sponsor a large tea for the Red Cross in February. Plans were made for the weekly card parties which will begin next week. About twenty members agreed to extend the hospitality of their homes to children from Batawa who are coming to Belleville to give a Sunday evening concert in the near future.

GILEAD Y.P.U.

An enjoyable meeting was held at the Swan home on January 4th. Quiet music by Ruth Livingstone opened the meeting. Scripture was read by Jack Gordon. Business discussion followed. A letter from Gerald Livingstone was read, thanking the organization for the box of chocolates. Mr. and Mrs. Bertrand invited the Y.P.U. to their home for a social evening on Jan. 17. Program committee was chosen—Shirley Badgley, Wilma Swan, Olive Ross and Beulah May. It was decided that $5 would be given to the Missionary Society. Ronald Badgley gave a reading; Shirley Badgley gave a piano instrumental; Carman Huffman read; Erma Swan and Ruth Livingstone sang and Olive Ross read. Attendance was fourteen and collection $1.22.

White's District

White's District—Mrs. C. Rush is confined to her home. All her friends hope that she will soon be well again.

Sympathy is extended to Mrs. Leonard Young in the loss of her grandmother, Mrs. Alexander Green, who passed away on Wednesday in Campbellford in her ninetieth year. Among those in this district who attended her funeral on Friday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. A. Sadler in Frankford and Bethel Church, Sine, were Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Young, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Brown, Miss Mabel Brown, Messrs. Gerald and Harold Brown, also Mr. C. A. Brown, Belleville and Mrs. O. A. Coutts, Trenton.

Owing to the illness of the pastor, Rev. J. M. Spence, no service was held in White's Church on Sunday. Sunday School service was conducted as usual.

A few in this district are still suffering from influenza.

Melrose

Melrose—The annual meeting of the Melrose United Church was held in the church hall on Janurary 7. Supper was served between 7 and 8 and the business meeting followed.

Several more cases of measles and mumps have developed during the week, which has decidedly affected the attendance at school and other public gatherings.

Mrs. Cecil Hubble spent the past week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Weese.

Beauty Salon Is Relaxing

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHEN GRANDMA was a young wife and mother and got all played out waiting on Daddy, taking care of the children, and worrying about this, that and the other thing, she was dragged off to a rest cure. There she got still more jittery because of idleness and was glad to be dragged back home again. Now mama finds release and relief at the beauty shop. It is a better means of restoring strength, getting back to normal, because the smart appearance of that other woman in the looking glass is a health prop.

The beauty shop is a grand old institution. Long may it flourish. It is the arch enemy of old man Time whose chief business, it seems, is to make little gouges on human faces, to pluck out the hairs of one's head and to wreck the once slender, youthful figure.

Movie stars know the value of professional treatments, could not carry on without them. They have scalp frictions, facials, hand and arm treatments, body massage, special exercises to keep in form. Believe your beauty reporter, those pretty backs, arms and legs get plenty of pummeling and workouts in salons that specialize in physical culture. They are lubricated with fragrant creams, massaged vigorously to tone muscles and keep tissues firm.

The salon offers relaxation, which is pretty hard to get these jittery days of anxiety and toil. Going through a professional treatment restores the conviction that there's life in the old gal yet. The spirits as well as the complexion are freshened by the application of new make-up.

GOOD MANNERS

Giving a Soldier Your Seat in a Bus

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would like to know if you agree with what I did and if you agree with my point of view about doing it. Recently I was riding on a crowded bus on a long trip and I gave my seat to a soldier. I am a comparatively young, healthy woman and I felt that he would be grateful not to have to stand. I felt that since my husband is exempt from service because of his age, and since I have no sons or brothers in the service, the least I could do for a man in uniform would be to give him my seat, especially when riding on long trips. Why should I, just because I am a woman, sit comfortably in a bus when a man who is willing to give his life for his country, has to stand? If a woman can do a man's work in a factory, why can't a woman get up and give her seat to a serviceman?

Most people don't seem to fully realize that the boys in uniform over here will soon be over there. And they don't seem to realize either how many little things they can do to show honor and respect to these boys in uniform. There would be no more wars if everyone followed the Golden Rule, "Do unto others as ye would that they should do unto you."

I think that there should be a sign in all buses and trains reading, "Give your seat to a serviceman. He is fighting for you, for your freedom."

What do you think about this, Mrs. Beeckman?

Reader

I'm very proud of you, dear lady, and of your kindly feelings, human understanding and consideration for others. And I am proud, too, of your speaking not as a woman, but as one human being who wants to be of help to another.

This isn't just thinking about the Golden Rule . . . it's putting it to work. It's putting being-a-patriot to work, too. And it's paying homage where our homage is due.

I certainly agree with you that it's grimly true that so many, many civilians don't understand yet that these uniformed boys are fighting for them, for the comforts they never think of sharing with these boys . . . fighting even so they can have buses and trains to ride in. Stand and give their seats to a weary soldier or sailor? Not they. They push their way hoggishly into a bus or train and hog a seat.

But then there are the human people, like you, who, blessings on them, have eyes that see and hearts that understand. And, happily and comfortingly, one sees these kind and considerable people offering their seats to a soldier or sailor. Indeed it is appealing to see the contriving they sometimes do to make their kind offer seem quite casual. A woman especially usually has to do a bit of manoeuvring, even to telling a "little white lie" to persuade the serviceman that it is "all right" for him to accept her seat. I've tried this myself and usually it works, saying, "I'm getting out here (or soon)," then moving to the back of the bus, hoping that the ruse won't be noticed. Of course it would be perfect if we could all, women as well as men, be completely forthright about it and say, "I want you to have my seat. Please take it" and say it so kindly that he will know our heart is in the right place.

Perhaps your crusade for having signs in buses and trains might work this miracle of patriotic consideration. It certainly might pry some of the "squatteroos" (as I heard a soldier call seat hogs the other day) from their selfish seats! But really it's kind people like you who must keep the banners of kindness flying!

The Marry-Go-Round

New Years Vows—1944

The average man, after the holiday mood, prepares to turn over a clean sheet and to start out with a lot of beautiful new resolves and a conscience fresh from the laundry.

But this year he will find fewer things to "give up" or to "lay off" than ever before. Having just paid his Christmas bills, he won't have to forswear any "foolish extravagance;" for he will have nothing left to squander on self-indulgence. Or the horses. Or on cards or craps.

There will be a shortage of New Year's pledges as well as of other things. This will be something of a relief; for while the "reform spirit" is highly laudable, it is often hard on a man's wife and family. It makes him so difficult to live with!

Somehow a man always confuses resolve with reform and a good intention with complete conversion. Just registering a vow to give up the before dinner cocktail or the after dinner cigar or the weakness for gambling or late hours, makes him feel so virtuous and superior that he is apt to be quite patronizing toward less spiritually exalted souls.

He has not forsworn cigarettes or been on the water-wagon for two days before he is an ardent reformer and begins trying to convert everybody within earshot to his own lofty level. A woman who has lived for a whole week with a man who has suddenly sworn off his favorite indulgence has usually reached that state of hysteria where she is ready to beg him to "take just one cocktail, for the love of Mike!" Or to plead with him to smoke just one cigar for the sake of his nerves!

But while the spasm lasts and the self-denial is tormenting him, he not only scorns all temptations but wants to make sure that everybody else is being purified and is suffering too!

That's why I say that it will be a relief to have fewer New Year's pledges to make and fewer paragons around us, parading their exemplary virtues.

This year, swearing-off is out. Most of us are going to swear on! We are going to pledge ourselves to economize, to buy war-bonds, to wear our old clothes with a smile, to be kind and to keep our chins up! Those are New Years resolutions which we can keep!

Wrist and Elbow Injuries

Because young people are more active and play games more fearlessly than older persons, it is to be expected that in these younger people esecially, accidents will occur. Football, particularly, accounts for many injuries, but accidents may happen in almost any sport. People who are unaccustomed to vigorous activity are more likely to have injuries than are those who play games with regularity.

Sprains and strains are among the usual results of accidents that occur in sports. A sprain means the tearing of a ligament which is the tissue around the joints. A strain denotes injury to muscles and in strains usually there is a tearing of muscle fibers. Tears of the muscles and ligaments in the arms occur much less often than in the legs.

In wrist injuries the mistake is often made of not studying the condition properly to determine whether there has been merely a strain or sprain or a fracture, that is, a break in some of the bones. A common kind of fracture is a break in the scaphoid bone in the wrist. This kind of a break occurs when a person falls on his outstretched hand. The fracture causes pain and swelling between the wrist and the thumb. The patient is unable to bend the hand forward or backward and moving the hand toward the thumb side is painful.

In order to tell definitely when such a break is present, an X-ray must be taken. Once such a fracture is diagnosed, treatment should be started at once. The person is put to sleep with some anesthetic and the hand is worked into a position in which it is bent backward and tilted as far as possible toward the thumb side. Then a plaster cast is put on. The cast is kept on for six weeks without changing, if possible. Then a new cast is applied and left on for an additional three weeks. After this time a splint may be worn for about ten days.

Other injuries to the arm may occur around the elbow. There may be a break in the head of the bone known as the radius. As a result of the break there may be bleeding into the joint. An X-ray plate will reveal the break in most instances. Treatment of this kind of break consists of keeping the arm at rest with the elbow bent and the hand turned upward. A sling of the proper type is usually satisfactory for this purpose. The arm is kept in this position for about three weeks. If any bits of bone break off when the fracture occurs it is, as a rule, necessary to operate and remove the bone fragments.

FASHION FLASHES

CHANCES ARE that if you are treating your teen age daughter to a fur coat she will prefer a "shortie." A grand coat is a 28-inch long pea jacket, double-breasted, in ocelet, or leopard. High closing, big, rounded lapels.

WE'RE GLAD that some of the prettiest fashions seen this season are for young women who have an appointment with the stork. A grand buy is a jumper in a pin-wale-corduroy made with a panel front and an adjustable tie-back.

IT'S EASY to achieve a glamorous look for that after-five date. Strands of pearls on a basic black dress with a deep U or V or square neckline, and a hat composed of a scrap of felt, some feathers and veiling will do the trick. But the dress must be good and the accessories well chosen.

LOOK OUT next Spring for some pretty prints with a machine shop look. The designs are made up of gears, blue print symbols, nuts, screws and bolts. We saw one pretty dress already made up with tiny studs and cuff links of nuts and bolts in brown composition.

WE KNOW one woman who went out and bought herself a simple made but beautiful bright red felt hat. She wears it only when she feels her spirits or her looks need a lift. And true to form, the something red does a good job, is a real morale-raiser.

NOT AVAILABLE TILL JAN. 24

Toronto, Jan. 12 — (CP) — Highways Minister George Doucett announced yesterday that owing to unavoidable delays in obtaining supplies, 1944 motor vehicle permits and drivers' licenses will not be available to the public until January 24. In the meantime the term of 1943 licences and permits has been extended to make them valid until those for 1944 are ready.

COLLEGIATE NEWS

New Year, New Leaf

The student body opened the Spring Term this week with the realization that the New Year is a very young baby, and it is time there were some changes made. This was shown in several ways by masters and students as they presented the initial assembly of the year 1944.

First of all, Bruce (Zeke) Philp arose to beg, storm, cajole and threaten all students, in the interests of the Boys' Athletic Society, who are attempting to sell "season's tickets" to the skaters on the newly-built B.C.I.V.S. rink. This should not be a difficult job, considering the fine sheet of ice, which has been laid out in a short time by the more active male members of our school. (such as B.A.S. President, Johnny Locke, Jim Rose, Percy Marcus et al.). Bruce really put his speech over, and all we can say is: "Well gee whiz, Zeke!"

Mr. Turner, during the course of his announcements, suggested that the talented members of our school donate their services to make the entertainment presented in our Assemblies more interesting. The only groups to show a little push in this way during the past term were the Quartet and the Symphonettes.

Incidentally, Mr. Turner, in making the above request, made what we believe to be the first official acknowledgment of the rumours that have been circulating throughout the school since last September regarding a Students' Council. It won't start until next term, but it is an innovation that all Collegiate students will heartily approve of... despite the disgruntled protests of those Senior students who won't be here next year to join in the fun.

Tune: The Skaters' Waltz.

On Friday evening, around seven-thirty, a rather unusual sight was to be seen at the corner of Front and Bridge Streets, as Miss Merry, Mr. Turner and most of XI-B stood waiting for the automobiles that were to transport them to XI-B's skating party. The car arrived in the nick of time, because most of the characters were beginning to freeze on the spot. Another car appeared (more cautiously than the first, however) and the heavily-clothed, skate-slung gang departed in a grinding of gears and in a cloud of exhaust smoke. Arriving at Stan Hagerman's, the cars slid to a stop, the doors flew open, and like a mess of unpacked sardines, the passengers popped out. On with the skates, down the lawn, through a ditch, under a fence and on to the bay flashed the skaters, to return very quickly in search of more coats, gloves and socks. The ice was exceptionally fine, and despite a few upsets, the skating progressed through the evening, until even the most avid fans were tiring. A couple of fresh-air fiends managed to freeze their ears and fingers, and one poor lad came in contact with another's head, and could not whistle for the rest of the evening, because his lip was so swollen. Dancing commenced, and to the strains of a series of records the couples revolved around the room. Then, the food appeared—deliciously tempting, and in abundance. More dancing and more picture-taking, and finally homeward bound. Finally our form chauffeur found the right side of the road....his marks in the last set of exams must have upset his nervous system, for he could not manage to drive in a straight line; nothing stronger than "Coke" at the party, either. Finally, up the front steps, quietly through the front door, up the stairs and so—to bed.

CUFF NOTES

Well, we are firmly settled back in our seats for another term. A disturbing thought struck us between French and Mathematics the other day: we must write another set of exams before we are released for another brief respite....'Twas not a joyous homecoming, for the results of our last set of exams still hung over our heads. However, all is now finished, and we can face the New Year with a light heart.

We welcome to the school a new teacher, Miss Morton, who is instructing the girls in Physical Training....We are happy to note that Miss Wallen has recovered from her illness, and is once more in Room 212, dispensing French... It appears that the oratorical ability of "Zeke" Philp has been hidden under a stoic exterior .... Despite the felonious attempts to annihilate one another, the Quartet and the Symphonettes may be expected in an early Assembly.

Orchids to the Boys' Athletic Society for the splendid rink that they have erected this year. Just about a year ago we were nagging the old B.A.S. for not doing anything until the last minute. By the way, Student Body, there's a lot of hard work in fixing up that rink—the least you can do is pay for the privilege of skating on it!

How Your Child May Be Inviting Colds

Due to being indoors more with less chance for play, many youngsters' bowels become less regular in winter and this condition often lowers resistance and invites attack by cold germs. To help prevent such colds, keep your child's bowels regular with Children's Own Tablets. These pleasant, little tablets are a laxative and more. They also help sweeten the sour stomach that often goes with out-of-order bowels. Get Children's Own Tablets today and guard your child against unnecessary colds. 25¢ at druggists.

Bibeault Performs Brilliantly When Leafs Score Surprise Victory Over Canadiens, 5 to 0

In Free-for-All in Third Period Phil Watson Takes Punishment

3 MATCH MISCONDUCTS

By ALAN HARVEY

Irvin will find it hard enough to explain how Toronto Maple Leafs happened to maul his Montreal Canadiens 5-0 last night, but that's just part of the story.

He'll have to piece together an ironclad alibi for Bill Durnan, the Montreal netminder who has been ballyhooed as sure pop for just about every reward in the N. H. L. books. Last night Durnan was outplayed — and outplayed, ironically, by Paul Bibeault, recently sold to Leafs by Canadiens.

Bibeault, who has helped Leafs win five of seven games since receiving a medical discharge from the Canadian Army, kicked out 36 shots compared with 32 handled by Durnan as Leafs registered their third straight victory before 12,641 home fans.

It was a miserable evening for Canadiens. The game not only snapped their victory march at nine straight, but saw centre Phil Watson take heavy punishment in a slugging match with linesman Jim Primeau and a wrestling bout with young Tom (Windy) O'Neill of Leafs. Watson, who suffered a two-stitch wound and assorted minor cuts, drew a match misconduct and a major, while O'Neill was given a major.

The game was delayed about 10 minutes by the battling, which started with an affray between Jackie McLean of Toronto and turbulent Murph Chamberlain of Canadiens. Both drew match misconducts.

Four of the five Toronto goals were fired by the No. 1 line as Leafs reduced Montreal's first-place margin to 5½ games. Don Webster, substituting for injured Bob Davidson, scored the first two in the opening period on plays with linemates Gus Bodnar and Lorne Carr. Carr converted relays from Bodnar to make it 4-0 and Reg Hamilton tallied one of his rare goals seven seconds before the second period ended to complete the scoring.

Frick Thinks Baseball Will Continue Next Year

By The Canadian Press

President Ford Frick of the National League expressed the opinion in New York last night that baseball will continue in the United States despite the uncertain effects on sport of President Roosevelt's call for a National Service law.

The President's recommendation may bring to a final decision the long argued question whether sports is essential to the United States war effort. A service law would mean that athletes, like all other able-bodied persons, would be liable to specific war-effort assignments in war production plants. This is somewhat different from the Canadian manpower regulations which freeze persons already engaged in war plants and other high priority industries.

In the United States, if professional baseball for instance is to survive next summer, some one in authority must rule that ball players are essential to the war effort for the sake of civilian morale.

Representative Samuel Weiss (Dem-Pa.) is leader of a group of legislators which has been striving to have sports classified as essential for morale reasons and he said that if the service law is passed it will bring a definite showdown. In New York Frick commented: "If players are called, they go, that's all." He pointed out that numerous players already have gone into war work.

Play-making star Bill Cowley of the Boston Bruins last night left Wellesley Hospital where he was undergoing treatment for a shoulder injury and planned to leave later in the evening for his home in Ottawa. Cowley was injured Saturday night in a National Hockey League game with Toronto Maple Leafs. He hopes to be back in action in a few weeks.

Something new in boxing occurred in New York last night when Chick Wergeles was hauled before the New York State Athletic Commission to explain his complaints about refereeing by Eddie Joseph in the bout in which Wergeles' boxer, Beau Jack, won a split decision over Lulu Costantino. Joseph voted for Costantino. Wergeles was not only set free by the Commission, instead of getting a possible fine, but one member of the Commission, Dr. Cilian Powell, upheld the charge that Joseph was incompetent.

The 1943 all-star baseball team named last night by the St. Louis Sporting News includes nine players chosen for the first time. Only Mort Cooper of St. Louis came back from the 1942 team and Luke Appling of the White Sox was named in 1940. The newcomers are Dick Wakefield of Detroit, Stan Musial of the Cards, Bill Nicholson of the Cubs, Rudy York of Detroit, Bill Herman of Brooklyn, Bill Johnson of the Yankees, and Walker Cooper of the Cards.

The Board of Governors of the N.H.L. will meet in Toronto Jan. 21 and it is expected most of the discussion will centre on relations with the C.A.H.A. There have been rumors of a difference of opinion between the pro and amateur bodies.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Jan. 12. (CP)—The Pacific clime does things for Eastern and Prairie Athletes. Carl Robertson, sports editor of the Vancouver News-Herald, chose Bill Wilkes, Orillia, Ont., lacrosse product, as British Columbia's outstanding male athlete in 1943 for his chore in helping New Westminster Salmonbellies win the Mann Cup. Robertson named several runners-up including Casey Jones, home-run King of the Vancouver Baseball League and formerly of Winnipeg; Bill Carse, Edmonton boy who led Victoria Army to the Allan Cup Hockey final; and George McConnell, the Winnipeger chosen most valuable man in the Coast basketball loop.

Gag Law:

It appears Art Ross, who wrote the notorious gag rule into the N.H.L. constitution, should call himself to the mat. Ross is quoted by Andy (Toronto Star) Lytle as saying Toronto Leafs deliberately "got" Bill Cowley (out for a month with a shoulder injury) and that Manager Frank Selke of Leafs was the instigator. It was Ross who wrote the rule providing a maximum $1,000 fine for any player or club official giving to the press criticism of any other official.

Salty Saying:

The army hockey statement that henceforth the boys will be busy carrying the puck to Berlin led Alf (Vancouver Sun) Cottrell to comment: "One can see that the present haste is necessary if our side is to shake hands with the Stalingrad Reds in centre ice".

Incidentally:

Four former Prairie football stars, Dick Haughian and Jimmy Gilkes of Calgary Bronks and Harry Badger and Bill Boivin of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, are all army lieutenants stationed on Vancouver Island. . . .Another Bronks player, Gilkes, brother, Gobbo, remustered to aircrew and is taking his service flying training at MacLeod, Alta. . . .Conny Dion, Cornwall, Ont., hockey goalie has been discharged from the Army (N.H.L. Clubs should negotiate direct). . . a press release from the National Association of professional baseball leagues says two Quebec men, J. Emile Dion and Lorenzo Morel, have been attending annual minor league meetings for three years and have done such a good job of "selling" that a future convention of the Association is likely to be held in Quebec City.

The twin leadership races in the two junior "A" groups of the O.H.A. showed significant changes today. St. Catharines Falcons enjoy sole possession of top rung in group 2, and in group 1 the Oshawa Generals' lead has been narrowed to two points over Toronto St. Michaels.

In last nights games St. Michaels crept up on the idle Oshawa team by beating Port Colborne Recreationists 6-4. Hamilton Whizzers took a firmer grip on third place in this group by beating Toronto Young Rangers 6-4. In the other group St. Catharines broke its first-place deadlock with Galt by defeating Brantford Lions 8-4.

In the game at Port Colborne Ted Lindsay bagged three goals for St. Michaels and Gravelle got three for Port Colborne. Joe Sadler got two for Toronto and Bobby Schnurr got the sixth. Port Colborne's other counter came from Simpell.

Another three-goal individual splurge was chalked up at Hamilton by Clancy, Hamilton's recruit from Grimsby. Kaiser, Comfort and Whitworth scored Hamilton's other counters. For Young Rangers Dewsbury had two, Ringer and Rutledge one each.

At St. Catharines the Falcons were on top throughout, with Nicowski, Phillips and Warecki each getting two goals and Welch and Barber scoring singles. Evenshen had two for Brantford, whose other goals were scored by Davis and Robin Hewson.

SCORES 3 GOALS IN 33 SECONDS

Montreal, Jan. 12 — (CP) — The way National Defence Hockey League boosters figure it, Freddie Gibbons chalked up an all-time quick-scoring mark for organized hockey when he rapped in three goals in 33 seconds for Navy against McGill.

Gibbons, former Toronto junior, punched home the last three goals of the game as Navy whipped the Redmen 10-0 Monday night. His third period times were 14:26, 14:33 and 14:59. He bagged two other goals and an assist earlier in the game.

The N.D.H.L. lays claim to something else in the record business too—they have a team without a goalie. The R.C.A.F. squad, without a regular goalie, have worked out a system whereby each forward on the team will take a regular night in goal. Marcel Bessette did it Monday night and his team earned a 5-5 draw against Army.

Detroit (AP)—Ralph E. Baker, Attorney, was sentenced to 18 months to five years in prison yesterday after pleading guilty to larceny of $4,592 from Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, former Detroit Tigers pitcher now with the Philadelphia Nationals. Rowe said the money was paid Baker to be applied on insurance policies.

Hamilton — (CP)—City Council last night authorized expenditure of $750 to buy watches for members of the championship football team, Hamilton Flying Wildcats, and for Jackie Callura, deposed featherweight boxing champion who was born in Hamilton.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

A repentant sinner, seeing the evil of his ways, decided to join a church. He walked down Main Street, entered the first one he came to, and told the pastor of his decision.

Pastor—We must first examine your knowledge of the Bible. Where was Jesus born?

Repentant Sinner—Philadelphia.

Pastor—no. You will need to know this and more before we can admit you to the congregation. Suppose you go home, study your Bible, and come back next week prepared to answer some questions.

The sinner did not wish to delay, lest he lose the urge, so he walked across the street to another church. His reception was much the same, and again he was asked where Jesus was born.

As before, he was told to go home and prepare himself by reading the Bible. But, seeing a third church down the street, he decided to try his luck there.

This reverend greeted him cordially, listened patiently, and told him to come back the next Sunday, when he would be made a member.

Repentant Sinner — Aren't you going to ask me any question?

Pastor—No, my son.

Repentant Sinner—Well, do you mind if I ask you one? Where was Jesus born?

Pastor—Why, in Bethlehem.

Repentant Sinner—By golly, I knew it was some place in Pennsylvania!

And at another church the other day a railroad man was asked what he knew about New Jerusalem.

Juniors Take Heed.

No sooner did Coach Toots Holway hear of the Combines' 2-0 win over Mike Dziura's junior Flyers than the local mentor called practice and more practice for the Belleville juniors. After all the locals do cross sticks with the Combines at the Market St. ice palace Friday night and after the way Wally Hilton's Combines mawled the young airmen, Coach Holway and Manager Jack Doran got their heads together to plan ways and means to try and assume the group leadership by beating the Stirling-Marmora aggregation Friday night.

At present the Combines are leading the group parade with one win and no losses. Belleville and Trenton are tied for second with a win and loss each with the Flyers in the cellar with one loss in as many starts. However, the Flyers invade the Trenton rink Thursday night when it's up to Les Farrell's crowd to win or drop into sole possession of the cellar spot.

Had No Fears.

Apparently it made little difference to the Combines in the fact the Flyers boasted of no less than five former junior "A" players on their roster. The Stirling-Marmora aggregation hopped aboard the ex-A stars and checked them into the proverbial ice. The former junior "A" players with the Flyers at Stirling included Ralph Benson, Marlboro goalie, Al Chartis, Young Rangers, Johnny Jackowitz, Brantford Lions, Jack Flynn, Niagara Falls, Harry Green, Guelph, to say nothing of Lew Smith of Regina, Frank McGee of St. Patrick's College in Ottawa and George Pontius formerly with Carlyle College juniors. Names made no difference to the Combines, who tangle with the locals here Friday night. As this is the only home game for the Holway-led crowd until Jan 25th, a capacity house should welcome the Combine-Belleville meeting Friday night. Coach Holway won't announced his starting line-up until Friday morning, he stated after last night's stiff practice.

Add to Numbers.

Shades of years ago when City League hockey was what might be termed a going concern in Belleville were recalled at the Hume Arena last night when the Point Anne "Cementmen" made application to affiliate in the Belleville City Hockey League giving the loop five sure starters. The original quartette were Reliance, Stephen Adamson, Baker's Fruit Market and Universal Moulded Products.

After considering matters from all angles last night the team delegates deemed it advisable to organize and play out a schedule purely for the recreational benefits that could be obtained in such a league. Of course they would still accept a sixth entry to balance the loop, but regardless city league hockey will give sport and recreation to at least 60 young men as it is.

Rhem's Escapades.

Flint Rhem, one of Dizzy Dean's colorful predecessors on the St. Louis Cardinal staff, makes the Madcap League by his explanation of an infraction of a no-drink clause in his 1928 St. Louis contract. Flint broke training in a party in Boston on the Cards' last eastern trip of that year, and his excuse was that he drank not only his share, but also emptied Grover Cleveland Alexander's glass when the drinks were passed to Alex. "I drank 'em up to keep Alex sober; McKechnie needed him more'n me," Rhem said.

Two years later, Rhem was kidnaped in New York before an important St. Louis-Dodger series. He was lured into a taxicab, taken over to New Jersey, where two men with revolvers at the pit of his stomach forced him to swallow liquor. Flint, who was to have pitched the Sunday game, always stuck to his story, but he never could find the Jersey place afterwards.

New York, Jan. 12. (AP)—While major leaguers are discussing the advisability of doing some "missionary work" in college baseball after the war, the National Collegiate A.A. may get there first by organizing a National Championship along the lines of its basketball tournament. . . .The possibility still is remote, but Prof. Phil Badger, the N.C.A.A. president says: "Some day we may do it". . .Chief drawbacks are the difficulty of getting the teams together when summer vacations are about to start and the fact that the colleges lose some $500,000 a year on baseball. . . .It would take a major operation instead of just a shot in the arm to cure that financial condition.

CAPITALS WIN 10TH OF SEASON

(By the Canadian Press)

Indianapolis Capitals won their tenth game of the season last night by defeating the cellar-dwelling Providence Reds 3-1 in the only scheduled American hockey league encounter.

In 31 starts this season Caps have tied nine games and lost 12 others. They now stand in third place in the league—10 points behind Cleveland Barons. Hershey Bears lead the League.

Smith added a second tally at 1:22 in the second round on a pass from Thompson. Halfway through the third period Roland Forget scored Reds' lone counter, but just a few minutes before the final whistle Alex Ritson made it 3-1 for Caps from Red Kane.

LESSON NO. 274

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Don't cry, little girl, don't cry. You will learn scoring by and by. Let me help you get a start, anyway. Even a little knowledge along that line is better than none.

Insist on keeping score. Have someone in your group check your figures. Even if you learn the wrong figures, it is still better than knowing none. You play a better game when you know how to score.

Bridge is a game in which opposing pairs (sides) compete for points. A side (pair) wins points for taking not less than the tricks they agreed to take; or for defeating opponents.

The highest bid in any deal is the final bid; the contract at a named denomination (some suit or no-trump). Declarer is the player who tries to fulfill the contract for his side.

When declarer fulfills his contract, his side wins points for (among other things) odd tricks. Odd tricks are all the tricks taken by declarer in excess of the first six.

How many points are paid for odd tricks? That depends on the denomination at which the contract is played. At no-trump, the first odd trick pays 40; each odd trick thereafter pays 30.

If played in spades or hearts, each odd trick pays 30 points. If played in diamonds or clubs, each odd trick pays only 20 points.

Thus, the same number of odd tricks pay more if played in no-trump instead of in any suit. But each odd trick pays more if played in spades or hearts instead of in diamonds or clubs.

♦A J 10 5
♠8 6 3 2
♥K 7 4
♣7 4

This pair might play at three diamonds, or three hearts, or at two no-trump. If they take eight tricks at two no-trump, they get 70 points; 40 for the first odd and 30 for the next odd.

If at three hearts they take nine tricks, they get 30 points for each of the three odd tricks; or 90. At three diamonds if they take nine tricks, they get 60 points at 20 per odd trick.

Taking odd tricks is not so odd.

"Tarzan's Secret Treasure".

Metro-Goldwyn Mayer celebrates the twenty-fifth anniversary of the filming of the first "Tarzan" picture with the release of "Tarzan's Secret Treasure," which opens next on the Capitol screen with Johnny Weissmuller and Maureen O'Sullivan once again playing their established roles of Tarzan and his mate, and little Johnny Sheffield again cast as "Boy," their adopted son, first introduced in "Tarzan Finds a Son."

In "Tarzan's Secret Treasure" the jungle paradise is visited by a safari, members of which discover gold in the area and plan to mine for it. To do so they encompass the death of the leader of the expedition (Reginald Owen), who sympathizes with Tarzan's desire that his home be undisturbed. Tarzan is shot and left for dead; Jane (Miss O'Sullivan) and "Boy" (Johnny Sheffield) are kidnapped. When they fall into the hands of savages, Cheeta, the faithful ape, finds Tarzan, and in a spectacular climax Tarzan leads his army of elephants to the rescue.

"Campus Rhythm"
(Musical Comedy)

The latest college picture to reach the screen is "Campus Rhythm," the Monogram comedy which comes to the Capitol theatre next as the added hit with Gale Storm, Johnny Downs and Robert Lowery in the featured roles.

Lilting songs are a prominent part of this gay comedy, and four are sung by Gale Storm, willowy young brunette from Texas, who is said to have few equals in the rendition of popular ditties. Robert Lowery sings, too, and Johnny Downs leads a band, and still further songs are contributed by Ge-Ge Pearson, who has been heard on many coast-to-coast radio broadcasts. And the ultimate mark in vocal acrobatics is registered by Candy Candido, the split-voiced comedian who switches from soprano to the deepest bass without batting an eye.

A funny cartoon and the serial "Secret Service in Darkest Africa" complete the big bill.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Flesh and Fantasy"

Charles Boyer and Edward G. Robinson delved into their private collections of art to supply props for Universal's "Flesh and Fantasy" now at the McCarthy Theatre.

The art objects were extremely rare examples of "voodoo" articles made by African natives, and were among the few obtainable in Hollywood.

Boyer, who both co-produced with Julien Devivier and co-starred with Robinson in "Flesh and Fantasy", had some of the strange art objects in storage. He laughingly explained that his wife, Pat Paterson, disliked the looks of weird wood carvings so he had them taken out of their home.

When Boyer had a sequence written into the picture calling for voodoo art, he didn't figure on using his own. Russ Gausman, head of the Universal prop department combed the town and found three of four pieces, which weren't enough. Boyer dragged out his own collection but still didn't have enough. He told Robinson of his dilemma and Robinson, who has Hollywood's biggest and most valuable art collection, surprisingly announced he had a few chunks of voodoo he would be glad to lend.

The balance of the program is strictly for your entertainment, and includes the latest 'World in Action' short "Our Northern Neighbors", the musical comedy "There's Something About a Soldier" and Universal News of the World.

Focus More Attention On Pacific War, Advice of Editor

Brandon, Man., Jan. 12 —(CP)— The focusing of more attention on the Pacific theatre of war was advocated by John Bird, editor-in-chief of the Winnipeg Tribune, in an address here to a service club (Kiwanis).

"If the war closed suddenly in Europe, Americans are afraid that we will not put the same heart into the Pacific war that we did in the Atlantic," he said.

"Of course, that is not so, but just the same public opinion is getting out of step in the two countries."

Hitler is still the No. 1 enemy to Canada and the Empire, he added, but the Jap is No. 1 enemy to the United States.

He feared that Canada might be getting out of step with the United States.

Cpl. Arthur Clapp Informs Mother How He Lost His Leg in Italy

OTHER ITEMS

Picton, Jan. 12.—Harold Bristow has received word that his brother-in-law, Pte. Erwin Jackson, Hastings and Prince Edward Rgt., has been killed in action in Italy. He enlisted at Picton in 1939, going overseas with the First Division. He served in Sicily before going to Italy, as a sniper. He was a native of Gunter, where his wife and two children reside.

Picton L.O.L. 488 has received a letter of thanks from the Imperial Grand Secretary expressing appreciation of a donation of $225 to the Orange War Relief Fund. The Order has supplied four mobile kitchens as well as $20,000 for other relief work in Britain.

Hog Producers Organize.

Prince Edward Hog Producers organized an association following an address by J. McInnis, president of the Ontario Association. Officers are, Morley Williams, president; Whytock Fox, vice-president; Allan McCrimmon, secretary-treasurer. Directors for townships are, Athol, Sam Dodds; Ameliasburg, W. Latchford; Hallowell, Oscar Parks; North Marysburg, S. J. Martin; South Marysburg, Thomas Ackerman; Sophiasburg, Fred Kotchapaw; Hillier, C. Tice.

The meeting endorsed a marketing proposal outlined by Mr. McInnis and passed a resolution asking that the Federal government grant a subsidy so that the price of hogs would be equal to $20 per hundredweight, dressed weight, F.O.B., Toronto.

Ministers Meet.

An address on the Malvern Conference was given by Rev. E. N. Grant, Wellington, at the Prince Edward County Ministerial Association yesterday. The meeting was held at the home of Rev. F. M. Wootton, with all denominations represented.

Speaks on China.

Addressing the Rotary Club, Dr. James Endicott, for many years a missionary in China, and personal advisor to Chiang Kai-Shek on matters of war relief, urged the importance of the democratic nations giving support to liberal movements in China which are trending toward the establishment of a democracy there. In the Far East, China of all nations, offers the greatest likelihood of true democracy being existent in the near future, he said, for neither in India or Japan, is a true democratic government likely to exist.

Dr. Endicott was critical of policy of the great nations which had resulted in China having to face up to the long and epic struggle against Japanese aggression. He referred to the existence in China of a tradition and spirit which favors the development of democracy.

Three Sons In Services.

Robert Hotston left this week for Kingston, where he has joined the army. He is the third son of Sgt. Charles Hotston, stationed at Kingston, and Mrs. Hotston, to join the armed services.

January Threshing.

Delayed by wet weather during the fall months, threshing of hay for seed is in full swing in Prince Edward County. It suffered no damage from freezing. Farmers were fortunate in that it was possible to draw it from the fields, there being no snow. One Cherry Valley farmer this week threshed his fall grain which has been stored in the barn.

Collect Books.

At its January meeting, Picton Chapter I.O.D.E. voted $100 for cigarettes for county boys overseas, $100 for seamen's sweaters and $50 for new books to be placed in camp libraries. Mrs. Ralph Hubbs was appointed convener of the committee which will collect books for military camps.

Tells of Fighting.

"I had just crossed the Moro river when I had a leg blown from under me. It was severed at the knee of the right leg. It was dark and raining, and the boys had a real job getting me up the slippery banks of the river. My gunner from Belleville, a fine fellow, was instantly killed by the same shell". Thus wrote Cpl. Arthur Clapp in a letter to his mother, Mrs. Manetta Clapp, who had earlier been advised that he was seriously wounded.

"The army and I are through for ever, without a doubt. We sure had some awful scraps and many a Hun bit the dust, along with hundreds of prisoners. The First Division sure went to town. We were taken off the mountain front to the Adriatic coast, and though the Huns are fighting hard, we are beating them. Off one hill, they would counter attack, but find it was to their sorrow", Cpl. Clapp wrote.

"There are 75 Huns lying in the room next to me. They were wounded lads we picked up after a scrap. They are just kids, most of them from 16 to 20 years old. They know nothing of what is going on. They still believe Russia is beaten. When we tell them the truth and show them maps, their jaws drop down on their chests, ."

"I am coming along fine and able to be in a wheel chair. I would like to get the Hun that got me but no doubt he is dead as our fellows accounted for a lot of them", wrote Cpl. Clapp, who was a member of Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, and recently distinguished himself when he managed a mule train which brought supplies to the regiment when it had been cut off for two days.

Nazis Throw In Increasing Weight In Central Bosnia

London, Jan. 12 — (AP) — A Yugoslav Army of Liberation communique said Wednesday a German tank column had driven to Jajce, 30 miles south of Banja Luka on the Vrbas river, and the Budapest radio asserted the Nazis had occupied the town, previously identified as headquarters of Marshal Josip Broz (Tito), the Partisan leader.

German tank formations "succeeded in thrusting forward from Banja Luka to Mrkonjicgrad and Jajce," the bulletin added without saying whether they had been occupied, and fierce fighting is raging between the two towns.

Tito's communique, broadcast by the Free Yugoslav Radio, declared the Germans were throwing increasing weight into their new offensive against central Bosnia, where Jajce lies high up in the Vrbas valley.

German broadcasts claimed the seizure of Jajce, three weeks ago.

Units of the Prince Eugen Division attacking at Travnik, 20 miles southeast of Jajce, were repulsed by Partisan troops, Tito said, and in eastern Bosnia, the German-held localities of Frebrencia and Vlasinyaka were captured.

Units of the Second Yugoslav Brigade killed 30 Germans near Plevlja, 55 miles southeast of Sarajevo, and captured much enemy war material on the Sanjak-Bosnia border, the communique reported.

(Allied planes were sighted over Croatia Tuesday night, a Hungarian news agency broadcast recorded in New York by the U. S. Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service said. "Their objective," it said, "was to supply Partisans with arms and ammunition."

Congress Splits On Roosevelt's Bid For Labor Draft

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, Jan. 12 — (AP). — President Roosevelt's request for enactment of National Service Legislation — under which the services of all men in the United States from 18 to 65 and all women from 18 to 50, with certain exceptions, would be subject to government call —split Congress today and foreshadowed one of the most bitter fights of this election year.

A cross-section of sentiment in both Senate and House of Representatives indicated it would be touch-and-go whether the President's request would be granted or denied, with the opposition seemingly having the edge at present.

The reaction ranged from Senator Burton K. Wheeler's (Dem., Mont.) charge that the President's proposal was "a very definite, if not final, step toward Fascism," to the contention of Rep. James W. Wadsworth (Rep., N.Y.) that it was "the Democratic thing to do."

Robert P. Patterson, United States Under-Secretary for War, said enactment of a National Service Act would result in stabilization of labor in critical industries and would provide a definite morale boost for troops overseas.

Patterson said in an interview he thought "there would be little compulsion" of labor beyond requiring workers to retain jobs for which they have been trained."

Many Congressmen steered clear of committing themselves and took the attitude that enactment of a worker draft law should be contingent, as the President suggested, on passage of legislation to hold down living costs, revamp the tax system, and curb profits. Many were inclined to feel that the service legislation should follow the others, not precede it.

Chairman Andrew May (Dem., Ky.) called a meeting of the House of Representatives Military Committee for next Tuesday to consider the President's request.

Deanna Durbin will be more of an actress and less of a singer in future pictures. In "Christmas Holiday," her next, she will sing just two short songs. . . Though Canada Lee, one of the feature players in Alfred Hitchcock's "Lifeboat," has no connection with the Dominion, Hume Croyn, who also appears in it, has. He's from Western Ontario. . . Hollywood is becoming domesticated. There were more marriages and more births in 1943 than in any past year. . . The big buildup that Frank Sinatra is getting caused considerable advance hostility for him prior to his arrival in Hollywood to make his first film, "Higher and Higher." He proved to be little more than a scared kid who wondered what it was all about instead of a wise guy. So now everyone is crazy about him. . . They're making "The Wife of Monte Cristo" as a film. . . Overheard: "I can't understand the fuss about women getting men's salaries. My wife has been getting mine for years."

Over at Warner Brothers' studio they had to send out a hurry-up call for carpenters the other day. Sydney Greenstreet of "Fat Man" fame, playing a scene in a European railway train for "Mask of Dimitrios," got stuck in the narrow doorway. It had to be widened two inches. . . One of the big names in the days of the silent screen was Director Rex Ingram, who faded out with the coming of sound. He is about to enter production again to remake two of his past triumphs, "Trifling Woman" and "Mare Nostrum." Those films featured Raymon Novarro, Antonio Moreno, Barbara LaMarr and Lewis Stone. The last is still a busy actor. . . Jackie Jenkins, six-year-old son of actress Doris Dudley, who made such a hit in "The Human Comedy," will be seen with Mickey Rooney in "National Velvet."

Quickly Colin told them of the Nazi air base episode, then he asked the question that Blair dreaded. "Where is Dove?"

"All we know is this," Tennant answered. "Yesterday he came back to the school and left with his dog team over the Moose Lake trail. He took bedding and grub, two high-powered rifles and all the photo prints in that room. They've had planes up from Winnipeg scouring the country, but no word yet. Selkirk and the Mounties started out this morning to spread the word to trappers and Indian villages."

Nate stopped, then casually he added, "I suppose you'll be going after him."

"Just as soon as I can pick up a dog team."

"I knew you'd say that. In fact," —Nate looked self-consciously toward Miss Benedict—"I promised Blair I'd go with you."

Colin shook his head. "This is a one-man job."

"No, it isn't." Nate's eyes were serious. "It's bad business following a man like Dove and you know it. Let me come, Colin. We'll use my team. It's the fastest in the country. I've got food and eiderdowns packed for both—I've even got your favorite rifle, the 25 high-power. Let me come."

Colin's eyes rose to the big trapper's bandaged head. "I'm going a long way, Nate, and I'm going fast. You need rest."

Tennant's dark face hardened. "Dr. Benedict told me some things about Dove last night—the way he had Olsen plant snare wire and poisoned bait along my trap lines to set the Crees against me. I've got my own account to settle with Dove, so I'm coming along."

Alone with Blair, Colin took her in his arms. "I've got to go, dear. You know that, don't you?"

"I know," she whispered. "All last night I knew it must be so. But just—just come back to me, that's all." They kissed.

Outside the cabin, Colin nodded to Tennant. The man hunt was on.

Raising the lead line of his toboggan, Nate shouted to the team. Crouching low in the snow, his wolves threw their great weight against the breastbands and, digging in their claws, they were off over the rough snow trail.

North over the Moose Lake trail they headed, Colin and Nate keeping at a pace that would have exhausted lesser men. At the end of two hours Rae stopped, declaring: "I don't like it."

Colin pointed to a clump of broken willow sprouts. "Dove's been leaving too plain a trail. I'm going to leave it and go around. We'll lose a half day, but I think I know where he's bound."

"What makes you so sure? He might cut across to Moose Jaw or over to God's Lake."

"He wouldn't. Dove knows the Mounties will be watching every town after Irina's murder. His only way to safety is by air. My guess is that the plane he used for his map making will come in at some appointed time. When it comes, Dove will be waiting to take it out of the country."

"But we don't know when that will be," Tennant reminded him. And Colin answered, "Whenever it is, I'll be waiting."

By nightfall they reached the lonely arm of the lake close to where Colin had tracked Dove to the plane, but they camped far back in the spruce to leave no telltale trail and, that night after a cold supper, Colin made an unpleasant discovery.

Examining the rifle Tennant had brought him—a light 25 high-power —he opened the breech. "Let's have the shells for this," Colin said.

Tennant rummaged about the duffel, throwing everything off the toboggan. "I couldn't—!" With fumbling hands he shook out his eiderdown. "These shells are all for my 30-30."

There was no doubting Tennant's sincerity, and Colin held out a restraining hand. "It's not as bad as all that." From his parka he pulled his automatic.

Still angry at himself, Nate rolled up in his eiderdown. For a time he moved restlessly from side to side, then suddenly sat bolt upright. "Look, Colin," he said, "from now on, you carry my rifle."

"Forget about it," Rae said.

But the morning passed without a trace of human life in all that frozen world. They had mushed for miles, travelling in a great circle with the lake as its centre, and toward noon even Nate was showing signs of weariness when they threw themselves down in the snow for a cold lunch.

"Like a needle in a haystack," Tennant growled. "A whale of a country to hide out in!"

"We're not around the lake yet," Colin reminded him; then he added, "The way Dove left so clear a trail makes me certain he expected I'd come after him. Somewhere along that trail, he waited for me."

"And when you didn't come?"

"He headed toward his meeting place with the plane. The one thing Dove doesn't know is that I followed him there that night. He'll lay low not far away. But the day his plane is due, he'll come out and it's that day I'm waiting for."

"Maybe the plane's already come and gone." Nate rubbed his stubble beard. "How long do you figure on staying here?"

"Until our food's gone."

"And then?"

"One of us will go back for more." A faint smile touched Colin's lips. "I may even look up those shells for my rifle."

Before the end of that day they came upon their first encouraging sign—a fresh snowshoe trail leading along a winding stream and headed toward the lake. With infinite caution they followed, examining each tree and rock, circling every patch of brush that might give a man concealment. But after a mile the trail emerged upon a ridge so bare and windswept that all trace was lost, and it was almost dusk when the wolves picked the trail up again.

Tennant was exultant as they made camp that night on the edge of a muskeg swamp where they risked a tiny fire for coffee. He looked toward his wolves. "Those beauties know the scent now. They will be hard to lose tomorrow and they'll give us warning if he's waiting for us."

Nate glanced across at Colin, lying in his eiderdown with somber eyes fixed on the flames. "What are you thinking about?"

The brooding face raised. "How did Selkirk take Irina's death?"

Nate drained his cup. "I saw him over at police barracks yesterday. I never liked Rod Selkirk — you know that—but when I looked at him I couldn't feel anything but—well, he had the stuff. You could tell what he was going through. But you knew every minute he was fighting."

"What did he say?"

"He was testifying for Dr. Benedict. Told the police he'd known him for years and he was willing to swear Benedict wasn't capable of any treasonable act. Then I put in a word. I said Doc wasn't the only one Dove had fooled. He fooled me too. He fooled us all—except you."

"What will they do to Benedict, Nate?"

The heavy shoulders shrugged. "What can they do? They have to accept his story. We all know Doc's trouble—he had a deathly fear of leaving Blair uncared for."

Nate gave an angry laugh. "Dove told Benedict his game was to smuggle furs by airplane into the States, and beat the company by establishing a series of landing fields along the bay. It sounded plausible enough to the Doc because the Americans were using planes in the Arctic fur trade.

"Then Dove loaned him money, and when he couldn't pay it back, put the screws on. Little by little Dove got him where he wanted, until finally Benedict couldn't even squirm."

Viciously Tennant began cutting up whitefish for his wolves. "Think of that rat, living with us for years, setting us against one another. It's because of him I'm in a jam with my trappers—I've got to do something about them. I don't want to turn them loose in the middle of winter."

"I'll tell you the answer to that," Colin filled his pipe. "Col. Dowling wants to organize a patrol to watch out for Nazi air bases around the bay. Your trappers would be just right for that work —they're natural hunters, and able to take care of themselves if the going got tough. Why don't you put it up to them when you get back?"

"Put it up to them!" In his excitement Nate threw the whitefish on the snow and knelt beside Colin. "Those trappers will jump at the chance—every man of them—if the Colonel will take them."

"He'll take them."

Tennant was watching Rae closely. "Where do you come in on this?"

"Col. Dowling asked me to pick the men." Colin laid a hand on Tennant's arm. "Look Nate, why don't you join up, too? You and your trappers could take over the country east of the Nelson."

For a time Tennant sat watching the flames, then at last he shook his head. "For my trappers it's the chance of a lifetime, but for me it wouldn't work." Slowly he looked up. "Before I left Learmonth, Blair told me how things stood between you two. If I joined up on that patrol, I'd be seeing you and I'd be seeing Blair and it just wouldn't work."

At dawn they were up. Leaving robes and equipment behind, they harnessed the wolves to an empty toboggan and picked up the snowshoe tracks shortly before nine.

Pulling off his mittens, Tennant touched the trodden edges of the crust. "Fresh! These weren't made more than an hour ago." He laid his hands on the lead wolf's head. "Mush on, you darlings!"

For two miles the trail led through country so open there was little chance of ambush, and they followed at a steady trot; then the tracks climbed a long, high ridge, and on the topmost point the pursuers stopped. Through his field glasses Colin examined the terrain. Far below lay a frozen lake, its surface broken toward the farther side by an island of heavy spruce. The lake itself was roughly oval, probably a mile long, the island occupying a good half of it, leaving a broad expanse of wind-twisted ice between it and the nearer shore. And with a thrill Colin saw that the tracks were headed across the lake, directly for the island.

Rae nodded. "It's the lake where Dove met the plane, and those tracks may mean he's down there on the island, waiting for it to come again.

Joyously Tennant lifted his rifle. "Let's go!"

But Colin stopped him. "Easy. If he wanted to lie in wait for us, that island would be the place to do it. Dove could get us both while we were coming across the ice. I've a better plan; you stay here and watch. I'll cut around that point and see whether he's still on that island or crossed to the other side."

But as Colin started down the slope, Tennant handed him the rifle. "You may need it for long-range work."

An hour later, when Colin climbed back on the ridge, Nate read the answer on his face — those tracks had not come out. Whoever entered the island was still there. Dove—if it was Dove—lay hiding somewhere in the dark shelter of the spruce.

Nate scanned the shore. "Suppose the plane lands on the other side of the island?"

"There isn't room. That plane has to land on this side."

"Then what's our next move?"

"Something he doesn't expect. One of us will take the rifle and cross to the island from the farther side."

Tennant picked up the rifle. "That's my job."

"Why?"

"Because I know this gun and you don't." His eyes were determined. "Let's not argue. What shall I do when I'm on the island?"

"Keep back in the spruce and come around to this side. Then wait. I'll be up here where I can see Dove whenever he comes out. That plane won't land until he signals and once Dove is out on the ice, we'll have him between us. If he makes a break for this side, I'll be waiting."

"If I see him first, Dove won't ever reach your side." Tennant tied his wolf team securely to a spruce. "We don't need you boys for this job. You might ruin it by howling at the wrong time." Waving to Colin, he called, "Here's luck to both of us."

Alone on the ridge top, Rae laid his glasses beside him and settled himself for the vigil ahead. An hour dragged by. Every nerve tense to the breaking point, Colin began walking back and forth along the ridge, straining his eyes out over the lake, then up at the sky. Once, through the glasses, he caught a brief glimpse of Tennant, creeping across the narrow neck of ice that separated the northern edge of the island from the mainland; a minute later Nate disappeared among the spruce.

Suddenly, Colin heard a stirring in the snow, and saw the lead wolf raise his head toward the southern sky. Far off on the horizon, tiny as the merest midge, a plane was coming. Pulse pounding, Rae ran to the crest of the slope. It might only be one of Dowling's planes on reconnaissance.

With his field glasses he swept the island. If Dove were waiting down there, he too would be watching that southern sky. Slowly his glasses searched the wooded shore line from east to west, following the fringe of spruce. He stopped. Something was moving along the shore!

No doubt—a half-crouching figure, just back of the screen of trees, crawling forward, almost on hands and knees—and the figure was too small to be Tennant.

Rae steadied himself against a tree. The man had stepped out into a patch of sunlight, and in that second Colin felt the ground lurch beneath him; that crouching form was Jonathan Dove. The hood of his parka had been thrown back, and in his right hand he carried a rifle.

But Dove was not looking up into the sky. Something to the left held his attention. Following the direction of Dove's gaze, Colin saw Tennant, creeping along the shore line.

Dove had seen Tennant too. With deadly deliberation the little man worked his way forward until he reached a spruce. For a time he was lost to sight, then again Colin saw him, kneeling, waiting, rifle in hand. In a few short minutes Tennant would pass before Dove's ambush. He was moving into the very muzzle of that gun!

Frantic, Colin ran to the edge of the ridge. Twice he fired his revolver, but the distance was too great; the wind, blowing toward him, drowned all sound.

Down on the island, Nate had stopped and was looking into the sky at the nearing plane. Once more Colin fired his automatic. Caught up by the contagion of Rae's unrest, the wolves were on their feet, tugging viciously at their bonds.

And now Rae stopped. A flash of memory swept over him—the old hatred of Nate's wolves for Dove. Ripping his knife from the sheath, he raced back to the team, slashed the animals loose from their harness.

"On! On!" Through an eternity Colin waited, while the lead-wolf sniffed. "Mush on, boy!"

A low growl. The wolf raised his black muzzle to the wind, then lowered it to the snow again and now he was tearing down the slope.

Heads to the ground, tongues lolling, the others were after him, sweeping out across the ice, following that snowshoe trail.

But now the wolves had gained the island and were surging up over the bank to the Nazi's ambush. Not until they were scant yards distant did Dove see them. Whirling, he half rose and fired twice.

Colin heard a yelp of pain and saw the second wolf crumple in the snow. Once more the rifle flashed—but only once. No time for more. The pack had closed. Beneath that ranging horde of fang and claw, Dove went down under a mass of fighting, crunching bodies.

Once—only once—the Nazi shook himself free. Ghastly and terrible, he flung them from him and staggered toward the lake; then for the last time the pack closed. A hand rose in agony and fell. No move, no sound.

Then from out the centre of that gray, silent pack, the lead wolf raised his massive head and, high above the north wind's moaning, Colin heard the long, triumphant howl of the kill.

It was almost sunset when Colin Rae and Nate Tennant halted close to the Indian school and from the toboggan Nate lifted a heavy knapsack. "Here are those maps of Dove's. I'll drop by the Mounties' barracks and report the plane. It will be down in the States by now —that pilot didn't waste much time after he saw us."

Tennant drew off his glove. "Well I'll be saying goodbye." He looked toward Blair's cabin. "There's not much to keep me here, now that you can take care of my trappers." He paused. "I may try the artillery this time. I need to bump off a few Japs or Nazis to make up for the ride Dove gave me." He held out his hand. "Say good-bye to Blair."

Hands clasped across the toboggan, they stood, reluctant to separate, yet knowing the end had come, while the four wolves looked on curiously.

Then from out of the sky droned the sound of a motor. "It's Blair with the mail." Tennant gave Colin's hand a final clasp. "I'll be drifting along before she lands." He pulled on his mitten. "Maybe some day we'll meet again."

Through torn clouds the evening sun was bathing shore and forest with the bright radiance of a winter evening. Outlined against the flaming sky, Tennant turned and waved for the last time.

Colin's throat was still as he raised his own hand in answer. Nate's going was the end of a chapter.

But still Colin made no move. His eyes were raised to the plane, gleaming in the sunlight upper air. With quickened heartbeat he watched it spiraling earthward.

Out of the freedom of the upper air, Blair was coming to him. She was bringing sunlight to him, as in his days of deepest darkness she had always. Not a chapter ended—but a chapter begun.

In a steady glide her plane came toward him; the pontoons sang on the steel-hard ice and stopped not a dozen yards away. The cabin door flung open and Blair lifted her arms.

E. Ont. Apple Crop In 1943 Greater Than Expected

Contrary to mid-season prediction that the 1943 apple crop in Eastern Ontario would be slightly below that of the previous year, the actual crop harvested amounted to ten per cent over that of 1942, it was announced here Wednesday by Senior Fruit Inspector, C. T. Stevenson.

Total apple production for the district ranging from Ontario County on the west to the St. Lawrence area on the east was 297,087 barrels as compared with 268,950 for 1942. Production in the same area for 1941 was 236,381 barrels.

Ontario and Durham counties were listed as the greatest apple producing area in the district, the output in 1943 being 113,141 barrels as compared with 71,196 for the previous year. There was a drop in the apple yield in the Cobourg and Port Hope area as was seen in a production of 17,770 barrels for 1943 as against 23,336 for 1942.

There was also a considerable over-all increase in production in the immediate Bay of Quinte district although the Brighton area dropped from 21,422 barrels in 1942 to 16,830 last year. In the Trenton area, which comprises Hastings and part of Northumberland townships, the yield was 56,926 barrels as compared with 45,875 the year previous. The Prince Edward County yield was 35,656 barrels as compared with 39,925 barrels the year previous.

There was a decrease in the yield in the Kingston and St. Lawrence areas with only 1,975 barrels being harvested in the former district as compared with 2,180 the year previous. In the St. Lawrence area the yield was 24,716 barrels as compared with 36,870 the year previous.

Some Italians Put Hope in Change Of King in Italy

Naples, Jan. 12 (AP)—A hope was evinced in some Italian political circles today that a change of Kings to remove "the taint of Fascism" and a reorganization of the Badoglio government along broader "democratic" lines could be effected before the Allies capture Rome.

Demands that King Victor Emmanuel abdicate in favor of his grandson, the six-year-old Prince of Naples, were laid before the Russian and French members of the inter-Allied advisory council on Italy yesterday and further pressure along these lines is expected to come from the committee of National Liberation, representing six political parties, which meets at Bari Jan. 28.

Andrei J. Vishinsky, Russian member of the council, and Rene Massigli, the French committee of National Liberation's foreign commissioner, conferred yesterday with Count Carlo Sforza, pre-Fascist foreign minister and now head of the Action Party, and Bennedetto Croce, Italia philosopher-statesman.

Croce and Sforza reaffirmed their belief that the King must go and that his son, Prince Umberto, was equally unacceptable, but indicated that a regency for the Prince of Naples would be acceptable.

BUTTER HOLDINGS DOUBLE YEAR AGO

46,876,102-Pound Total at January 1, Under Dec. 1 by 12,700,000 Pounds

Ottawa, January 12.—(CP)—The Dominion Bureau of Statistics today reported total creamery butter stocks on January 1 were 46,876,102 pounds, compared with 23,075,973 on January 1 last year but a reduction of 12,700,000 from December 1 holdings.

Yesterday, the Bureau said that butter production in December was 12,370,059 pounds, a reduction of 15.7 per cent from the same month last year.

Prices Board officials said recently that concern was felt over maintenance of the butter ration due to rising consumption of milk products and lowered production in the winter months.

Cheese stocks were 39,263,767 pounds compared with 56,477,634 one year ago. In addition there were 4,256,000 pounds of cheese in transit.

Evaporated whole milk stocks were 6,940,664 pounds, 1,400,000 pounds less than on January 1, 1943. Skim milk powder totalled 1,137,637 pounds as compared with 1,421,133 last month and 1,961,682 last year.

Shell eggs in storage totalled 1,796,449 dozen with an additional 216,000 dozen in transit. Frozen egg meats totalled 6,546,690 pounds compared with 5,342,598 last year and a reduction of 3,000,000 pounds from last month.

Stocks of all dressed poultry were 23,509,540 pounds as compared with 14,443,865 a year ago. Of this year's stocks 9,700,000 pounds were chickens, 6,500,000 fowl and 3,300,000 pounds turkeys. In addition there were 425,000 pounds in transit on January 1.

Meat stocks were high, but much was held for overseas and for the armed forces, the bureau said. Pork totalled 83,231,011 pounds, beef, 35,639,828; veal, 5,444,961 and mutton and lamb 9,344,709. Lard stocks were 5,175,870 pounds.

Total frozen fresh fish stocks were 31,298,165 pounds, being 5,200,000 more than last year at the same date. There were also 1,892,808 frozen smoked fish stocks.

In fruit, apple holdings were 4,171,706 bushels, being 500,000 less than the stocks a year ago. Frozen fruit totalled 10,903,159 pounds, including 769,542 in frozen consumer packages. There were also 20,077,811 pounds of fruit in sulphur dioxide or in benzoate of soda.

Frozen vegetables amounted to 1,915,421 pounds, of which 1,341,576 were in consumer packages. In addition, 1,768,876 pounds were held in brine.

Recruiting Unit On Visit to City

In the first recruiting drive of 1944, the Area Recruiting Officers of both the Army and R. C. A. F., Captain Eric Hinds and Flt. Lieut. Summers accompanied by Sgt. Effie Harris, of Newfoundland, representing the R. C. A. F. (WD), opened for two evenings and one day in the City Hall for the purpose of recruiting for the three services. The officers and N. C. O. arrived in the city yesterday afternoon and interviewed several local boys, only one of which was accepted for the R. C. A. F. The applicants ranged in age from just past 18 years 6 months to 20. One applicant only had appeared by noon on second day.

Flt. Lieut. Summers reported that many of the young men were applying before their call-up time because they realize that there is a better opportunity to be directed into their trade, or into a trade to their liking than would be the case if they were called and inducted into the service. The two services, the Army and Air Force, have combined their operations in this drive most successfully.

Capt. Eric Hinds is notable for other activities than army recruiting, having played with Roy Horner against the Culbertsons in New York and winning from this professional pair. He has also played bridge with another local enthusiast, the late Mrs. J. A. Faulkner whom, he says, was one of the finest players he ever met.

There will be no further attempt to enlist for the Air Force and Army by the Mobile Unit until March, the services deciding to forego the February appearance in the city. Announcement of the date will be made at a later time.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Jan. 12 (CP)—Golds took a loss this afternoon on Toronto exchange. Other groups showed little change. Volume was quite heavy at 436,000 shares.

Moderate realizing in the gold group weakened Kerr-Addison, Teck Hughes, Lake Shore, Pickle Crow, Sullivan, Powell Rouyn, Madsen and Kirkland Lake. Base metals held steady.

The food, utility and miscellaneous industrials were up slightly against minor losses for the steels and beverages. Cockshutt Plow gained 3-8 and Massey-Harris was down 1-8.

The western oil market was dull but for good action in mid-continent with the price steady at 28. Vermilata firmed a cent and Calgary and Edmonton and Pacific Refineries was down a cent.

HOGS

Dressedweight: Chatham $16.50 plus transportation, Barrie $16.90 delivered, Hamilton $17.10 delivered, Hull $16.85 delivered, London and Stratford $17 delivered.

Dunton Appointed Manager W.I.B.

Ottawa, Jan. 12 —(CP)— Davidson Dunton of Montreal has been appointed general manager of the Wartime Information Board succeeding John Grierson who has resigned, it was announced from the Prime Minister's office today.

Mr. Grierson will continue as government film commissioner, a post he has held for some time and to which the duties of heading the Wartime Information Board were added about a year ago.

Mr. Dunton is editor of the Montreal Standard and has been on loan from his newspaper to the government since the creation of the Information Board. Recently he has been assistant general manager of the Board.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Jan. 12 —(CP)— Cattle trade was dull at about steady prices on the livestock market here up to mid-session today. Calves, hogs and sheep were steady. Lambs were weak.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: Cattle 200, calves 60, hogs 400, sheep and lambs 230. Unsold from yesterday were 700 head of cattle.

Weighty steers were $11.25-$12.75, butcher steers $10-$12, heifers $9-$11.50, a few cows $7-$8.75, canners and cutters $5-$6.75, bulls $7.50-$8.35.

Calves were $15-$16 for choice with other grades downward to $10.

Good ewe and wether lambs were $18-$13.50, bucks $1 discount and culls $6-$8.

Sheep were $2-$6.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, Jan. 12 — (AP) — Heaviness of certain key issues and lack of leadership generally handicapped the stock market today although a few specialties made a little progress. Fractional declines were more numerous than advances near the fourth hour. Volume was comparatively low.

Stocks inclined to slip included Sears Roebuck, Bethlehem Steel, Goodrich, Goodyear, Montgomery Ward, Allied Chemical, and Standard Oil (NJ). Attracting better support at intervals were American Can, Johns-Manville, Western Union "A" and some of the rails.

Canadian issues were quiet with Dome Mines up 1/8 and Hiram Walker unchanged.

Hog Marketings Continue Heavy

Hastings County farmers are finding a market for their surplus hay supplies through baling and shipment to the New England States and to Newfoundland, according to the weekly crop report published by the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Such hay is netting the farmer from $8 to $9 per ton, according to quality.

The short grain crop in the county is beginning to make itself felt and Western grain continues to arrive in quantity. The demand for dairy cows close to freshening continues strong, while there is only a slow demand for young weanling pigs at from $2.50 to $4.50 according to size and quality. The marketing of hogs continues to be heavy.

Order Uniform Rates In Shipyards

Ottawa, Jan. 12—(CP)—Uniform wage rates in Ontario and Quebec shipyards were ordered today by the National War Labor Board in a direction affecting more than 20,000 shipyard workers.

The Board's action followed a survey of wages paid in all Ontario and Quebec yards and conferences with employers and union officials.

The yards are divided into two zones, and specific rates are set for 72 occupational classifications in each zone. In zone No. 1, which includes Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, Ojibway, Ont., and Port Arthur, Ont., the rate for mechanics is set at 85 cents an hour and for laborers at 50 cents.

Rates for zone No. 2, which covers Lauzon, Que., Quebec, Sorel, Que., Kingston, Midland, Collingwood and Port Dalhousie, Ont., are five cents

Child Is Asphyxiated As She Rushes Back Into Burning Room

Hull, Que., Jan. 12 —(CP)— Rachel Tremblay, five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paal Emile Tremblay, was asphyxiated today when she rushed back into her bedroom while being led to saftey after fire broke out in her parents' home.

Ten other persons, including six other children, escaped when fire broke out in the Laval Street house at seven o'clock.

With Mr. and Mrs. Philippe Cayer, who also lived in the house, the Tremblays were carrying their younger children to safety when Rachel darted back into her room. When firemen managed to enter the room they found her dead.

R.A.F. Air-Sea Rescue Service

By Stanley Maxted

(B.B.C. Press Service)

LONDON (by Mail) — I expect by now you've all heard of the Royal Air Force Air-Sea Rescue Service? Well, I've recently been spending a few days in some craggy and very cold and foggy mountain tops somewhere in Britain, getting to know the stork's latest contribution to the Rescue Service family. It's called the R.A.F. Mountain Rescue Service. Its function in life is to save airmen who crash in remote crags and gorges in the mountainous country that exists in certain spots over here.

You guys from Western Alberta and Eastern British Columbia, may turn up your noses at mountains two and three thousand feet high, but having been there and tried to navigate them, I can tell you that my nose isn't turned up a bit — it's pointing right down.

The particular unit I visited is headed up by the Medical Officer of the station. He's a well-knit, very fair young man who looks as though he might have landed here with the original Angles—you know the crowd I mean—was it Hongist or Horsa? My history's not too good on that point—and anyway, it was before even my time. Anyway, this medical officer's hobby in peacetime was mountain climbing, so you can see what a good start he had in getting this mountain rescue business on the way. He's a terrific enthusiast, and when he's all shined and brushed up in the Mess you notice that his tunic has the Member of the Order of the British Empire ribbon, given to him for what His Majesty considers "Outstanding energy and initiative in assisting in rescue, and rendering medical assistance to crews of aircraft that have crashed in the mountains. An experienced climber himself, his keenness and ability, have been an example to other personnel engaged in rescue work in which he has spared himself no effort." I promised him I couldn't tell you his name, because as he says he wants to be a doctor at the end of the war, and not permanently unemployed—the doctors don't believe in self-publicizing. O.K. Doc—you shall be nameless.

Before we left his R.A.F. station, he showed me his trouble-shooting ambulance—a powerful four-wheeled drive affair to which a lean-to tent can be attached when it has gone as far as possible into the mountains and is parked. From here on until nothing but footwork is possible, a jeep is called into service. When the jeep can go no further, it becomes a job for the steady heads and wiry muscles and sure feet of the Doc and his boys. Speaking of the boys—it's a squad of six, tough-muscled customers, that he had trained along his own lines. When a call comes, of course these are augmented by volunteers from those available on the station who aid in swelling the numbers of the searching parties.

That ambulance I was telling you about is an emergency hospital on wheels. It has two wide, bright yellow stripes on the roof, so that planes who are aiding in a search can readily spot it from the air. As you look in from the back of it there are stretch racks on the upper left—with more stretchers folded up in another rack. Underneath these are lockers in which are two complete surgical kits with oxygen masks, a tea boiler and Primus stove, a locker full of canned rations, hot water bottles, morphia—in fact anything that a doctor needs for emergency work.

Doc explained the importance of the tea boiler by reminding me that most of the men they find are suffering from shock, so they get them warm inside and out, as soon as possible. They even have an arrangement for heating the inside of the ambulance from the engine of the truck. Up forward and backing up on to where the driver sits is a complete radio installation by which the crew can communicate with the base, with searching aircraft and with each of the squad.

When Doc and his squad were all ready to start out for the mountains with me they were decked out in R.A.F. battle-dress with white wollen caps, high, thick, white woollen socks, into which they tucked their trousers and heavy boots well shod with iron and spikes. Each of the squad looked like a Christmas tree with a portable radio pack on his back and a coil of stout rope over his shoulder, a threat mike and a neck torch which shines a light where you happen to be looking. The radio has an aerial like a fishing rod and the whole load makes the man carrying it, lean forward all the time.

We started off with the ambulance going ahead and the Jeep bucking like a skittish goat behind. The latter part of the journey consisted of climbing and winding — winding and climbing, and finally, we reached a spot in the uplands where Doc said: "We'll camp here."

Out they all piled—each man had his job to do. One pulled out the tent and got it rigged, another one manned the radio and started calling queer-sounding code names which brought an aeroplane scouting round pretty soon. The tent rigger then got water boiling, while the four other got their packs on and set out in single file behind Doc. In this case the jeep stayed with the ambulance—because it was all climbing, and tough climbing too.

The mountains here seemed to be all slatey — they cut your shoes and tear your finger nails off. Doc stopped us for a moment and said: "Look"—and there coming down over the peak that towered above us, was a rolling grey-black dripping wet cloud, of impenetrable fog. I began to see how easy it was to get lost. With his ropes, and going up first, Doc negotiated a young precipice, and hauled the others up after him. At the top of this, the fog was really down on us. It plays funny tricks with sound. You hear a couple of pebbles rattle, and suddenly think you're standing two yards away from a sheer drop into you don't know where. Doc's voice sounded anywhere but where it was. I couldn't see two feet away—and I finally got to the point where I didn't dare move my feet at all—then a slight rift came in the rolling cloud, and I saw that the edge of the cliff was at least fifteen yards away, and that Doc was only a few feet from me. Here I was with people to guide me and standing on my own two feet—quite uninjured.

I began to wonder what it would be like if I were crawling out of a crashed and burning aeroplane—not knowing where I was, or if the next step would drop me over a cliff—or what to do next. Once again, I mentally took my hat off to the kids in the flying business. The lads showed me how they would communicate with the parked ambulance. They called the airfield and got an answer. They called the circling plane above us, that we couldn't see— then Doc hauled out a thick cartridge from his pack, stuck it into a sort of short blunderbuss and fired it into the air—it made a brilliant trail, and then a colored light hung there in the air giving our position. Doc was just showing me how they maintained contact in various ways.

After this they let me see how a stretcher is lowered down to the bottom of the cliff face. "Jock," a smiling young Scot, was detailed off as the guinea pig for the job. He lay down on the stretcher, and with ropes rigged to it was let down over the cliff face. As he disappeared over the edge, he said: "It's one way to get a rest." We followed Jock down to the bottom of that craggy drop, and took a breather for some sandwiches that came miraculously out of Doc's copious pockets. As he munched with healthy relish, this young medical officer told me of some of the jobs they'd been on. He explained that very often the aircraft locates the wreck, and radios its position to the ground unit. That makes things a little easier — but crashes in deep tree-lined gorges are difficult to spot—usually its at the dead of night, and in filthy weather—like the night the boys got called out at 1 a.m. in a fifty mile gale with an eight hundred foot cloud ceiling. They drove 25 miles up into the mountains, parked their vehicles and at two-thirty a.m. started to climb.

• •

After what seemed like hours of it, Doc judged his party was on the crest. He radioed his other parties that were coming up several of the valleys that he thought he could hear wreckage blowing in the wind. Soon after this, he sent up a flare which showed him where that wreckage was—in the crags near the top of a drop down into a deep gorge. The crew were all all injured except one—who in turn al linjured except one—who in turn was very badly dazed and bruised. Doc went to work on them, and gave them emergency attention, and when daylight came he got them down to where the ambulance was parked. It was impossible to get them down before. He saved every one that was living when he found them.

• •

Doc explained that if a plane lands in a gully, besides being hard to find, it's usually mashed up pretty badly. If, however, they're able to land on crests without crashing into them too hard, it's not quite so bad—like the time this crowd were out searching in day time, when they saw a red Verey light from a mountain across the valley. It showed them they were searching up the wrong valley. Visibility cleared enough for Doc to see through his binoculars, that an aircraft was standing on its nose on top of a peak from where the Verey light had been fired. He directed all the crews to the right spot, and finally extricated the pilot of a single seater plane—not too badly hurt—dazed and shocked more than anything—who, after he was made warm and comfortable, and had received treatment, explained that he'd got lost and found himself flying in thick fog at an altitude of two thousand feet. He was trying to make a landing and didn't know he was in the mountains. Momentarily, a break came in the thick bank below him, and to his amazement, he saw sheep running in all directions. He pulled the nose of the plane up quickly—just in time to crash on the upward slope of the mountain. Those woolly mutton chops just saved that guy's life. Doc spoke of the co-operation with the Air-Sea Rescue Service in what he called "Short crashes."

These are crashes near the shore—too close in for the Air-Sea Rescue ships—probably in rocks at the foot of a cliff. The Rescue launch can't get in, and the ambulance can't get down the cliff. It happened in the case of a crew of airmen in training. Their plane ditched, hit the rocks and turned over. When the boys got to them there were three who'd clambered out somehow—and three trapped inside. Doc got oxygen to them in three minutes after arriving at the top of the cliff—but in the case of the three trapped inside, it was no good.

One night Doc got a phone call from an exhausted navigator who'd walked ten miles and found a roadside phone box. He told Doc his story and then collapsed before giving his location. Doc checked the location of the pay-phone box and got there in two hours and a half. It was really only a dirt track, leading into a side road. With a little help from Doc, the man recovered enough to guide the gang to the wreck. The pilot had hit the top edge of the cliff with the tip of his wing—went along tearing pieces off with all of the aircraft but that wing out over space. Luckily, the slowing up process turned the aircraft over inward—so that it landed bottom up on the top of the cliff. Five of the crew came out alive, but badly battered. I asked Doc how they were now, and he told me that three were back flying in three weeks' time.

• •

All this time, Doc was munching with great relish at his sandwich—interlacing all his stories with bits of Air Force jargon. Said he: "You've got to get there before badly injured types suffer too much from exposure. If you don't they've had it." And then, "of course," said Doc, "it's no trouble in weather like this. This is just a piece of cake."

Of course, what I can't convey to you is the tremendous energy and enthusiasm of this man—and the way he conveys that enthusiasm and energy to those six leather and whipcord guys who make up his squad. You can see they adore him too—he mucks right in with them and you always find him going first on anything that's a bit ticklish. As we made our way down to the ambulance that was a tiny speck below—made our way down through that dripping mist with the dungeon-like chill to it, I thought to myself "Piece of cake, eh? I wonder what a crust of stale bread's look like to this guy." Good luck to you, Doc.

AIR COMPRESSED AND HEATED IS PROPELLED BACKWARDS ALONG THE CONVERGENT TUNNEL
AIR AT NORMAL ATMOSPHERIC PRESSURE WITH INCREASED TEMPERATURE AND VELOCITY ISSUING FROM TAIL JET

Roslin

Roslin — The January meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary was held on Thursday evening at the rectory with an attendance of fourteen.

The president Mrs. Arthur Bates was in charge. Mrs. Bates read the "Story of the Epiphany," and Rev. Mr. Beazer led the prayers. Reports were given, after the business period Miss L. Wilson was in charge of the program. Miss Alice Wilson read "A New Year's Resolve" and Miss Hazel Wilson read a poem. The meeting closed with prayer. Lunch was served and all enjoyed a social hour.

Mr. and Mrs. H Sayers entertained Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Carter and Kenneth Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Beattie, Mr. W. Delyea, Miss Delyea, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Elliott, Miss Irene Hall, Mr. and Mrs. H. Chisholm, Walter and Joe, Mr. Ward White, Mr. H. Wren and Mr. Ed Sayers at their home on Sunday.

Radio Officer Andrew Beattie has returned to his duties with the navy after spending the past month at Roslin.

Miss Irene Hall of Plainfield, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Elliott.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Elliott entertained a few of their relatives and friends at their home on New Year's Eve in honor of Mr. W. Chisholm of H.M.C.S. York, Toronto, who was home for the New Year's weekend.

The annual school meeting was held in the school house on Wednesday evening. Mr. Arthur Bates was reelected as school trustee for another three year term, other members of the board are Mr. Chauncey Sills and Mr. W. Slingerland, secretary treasurer, Mr. W. Gillespie.

Mr. and Mrs. W. White recently received a cable conveying "Christmas Greetings" from their son Tpr. Norman White who is in England.

Canadian Press War Correspondent

With the Canadian Forces in Italy, Jan. 11 — (CP) — Engineers who are given some of the army's most hazardous assignments know their Bible and make good use of it in their work.

The Canadian Field Company in which Lieut. R. A. Wild of Halifax is an officer is a good example of this, for the Sappers went to the Bible to find a suitable warning to place in a field sown with German mines. Their choice came from Proverbs, chapter four, verses 26 and 27 and read:

"Ponder the path of thy feet and let all thy ways be established. Turn not to the right hand nor to the left. Remove thy foot from evil."

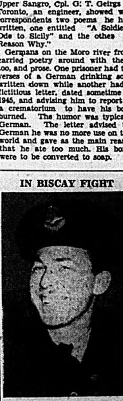
Canadian engineering battle casualties incidentally were greater at the Moro River than British Sappers suffered bridging the Sangro. None of the Canadian casualties, however, was fatal and but for an unlucky mortar explosion they might have escaped almost scot free.

Only three Canadians had been wounded by the time the crossing was complete and tanks were beginning to go over when the mortar shell struck a tree and showered shrapnel on the sappers who were sheltering beside a ridge. It was one of those 1,000 to one unlucky hits.

Poets bud among Canadian troops, even at the height of battle. When the Canadians were fighting on the Upper Sangro, Cpl. G. T. Geirgs of Toronto, an engineer, showed war correspondents two poems he had written, one entitled "A Soldier's Ode to Sicily" and the othes "A Reason Why."

Germans on the Moro river front carried poetry around with them, too, and prose. One prisoner had the verses of a German drinking song written down while another had a fictitious letter, dated sometime in 1945, and advising him to report to a crematorium to have his body burned. The humor was typically German. The letter advised the German he was no more use on this world and gave as the main reason that he ate too much. His bones were to be converted to soap.

IN BISCAY FIGHT



Flight Lieut. William Y. Martin of 38 Willcocks St., Toronto, piloted the Sutherland flying boat which surprised a Nazi blockade runner in the Bay of Biscay recently, and delivered the first in a series of attacks which resulted in destruction of the blockade runner and three enemy destroyers. Martin scored a near miss in his attack and suffered damage from anti-aircraft fire. A Czech bomber swung in to finish the job. Martin, a former instructor at Uplands, later served in a Coastal Command squadron which covered convoys to Russia. — (R.C.A.F. Photo.)

Cigarettes Listed As Essential For Fighting Men

Cigarettes are listed as essentials for the fighting forces of the United Nations and it is with this thought in view that the Belleville Kinsmen "Fag Fund" continues to send thousands of "fags" to Belleville boys serving in all theatres of the globular war.

"There is nothing to equal a good Canadian smoke in the thick of battle," wrote one Belleville lad recently and it is to keep the steady supply of cigarettes flowing overseas that the Kinsmen Fag Fund looks to the support of the citizens of Belleville for voluntary contributions to assure cigarettes shipped.

The list of Belleville lads sent individual shipments of 300 cigarettes by Chairman "Buster" LaBarr this week included: Bill Argue, Bob Armitage, Len Bellis, W. C. Bellis, Frank Belsey, J. D. Little Benny's Note Book

I was brushing my teeth for breakfast and I saw ma's diamond ring on the wash stand and I quick stuck it in my pants pocket to do ma a favor to keeping pop from finding it and hiding it like he generally does to make her think she lost it and teach her a lesson to be more careful with it, and tonight at supper ma said to pop, Come on, now William, hand it over.

Okay, what's mine is yours, but what the dooce are you talking about? pop said, and ma said, I'm talking about my diamond ring and there's no use your putting on any such shallow look of injured innocence. I hope you'll be annoyed to learn that I haven't lost a single second worrying about it, because I know you too well, so now hand it over gracefully, she said.

Yee gods I haven't seen your ring, I give you my word I haven't, pop said. Do you mean to say you've actually and really managed to lose it at last? he said, and ma said, William Potts if that ring is gone it will be your exclusive fault

How so for Peet sake? pop said. and ma said, Because if it wasn't for your childish habit of hiding it I would of spent the day tracing it, and pop said, That's a rich one, it's a woman's world all right

Meaning from ma and pop both, and I hurry up to the bathroom and stuck the ring way back in the corner of the washstand, and I heard ma running up and I quick got out of the bathroom just in time, and I heard ma saying to herself, Oh, here it is, what a relief, what on earth possessed me to stick it way back there for land sakes?

And she went down to the dining room again still claiming it would of been pop's fault, and I finished my dessert feeling half lucky and half still nerviss.

URGES REPORTS ON STUNT FLYING

Inspector of Accidents Asks Public Not to "Wave to Them"

Ottawa, Jan. 12 — (CP)—Group Capt. F. S. Wilkins, R.C.A.F. Chief Inspector of Accidents, appealed to the general public today to regard stunting and low-flying pilots as "dangerous drivers" rather than "smart young dare-devils," and asked: "Report them; don't wave to them."

Group Capt. Wilkins, who has been investigating air crashes since the start of the war, said in a statement that "too often" the accident findings show fault to lie in "show-off tactics" of inexperienced pilots or bored instructors.

"Sadly, the culprit usually drags others to their deaths in his own flaming finish," he added. "Those lucky enough to survive the fruits of their carelessness get rigid disciplinary treatment. Discharge from the service or reduction to the ranks and detention have become the rule in low-flying convictions.

"Operational flying is a hard game — there will be deaths, There will also be casualties in the small number of unpreventable training accidents. But those who kill themselves and others in satisying their personal desire for a thrill have contributed nothing but a blot to Canada's war effort."

Strict rules govern the practise of aerobatics. They must never be performed over populated areas and always at high altitudes. Definite areas are laid out for necessary training in low flying. These never include cities, towns or villages.

"Civilians who watch, heart in throat, an aircraft stunting just over the roof, can easily be the means of saving a life by noting and reporting the number of the machine," he said. "If that number can be read from the ground, then that pilot is courting death."

VATUTIN'S ARMY FANS OUT WEST OF SARNY

Advance Columns Threaten Rovno, Pinsk and Kovel

Russians Nearing High Ground After Passing the Worst Of Pripet Marshes

PINCER MOVEMENTS

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Moscow, Jan. 13 (AP)—Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's highly mobile first Ukrainian army, expanding its front on the Sarny sector to a width of 50 miles or more, struck out in several sweeping movements today to threaten the German-held strongholds of Rovno, Pinsk and Kovel.

The strong armored and infantry force of Vatutin's right wing which captured Dombrovitsa, 20 miles north of Sarny on the Rovno-Sarny-Baronowicze railway, fought its way through frozen marshland country to within 50 miles southeast of Pinsk, important centre on the Gomel-Brest-Litovsk railway.

It already has passed the worst of the Pripet marshes and advance units were approaching the high rolling ground beyond the swamps.

Launch New Blow

While the force was smashing its way to the northwest, a new offensive launched Tuesday, to the north of the marshes by Gen. Konstantin Rokossovsky's Whitet Russian army was approaching the city of Mosyr, 80 miles southwest of Gomel, along a 20-mile-wide front. Dispatches said German troops in front of Rokossovsky's advance were falling back towards Pinsk, and a second threat to that city apparently was developing. Pinsk is 140 miles west of Mosyr at the confluence of the Strumen and Pina rivers along the northern edge of the Pripet marshes.

Using Sarny as a pivot, Vatutin sent other flying columns south and dispatches reported them operating within 23 miles north of Rovno, an advance of approximately 27 miles through marshy terrain to high ground beyond.

Other units were reported striking west from Sarny toward Kovel, an important junction on the Kiev-Warsaw railway.

Rokossovsky's drive above the Pripet marshes paralleled a fresh Russian advance along the southern edge of the vast swamp area, where Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's first Ukrainian army crossed the Sluch river and captured the rail junction of Sarny and Dombrovitsa, 20 miles to the north. Sarny is 270 miles east of Warsaw, on the Kiev-Warsaw trunk railway.

Strong Resistance in South

The Russian communique said more than 5,000 Germans were killed and 144 Nazi tanks wrecked in the past 24 hours, while more than 80 towns and villages fell to the advancing Russians.

Captured in the Mozyr offensive were Davidovichi, 24 miles north of Mozyr on the railway to Zhlobin, and Kozlovichi, two miles west of the rail line previously severed by Soviet spearheads. The Germans resisted savagely in this sector, but their counter-drives were smashed and they fled the field, leaving behind 2,000 dead and many prisoners, the Soviet communique said.

The capture of Sarny and the drive on Dombrovitsa forced the Germans back 135 miles to Brest-Litovsk for their next north-south supply line.

Says Reporter And Cameraman Held by Strikers

Montreal, Jan. 13 —(CP)— The Gazette says today that during a strike of white collar workers yesterday a Gazette reporter and cameraman were held captive with their taxi driver for a half hour at strike headquarters.

"Flying squads of impatient and embittered strikers, led by strong-arm gangs in several cars were about to leave their headquarters for a 'raid' on the city's clinics when a reporter and his cameraman arrived in a taxi near the entrance to the strikers' meeting place," the newspaper said.

"After the reporter had asked permission to accompany the strikers . . . he was grabbed by the arms and led into the hall of strike headquarters where boos and insults, accompanied by threats of violence greeted him . . .

"Soon after cries of 'kill him and smash his camera' could be heard as the cameraman of the Gazette was led into the hall by the same gang to be followed a few minutes later by the taxi driver who took sick during the 'kidnapping.'"

The newspaper added that "kicks and some violence by individual strikers as the trio passed through the hall after some sober elements among the strike leaders succeeded in quietening the crowd, caused injuries to the reporter and cameraman and a minor heart-attack to the taxi driver."

Typhus Epidemic Raging in Naples

Cairo, Jan. 13. (CP Reuters)—Middle East headquarters said today a typhus epidemic is raging in Naples, much worse than the outbreak last October. Allied medical officers are giving all possible aid to the civilian population, the statement said.

Brig.-Gen. Leon A. Fox, field director of the United States Typhus Commission, who has just arrived here from Italy said that "Naples is seriously threatened and the menace can be expected to extend to Southern Italy".

He said that no cases are reported among the Allied troops but that more than 30,000 Italians are being treated daily with anti-vermin powders.

"Flying squadrons" of doctors are standing by to go to outlying districts if any further outbreaks are reported.

Employees' Guild Is Certified as Bargaining Agent

Toronto, Jan. 13 — (CP) — The employees' guild of Universal Moulded Products Company of Canada, Belleville, Ont., today was certified as collective bargaining agency at the plant, exclusive of office workers, by Mr. Justice W. C. Roach in Ontario Labor Court.

Evidence showed that of 159 employees in the plant, 143 were members of the guild. The guild had obtained a 48-hour week and time-and-a-half for overtime for the employees.

Ottawa, Jan. 13 —(CP)— A 32-year-old flight lieutenant in the R.C.A.F.'s aeronautical division, whose name is withheld for security reasons, had made a "contribution of the first magnitude" towards development of jet-propelled aircraft, the R.C.A.F. revealed today.

Air Force Headquarters said in a press release that Canada has made other "considerable contributions" in connection with jet propulsion, although details cannot be made public at present.

The flight lieutenant was described as a former engineer and specialist in aeroengine superchargers who joined the R.C.A.F. in 1941. He had begun independent research into jet propulsion principles in 1940 and continued his work in the R.C.A.F.

Loaned to the National Research Council to work under Prof. J. H. Parkin on aircraft engine research, he carried on his research in his spare time, completing a report of his findings which he showed to Prof. Parkin and Air Vice-Marshal A. E. Ferrier, Air Member for Aeronautical Engineering in the R.C.A.F., who sent copies to Britain and the United States.

In Britain a copy of the report was seen by Acting Group Capt. Frank Whittle of the R.A.F., who has been given major credit for the new development. He immediately asked that the R.C.A.F. officer be sent to Britain to continue his researches in collaboration with Whittle and other engineers.

"They were greatly impressed by the work of the young engineer, although at the time that he was carrying on his independent researches, he had no knowledge of Whittle's activities in the same field," the R.C.A.F. said.

"The Canadian officer's studies were of a rather wider and more general character than those which had been going on elsewhere."

HUGE RAID HELD SUCCESS DESPITE HEAVY LOSSES

Viewed As Forerunner Of Mighty Struggle For Air Supremacy In Invasion

A CRIPPLING BLOW

By RICHARD KASISCHKE
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Jan. 13 — (AP) — The flaming battle which a great force of possibly 1,200 American bombers and fighters fought over Germany Tuesday with the rocket-firing Nazi air force was viewed on both sides of the English Channel today as a forerunner of the mighty struggle for air supremacy expected to accompany a land invasion of western Europe.

A dispatch from Stockholm quoted a German military spokesman in Berlin as describing the three-hour air battle as a "rehearsal for the German defence force which will have to meet Allied invasion air fleets".

The Daily Express declared the attack "indicates the United States bomber force based in Britain has reached a new strength which may soon equal the R.A.F.'s thousand plane (bomber) raids."

More than 700 heavy bombers and a probable record-size fighter escort formed the American aerial task force.

The attacks, directed against factories at Oschersleben, Halberstadt and Brunswick (Braunsweig), all within a radius of 120 miles of Berlin, constituted possibly the most crippling blow of the war against the Nazi air arm.

Results were described officially as excellent. In beating their way to and from the objectives and unloading their explosives directly on the targets, the Americans shot down more than 100 of the challenging enemy aircraft.

The London press was virtually unanimous in hailing it as a mighty blow to German air defences. The numbers and fury of Nazi fighters prove, the Daily Telegraph said, that "the Battle of Germany is growing desperate" and heading for a showdown.

An 8th Air Force communique late yesterday said the assault cost 64 planes, a record loss. Fifty-nine were heavy bombers and five were fighters.

In contrast, Berlin propaganda outlets this morning still were claiming 124 bombers and 12 fighters were shot down, a claim they had put forth before release of yesterday's U. S. communique.

Used Ground Rocket Guns.

Returning airmen said that ground rocket guns, throwing up explosives "as big as a house," were used by the Nazis as well as their rocket-firing fighters in a desperate attempt to turn the American formations.

At times, as many as 28 Nazi fighters wheeled into solid formations to attack single bombers, peeling off and roaring headon at the big craft in such desperation that collisions were barely averted.

"They threw everything at us, even a big two-engined job that looked like a transport," said Lt. William H. Bartlett of New Orleans, La.

100 Billions Requested By President Roosevelt In Message to Congress

By C. E. BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Washington, Jan. 13 (CP)—President Roosevelt's annual budget message to Congress today asked for $100,000,000,000 to cover what he hoped would be the decisive effort toward victory and the critical problems of peace.

He requested this astronomical appropriation for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1945—about the same as the estimated total expenditures for the current fiscal year—and said about $90,000,000,000 of the total would be for war alone.

The 18 months between now and the end of the next fiscal year would be, he said, "crucial in the history of the United States and of mankind, a period which will see decisive action in this global war."

Total war expenditures by the United States on June 30, 1945 would be $397,000,000,000, the President estimated, and the total public debt, by then, probably would be $258,000,000,000.

The deficit on next year's budget would be about 59 per cent of the total, he said, and he urged Congress to increase taxation, particularly on war profits, revenues for the current fiscal year are estimated to be 41 per cent of expenditures and he did not anticipate any increase in the next fiscal year.

Outlines Purposes

(A request by the secretary of the treasury for additional taxation of $10,500,000,000 has been whittled down in the two houses c. congress to less than $2,500,000,000, and is still under consideration.)

The President assured congress that the executive would be prepared to adjust expenditures to "changing strategic necessities," and would "use all the authority available to prevent needless expenditures."

Outlining the two-fold purpose of this budget he said:

"While we move toward complete defeat of our enemies we must lay the groundwork to return the nation to peaceful pursuits. This double task is the essence of the government's program and must be reflected in the budget. . ."

Capital costs for production plant had dropped and would continue to drop. But costs of a growing fighting force would increase.

An idea of the problems of demobilization was given by the President when he said some 1,000,000 men and women had been discharged from the forces since Jan. 1, 1942, for reasons of fitness, age or other causes.

Reconversion of production plant and termination of contracts coupled with disposal of surplus war material would be an expensive problem. Some $12,000,000,000 in war contracts already had been terminated.

Trying to Reduce Expenses

The President said every effort was being made to reduce expenditures and the great army of civilian workers was shrinking.

As of October last there were 2,796,000 civilians on the payroll in continental United States, 154,500 in Alaska, Panama Canal zone and abroad, about 75 per cent of them in the war and navy departments and other war agencies. But this total was a drop of 205,000 from the peak employment period of last June.

The President said there was as great a responsibility for ensuring maintenance of a peacetime economy that would bring security to all, as for winning the war. A great public works and improvements

GEN. S. HERTZBERG DIES IN INDIA WHILE ON SERVICE

Serving With British Army in India on Special Engineering Job

BORN IN TORONTO

Ottawa, Jan. 13 — (CP) — Word of the death while on service in India of Maj.-Gen. Charles S. L. Hertzberg, C.B., M.C., V.D., of Toronto, has been received, the Defence Department announced Wednesday night.

The announcement said that Gen. Hertzberg, 57, retired from the Canadian Army overseas last June and was serving with the British Army in India in a special engineering capacity. He was Chief Engineer of the 1st Canadian Army before his retirement.

His widow, of Toronto, and two sons survive, along with a brother, Maj.-Gen. H.F.H. Hertzberg, Commandant of the Royal Military College, Kingston, Ont.

First commissioned as a lieutenant in the Militia in 1904, he arrived overseas during the First Great War in Jan. 1916. He was invalided back to Canada in 1917.

In Oct. 1918, he arrived at Vladivostok with the Siberian Expeditionary Force and was promoted to captain. Six months later he received his majority.

On demobilization he continued his engineering practice, but on the outbreak of the present war he was recalled to service with the rank of lieutenant-colonel, commanding the Royal Canadian Engineers of a Canadian Division.

When the 1st Canadian Corps was formed, Gen. Hertzberg was appointed chief engineer, with rank of Brigadier. He was promoted Major-General and Engineer-in-Chief of the formation of the 1st Canadian Army. He was born in Toronto.

D.N.B. REPORTS ARRIVALS AT GIBRALTAR

London, Jan. 13 —(CP)— A D.N.B. broadcast from Berlin today said that among new arrivals at Gibraltar were 62 Allied merchantmen, the British battleship Warspite, two French and two British torpedo boats, 10 corvettes and one submarine.

GOV'T REMOVES RESTRICTIONS ON RUBBER, METAL

Canadian-Produced Magnesium Also Included in Released Goods

MORE IRON ARTICLES

Ottawa, Jan. 13—(CP)—Canadian-produced magnesium and poorer grade reclaim and scrap rubber now may be used in the manufacture of civilian goods, Munitions Minister Howe announced Thursday.

"The use of poorer grade reclaim and scrap rubber has been freed from restrictions, and these materials now may be used in the manufacture of any civilian article," said Mr. Howe, who Wednesday announced the removal of restrictions on the use of steel and cast iron pipe, wire and wire rod and some types of aluminum.

The Minister defined the rubber materials now available for civilian use as "reclaimed and scrap rubber which have a rubber hydrocarbon content of 45 per cent or less of the total weight, and scrap rubber obtained from tire buffing."

The restrictions on magnesium were lifted because Canada now has more than enough for war requirements, he said.

"With magnesium on the free market, it is confidently expected that Canadian metallurgists now will be able to devise the new uses for this valuable metal about which there has been so much interesting speculation," said Mr. Howe.

Light in Weight

"Light in weight, durable and strong, magnesium eventually may be used in countless articles such as washing machines, vacuum cleaners and other household gadgets, automotive parts, and a long list of other consumer items."

Production of aluminum has also exceeded present war demands, said the Minister in announcing that the restrictions had been lifted on the sale and use of aluminum rivets, cast aluminum welding rod, aluminum welding wire, metallizing wire, aluminum wire for anodizing and aluminum tie wire for electrical conductors.

Removal of the restrictions followed by about three weeks the lifting of a ban on the sale and use of scrap aluminum and secondary aluminum ingots derived from scrap.

The lifting of restrictions on the sale and use of steel and cast iron pipe, wire and wire rod will enable manufacturers to produce more water pipe, drainage pipe, hay bailing wire, stove pipe wire, box strapping wire and other items in short supply.

REDS INDICATE WILLINGNESS TO SETTLE DISPUTE

Newspapers Publish Review of Whole Russian-Polish Boundary Question

BASIS OF CURZON LINE

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow, Jan. 13—(AP)— Soviet newspapers today printed a large, detailed map of the Curzon line and a review of the whole Russian-Polish boundary controversy since 1919.

This presentation was accepted by many foreign observers as an indication progress is being made toward an amicable settlement of the frontier dispute.

It was interpreted widely as an effort to keep open the door for negotiations and the assumption was that the Russians are ready to do business immediately on the basis of the Curzon line.

(This line, drawn by an Allied commission after the First Great War, was proposed in a Moscow broadcast Tuesday as the new boundary between the two countries and since that time has been under consideration by Poland's government in London).

Ethnographical Principles

In its review of the frontier question the Soviet press pointed out that the supreme Allied council at Versailles had agreed that the border "was to be derived from ethnographical principles."

This would have given Poland all provinces inhabited by Poles, it was stated, but would have continued as a part of Russia all the districts predominantly Ukrainian and White Russia.

"But Polish ruling circles wanted for annexation purpose the territories of Western White Russia and the Western Ukraine," the explanations continued, "and they took advantage of the military and economic situation in the young Soviet republic of 1920.

"Poland then attacked the Soviet Union, but receiving a strong rebuff from the whole Soviet people and becoming convinced of the futility of this war it appealed to the Allied governments for intervention.

"Minister of British Foreign Affairs (Viscount) Curzon submitted a note to the Soviet government which became known under the name Curzon Line."

The Curzon Line.

The statement placed this line as following a route west of Grodno, Yalovka, Memirov, Brest Litovsk, Dorogubsk and Ustilug, east of Grubesjov, through Krylov west-

Hitler Forced to Throw in Many Troops In Yugoslavia to Overthrow Partisans

For the first time a high officer of the Partisan Army of Yugoslavia, who also is a member of the anti-Fascist assembly, the highest legislative and political body of the Yugoslav partisan movement, writes a first-hand account of the character of the fighting in his country. Lt.-Col. Vladimir Dedier, who has been attached to the staff of Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) for 2½ years, now is recuperating in Cairo from head injuries caused by a mortar blast. Col. Dedier was injured the same day his wife, Olga, a major in the Partisan Army's Medical Corps, was fatally wounded.

By LT.-COL. VLADIMIR DEDIER

Cairo, Jan. 13 —(AP)— In the greatest crisis of Hitler's armies, when every soldier is of vital importance to him, he is obliged to throw into battles in Yugoslavia—which he thought in 1941 he had subjugated—more German divisions than are engaged in any country except Russia.

Although we are fighting without heavy artillery, without anti-aircraft guns and without tanks against modernly-equipped enemy divisions, the day is not far distant when our Partisan Army, having destroyed these enemy forces, will chase from our soil the last German, fulfilling to the end our part in the anti-Hitler coalition of United Nations.

Fighting For Principle

At the finish of our "war of independence" our peoples—Serbs, Corats, Slovenes, Macedonians and Montenegrins—will from their free, democratic and federal state in accordance with the Atlantic charter, allowing all people the right to choose at free elections their own form of government. For this principle our people have spilled rivers of blood. For this principle our army is fighting.

Two months ago Mr. Churchill stated our forces were pinning down more German divisions than the 5th and 8th armies in Italy. Meanwhile Hitler has sent into Yugoslavia new panzer and alpine divisions and started the biggest and more fierce offensive yet against our Partisan Army.

At this moment 36 German and satellite divisions are trying their utmost on seven separate fronts to crush our armies. And this last attempt of Hitler to subjugate the liberation movement is his third desperate attempt in the last seven months.

At the end of January, 1943, the Germans threw against us 120,000 soldiers. Some of these divisions and much of this equipment was intended for Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's troops in Africa. In addition, during the Tunisian campaign we destroyed 217 German trains passing through Yugoslavia.

In a second attempt last summer Hitler launched against Tito's forces 12 divisions, of which seven were German. This prevented reinforcements from being sent to Sicily. With superhuman efforts we suc-

Entire 5th Army On Move To Broaden Offensive

Send French Units Thru Mountains Close to Cassino

Forces Capture 3,000-Foot Peak Overlooking Road West of Isernia

PRISONERS TAKEN

By WES GALLAGHER
Associated Press War Correspondent

Algiers, Jan. 13 — (AP) — Virtually the entire Allied 5th Army was on the move today as it broadened its offensive from near the Tyrrhenian coast to central Italy and sent French units hammering through 3,000 and 4,000-foot mountains to threaten Cassino from a third side.

American infantry swept to within three miles of Cassino in a frontal attack with the capture of Cervaro at 1 p. m. Wednesday after almost surrounding the village, headquarters announced. The Germans already had announced its loss.

In the first day of the French offensive in the mountains of central Italy, Gen. Alphonse Juin's troops advanced two-thirds of a mile southwest of Roccheta, 12 miles northeast of Cervaro.

They captured a 3,000-foot peak overlooking the road winding almost due west of Isernia between Colli and Atina, took several points on the 4,000-foot Monna Casale range and recaptured two peaks previously lost. — Mount Mollino overlooking Acquafondala, seven miles northeast of Cassino, and Mount Raimo, in the same area to the north of Viticuso.

Number of Prisoners Taken

Juin's troops, fighting in some of the roughest country in Europe where virtually all supplies must be hauled by mule and hand from one peak to another, were threatening the Cassino-Atina road, one of the two valley highways leading north from Cassino.

On the 8th Army front there were only patrol activity and heavy artillery fire.

Announcement of more details of the sky battle over Sofia on Jan. 10 between American heavy bombers and their fighter escort on one side and 60 German fighters on the other, disclosed that at a cost of two of their own planes, the Americans shot down 26 of the enemy.

Used Clouds for Protection

The Germans, who had taken to the air in Focke-Wulf 190s, Messerschmitt 109s, and Junkers 87s fitted with cannons, used clouds over the target to dart out to within 100 yards of the bombers.

In Italy fighter-bombers attacked the enemy in the Orsogna area on the 8th Army front. R. A. F. Baltimores bombed Palena, 25 miles southwest of Chieti, near the Adriatic. R.A.F. Wellingtons also bombed the airfield at Perugia in central Italy and communications in Eastern Italy during the night.

Gunmen Escape With $933 In Bank Robbery

Windsor, Jan. 13 —(CP)— Four gunmen held up the Imperial Bank Branch at Lincoln Road and Tecumseh Road here today but escaped with only $933.43 when forced to flee after being interrupted by a depositor before they had time to gather all the money in the cashier's cage.

Police said two masked men carrying large revolvers stood guard in the main lobby of the bank and gave orders to four members of the staff while a third masked man, unarmed, went behind the counter.

The fourth man stayed in a car parked outside with the motor running.

The pair with guns ordered H. J. Arbuckle, manager, A. C. Shannon, teller, Thelma Kempson, cashier, and Margaret Allan, clerk, to stand facing the wall while the unarmed man scooped up the money in the cage.

While the hold-up was in progress a bus driver stopped his bus across the street on Tecumseh Road and started into the bank to make a deposit. When he saw the two armed and masked men he turned and fled to call the police.

When the bandit in the car saw the driver, Redford Bondy, run out, he honked his horn loudly several times summoning the trio from the bank.

They drove west on Tecumseh Road in a late model car bearing licence number 4-W-748, which police said are stolen plates.

Two U-Boats Sunk By U. S. Planes

Washington, Jan. 13. (AP)—Destruction of two German submarines in the South Atlantic, one after 5 1-2 hours of battling in which six navy and army planes participated, was reported by the United States Navy tonight.

Both submarines were sighted, attacked and sunk by planes flying search missions from Ascension Island, midway across the Atlantic from the South American bulge at Natal, Brazil.

Seven times navy bombers roared down on one submarine, dropping 33 depth charges and strafing the U-boat's decks. Two army planes also joined in the fight, dropping 10 demolition bombs.

The submarine was first sighted and so damaged that it could not submerge and escape, by a plane piloted by Lt. Charles A. Baldwin, 25, Kearney, Neb. It finally went down after another navy bomber, piloted by Lt. William R. Ford, 28, Crescent City, Fla., had attacked, returned to its base for refuelling, and came back with a partly new crew for the final kill.

The second submarine, the navy said, was destroyed "a few weeks later" by another bomber piloted by Lt. Marion V. Dawkins, 23, Sumpter, S.C. This submarine, the navy reported, blew up shortly after Dawkins' plane had blasted it with depth bombs.

SHORTAGE OF FAGS BOY WRITES MOTHER

That it doesn't take long for Canadian boys arriving overseas to discover there is a rather acute shortage of cigarettes was indicated in a recent letter received by Mrs. Fanny Ryan, 224 Coleman Street, from her son Pte. Clinton Ryan who sailed from Canada a day or so before Christmas.

"Just a line to let you know that I am fine" wrote Pte. Ryan to his mother. "I should have written as soon as I arrived overseas but have been pretty busy since I came. I had a good Christmas dinner and a pretty good Christmas and had a fine trip over."

"I have seen Bernard Whalen a couple of times, and there are quite a few other boys that I know. I like the country so far, but there is nothing like dear old Canada to me. Don't forget to send cigarettes as they are hard to get over nere."

Pte. Ryan is a member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and went overseas with a reinforcement unit for his regiment.

2 AIRMEN INJURED IN CAR ACCIDENT

Two airmen were injured when a motor car crashed into a telephone pole on West Moira St. shortly after midnight Wednesday night. Sergt. D. K. Nolan, Mountain View, sustained a serious spine injury and had to be returned to the Air Force hospital in ambulance, while Sergt. Fish, another passenger in the vehicle, sustained head lacerations.

The driver of the vehicle, Charles H. Smith of Hamilton, told police he was proceeding westerly on West Moira St. a short distance west of the Coleman St. intersection, when his car went out of control, skidded on the icy pavement and crashed into the telephone pole on the south side of the street. The pole was not damaged, but the front of Mr. Smith's car was badly damaged and the windshield shattered on one side. Sergt. Fish sustained his lacerations as the result of the glass flying from the broken windshield.

Mr. Smith told investigating police his car skidded on the icy pavement. As the accident occurred on the lefthand side of the street, police stated today charges were pending.

CAR, TRUCK STOLEN IN PETERBOROUGH

After unsuccessful attempts were made to rifle a safe in Peterborough Wednesday night a motor car and truck were reported stolen, Belleville police learned by long distance telephone early today. The truck was a 1929 model Dodge vehicle bearing licence plate number 67169C, while the motor car was a 1931 Pontiac sedan with licence number 71T10.

ward to Rawa Ruska and then east of Przemysl to the Carpathian Mountains. North of Grodno, it said, the Lithuanian-Polish borders were fixed.

"The Polish government disagreed with the Curzon Line," the article concluded, "and continued war against Soviet Russia.

"Exploiting conditions of the young Soviet country, Poland imposed another border upon us during negotiations at Riga in March, 1921, and annexed the western provinces of the Soviet Ukraine and Soviet White Russia.

"This injustice allowed in 1921 by the Riga agreement regarding the peoples of the western Ukraine and western White Russia was corrected in 1939 when, on the basis of a plebiscite and in compliance with the will of the people, a new Soviet border was established."

The 1939 border, drawn through Poland at the time of the Russo-German partition of that country, while it largely followed the Curzon boundary in the central sector from Brest-Litovsk to a point southwest of Sokal, gave Russia large additional area of White Russia in the north and a smaller extra portion of Galicia in the south.

Wild Life in Woodland Reported Greatly Increased in Past Year

PASTURE LAND FIRE

Point Traverse, Jan. 13 — According to information supplied by local hunters, wild life living in the woodland of this area has greatly increased within the past year.

The increase in red foxes is most noticeable, and many of the cunning animals have been bagged by hunters already this winter, but a much larger catch would have been made if snow covered the ground. Rabbits are not as plentiful as of previous years, but have multiplied considerably since last winter. Jack rabbits, which are rare in the township of South Marysburgh, are said to be disporting about in the bushland. Trappers report muskrats being plentiful, as is evidenced by the many muskrat houses constructed in the marshes last fall.

Hunters of this township and Athol township are awaiting for a snowfall, that a hunt may be staged over the district, in an effort to kill some of the wolves which have done considerable damage to flocks of sheep in this vicinity.

Grass Fires

A fire starting on No. 1 bombing range at Point Petre, late Tuesday afternoon burned over many acres of pasture land and did considerable damage to patent fences before it was brought under control. Much ground was burned over here on Monday afternoon. Fishermen's cottages were endangered for some time, as the blaze extended into the fishery grounds, but was quelled before any damage was done.

Nets Frozen in Bay

A large ice field which extends over Bay waters off here, has prevented commercial fishermen from reaching their whitefish nets. Fishing craft are unable to operate from this colony, as a eleven inch thickness of ice has formed over the harbor.

Lilacs in Bud

Residents report that the moderate weather which has been enjoyed for many days, has brought forth lilacs in bud and pussy willows are also in bloom.

BANCROFT

Wor. Bro. Follis Is New Master Masonic Lodge

Bancroft — The installation of officers of Bancroft Lodge A.F. & A.M. No. 482 was held in the Masonic hall in Bancroft on January 10th with a very nice turnout for the occasion. Wor. Bro. J. M. Joynt was the installing master for the special work and the following is the list of officers for the current year:

Wor. Master, Wor. Bro. F. J. Follis; I.P.M., Wor. Bro. R. G. Kellar; Sr. Warden, Bro. William Carroll; Jr. Warden, Bro. Harold L. Skuce; Treasurer, Bro. F. A. Towle; Secretary, Wor. Bro. R. W. Following the installation and closing down of lodge, offices, members joined in the anti-room for the fourth degree and spent a social hour.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Jones were business visitors in Peterborough on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Wiggins, Mr. W. E. Wiggins, and Mrs. R. W. Blatherwick were business visitors in Belleville on Monday

Mrs. Ernest Blakely of Tweed is spending a few days at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Clark of the village.

Mrs. Clarence Marston returned home from Toronto over the weekend having spent the past week in the city.

This is one of the most open winters witnessed in north Hastings now for several years. Nearly all roads conecting the district are open to car traffic which normally would have been closed to automobile traffic before Christmas in other years. There has been two or three sharp dips in temperature thus far but on the whole the weather has been fine and reasonably mild.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sprung, accompanied by their daughter Betty, motored to Napanee over the weekend where Miss Sprung will be employed on the staff of the Bank of Nova Scotia. Miss Sprung prior to her new appointment was on the staff at Bancroft and also Barrie.

Robert Maxwell of the R.C.A.F., is home on leave visiting with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Maxwell of town.

Mr. and Mrs. William McKenzie have taken up residence in the Haase apartments over the Haase store.

Mr. Arnold Walker of the village is a present in Brantford employed with the Johnson Construction Company.

Mr. G. H. Brown of the village has purchased the Moxam property on Front Street.

Thirty Kiwanians Visit Cobourg For Charter Night

Thirty Belleville Kiwanians visited Cobourg Wednesday night as guests of that city's newly formed Kiwanis Club, where they attended a banquet held in the Baltimore Hotel. The banquet was in honor of the Cobourg Club's Charter presentation. Other Kiwanians from Rochester, N.Y., who presented the flag of the United States, were present as were members from Peterborough, the Sponsoring Club and the presenters of "The Union Jack." Clubs from Lindsay, Oshawa and Orillia were also represented.

A lengthy program was arranged, which preceded the presentations of the two national flags, and other gifts, the gong and gavel by the Lindsay Club, the Club Banner by the Belleville guests, the presentation being made by Past-President Bruce Lattimer, the Visitors' book by the Oshawa Club, and the Bronze Shield and Meeting Place Cards by the Orillia Kiwanians.

An address was delivered by J. Linklater, Lieut.-Governor of the District, while the presentation of the Charter was made by the Governor of the Ontario-Quebec-Maritime District, Mr. Harold Male. Kiwanian W. H. McGuire accepted the Charter on behalf of the Cobourg Club, which concluded the ceremony, and closed the meeting.

True to the tradition which during the present war has seen enlistments of Belleville young men into the R.C.N.V.R. rate second per capita only to that of Vancouver, B.C., district men are still donning the blue uniforms of the navy as is revealed by naval headquarters at Kingston that eight local boys have joined the colors in the past month.

Names of the Belleville boys are listed among the 32 from Kingston and district who enlisted in the month. They are Stoker John Wilson; Signalman Harry E. McCreary; Stoker Douglas Wellbanks; Ordinary Seaman James H. Cowan, and Ordinary Seaman Jack S. Diamond, all of Belleville; Ordinary Seaman James Trepanier, Flinton; Arthur Alyea, R. R. 1 Belleville, and Milton E. Nelson of Stirling. Another Belleville boy who recently reported for training with the navy at Kingston was Steve Hook local softball and hockey player.

HITLER FORCED

ceeded in breaking through the German encirclement, inflicting on the enemy more than 20,000 casualties. We also suffered heavily, losing 5,000 of our best fighters.

100,000 Italians Perished.

In the successful struggle of the United Nations against Fascist Italy we made an important contribution. During two years' fighting, 100,000 Italians perished in Yugoslavia.

Although Hitler is attacking us with these large forces on all sides we are fighting back. The five railway lines to the Adriatic have been and remain cut. Almost all the German lines of communication, including the vital Belgrade-Zagreb railway, were frequently attacked. Bridges were destroyed and trains derailed, causing an increasing loss of German lives and material.

The biggest Krupp works in the Balkans, at Vares and Zonica, no longer produce guns for Hitler. Some German barges carrying Rumanian wheat and much needed oil from Ploesti, Rumania, now are at the bottom of the Danube. The Kananj coal fields, providing fuel for the entire German rail system in Croatia, were destroyed. The largest Yugoslav industry—timber—now is at a standstill.

Allied aircraft, with great accuracy, have bombed German concentrations and helped us throw back the enemy. Our soldiers greeted with great joy the American star and the R.A.F. rondel in the skies over our country . . .

Arms Won by Blood.

Our arms have been won by the blood, courage and endurance of our people. These almost barehanded groups of fighting men today have grown into the 5th Corps, consisting of many divisions with radio communications, supply lines, hospitals, padres and engineers.

The 5th Corps, like the rest of our army, is officered by men who started as fighting soldiers and learned the theory of war in three years of fighting.

Now our officers also get special training in various military academies. There are in the Partisan army more than 5,000 of these fully-trained officers.

During the onslaught against Banja Luka there were among the frontline troops numbers of our fighting women, some of whom are experts with hand grenades. Women also hold certain places of command in our army.

Our liberated territory has grown from one-fifth to over one-half of Yugoslavia and our army has increased from 100,000 to almost 300,000.

Lt.-Col. H. Smith Elected Pres. Canadian Legion

The annual installation of officers of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Legion, post 99, was held in the auditorium of the Y. M. C. A. and largely attended by members of the Legion and Ladies Auxiliary. Lieut.-Col. H. E. Smith of Mountain View was installed as President as the induction of officers was conducted according to Legion ritual.

Retiring President Dave Bradford gave tenure of stewardship and personally thanked the Ladies Auxiliary for their untiring co-operation during the period of reorganization of the local Branch of the Canadian Legion, that now boasts of over 50 members.

"One of our first duties is to take care of the welfare of the Canadian returned soldiers from the present conflict. We must go out and prove to the returned man of this district, that the Canadian Legion in Belleville means business, when it comes to welcoming them home and also in the matter of rehabilitation," urged Past President Bradford before calling upon Commrade H. R. Fraser of Deseronto and Zone Commander for District No. 16, to officially install the officers of the Belleville branch of the Canadian Legion for the ensuing year of 1944.

The officers installed included the following:-

Executive Council, Coms. H. E. Mifflin, C. J. Jeffs, L. Harvey and D. J. Batchelor.

1st Vice Pres., T. W. Hetherington.
2nd Vice Pres., L. G. Madden.
President, Lt.-Col. H. E. Smith.

Urges Larger Membership

Following the installation President Smith assumbled the gavel and in his inaugural address urged the members of the Legion to seek new membership and continue to assist the boys returning from the present conflict.

Mrs. F. Camken, president of the Ladies Auxiliary, assured the assembly that the associate lady members, who were in charge of the refreshments of the evening, would continue to afford their full support towards the future undertakings of the Legion's program in Belleville. Com. C. Jeffs also read to the meeting excerpts from an overseas Canadian Army publication dealing with post war problems.

Com. F. Wooten, an American Legionnaire, assisted in the evening's entertainment in the rendition of Rudyard Kipling's "If" and as an encore—"The House by the Side of the Road". Community singing was enjoyed with LAC. Russell presiding at the piano. During the period of refreshments the meeting was thrown open to general discussion, during which time President Smith announced he hoped to have distinguished speakers attend the winter meetings to which the public of Belleville would be invited in order to become acquainted with the work of the Canadian Legion in Belleville.

Fire Destroys Trailer Home

Losing their entire household effects with the exception of two suitcases and a cedar chest when their banked trailer home on College Street was gutted by fire Wednesday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Max Grant and three months old baby are today being given shelter through the kindness of friends in the city. The trailer home was gutted as the result of an overheated stove which set fire to the structure during the absence of Mrs. Grant who had gone down street.

Situated directly at the north end of Grier Street on College, the banked up trailer was one of several which were being used as living accommodation by several families. The overheated stove apparently had set fire to the floor or walls with the flames gaining considerable progress before being noticed and the alarm turned in. Firefighters barely had time to save the suitcases and cedar chest from the structure before it was a mass of flames. Firemen extinguished the blaze before the structure was burned completely, but had no chance to save the household effects.

No insurance was carried on the household effects, it was stated by firemen. Mr. Grant is an employee of Fitzgibbon's Wood Yard.

program would be necessary in the post-war period and plans were being drawn up for it.

Mr. Roosevelt said late 1942 saw the end of defensive warfare, followed by "the period of aggressive deployment of our forces."

He said January 1944 marks the beginning of "offensive warfare," the last phase of the war.

Mr. Roosevelt said in addition to his thin distinction between "war" and "non-war" spending, still another classification — "aftermath-of-war"—is emerging.

In this category he placed three-fourths of the $3,750,000,000 item for interest on the National debt, more than half the anticipated $1,252,000,000 outlay for veterans, and a large portion of the $1,799,000,000 contemplated as the cost of refunds, primarily excess profits and other war-time taxes.

A brief footnote in the main budget document said the estimates were being delayed "because of posible material changes in war conditions."

Obituary

THOMAS C. HOULDEN

Thomas C. Houlden died in the Nichols Hospital, Peterborough, on Thursday, Jan. 6th., in his 79th. year. He was well and favorably known in Sidney Township and in Frankford Village. Old friends will regret to learn of his death. Fraternally he was a member of the Otonabee Loyal Orange Lodge.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Estella Tice; one son, Arthur, of Peterborough; two sisters Miss Jane Houlden, Frankford, and Mrs. Burnham Lott of Sidney township.

HENRY ELLIOTT
(Formerly of Ivanhoe)

Henry Elliott, formerly of the Ivanhoe district, and who for about two years lived at the Hastings County Home, died in the Belleville General Hospital early this Thursday morning at the age of eighty-six years. He was in failing health for some time and was a patient in the hospital since January 3rd.

MRS. CECIL CHERRY

Mrs. Cecil Cherry, 5 Jane Street, died in the Belleville General Hospital this Thursday morning after a lengthy illness.

The late Mrs. Cherry, who was in her 49th. year, was born in Toronto, and prior to her marriage she was Miss Clara Sussanna Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Smith of Peterborough. For some time she lived in Tweed and for the past sixteen years she resided in Belleville. In religion she was a member of the Church of England and was a parishioner of Christ Church.

Surviving her are her husband, Mr. Cecil Cherry; four sons, Private Gerald Cherry, Canadian Army Headquarters' Staff overseas; Leading Seaman Kenneth Cherry, R.C.N., Halifax; Arthur Cherry and Donald Cherry, both at home; two sisters, Mrs. Alice Thompson, Birmingham, England, and Mrs. H. K. Marshall, Toronto.

LATE MRS. ALEX. GREEN
(Rawdon.)

Rawdon.—A large number of Rawdon friends attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Alex Green at Bethel United Church on Friday afternoon. Deceased was a daughter of the late Charles Sine and Eliza Smith of Sine and was in her 90th year. She resided on the Fourth Concession of Rawdon for many years, later moving witn her husband to Stirling. After his death she made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Ernest Sadler at Frankford.

For the past year she has been ill and she died at the Campbellford Convalescent Home on Wednesday, January 5th.

She leaves to mourn her loss two daughters, Mrs. Ernest Sadler, Frankford and Mrs. Harry Brown, Belleville; two sisters, Mrs. Rebekah Sine of Sine and Mrs. Sid Murphy, Stirling, and four brothers, Byron St. Louis; Norman, Spokane, Wash.; Simeon, Chicago, Ill.; C. M. Sine of Sine, and two brothers are predeceased.

JOHN McKAY
(Ireland)

Mr. Edward McKay, McDonald Ave., has received word of the death of his father, Mr. John McKay, County Tyronne, Ireland. Mr. McKay was 67 years old and leaves to mourn his passing several sons and daughters, all of whom live in the British Isles with the exception of Edward in Belleville who came to this country approximately 20 years ago.

MRS. CHARLES F. MACAULAY
(Frankford)

Frankford, Jan. 13 — (Special) — The funeral of Mrs. Charles F. Macaulay, who died in the Belleville General Hospital on Thursday, Jan. 6th., after a short illness, took place from her late residence, Frankford, on Monday morning, Jan. 10th., to the Church of St. Francis where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father LeSage, assisted by the Rev. Father Rishea of Wooler.

Interment took place in St. Francis Cemetery and the bearers were Messrs. Manley Maybee, Alfred Westlake, William McNeil, Thomas Murphy, Ross Turley and Norman Simmons.

The late Mrs. Macaulay who was in her 78th. year, was born in Murray Township, Northumberland County, and was Sarah Frances Ambrose, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael Ambrose. At one time she lived in Trenton and for the past twenty two years she made her home in Frankford. In religion she was a faithful member of the Church of St. Francis, Frankford, and in connection with the parish she was a member of the Catholic Women's League.

Surviving her are her husband; three sisters, Miss Mary M. Ambrose, Trenton; Miss Margaret Ambrose, Trenton, and Mrs. J. B. Macaulay, Murray Township.

EDWARD J. ROY
(Belleville—Napanee.)

Edward J. Roy died in Napanee on Wednesday, Jan. 12th., as the result of a heart seizure. He was seveny-three years of age and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Roy, who for many years were prominent residents, of Belleville and later moved to Peterborough.

The late Mr. Roy was an expert draftsman and machinist and left here in 1900 to establish an iron works in Napanee, in which undertaking he was successful. He was prominent in the affairs of his adopted town and served for a considerable time in the town council and filled in a capable manner the office of mayor, as well as serving on the Public Utilities Commission. In the regard of many friends he held a high place and to them his death has brought much regret. In religion Mr. Roy was a member of the Church of England and when living in Belleville he attended the Church of St. Thomas. His grandfather, R. M. Roy, was town clerk of Belleville for many years and died seventy years ago, at the time the present city hall was just completed. Old friends in Belleville will regret to learn of Edward Roy's death.

Two sisters, Mrs. Roland Denne and Mrs. Melville Jamieson, and a brother, Mr. Fred Roy, live in Peterborough.

Overrun Nations Expectant

As the time passes and sees approach nearer the Allied victory which will bring to ruin the aggression of Hitlerism and Japanese militarism, the nations which have been under the enemy yoke are expectant and will have a part in the demolition of Hitler's "fortress" of Europe.

Too much praise cannot be given those nations which dared and defied the worst that Hitler could do and for the sake of freedom and humanity and the world principle of freedom threw themselves athwart the road that Hitler was taking to try to reach world supremacy. The names of these peoples are honored in the Allied world for they fought the enemy and endured untold agonies under the savage aggression of the Germans.

For them freedom was too great and holy a thing to be yielded. Instead these nations beginning with Poland stood firm and after they were overrun, and in the interim of their sufferings under oppression they have been able to work by the underground and make for Hitler and his Nazis a nightmare of their plans for conquest.

In the not too distant future they will see, the world expects, the final stage in the march towards liberation. In the bringing in of that glad day in the history of the world the nations which have stood firm and reliant such as the Great Powers will greet the peoples of the oppressed nations which have been under Hitler's heel for liberty's sake. These are nations whose high sense of honor has helped to save the world through the night of Nazi terror and fury.

In what a different state these United Nations stand as contrasted with the satellite nations of the Axis which bowed the knee to Hitler and which now tremble in great anxiety as they see the beginning of the end of Axis sway.

Though the nations which Hitler overran have suffered untold agonies they have made Hitlerism suffer by their constant war against German aggression and their role has been one of honor and glory as contrasted with the Axis satellite governments which subserviently gave aid to Hitler to help crush liberty and democracy. Those who have fought and battled the despicable Nazis will have their great reward of honor and glory that they were brave in spirit, even when the world looked dark, and that they have helped to keep the light of freedom burning for future ages.

A New City to Arise

Out of the ashes and rubble of Coventry will arise a new Coventry which will also be a memorial for the citizens who there were killed by Hitler's bombers. Practically the first of the larger English cities to suffer from mass raids of the enemy, it lost about 250 persons killed and 37,000 buildings hit in the first raid. By the time that other raids had half destroyed the city, about 1,200 lives had been lost. Since then Coventry heroically set to work. Today, 12,000 persons can be accommodated in hostels and community restaurants hand out about fifty thousand meals each day. The work of restoration has gone on apace, a large staff of workmen having been engaged.

The mayor of the city is Emily Smith—who is enterprising and who represents the spirit of Coventry and what it has meant to Britain, particularly during this war. She has the hope of a new city for the large population which approximates a quarter of a million.

In the new Coventry that is to be built will be the faith and the courage of her citizenry so nobly displayed in the trying hours of the Nazi blitz, the spirit that was Coventry through its long history from time immemorial when the earlier monarchs of England would convent parliaments within its boundary and pageants of great splendor were held down to the time of the blitzkrieg. Not all the fury of Hun could prevail against the spirit of Coventry, enriched with a heritage from the past and fortified by the spirit of the inhabitants of this age.

Making Sure to Crush Japan

Tokyo is the goal U. S. Admiral Halsey sees for the Allies in the war against Japan. Nothing less than its capture will suit him and "don't let them stop us until we get it," he said in Washington the other day.

He took care to warn his own people against peace movements for he said it might be the Japanese think they can wear the Allies down by attrition tactics and that the Allies might get tired and make a peace "suitable to them—which, God knows, I hope no one will permit." He spoke of Allied supremacy in air, sea and land forces wherever the Allies are and is optimistic in the war against Japan. He sees the end of Japanese tyranny made certain by the capture of Tokyo and a peace dictated there by the Allied Nations.

Japan is feeling the demonstration of Allied might and heavy blows are in store for the Nipponese who will understand only such blows delivered with full Allied power.

Dog Boom

(London Star)

Surprisingly—in view of the great difficulty in buying food for them—all kinds of dogs are in demand at the moment, and dog shops are enjoying a major boom. Prices seem to be at least double those before the war; in some cases five or six times as much.

Thousands of dog owners had their pets destroyed at the beginning of the war and during the air raids because of the food shortage and the risk of their animals being subject to bombing.

Now, however, dog lovers are buying again.

Even mongrels are selling for £1 to 35s. Before the war a good specimen could be found for half a crown or five shillings. Small dogs are now coming into their own because their feeding problem is not so acute.

Spaniel pups were being sold in London today for £10 each, Scotties £12, Pekes £12 12s., and fox terriers for £10 to £15. Large dogs are being bred in small numbers, with resulting high prices.

The Alsatian is easily the most popular of the larger breeds, and buyers will give up to £30 for a puppy.

The Scientists

Not until the war is over and done with, possibly not even then, will the general public hear what a role our savants have played in it, writes the London correspondent of The Ottawa Journal. Eminent scientists, many of them bespectacled elderly grey-beards, experts in different abstruse technical subjects, have achieved almost miracles.

These are the unknown and unadvertised war workers described by Lord Beaverbrook as "the boys in the back room." Wing Commander Guy Gibson, V.C., who led the sensational air attack on the Mohne Dam, has revealed in an article in a magazine that the master mind behind that successful coup was an elderly scientist, who not only suggested the target, but also perfected the type of bomb needed to demolish it.

The wing commander describes how, when at last the right bomb was produced and he blew up a specially made experimental target with one, the onlooking professor danced about and waved his hands ecstatically, though his voice and manner were the gentlest imaginable.

Want "Cash on Line" From Nazis

Lyons silk manufacturers, who have been supplying a large part of their products to Germany for making parachutes, are holding up material because they have not received payment according to contract. They now want a "cash-and-carry" arrangement in place of a long-term payment basis.

JUST FOLKS

BRITISH VERDICT

(A British court has ruled that the husband is absolute head of the house; may claim what money his wife saves, and may decide what guests are to be entertained.—News Item.)

"Oh, upright judge!" as Shylock cried,
A Daniel on the bench at last,
Who dares so bravely to decide
A quarrel of the ages past,
And give this verdict to the spouse:
"The man is master of his house."

The court has ruled in language bright,
For all who such relief may crave,
That every husband has the right
To anything his wife may save.
That money in the sugar bowl
Is his, by law, in part or whole.

The husband of the home is lord,
And justified of mood and whim.
The wife who shares his bed and board
Must be considerate of him.
She first must ask him "if they may"
Before her folks move in to stay.

"Oh, upright judge!" that verdict just "Unto my patient wife I've read,
"Hear this, my dear," cried I, "you must.
'Tis what a British court has said."
But all she answered was: " Oh, fudge!
Who picked that fossil for a judge?"

Entire Central Part of Sofia Is Destroyed

Berne, Switzerland, Jan. 13 —(AP— The entire central part of the Bulgarian capital of Sofia was destroyed by bombs Monday in Allied attacks comparable to the heavy blows at German cities, the Budapest correspondent of the Basler Nachrichten reported today.

All telephone and telegraph communications were broken. Diplomats had only radio on which to send reports.

The Russian and former British legations were destroyed. The parliament building, opposite the American legation, was damaged heavily. A direct hit was made on the Alexander Nevski Cathedral, the Budapest report said. Death toll was high.

SENTENCED TO 3 YEAR TERM

Lindsay, Jan. 13 —(CP)— Ted Alex Gilbert, of Leaside, near Toronto, employed with a West Guildford lumbering firm, yesterday was sentenced to three years in Kingston Penitentiary by Magistrate E. A. Gee on a charge of forgery. Evidence was that Gilbert had given a forged cheque for $56 in purchasing $14 worth of goods at a Haliburton store and received change in cash. He was arrested at Lindsay boarding a bus for Toronto.

URGES COMPULSORY USE OF STANDARD STRAINER

London, Ont., Jan. 13 —(CP)— Compulsory use of a standard milk strainer and filter by all milk producers in Ontario was urged last night at a meeting of the cheesemakers of Western Ontario.

Delegates also urged appointment of an official cheese weigher in Ontario and establishment of a warehouse weighing station locally instead of at Montreal.

Letter to The Editor

Editor,
The Ontario Intelligencer:

Would you please allow me space in your valuable paper for the following comment?

Something terrible seems to have happened in Toronto, last week. Peter McArther's goat must have gotten cast in the stall; as there was one day the Globe and Mail had no editorial denouncing the C.C.F.

Three oil companies operating in the Turner Valley, have just announced benefits to their shareholders for 1942, which are five times as great as that received by the Province of Alberta, from all of its petroleum and natural gas resources. That is what the people get who supported governments to protect free enterprise. That is what the people get from a government who are bitterly opposed to the C.C.F.'s program of a people's ownership of the people's resources.

Yours respectfully,
J. A. McAninch.

Canadian Scene A Century Ago

By J. L. G.

The days of "auld lang syne" were the days of true hospitality. The latch string was always up. . . or rather, out. . .as a sign of welcome to the passer-by. The thin rope attached to the latch was run through a hole in the door and allowed to dangle outside so that those who wished to come in could do so. Sometimes the owner of the house would come downstairs in the morning and find several strangers stretched out asleep beside the fireplace!

Journals written by eminent travellers play up the big-heartedness of pioneers living on the banks of the St. Lawrence River. These were the settlers who had the most visitors because practically all journeys were trips by water and the great river was the best-known stream. One dairy-keeper relates that the sole room in the house was cheerfully given up, the owners climbing to the loft to be out of the travellers' way. Moreover, food and drink were pressed on the guests—though they were utter strangers—and dinners were made up to take along on the morrow.

Genial hosts and hostesses planted sizeable crops of popping corn, finding it popular whenever "company" dropped in of a long winter's evening. It is a special variety of corn, tiny of ear and kernel. The ears were always hung up to dry as soon as they were gathered.

"We'll get it at the trading post". . . . .There were no Woolworths or department stores in the west 100 years ago, but there were many Hudson's Bay posts. These were well equipped with food, supplies and ammunition needed for an outdoor life, and with cheap jewellery and knick-knacks useful in dealings with the Indians. Oases of civilization in the desert of the wilderness, the trading centres were well fortified. Stockades 20 feet high were built. Cannon and muskets were kept ready for firing at a moment's notice. The headquarters of the Hudson's Bay Co., at Victoria, New Caledonia, (later called British Columbia) was unique in that it was built without nails. Wooden pegs were employed instead—great numbers of them—in the construction of palisade and houses. The Indians thought themselves handsomely paid for helping with the work. They were given a blanket for every 40 pickets they put up.

On arrival at a post the hunter was laden with fur peltry. On leaving his pack was heavy with flour, bacon, shot, tobacco, nails (the Indians were delighted with anything made of metal!) and other necessities. It was not unusual to see a man set forth with a weight of 90 pounds on his back, his bag supported by a strap across the forehead. Few trappers or explorers owned horses in the earliest days. They had to carry their own loads no matter how rugged the terrain of their journey. Sometimes when the men were on their way over a peak in the mountains their great bags would become wedged tight in a rocky cleft. Until they were cut loose from the load their lives were in danger.

There was a song on the trappers lips as they took their places in the huge cedar-lined canoes used in the ascent of New Caledonia rivers. But even the bravest souls quailed at the thought of hardships soon to be endured. There were hostile Indian tribes to fight or placate with gifts. There were whirlpools and rapids to detour or traverse, and high mountains to cross. There was the threat of dying from lack of food. . .of being blocked in the passes of the Rockies by blizards. . . of being wrecked by ice damaging their craft. The canoe carried 50 and more men. Attire was gay; color helped boost morale. Often the voyageurs attached tinkling bells to their leather trouser-legs. Sashes and headbands of brilliant hue added to the gaudiness of the scene.

FAST TRIP BY T.C.A. PLANES

Montreal, Jan. 13. (CP)—Two Lancasters, operated by trans-Canada air lines in the Canadian government trans-Atlantic service, today set a new record for a Montreal to Great Britain flight, it was announced here.

They arrived in Great Britain early today, the announcement added, after having respectively left here 11 hours and 16 minutes and 11 hours and 14 minutes before.

New Plastic Found Works 'Wonders'

Use of a new plastic material as a lifelike camouflage for facial deformities that can be applied within a day or two after complete healing of a wound is described in the current issue of the Canadian Medical Association Journal, in a joint article contributed by Dr. Hamilton Baxter, Eleanor Sweezey, B.A., and Russell Copeman of Montreal.

The new plastic—a synthetic resinous substance known as "Flexton" and produced by an American concern in Pittsburgh —is hailed as one of the most important developments in the field, not only because of its many qualities as a prosthesis (camouflage) but because of psychological value on the patient.

Dr. Baxter, a graduate of McGill University, is attending plastic surgeon at Royal Victoria Hospital Eleanor Sweezey, also a McGill graduate, is a medical artist and Mr. Copeman is a dental technician. All joined their varied skills in experiments carried out successfully on three patients in Royal Victoria Hospital, exemplifying the growing co-operation between doctors and other technicians in utilizing the newest materials of a highly technological civilization to bring new comfort to the human being.

Describing the use of "Flexton" in the three hospital cases, where cancer had necessitated removal of one man's left ear and partial removal of the noses of the other two men, the writers claim the new plastic has a flesh-like transparence, the flexibility of rubber without its defects and can be used either permanently or as a temporary camouflage until such time as plastic surgery for a flesh prosthesis, if desired, may be undertaken. Temporary use of the resinous "dummy" nose or ear, they point out, makes the patient "aesthetically presentable" and thereby offsets any serious psychological disturbances caused by even minor deformities.

Thus, the article emphasizes, "soldiers returning with various types of disfiguring wounds can be made presentable before returning home", and this fact simplified the work of psychiatrists.

Able to Face Families.

"It is not easy for young men to face their families and friends if they are disfigured. Many would prefer not to return at all. When we notice how self-conscious many people become when suffering from a boil, or even a pimple, on the face, we realize how damaging to the psyche a more serious deformity can be.

"If plastic surgery can be performed at once there is, of course, no need for a prosthesis, but often, because of the patient's health or for some other reason, the surgical intervention must be delayed. Meanwhile, if the patient's health is to be built up, a wholesome attitude toward social contacts must be maintained", the writers point out.

The new resin comes in small particles about the size of small peas. These particles are heated and pressed into a mass ready for casting the necessary moulds.

Once the missing feature is constructed, it can be attached with rubber cement and with the aid of other devices. In the case of an artificial ear, for example, the surface of the prosthesis which lies against the head is held in position with rubber cement while, to make it more secure, a hollow-tube attachment is made which fits into the auditory canal. The patient is able to wear the ear continuously for several days before it is necessary to reapply the cement.

The new resin material is described as "light translucent, easily manipulated by ordinary heat, cold, moisture and light. It is tolerated by tissues, easily duplicated from the original mould and inexpensive. It can be trimmed and repaired with a hot spatula. . . and be stained in a graduation of shades, ranging from blonde to brunette, and this basic color can be delicately tinted to the requirements of the individual case.

Will Not Award Memorial Trophy

Toronto, Jan. 13 —(CP)— There will be no award of the Lou E. Marsh Memorial Trophy to civilian athletes in Canada for the duration of the war, it was announced Thursday by Charles E. Ring, donor of the trophy and a member of the board of judges in charge of the award.

"Last year we awarded the trophy to perpetuate the memory of all Canadian athletes who that year made the supreme sacrifice," said Mr. Ring. "This procedure, it has been agreed, will be continued."

The award, made annually since 1937 to the outstanding Canadian athlete of the preceding calendar year, is in memory of the late Lou E. Marsh former sports editor of the Toronto Star.

Dresses To Be Spare and Bare

New York, Jan. 13 — (AP)—America will see a revival of backless, sleeveless dresses this summer, clothes designer, Clare Potter has predicted, presenting a collection of play clothes for sun-worshippers, carrying fabric conservation to the ultimate.

Spare and bare, the dresses are not designed for street wear except in resort communities, but it's a safe bet we'll be seeing them worn for everything from shopping to sightseeing by summer.

The Clarepotter collection highlights the fourth day of New York's big week of spring fashion openings, presented in the Paris manner before visiting editors.

WHERE CAESAR DIED

There is a popular notion that Julius Caesar was killed in the Capitol at Rome.

"Capitol," or "Capitolium" as it was written in Latin, was not applied by the Romans to the building in which the senate or legislative branch of the government held its sessions.

The word "capitol" in that sense is an American adaption and was first applied to the "statehouse" in Williamsfurgh, the Colonial capital of Virginia.

The Capitolium in Rome was the ancient citadel and the national temple of Jupiter Optimus Maximus, both of which were on Mons Capitolinus or Capitoline Hill, the smallest but most famous of the seven hills on which the Eternal City was built.

The Curia or senate-house was in the Forum, which was not on Capitoline Hill at all, but between that elevation and Palentine Hill.

It was called Curia Hostilia, owing to a tradition that the first senate-house was built by an ancient king named Hostilius.

Shakespeare and other Elizabethan writers were largely responsible for the prevalent impression that Caesar was murdered in the Capitol or that the Capitol and the senate-house were one and the same building.

In "Antony and Cleopatra" Sextus Pompey alludes to the subject when he refers to Brutus drenching "the Capitol," and in "Hamlet" Polonius says he once played the part of Julius Caesar and was killed in the Capitol" by Brutus.

The "foremost man of all the world" is represented in "Julius Caesar" as being assassinated in the Capitol, but reference to the senate-house indicates that Shakespeare employed the terms interchangeably.

NATIONAL SELECTIVE SERVICE

EMPLOYERS MUST REPORT
On Numbers of Persons in their Employ

EMPLOYMENT and Selective Service Offices have mailed Form DLR-1A to all employers —in industry, in commerce, in trade. These forms are for completion and return to the Local Office on or before January 15th, 1944.

The co-operation of every employer in giving complete and accurate returns is earnestly requested, as much of Canada's manpower planning depends upon the data they will contain.

If you have been missed, please ask the nearest Employment and Selective Service Office for blank forms, which carry full instructions on their use.

The completion of this form is required under National Selective Service Civilian Regulations. Employers in agriculture, employers of household domestic workers and Government Departments in respect of regular staffs, are not required to report.

Director, National Selective Service

Trenton and District

Trenton, Jan. 12—The Canadian Doughnut Co., for several years past one of Trenton's foremost industries announced this week that their entire office staff with the exception of probably one or two members would be in the very near future moved to their Canadian Head Office in Toronto. The company's main office is located in New York City and for greater efficiency, as well as the fact that their Trenton plant has enlarged to such proportions that office space is at a premium, it is felt the Toronto and Trenton offices should be amalgamated. The purchasing department has already moved to their new location and it is expected the office staff under the supervision of Office Manager N. H. Penney will leave almost immediately.

It is understood however, that this will in no way affect the production here and that the factory personnel are to be left intact. It is also understood that last year's production far surpassed any year since their moving to Trenton and that their post war plan has many new and interesting products.

The Canadian Doughnut Company also operates in Trenton one of the first and largest egg drying plants in Canada. Last year through eight of these plants located in the Dominion, Great Britain received over forty million dozens of eggs and it is expected this year the output will be even far greater. The Trenton plant has not yet been allotted its quota for this year but have today started their egg-breaking plant in production with fifteen cars of whole eggs ready for the first day's work.

It is interesting to note that this year's drying of the eggs has started some weeks sooner than ever before due to the early receipt of the raw eggs. Following a meeting in Ottawa next week it is understood many facts and figures will be available and the production started on a huge scale.

Three Frogs and a Mosquito.

Spring weather being enjoyed here during the past few days was climaxed today by the fact that Mr. E. R. Smithrim of the Trenton Public Utilities saw three frogs swimming gleefully in a creek at the intersection of Shuter Street and Dufferin Ave., and to cap this one Constable C. E. (Barney) McColl found, when he entered his car this afternoon, a mosquito buzzing around inside.

Home and School Club.

The regular monthly meeting of the Dufferin Home and School Club was held on Monday evening, Jan. 10th., with the President Mrs. L. Farrell in the chair. Following the business portion of the meeting a social program followed in charge of Mrs. Bartlett, second vice-president.

A Christmas play and a health play presented by the pupils of Miss B. McKibbon's class were well received and gave evidence of considerable practice on the part of both teacher and pupils. Pilot Officer T. Spear acted as quiz master for an interesting quiz in which all participated.

A new and outstanding feature of the evening was the placing of teachers and parents of all her pupils in groups, in order that they might become better acquainted during the hours spent at these social gatherings. This idea has been followed for some time in the city schools, and if Monday's meeting can be taken as an example, it is felt that already a forward step has been taken in the matter of better acquaintance of teacher and parent.

The book of the month was won by Miss McKibbon's class, who incidentally were also the winners in the month of December.

Following the program Doughnuts and coffee were served, the former having been donated by the Canadian Doughnut Co.

Women's Auxiliary of R.C.A.F.

The regular monthly business meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of the R.C.A.F. was held in their workrooms on King Street on Monday afternoon, the President, Mrs. B. Weese in the chair.

The Secretary, Mrs. J. Holden, read the minutes of the previous meeting while treasurer's report and reports of the various work committees were also presented.

The president announced that the bi-weekly dance would no longer be under the supervision of the W.A. A motion was passed to the effect that the W.A. would mend socks and shirts for living-in personnel of the two air stations, particularly 6 R.D., as the main station already has a mending service operated by the Trenton ladies.

Tuesday's Red Cross meeting was well attended and much work was accomplished, sewing, knitting, quilting and the making of hospital supplies, however there is still not the attendance desired and it is hoped that now that the holiday season has finished many more ladies will find time for this all important work.

Several shipments to headquarters were made during the afternoon and donations in money consisted of $6.00 from Miss Walker's and $1.00 from Miss Fowler's classes of College St. School.

The regular monthly meeting was held following the working hours, with the President Mr. B. P. Joyce in the chair. Reports of various committees were read with shipping report showing 1895 articles at a total value of $75.75 had been shipped during the month of December.

Nineteen cases were before Trenton Police Court on Tuesday afternoon with Magistrate J. L. Lloyd presiding and County Crown Attorney, Col. B. C. Donnan, K.C., prosecuting.

Four paid the customary $1.00 each for breaches of the parking by-law while $4.50 was assessed against Fred Rockliff for failing to observe a traffic signal.

A charge against Arthur Benham of leaving the scene of an accident was laid over for one week.

Robert Meinhars and William Hutton also paid $4.50 each for failing to observe a traffic signal.

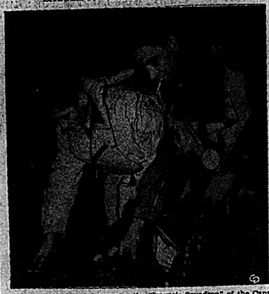
A case against William Storms for careless driving brought down a fine of $10 and costs.

Ronald Volick for speeding paid $7.50 as did Ryerson Darrah.

Three were before the court for failing to produce the necessary license to drive a car for 1943 or 1944, two were fined $12.50 each and the third appeared in the uniform of the Royal Canadian Navy and stated that he had served two years in the Mediterranean and North Sea. The police suggested that his case be dismissed as he was only on furlough. The Magistrate acquiesced.

Three were fined the usual $13 for intoxication and one was fined a similar amount for having.

BATTLE 35-DEGREES-BELOW-ZERO



These two young air-gunners of the "Iroquois Squadron" of the Canadian bomber group stationed in Britain, battled 35-degree-below-zero weather for over eight hours while making a successful attack on the German city of Mannheim recently. Doffing their kits on their return to base, they are: in foreground, right, Sergt. J. C. Loubert, of Smooth Rock Falls, Ont., and Sergt. J. R. Dixon, of the R.A.F., whose home is at Barnsley, Yorkshire.

Burrs

Burrs — Mrs. Keith Blakely and Mrs. Frank Osterhout were conveners at a social evening on Wednesday at the hall in Allisonville in the form of a euchre and dance in aid of the Red Cross. Eleven tables were in play with Mrs. Gerald Brooks and Mr. Clifford McFaul winning the highest scores. The Allisonville Orchestra furnished the music for the dancing. $11 was realized. Members will be pleased to learn of the recovery of the president, Mrs. W. H. Morton, who is in Prince Edward County Hospital at Picton, ill with pneumonia. All join in wishing her a speedy recovery. Early in February Mrs. Don Parks and Mrs. Clifford Hough will be the conveners for another such social evening.

A miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hall on Friday evening when this community gathered to extend their good wishes to their son and bride, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hall. The home was tastefully decorated for the occasion. Shirley and Dick stood under an evergreen arch and a large wedding bell while Mrs. Sam Clark read an appropriate address. From a well laden table they opened and admired their gifts. Each thanked everyone present for this expression of good will. All joined in singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows." Refreshments and a social hour brought this pleasant affair to a close.

After enjoying a merry charivari at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cross to noisily greet the bridal couple, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hall, on Monday evening a number of the younger set attended a meeting of the M. B. B. Comrades at the hall, Allisonville. The annual election of officers was held with the previous year's officers being returned, Mr. Kenneth Wood, president; Miss Dorothy Carley, secretary; Mr. Don Osterhout, treasurer. The business being attended to, the gathering took the form of a New Year's party to honor a former member who was that evening their guest, Cpl. Betty Bongard, C.W.A.C., Toronto. Refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

Mrs. F. Burkitt and sister, Mrs. Clara Hamilton, Marmora, called on Mrs. J. Marvin, Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Burkitt, Mr. Bonter and Mrs. Hamilton were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. Harns, on Monday.

Rev. and Mrs. Lorne Burr entertained at a dinner on Tuesday when Mrs. E. A. Kingston, Lockport, Mrs. J. E. Moran, Crofton, Mr. and Mrs. A. Burr, Consecon, and Mr. and Mrs. Ross Burr were their guests.

Mr. Don Osterhout was a guest at the Richards-Hazel reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Blake Richards, Black Street, on Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Huffman were evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Harris on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Burr were entertained at a birthday tea at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. Colclough and daughters, Belleville, on Saturday evening.

Mrs. E. A. Kingston and Mrs. J. E. Moran called on Mr. and Mrs. George Huffman and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Huffman on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dick entertained on Sunday evening at a birthday dinner in honor of Mrs. H. Montgomery and Mrs. K. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Werden, Mr. and Mrs. Morley Moran, Larry Moran, Mr. Harmon Montgomery and Mr. Kenneth Wood were their guests.

Sergt.-Major Fred Heddington and Mrs. Heddington, Ottawa, are guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Basil Ainsworth, Christian Street.

Mr. B. Hough is confined to his bed under the doctor's care with a mastoid condition.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Campbell and Jean called at the Huffman home on Friday.

Mrs. T. Ayrhart was for several days the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Murney Parks and Mr. and Mrs. Don Parks. Miss Donna Parks has been ill with the flu.

Mrs. Ross Burr spent Friday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Werden.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Cook and Lance Corporal Earl Cook were callers in this neighborhood on Thursday evening.

Rev. Lorne Burr called on Mrs. J. Covert, Mr. and Mrs. H. Thompson and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Johnson on Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Osterhout visited the former's mother who is recovering from a broken shoulder at Frankford, on Thursday

Mrs. E. A. Kingston and Mrs. J. E. Moran are for some days the guests of their sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Spencer, Centre.

Mrs. Earl S. Anderson and Mrs. S. LaFontaine, Belleville, were Sunday evening tea hour guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Werden.

Mr. and Mrs. Ewart Harns were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Harns, Belleville.

Tweed

Tweed (Special)—The New Year's meeting of the W.M.S. of Tweed United Church was held in the church parlor on Jan. 6th with the President Mrs. Geo. Gordon in the chair. The financial report was thoroughly discussed and given by Mrs. P. C. Barnett in the absence of the Treasurer, Mrs. Jones. Rev. Mr. McQuade took charge of the installation of officers for the coming year, followed by a very inspiring address. An invitation was given by Mrs. W. S. Gordon to hold the February meeting at her home and made the request that all new comers would be especially welcome. The meeting closed with prayer by Rev. Mr. McQuade. The 1943 officers were installed for the coming year with the exception of Mrs. Dewey Kliensteuber as Temperance Secretary and Mrs. Russell Rogers as Mission Band Leader.

WEDDINGS

GEEN—PORTER

Thomasburg — The home of Mrs. Porter and the late Mr. A. C. Porter, Thomasburg, was the scene of a very pretty winter wedding on Saturday afternoon, January 8th, at two o'clock when her only daughter, Dorothy Evelyn, became the bride of Mr. Stanley Bateman Geen, son of Mrs. Geen and the late Mr. Murney Geen, also of Thomasburg.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Harry Coulter, the bride was very attractive in a two-piece bridal dress of Heaven blue crepe, wearing a string of pearls and a corsage of sweet peas. She carried an ivory white prayer book which had been used by her Grandmother Porter at her wedding sixty-two years ago.

The bridesmaid, Miss Marion Main, of Toronto, was becomingly attired in an ensemble of pink silk jersey with corsage of sweet peas.

Mr. Carman Geen, younger brother of the groom, was the best man.

Following the ceremony, a luncheon was served to about thirty guests.

The groom's gift to the bride was a cabinet of silver in Adoration pattern; the bride presented her attendant and the pianist with gifts of fancy linen; the groom's gift to the best man was a tie set.

The happy couple left later for Kingston and Ottawa.

62nd Anniversary Of Their Wedding Is Celebrated

Picton, Jan. 13 — Mr. and Mrs. William A. Head marked the 62nd anniversary of their wedding at their home here yesterday. Due to the fact that both were suffering from influenza, the event was quietly observed. Mr. Head is 89 years of age and Mrs. Head eight years his junior, and both enjoy the use of all their faculties.

Mr. and Mrs. Head were married at South Bay by Rev. Samuel Ferguson, and resided there until 1918 when they moved to Picton. Mr. Head sailed for half a century on the Great Lakes and has many interesting stories to tell of schooner days. Both are members of the United Church and enjoy the esteem of a wide circle of friends.

Elect Officers.

D. O. Reynolds, Hallowell township farmer, was elected president of Prince Edward Federation of Agriculture here yesterday, succeeding Burton Baxter of Bloomfield. Vice-presidents are Ernest Way and Morley Williams with Keith Walker, Milford, as secretary-treasurer. Reeve Earl Brummell of Athol was named delegate to the annual meeting of the Federation, and President Reynolds as a director of the Ontario Federation. It was decided to conduct a membership campaign in charge of a committee composed of the president, secretary, E. Brummell, E. Way and Lee Allison.

Minerva Chapter Afternoon Social Attractive Affair

The home of Mrs. A. E. Wonnacott, 20 Green Street, was the setting for an attractively arranged afternoon social on Wednesday from three to 6 o'clock. It was a beautiful day for a tea, and as a result there was an attendance of over one hundred women. The results of the affair, under the auspices of the Minerva Chapter, O.E.S., were highly gratifying.

The guests, who were received by Mrs. Clifford Clarke, W.M., and Mrs. Wonnacott, were invited to the tea room by Mrs. Vernon Smith.

The table, spread with an ivory lace cloth, flanked with tall white tapers in silver candelbra and centred with a silver basket of daffodils and pink snapdragons, was very attractive, and was presided over by Mrs. Charles Hyde and Mrs. C. Burkholder.

Serving the guests were Mrs. Wilfred Price, Mrs. Harvey Stewart, Mrs. D. Carmichael and Mrs. W. McMullen of Vancouver.

Treasurer for the afternoon was Mrs. J. Weymark.

A cake, the tickets of which were sold by Mrs. Harold Mason, was won on a draw by Mrs. Harvey Stewart, George Street.

TABERNACLE W.M.S.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Tabernacle Church held its first meeting of the new year in the church parlors on Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 with an attendance of twenty. The president, Mrs. Froats, took charge of the program. Encouraging reports were given by the different secretaries for the past year. The story of the year was read by Mrs. Fisher, Mrs. Burgess, being absent Mrs. Fisher, treasurer, reported $301.44 raised during the year. Rev. Dr. A. J. W. Myers then took charge of the installation of the new officers. He gave a very interesting and encouraging address.

The following officers were installed: Honorary Presidents, Mrs. Myers and Mrs. Sharpe; President, Mrs. Froats; 1st Vice-President, Mrs. Burgess; 2nd. Vice-President, Mrs. Izzard; 3rd. Vice-President, Mrs. Buchanan; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Ross; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Lent; Treasurer, Mrs. Adamson; Secretary Christian Stewardship, Mrs. Archibald; Secretary Community Friendship, Mrs. Lent; Secretary Supplies, Mrs. Sprackett and Mrs. Hogle; Associate Members, Mrs. Jarrell; Temperance Secretary, Mrs. Izzard; Missionary Monthly Secretary, Mrs. Fisher; Literature Secretary, Mrs. Palmer; Press Secretary, Miss Myrtle Johns; Mission Band Secretary, Mrs. May; Pianist, Mrs. Duff.

A very interesting reading was read by Mrs. Duff. Mrs. Myers favored with a solo with guitar accompaniment. Mrs. Froats then gave an inspiring talk on "New Year's Resolutions".

BRINGS BOMBER HOME

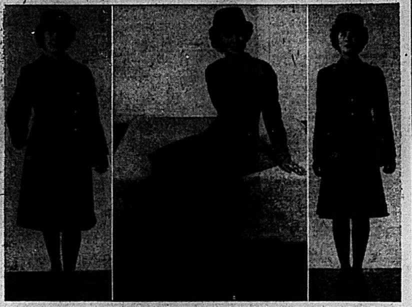
C.W.A.C. WINS LAURELS FOR SMARTEST UNIFORMS



To the Canadian Women's Army Corps go the laurels for having the smartest and best-looking uniform of all the Women's Services in this war. This decision was reached at a party given in Britain by the U. S. Women's Army Corps for personnel of the C.W.A.C., the W.R.N.S., the R.C.A.F. (W.D.) the W.A.A.F., and the A.T.S. Report was made in the "Stars and Stripes" official organ of the U. S. Armed Forces to the European theatre of war. Popular opinion conceded to the C.W.A.C. uniform the qualities of trimness and smartness. The W.A.C. uniform was tagged as the best tailored and the W.R.N.S. carried the color honors. Cpl. Wilma Williamson of Dundas, Ont., is pictured above modelling various ensembles of the C.W.A.C. uniform. From left to right, the winter greatcoat, the rose-beige summer worsted and the khaki barathea. — (Canadian Army Photos.)

Holloway Street Y.P.U. Hears Temperance Talk

A very interesting meeting of the Holloway Street Y.P.U. was held in the church Jan. 11, with the president, Marjorie Hitchon, in the chair.

Following a short business period, the president turned the meeting over to the Christian Citizenship Convener, Ray Gunsolus, and his group, whose theme for the evening was "Temperance."

Taking part in the inspirational worship service were Dorothy Mitts who played quiet music, Ray Gunsolus gave the Call to Worship, Dorothy Craighead read the Scripture Lesson, Pat Thurston gave the Scripture comment and Beth Robertson who led in prayer.

The guest speaker of the evening was Mr. J. Owen Herity, manager of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, who brought a challenging message on Temperance. He chose as his subject theme "The Mind is the Measure of the Man". He opened his subject by stating that the mind is the most wonderful of God's creations. Just as no scientist has been able to give a definition of electricity,—just as no person has been able to weigh it or see it, yet it is, so one may liken the mind, having its seat of origin in the brain, which is the power station and the nerves, the connecting wires.

"Our mind," he continued, "reaches its utmost development around the age of twenty-five, but we must be careful not to 'die at the top.' Millions now living," he remarked, "are already dead, as far as the mind goes." Citing the great Allied leaders Mr. Herity proved it is not necessary for the mind to die but one may, as these men have, keep it alert, vigorous, young, and strong by reason of use.

"Victory or success in this life is the ambition of youth," said the speaker. "The real problem in life is to get ahead not of others, but of ourselves, to make our today outstrip our yesterday' On the highway leading to the temple of success are two enemies,' he cautioned, "which are vice and procrastination. The worst vice is alcoholism, one of the foremost producers of crime. You young people are the masters of your fate," he said. "The only way to be safe is to absolutely refrain from drinking intoxicating liquors. In your mind is the infallible weapon with which to fight this vice,—the will."

Mr. Herity concluded his address with Rudyard Kipling's matchless poem for youth—"If" and "The Thinker."

Following the address, Shirley Oliphant played Handel's matchless which was much enjoyed.

As a fitting climax to this Temperance meeting, Don Williams, Citizenship Convener for the Bay of Quinte Conference, gave information regarding establishing a Temperance post which, by reason of the large number of pledges made by the Young People at the close of the meeting, will be done immediately.

CONGRESS MESSAGE AIRED

London, Jan. 13 —(CP)— The Moscow radio devoted nearly its entire morning news broadcast today to a 20-minute summary of President Roosevelt's message to Congress. The only other item on the broadcast was the daily Soviet communique.

ENTER GUILTY PLEAS

Peterborough, Jan. 13 — (CP) — Four youths entered pleas of guilty to charges of breaking and entering the store of Theodore Crawford, Lakefield and to stealing gasoline coupons from Clarence Foster, Lakefield, yesterday in police court.

The four, Alfred B. Watts, 17, Toronto; John Carid, 17, Toronto; and Joseph Wasslyn, 19, Toronto, were remanded a week for sentence.

RAWDON

91st Birthday Is Marked

Rawdon.— Mrs. Archie Thompson of Rawdon, celebrated her 91st birthday on January 4th., at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank Bailey.

Mrs. Thompson is in possession of all her faculties and is keenly interested in the daily events. She can read without glasses and is able to attend a few social functions.

The guests included twenty-seven members of Mrs. Thompson's immediate family, also Mrs. Thompson's only sister, Mrs. Fred Parker, English Line.

The guest of honor was the recipient of several lovely gifts and an address of appreciation was read by Mrs. Clifford Mitts.

Mrs. Thompson graciously said "thank you", for the kindness bestowed upon her by her family and was grateful to be able to enjoy life.

Wins Scholarship.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid Sine have received word that their nephew, Mr. Raymond Mach of Port Hope, has successfully passed his third year examinations in medicine and has been awarded the N. F. Dupuis Scholarship in Bio-chemistry and the professor's prize in Anatomy. Raymond returned to Queen's University, Kingston after the New Year.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan recently entertained Mr. and Mrs. Ross Thompson, Stirling, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Broadworth and family of Minto.

Mr. and Mrs. John McMullen and Gertie, Mr. and Mrs. Earl McMullen and Larry, attended the funeral of the late Frank Barton at Havelock on Friday. Deceased was 72 years of age and is survived by his mother, Mrs. F. Barton, Rawdon, four sons and one daughter.

Born—At Nicholson's Nursing Home, Stirling, on Thursday, December 30th., to Mr. and Mrs. Norman McConnell, a son, Kenneth Conger.

The Township Roads are very icy and it has been necessary to sand the steepest hills on the Fourth and Fifth Concessions. At present there are several spots of glare ice that make motor travel dangerous.

Mrs. Luke Glover, Belleville, is spending a couple of weeks with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Burness Demorest.

MALARIA A HANDICAP

Bombay, (CP)—Malaria, rampant in the great valleys on the Burma side of the Indian frontier, is a great handicap to the Japanese who are constantly obliged to carry out replacements of troops owing to sickness.

MAY BE DELAYS IN OBTAINING SALMON

Although every effort is being made by the Prices Board to secure widespread distribution of supplies of tinned salmon in advance of its rationing on January 17 ,it is possible that in some instances storekeepers may not possess stocks by that date. Accordingly, consumers are asked to be as forbearing as possible in the assurance of the Board that it is just as anxious as anyone else to have such stocks available on the date mentioned, when tinned salmon will be rationed on the basis of one meat coupon for every quarter-pound of salmon. This ration, it is emphasized, will not apply to other varieties of tinned fish.

TAKE NO CHANCES WITH BABY'S COLD

DON'T LET your baby's little cold develop into something worse. Let Mrs. Geo. McBride of Scarborough tell you what to do. "My baby of 26 months caught a nasty cold, so I tried Baby's Own Tablets and she threw this cold off quicker than ever before. I certainly am for Baby's Own Tablets from now on."

Baby's Own Tablets are sweet-tasting, easy to-take—and may be crushed to a powder if desired. Effective in teething troubles, constipation, simple fevers, diarrhoea, upset stomach, colic and summer complaint, simple croup and other minor ailments. Yet they are utterly free from opiates or stupefying drugs. An analyst's report is given in each package.

Red Cross Society Receipts $2,550 In Past Year

Stirling.— The local Red Cross held its annual meeting on Friday last with a good attendance. The new officers for 1944 are President, Mrs. Gordon Bailey; 1st Vice President, Mrs. T. F. Townsend; 2nd Vice President, Mrs. J. Whitehead; Treasurer, Mrs. E. G. Bailey; Secretary, Mrs. A. S. McConnell; Convener of Knitting, Mrs. J. B. Belshaw; Convener of Sewing, Mrs. E. Jackman; Convener of Quilts, Mrs. H. Foster and Convener of Entertainment, Mrs. C. I. Hatton. Mrs. G. Cottam, convener of Surgical Dressings.

The financial report for 1943 was very gratifying with a total received of $2,550.24. Of this amount the Entertainment Committee, in charge of Mrs. C. I. Hatton, raised $710.29 and the Salvage netted $69.80.

Mr. J. B. Belshaw reported 340 lbs of wool knitted into 735 different articles for the Forces, by the Stirling ladies with assistance from the ladies of River Valley. Mrs. E. Jackman reported 584 items of sewing completed by the local ladies, with the aid of River Valley ladies, Mrs. H. Foster reported 53 large quilts and ten crib quilts completed, Mrs. G. Cottam reported that 1,800 surgical gauze compresses per month had been made as well as many other surgical dressings. The above reports are very gratifying but the Red Cross can always do with extra workers. Are you doing your part? Come and join the ladies every Friday at the Community Hall workrooms.

On Friday, January 21st., the ladies are urged to bring any clean used or new clothing, as they are holding a shower for the Russian Relief. Search your cedar chests and clothes closets and see if you cannot supply some articles for this very worthy cause. The bridge and euchre marathon is under way for another season.

St. Paul's W.M.S.

St. Paul's W.M.S. held its January meeting at the home of Mrs. (Dr) P. V. Helliwell on Jan. 11th., with a splendid attendance. Mrs. Herb. David, 1st Vice President, was in charge of the worship service with Mrs. Bradburn, Mrs. (Rev) D. Gray, Miss M. Currie and Mrs. R. Patterson taking part. The theme of the Worship Service was "The Bible for all Canadian Children". The various reports and correspondence were read. Mrs. O. Stapley and Mrs. E. Jackman were appointed as auditors of the books. Mrs. Helliwell was in charge of the program. Mrs. C. E. Macklin sang a solo in regard to this Psalm. Mrs. G. Clute very capably took the chapter of the Study Book "God's Work Skillfully Done". The meeting closed with hymn and benediction. Lunch was served by the executive committee. Mrs. J. L. Good moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Helliwell who replied in Chinese "Tuh Ken Deng" translated "I am not worthy of your kind words".

Madoc Fair Bd. Members Told Society Has No Indebtedness; Wilfrid Forestall Elected Pres.

Last Year's Attendance Largest in History of the Fair

REPORTS GIVEN

At the annual meeting of the Madoc Agricultural Society held in the Cheese Board rooms at Madoc on Saturday, January 8th., Mr. Albert R. Woods was elected president of the Fair for 1944. He will succeed Mr. Wilfred Forestall and will be assisted by Messrs. Albert Caskey, 1st Vice President, Benjamin Miller, 2nd Vice President, James Miller, Treasurer, Will J. Hill, Secretary and Walter Brett and George West as Auditors.

President Wilfred Forestall addressed the large number of members who attended and, in his opening remarks expressed his appreciation and thanks to all the officers and members who had given him assistance to make a real fair possible in 1943, which was the best ever held in Madoc both financially and in exhibits. The gate receipts for 1943 were nearly $500 higher than in any year since the organization of the fair. He thanked those, who accepted the work, which fell to them and who willingly gave their best. He said, that the fair is in the position of being only second to all fairs in the province of Ontario in this class of fairs, and equalling some of higher classes.

Financial Statement Given

The financial statement of the society showed that the society had receipts of $4,293.98 and expenditures of $3,622.20, leaving a balance of $671.78 cash on hand. In 1943 the society purchased an $800 Government bond, paid $1,889 in prizes for agricultural purposes, held a Field Crop Competition and paid $220 for prizes. The society received no assistance from the government for this competition of oats and potatoes. They also contributed to the different units of the Red Cross, giving $15 to each of the units at Queensboro, Cooper, Hart, O'Hara, Ivanhoe, Madoc Village and Eldorado.

Reports Given

Reports were given by the directors on the several classes, which they represented. The deputation of ladies, Mrs. George Hill and Mrs. A. Henderson, of the Women's Institute, were assured, that the committee would do all they could to make more accommodation for them at the 1944 fair. Robert A. Woods, a former treasurer of the society, who resigned his office in July, 1943, reported on the conventions held at Belleville and Toronto. $5.00 was given to the Crop Improvement Association for membership.

Mr. Lynn Fair, Ontario Agricultural Society, addressed the meeting on pasture improvement, the address being instructive and educational to all farmers and agricultural societies, and a vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Fair. Mr. Hill, secretary of the society, felt that the many men who donated $2.00 to the fair should receive memberships, but no action was taken.

It was reported that the society has no indebtedness, having $2,100 in Government bonds and $671.78 cash in the bank.

1944 Date Set

The dates for the 1944 fair were set and will fall on October 3rd and 4th, the first Tuesday and Wednesday of the month. A field competition will be held and oats and potatoes will be in the competition. The grounds were rented to Wilfred Forestall and Will Bateman at the same rental as last year. A vote of thanks was extended Mr. Blue for the use of the rooms for the meeting, and a vote of sympathetic assurance was tendered to Edward Brown and Field Allan, who are ill in the Belleville General Hospital, with the hope for a speedy recovery.

A report was made on the cheese exhibit by Mr. McCaffery, which was keenly competed for with excellent prizes. The officials also thanked Mr. W. H. Morton for his interest in the Madoc fair each year. Mr. Morton and Will J. Hill, the secretary, have seen the Madoc fair grow in proportions during the past 30 years, and it was the unanimous decision of the meeting that Mr. Morton is one of the best cheese judges in Ontario, or Canada.

Election of Officers

The election of officers took place following the report made by Mr. McCaffery, and the Secretary wished to thank the exhibitors for his or her consideration in sending the entries in as early as possible. Although the Horse Racing Committee did not report, the thanks of the society go to them for their good work. Messrs. F. Curry, Walter Whytock, W. E. Tumon, J. McGowan and L. McAlrooney were thanked for their work and co-operation. Delegates to the Belleville conventon, Albert R. Woods, Will J. Hill, James Miller, Institute representative, were thanked for their work and the reports they submitted, as were those who attended the Toronto convention, Messrs. A. R. Wood, Will J. Hill, James Miller and Institute ladies.

Border Crossing Regulations Are Clearly Outlined

Further information regarding a relaxation of border-crossing regulations affecting native-born Canadian citizens, which becomes effective January 1, 1944, has been released by the American Embassy at Ottawa. In this release:—

"It was stated that although Canadian citizens and British subjects who are in possession of valid passports and non-immigrant visas, or border-crossing identification cards may, of course, continue to enter the United States with such documentation as in the past, native-born Canadian citizens, may, in the discretion of the United States immigration authorities, be admitted to the United States for visits of not to exceed 29 days, upon submitting satisfactory documentary evidence of their status as native-born Canadian citizens.

"It was also stated that such documentary evidence might be in the form of birth or baptismal certificate with a photograph of the true bearer attached in such a manner as to preclude the substitution of the photograph. The embassy indicated that photographs could be attached to birth certificates by bankers, Canadian immigration officers, barristers, police authorities, justices of the peace, or other civic authorities, having an official seal which could be impressed on the photograph and certificate.

"Other documentary evidence of Canadian birth which it is understood may prove acceptable to the United States immigration officials includes expired passports, or expired border-crossing cards, since such documents have photographs and information regarding the date and place of the bearer's birth. It was pointed out, however, that the type of documentary evidence which will be required is left under United States law to the discretion of the immigration officers at the border.

"This relaxation of the border-crossing restrictions, as they affect native-born Canadian citizens, has been made because of the desire to extend to Canadian citizens as nearly as possible the same privileges of entering the United States temporarily from Canada as the Canadian government grants to American citizens entering Canada. It was further stated at the embassy that the changes were made in recognition of the fact that Canada is an active co-belligerent with the United States in the present war; that there are no public transportation lines operating to Canadian ports from European or Asiatic ports; that Canada's only international boundary is that bordering on the United States; and that through the efficiency of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and the Canadian Immigration Service, the likelihood of dangerous aliens entering the United States from Canada has been reduced to a minimum".

Dead Navigator Thrown Into Ocean Saves U.S. Bomber

A U.S. Base in England, Jan. 13. (CP)—The crew of a shattered bomber struggling back from France on only one engine threw the body of their dead navigator into the English Channel help lighten their ship—and credited this with saving their lives.

"We followed the course he gave use before he died, and it brought us through", Pilot Lt. Glenn E. Jorgensen of Freewater, Ore., said today. "We had unanimous faith in his navigation".

Jettisoning their comrade's body was a grim decision to have to make, but with the plane dropping rapidly toward the ocean—with four wounded and two frostbitten men who would have drowned if the plane had 'ditched" in the sea—and the crew throwing everything loose overboard, from guns ad ammunition to their radio and even their helmets it was considered justified in an effort to save the lives of the other men.

The Bomber, "Conquest Cavalier", was jumped by eight twin-engined Messerschmitts and a Junkers-88 Rocket plane soon after it bombed northwest Germany a few days ago.

Canadian Air-Oxygen Mask One Of Best Used by Any Air Force

(In this fourth and last of a series of stories on research developments in the R.C.A.F., a Canadian Press Staff Writer tells of the development of safety devices for Canadian air crews.)

By JACK BRAYLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Jan. 13. (CP)—Canada not only pioneered in the field of high altitude flying training for air crew but R.C.A.F. research men and their civilian colleagues from the National Research Council combined to improve air oxygen masks.

They produced a mask that embodies an inter-communication microphone that is a component and not a clumsy appendage like those attached to less efficient masks. It also embodies comfort and was designed to exclude the engine drone and not affect radio reception—"Hugs" in previous equipment

As in many other scientific investigations, the German oxygen mask was studied and experiments were carried out with its novel microphone which picks up the sound at the throat instead of the mouth. But it was found that while gutteral German recorded well, mouthy English was less successful. Hence the mouthpiece microphone was developed and improved.

An "accordion" air tube that doesn't stiffen, even at extremely low temperatures, was developed and precision gadgets, still on the secret list were added to make the mask a first class job. Nothing was overlooked by Canada's painstaking scientists.

They even put a rubber trough on the intake valve so that moisture could not drip down the tube and put the mask out of operation by freezing and clogging the gadget in low temperatures.

But to familiarize Canadian crews with the hazards of flying in the upper ether and in the use of the modern oxygen equipment, the air force long ago inaugurated high-altitude training.

This was aimed chiefly at teaching the airmen the necessity of using their masks at altitudes over 10,000 feet and also giving them experience with high altitude symptoms so that when confronted with actuality they would be undisturbed in the job at hand.

The pilots and crewmen are taught how to get the best use of their equipment in the stratosphere, and running through the whole training plan is the theme of self-preservation and the need for expert use of the oxygen equipment.

Whitehall Notebook

By DOUG HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 13. (CP)—Small talk about folks and facts that have to do with Britain's parliament:

Hereford's M.P., J. P. L. Thomas has sidestepped one of war's obstacles to political success—lack of gasoline to let him get out among his rural constituents—by holding receptions in the three main centres of his district. . . .

Capt. Harry Longhurst, new M.P. for Action, was earning nearly $10,000 a year as a golfing journalist before the war. He won his way to Cambridge on scholarships. . . Parliament has a hunch it will be seeing Honor Balfour yet. The Conservatives barely beat her in a Darwen, Lancashire, by-election although the young brilliant journalist had no organization behind her and the press solidly against her. Although a member of the executive of the Liberal Party, she stood as an Independent Liberal in defiance of the wartime political truce. . .

The once-hectic argument over the proposal of the Postal Workers Union to affiliate with the Trades Union Congress is stirring again. No. 10 Downing Street stilled the clamor before by threatening the Civil Service Unions with loss of pension rights if they persisted.

Now Downing Street has reopened the subject and indications are negotiations are under way aiming at a compromise on some basis political purposes. . . .

Two Labor members watched Anthony Eden rise to deliver an important speech and hastily made a bet. One said the Foreign Secretary would pluck the handkerchief from his breast-pocket, roll it round in his hand and return it to the pocket at least 15 times while he spoke. He won. . .that procedure is Eden's favorite mannerism. . . .

The British institute of public opinion applied its Gallup poll to heckled, troubled Home Secretary Herbert Morrison about six weeks after his latest trial—the Mosley case. "Do you think", it asked, "Mr. Morrison is or is not doing a good job as home secretary".

Results showed 49 per cent said yes, 31 per cent said no and 20 per cent didn't know. In April, 1942, the same question found 50 per cent saying yes, 20 per cent saying no and 30 per cent without convictions.

TOKYO SAYS ALLIED PLANES ATTACKED BANGKOK

New York, Jan. 13 — (AP) — The Tokyo radio said today that Allied planes had raided Bangkok, capital of Thailand, for more than an hour last night but asserted only non-military facilities had been hit "due to swift interception by Japanese planes."

The broadcast, recorded by the U. S. Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service, described the attack as a follow-up to a three-hour raid on the same city Jan. 10.

BRIGADIER'S WIFE ENLISTS IN WOMEN'S ARMY

Fort Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Mrs. Pauline W. Goden of Carmel, Calif., wife of Brig.-Gen. D. A. D. Goden, has enlisted as a private in the United States Women's Army Corps. She is a cousin of Lt.-Gen. Jacob L. Devers, commander of U. S. ground forces in the Mediterranean theatre.

Fall Grains And Meadows May Be Hit by Frost

With fall grains and meadows lying bare with the exception of a bit of thin ice farther north, many farmers in the Belleville district are getting uneasy over their safety from frosts. Fields in the immediate Belleville area are completely bare while the same picture presents itself in Prince Edward County.

Whether or not the frosts will damage the meadows, winter wheat and rye seems to rate divided opinion from farmers. One well-known agriculturist in the Foxboro district asserted the continued frosts would do unprotected winter crops "no good", while another indicated they would be safe until the strengthening sun rays began to thaw during daytime.

"In my opinion it is the freezing at night coupled with the thawing during the daytime that caused the heaving and damaging of fall wheat and rye, and meadows", he said. "So far there has been no thawing during the day".

Need Snow For Logging.

North of Stirling and Holloway farmers are using their sleighs sparingly to get up their wood on the light covering of snow and ice but the possibility of wearing their shoeing is resulting in many awaiting more snow. It would be almost impossible to get sleighs re-shod today, farmers point out.

Another difficulty of farmers is getting their horses shod owing to scarcity of competent blacksmiths. The only "smithy", within 12 miles of Moira, is a young man who works during the day at a Belleville defence plant and shoes horses after supper. A mobile "smithy" who visits each farm with his equipment would be the answer to the problem in many cases, it is stated.

FRITZIE ZIVIC MEETS LA MOTTA IN DETROIT RING

BIG CROWD EXPECTED

By WATSON SPOELSTRA
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

Detroit, Jan. 13 —(AP)— If he didn't have a date next week with his draft board, Fritzie Zivic's fistic series with Jake La Motta might become a road show with real depth of tradition.

Flat-nosed Fritzie, last of Pittsburgh's fighting Zivic clan, tackles Jolting Jacob of the Bronx tomorrow night at Olympit Stadium in the fourth match of a series which La Motta leads, 2-1. New York and Pittsburgh liked the show and so will Detroit, Matchmaker Nick Londes declares, pointing to a big advance ticket sale. However, there's not even the reasonable facimile of a title at stake.

Naturally, Fritzie, thinks he'll beat beat La Motta over the 10-round route again tomorrow.

"La Motta's the kind of a fighter I can beat every night in the week," asserts Fritzie. "I'm not so fast as I once was, and I can't catch up with a guy who keeps going back. But La Motta comes right in, and then I let him have it."

All this time, La Motta says nothing, but his Detroit record needs no amplification. A relative unknown then, Jolting Jake fought his way to fame and a fat bankroll last year in the same riny where he secretly hopes to flatten Zivic tomorrow.

All told, Jake had six Detroit bouts that paid him close to $75,000. The record shows five victories, topped by an upset that ended Sugar RAay Robinson's long undefeated streak. His only Detroit defeat came in a return bout with Robinson. Both times La Motta had Sugar Ray on the floor.

KINGSTON ARMY BEATEN BY WINGS

Kingston, Jan. 13—(CP)—Detroit Red Wings waited 15 minutes to warm up last night, then struck for seven goals without reply to eras ea 2-0 deficit and pave the way for an 11-3 exhibition conquest of Kingston Frontenac Army.

The Army team, exiled from the Ontario Hockey Association's Senior "A" group this week by a Canadian Army ruling, jumped into command midway through the first period on goals by Gar Peters and Ab Corrigan, and held a 2-1 lead after Bill Jennings opened the scoring for the National Hockey League entry after 15 minutes of the period.

DETROIT, RANGERS PICK UP NEW PLAYING TALENT

Wings Get Goalie and Forward While Rangers Acquire Kilby MacDonald

PLAY IN KINGSTON

(By The Canadian Press)

Detroit Red Wings and New York Rangers, striving to improve their lowly standing in the National Hockey League, are relying heavily upon men discharged from the Canadian Army to bolster their forces.

The Red Wings, holding fourth place by a two-point margin over Chicago Black Hawks, acquired new strength last week with the addition of Murray Armstrong, formerly of Toronto Maple Leafs and the disbanded Brooklyn Americans.

Last night it was learned Detroit has added netminder Conny Dion and veteran forward Ken Kilrea, both discharged by the army in Kingston, Ont. In an exhibition game at Kingston last night against Kingston Frontenac Army, Detroit won an 11-3 decision over the team which recently withdrew from the Senior "A" group of the Ontario Hockey Association because of the Army's new ruling on amateur hockey participation.

Both Dion and Kilrea played against Kingston and may be in the lineup tonight when the Wings travel to Montreal for an N.H.L. engagement against the leading Canadiens.

Rangers, trailing the fifth-place Black Hawks by 11 points, entertain the Chicago Club at New York tonight in a game which may mark the return to professional hockey of Kilby MacDonald, Calder tropny winner with Rangers in 1939-40. MacDonald, former Ottawa and Northern Ontario player, has been acquired from Buffalo Bisons of the American League in return for Hub Macey, last year with Rangers, Lester Lubeck and Spencer Patchell.

Pukka Gin Is Early Choice For Kentucky Derby in May

By The Canadian Press

The assigning of weights yesterday by John B. Campbell, New York racing secretary, for three-year-olds entered in the experimental handicap, sux-furlong dash at Jamaica's spring meeting, gave the first clue to racing qualifications of Kentucky Derby candidates. Top weight of 126 pounds was given Pukka Gin, owned by Lt.-Col. Sonny Whitney, thus giving the unofficial nod to the winner of the champagne stake at Belmont last fall as early choise for the Kentucky classic.

George D. Widener's Platter was given 124 pounds after capturing the Pimlico Futurity and Waldon Stakes as a two-year-old while Occupy, voted the two-year-old champion of 1943, Brownell Combs' Durazna and Warren Wright's Miss Keeneland shared third place in the handicapping with 121 pounds.

New York Rangers of the N.H.L. last night announced the acquisition of three players, Kilby MacDonald who, as a former Ranger, captured the Calder Cup as the league's outstanding rookie in 1939-40; Hank Damore from the Brooklyn Crescents and Jimmy Jamieson of the New York Rovers.

Angelo Bartelli, former quarterback of Notre Dame Irish until called up by the U. S. Marines, yesterday was awarded the Heisman Trophy by the Downtown Athletic Club, New York, as the outstanding gridiron player of the past season.

The Board of Review, United States Trotting Association, at Columbus O., yesterday withheld action in the appeal of driver Clint Hodgen of Clandeboye, Ont., from a 60-day suspension and a fine of $150 following a saliva test on Elgin, a horse driven by him at Cleveland's North Randall track last season. Hodgen based his appeal on the premise he was not the owner of the horse.

President Al Banister of the Columbus Red Birds, three-time winners of the junior world series, yesterday announced the reaigning of Nick Cullop as manager after Cullop had received the award of 'minor league manager of the year.'

Wilfred (Rosy) Ryan, former pitcher of the New York Giants, was signed by president Mike Kelly yesterday to manage the Minneapolis team of the American Association, succeeding Tom Sheehan who had been in charge of the team since 1939.

Toronto, Jan. 13 — (CP)—There's a great scramble around the country to affix the blame for blow-up of service hockey. Actually the Army-R.C.A.F. withdrawal from senior leagues was the result of dozens of incidents and nearly every section of the country is responsible to some extent.

In the first place, the C.A.H.A. lost control of the game partly when it permitted free transfer of service personnel. Service officials took advantage of this situation by transferring players from team to team during play-offs with an eye to hockey rather than service training needs. Rink and team officials contributed by offering financial inducement to athletes enlisting in certain cities. They used influence to direct some service postings. Men who normally would have gone overseas were kept in Canada from hockey season to hockey season.

Public suspicion that service names were being used to cloak commercial hockey enterprises reflected on our war effort. But even so opinion might never have crystallized against service hockey had it not been for incidents such as the Broda case and some ill-advised statements by hockey officials.

The public will not stand for any suggestion the armed forces are being used as tools to promote civilian enterprise. Heads of the services rightfully intend to make sure there is no foundation for any such suggestion. For that reason alone, air force and army heads were wise in withdrawing from hockey.

They couldn't be expected to swallow the proposition of president Jack Ryan of the Pacific Coast Senior League, who announced the league has withdrawn from Allan Cup competition in hopes army and air force teams would be permitted to continue; and in the same breath said that any team in the league could challenge for the Cup when the play-offs begin. To accept such a proposition would be an admission of stupidity.

Incidentally:

Kilby MacDonald, who won the Calder Trophy with New York Rangers as the National Hockey League's outstanding rookie of 1939-40, has been discharged from the Army at Montreal and has located with Buffalo ... Shep Mayer, who had a brief fling in the majors last season with Toronto Leafs, now is an R.C.A.F. pilot officer and has been playing this year with Pennfield R.A.F. station in New Brunswick ... Wilf Cude, former Canadiens goalie, is coaching the junior Canadiens in Montreal.

Stirling-Marmora Combines Bringing Along Big Crowds

Elated over their win from the Trenton "Flyers" Coach Wally Hilton's Stirling-Marora "Combines" see nothing but victory then they invade the Hume Arena for the first time this season Friday night to met the Belleville juniors in a regular junior O.H.A. fixture.

"Our squad is in swell shape following three weeks of strenuous practice. The strength of our team defensively was clearly shown Monday night when the Combines beat the highly-advertised "Flyers" 2 to 0 despite the fact Coach Mike Dziuras' squad of Airmen boasted of five former junior "A" pucksters. Frankly we're out to rub out the stain Belleville put on us last year and if our boys continue to improve we shouldn't lose a game in the group schedule," prophesied Coach Hilton today as the Combines were slated to practice on the home ice tonight.

Following last night's workout at the Hume Arena Coach Holway announced he had bolstered his defence for Friday night's game. "We may give 16-year-old Allan Belleher a chance to show his defensive tactics. Allan should slow the Combines down to a snail's pace. Doug Day is another kid who isn't afraid to clip 'em coming in either. After all we've scored 11 goals in two games and what's Stirling so elated about, one of their goals against against the Flyers was a pure fluke," remarked Coach Holway today as he predicted his kids would make Belleville fans proud of their team.

Then to add color to the picture the Belleville Municipal Band will be in attendance to entertain the patrons and encourage Belleville's own sons on to victory. It looks like a hot time in the old town Friday night.

COSTLY REFUSAL

Bromley, England, (CP)—In July, 1941, G. W. R. Thompson was ordered by a court to destroy his dog and told he would be fined $4.50 for every day the animal continued to live. He has paid $2,250 and still refuses to kill the dog.

Three Senior Teams Draft New Schedule

Toronto, Jan. 13— (CP)— The three remaining teams in Senior "A" group of the Ontario Hockey Association—Toronto Navy, Hamilton Majors and St. Catharines Saints—last night decided to continue with a revised schedule, to be released Friday.

At an emergency meeting with an O.H.A. sub-committee, the teams drafted a schedule up to and including Feb. 28, when the first two teams will play off for the Senior "A" O.H.A. championship. Games and dates for the play-offs will be arranged later.

The schedule revision—fourth since the season started—was made necessary by withdrawal of Kingston Frontenac Army under the army's new code for hockey. Toronto R.C.A.F. and Toronto Army Daggers previously were affected by service regulations regarding hockey.

The revised schedule to Jan. 19: Navy at St. Catharines, Jan. 14; Hamilton at Navy, Jan. 17; Navy at Hamilton, Jan. 19.

CASUAL COMMENT

by K.J.C.

Full of Drawbacks.

On his round of Christmas visits, the vicar called on Farmer Hawkins, a born pessimist.

"I'm glad to know your wife is better," began the vicar brightly.

"Not so bad for them as don't 'ave to dig in it!"

"Well at least you seem to have a good supply of water."

"Maybe, but it's all to be pumped!"

The vicar played his last card.

"It's nice weather, at any rate."

"Yes, for them as ain't nothin' to do but enjoy it!"

No Ill Wind Here.

When the R. C. A. F. heads at Ottawa barred Air Force hockey teams from Allan and Memorial Cup competition for the duration it is quite possible Bay of Quinte district hockey fans may yet benefit from the banning.

In the Quinte district an R. C. A. F. service hockey loop is ready to function and there is no regulations against service hockey in the Army or Air Force. Four teams comprise the district loop, the No. 6 Repair Depot, Trenton Main Station, Mountain View and Deseronto "Mohawks". All games are to be played Mondays and Thursdays at the Hume Arena.

With the assurance of a service league that has a year's operation behind it is not too much to expect there may be the odd named hockey player posted to the district camps, now that the senior Air Force puck squads have been disbanded. After all—it's an ill wind that blows no person some good.

Air Force Sports.

The latest communique from F/L. "Buff" Horton's Trenton R. C. A. F. camp was a lengthy one, some seven typewritten pages to be exact.

All in all F/L. Horton has organized 2 hockey teams at the Trenton main station and they operate in four groups and play all games on the R. C. A. F. open air rink, that is lighted as brilliantly as the Hume Arena.

For instance the Service Police have two teams under Sgts. Card and Carswell, even the smart Trenton R. C. A. F. band entered a service team with LAC. Yates in charge. The Motor Transports and Firefighters are under Cpl. Dart, while the disciplinarians and P. T. & Drill squads are under F/C. Walker. The Equipment Depot has two teams with Sergt. Geo. Tessier and Sgt. Purse in charge with WO2. Pinkney heading the Senior N. C. O.'s. The Central Flying School has an "A" and "B" puck squad under F/Sgt. Cole and WO2. Burdick with WO2. Newman heading the strong Headquarters Staff sextette. F/Sgt. Kinniburgh has charge of the K. T. S. team, while Cpl. Heggie has the toughest allotment, looking after three teams from the Flying Instructors' School, which no doubt takes in No. 8 Manning Depot and all the good junior players. George Tessier also has the Flying Control team, while the Flying Instructors Staff teams are managed by F/O. McLean and F/L. Studer. This all reminds us that F/L. Horton's junior "Flyers" are scheduled to play in Trenton tonight and it's even money the Trenton kids will meet a much different squad than bowed out in Stirling Monday.

"Buff" proudly points to the fact his Trenton basketball teams have yet to meet defeat in Service competition this season, his men's team winning nine straight while the Women's Division "Flyerettes" have taken four consecutive service games without a reverse. Walt Zeaton of Winnipeg is back with Trenton, while Pat Flynn is scheduled to return to the Trenton lineup soon. Incidentally F/L. Horton invited hockey fans up to take in the Service Hockey games, that are scheduled every week night, except possibly Friday.

Shows the Way.

Out in Stirling Monday night the Combines drew something like 500 customers for their game with the junior "Flyers", which is nearly half the population of the entire village. Billie Whitty's native town was always noted as being a strong supporter of hockey and the way the good people of Central Hastings are backing the "Combines" proves this. After all Coach Wally Hilton has garnered together a strong junior squad that will make it initial appearance at the Hume Arena tomorrow night. Already demands for reserve seats for the Belleville-Combine game are being received from the Stirling-Marmora district indicating the Combines mean business when they cross sticks with Toots Holway's charges Friday night at the Market St. ice palace. About 500 saw Belleville open the season with a win and there's no reason why this figure shouldn't be doubled for the Combine game. After all Belleville has a home-brew team and the group leadership is at stake.

Remember When—

Just four years ago tonight the New York Rangers defeated the Toronto Maple Leafs, 4 to 1, and set a new league record of 19 consecutive games without a loss. Their mark surpassed Les Canadiens' streak of 18 set in 1927-'28. However, the Boston Bruins, in 1940-'41, established a record of 23 games without a loss, a string which still stands.

Outfield Record.

When Toronto and Rochester of the International League battled for 19 innings, July 24 last, Paul Vargo, Red Wing right fielder, probably set an all-time record for activity in his position for a single game. Wargo had 14 putouts and one assist during the contest, seven of the chances being handled during the regulation nine innings and eight in overtime.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 275

The Kibitzer

By SAM GORDON

There is romance in every bridge deal. An interesting adventure goes with every bridge problem. Rabid bridge fans never seem to tire of giving each other their love and understanding.

Take this pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH
♠A K 6 3 2
♥7 5 3
♦A 5
♠9 8 7 5 4
♥A K 2
♦K Q
♣5 4 2

Before you get through making eyes at these cards, you will be in a small slam. And the way you take the 12 tricks is going to send you out on a prowl for more like it.

You are the dealer in south. You pick up the south cards. You are the first player to pass or bid. You must decide at once which you will do.

To start with a bid of one in anything you need five tricks. Among those five tricks, you need four high cards. Among those four high cards, you need two sure tricks.

Tricks are aces, kings, queens, short cards; at one apiece. You have three aces, two kings, one queen, and one short card in diamonds. So you have seven tricks.

High cards are aces, kings, queens. So you have six high cards. A sure trick is an ace or a K Q. An A K is called two sure tricks. So you have five sure tricks.

You have enough for an opening bid of one; and a little more in each department. If you have a biddable suit, your bid is one in that suit. With no biddable suit, it is one no-trump.

A biddable suit is any four cards with two faces; any five cards with one face; or any six cards. You have such a suit in spades. So, your opening bid in the south is one spade.

Your opening bid of one spade tells the least you have in each of the four important items. It does not deny having more. If you have more, you can tell about it later.

There's romance in them thar cards.

"Tarzan's Secret Treasure"

Twenty trained elephants got their first glimpse of a screen studio when the pachyderms arrived for the river battle between themselves, chimpanzees and tribesmen for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Tarzan's Secret Treasure", with Johnny Weissmuller and Maureen O'Sullivan, now playing at the Capitol Theatre.

The elephants, recruited from circuses in the East, were domiciled in the man-made jungle and along the man-made river covering a sixty-acre tract three miles from the studio proper. Trainers, under chief trainer George Emerson, educated them for the "battle".

The jungle set was the largest piece of engineering ever achieved for a Tarzan picture. More than a hundred huge trees and tons of other vegetation were transplanted along the river, which flowed the length of the set, curving in and out among the trees.

Lions, hippopotami, apes, crocodiles, rhinoceros and other wild animals figure in the action.

"Campus Rhythm"
(Musical Comedy)

Six new songs form an important part of "Campus Rhythm", the Monogram college musical film which is now playing at the Capitol Theatre, and some of them, it is claimed, are definitely headed for the Hit Parade.

The four numbers sung by Gale Storm, who plays the leading feminine role in the picture, are "Swingin, My Way Through College", "I Wish I Were a College Girl", and "Walkin' a Chalk Line", words and music for all of which were written by Lou Herscher, and "But Not You" by Edward Cherokee and Edward Kay. The two songs of GeGe Pearson, radio actress and singer, are "You Character!" and "It's Mutiny", both written by Cherokee and Kay. The latter was musical director of the picture.

Principal male roles opposite Miss Storm in "Campus Rhythm" are played by Johnny Downs and Robert Lowery, and the cast also includes Herbert Hayes, Claudia Drake, Doug Leavitt, Johnny Duncan, Marie Blake and the split-voiced comedian, Candy Candino. Arthur Dreifuss directed for producer Lindsley Parsons.

A funny cartoon and the serial "Secret Service in Darkest Africa", complete the grand weekend bill.

"This is the Army" Holds

The screen production of Irving Berlin's "This is the Army," filmed in technicolor by Warner Bros., for Army Emergency Relief is held over until the end of the week, matinee daily, thus giving many an opportunity to see it again.

Directed by Michael Curtiz, the picture presents Irving Berlin and the original company of 350 soldiers who performed the musical for three months on Broadway and toured in the show last winter, making two million dollars for Army Emergency Relief.

Several Hollywood personalities have been added to appear in the picture. Amng them are George Murphy, Joan Leslie, Lieut. Ronald Regan, Kate Smith, George Tobias, Alan Hale, Charles Butterworth, Una Merkel, Frances Langford and Gertrude Niesen. Sergt. Joe Louis also appears in the film.

A Bugs Bunny colorfun cartoon and an excellent M.G.M. miniature film precedes the feature offering.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Flesh and Fantasy"

Stories by Oscar Wilde, Lasio Vadnay and Ellis St. Joseph have been combined in the fascinating plot of "Flesh and Fantasy." A superlative cast of players includes Edgar Barrier, Thomas Mitchel, C. Aubrey Smith, Anna Lee, Dame May Whitty and Charles Winniger.

The program completes itself with a technicolor cartoon, "There's Something About a Soldier," the latest "World in Action," "Our Northern Neighbors" plus British Associated News which starts next and continues to the end of the week. Every week some local boy is pictured in this "News"—come and pick out your loved one. The management of the McCarthy Theatre takes real pleasure bringing this news feature for your happiness.

COMPLAINTS FORWARDED

Toronto, Jan. 13. (CP)— Complaints received by Toronto Board of Control against travelling accommodations afforded members of the armed forces in Canada and abroad were forwarded today to the Department of National Defence.

Con. Fred Hamilton tabled a letter from E. A. Bruce protesting that a group of navy men, including his son, recently travelled from Toronto to Saint John, N.B., in Colonists' cars on a train hauling eight cars for the use of civilians.

Con. D. A. Balfour who recently lost a son in action, reported that another son had been forced to travel in a box car after being released from hospital in the Mediterranean theatre.

Kingston, Jan. 13 — (CP) — Souvenir hunters are hindering bombing practice, forcing students to stop as much as an hour before scheduled some days, complain officials of No. 31 Service Flying Training School, R.A.F., at nearby Collins Bay. Dozens of persons are reported to be salvaging scraps from practice bombs dropped on the ice over the Bay of Quinte and on the Rideau River.

KISTS SPRINGS SURPRISE ON OSHAWA SQUAD

Galt Team Blanks Generals for Their Second Loss in 14 Starts

MARLBOROS WIN

(By The Canadian Press)

Galt Kists sprang a real surprise in the junior "A" series of the Ontario Hockey Association last night at Oshawa by blanking the Generals 3-0 for the latter's second defeat in 14 scheduled starts, the visitors gaining a first-place share in Group 2 with St. Catharines Falcons as a result. Oshawa continued to hold top rung in the standing of Group 1, but only two points ahead of St. Michael's College.

The smallest crowd of the winter at Oshawa witnessed wide-open hockey which brought no scores in the first period but Galt went to the front in the second stanza on goals by Johnny Obriaco and Nellie Podolsky and held off the crashing homesters in the third frame to finish off the fray with a third score by Dave Morland on a pass from Podolsky. The nature of the rousing encounter can be gleaned from the fact 14 penalties were distributed during the 60 minutes.

Rohfritsch of Kroehlers notched the first counter in the other game at Stratford but Harding of Toronto Marlboros soon equalized the count and the Queen City crew came through with a 4-3 win despite a strong rally by the home club all during the third period. Marlboros held a 2-1 lead for the first period and extended it to 4-1 at the close of the second session after which Jackson and McKelvey scored for Kroehlers with Goalie Gilson of Toronto credited with many saves in the closing stages. Marlboro scorers were Harding, Schewchuk, Gabourie and Lawlan; for Kroehlers, Rohfritsch, Jack Jackson and McKelvey.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

New York, Jan. 13. (AP)—Risking a long-range prediction: The post-war sports boom you've been hearing about will be in the amateur, rather than the professional, field. . . . Pro sports in the United States won't find the going very easy under the proposed National Service Law, although some may survive. . . . Meanwhile college athletics get the benefit of U.S. navy support and leaders feel certain that any American demobilization plan will include subsidies of some sort to encourage boys to resume their college studies. . . . That should equip the colleges with mature, experienced athletes and at the same time eliminate the lure of a little quick dough for playing professionally. . . .Another prediction: If all this takes place, the colleges will spoil their own racket by hoisting prices to five bucks for any $1.50 football game, just as they did back in the twenties.

When Admiral William Halsey returned from the South Pacific just in time to see the Shrine east-west football game New Year's Day, he tried to slip into his seat without being recognized. . .He almost had succeeded when his foot slipped and landed on the toes of an army private. . . ."Ow", protested the soldier, "Look where you're going, Mac". . . The Admiral turned and the private, recognizing the grin he had seen in newspaper photos, flushed and snapped into a salute. . . . .Then he stuck out his other foot and asked: Please step on that, too".

What's Doing in Sport

Chattanooga, Tenn.—(AP)—Norman "Kid" Elberfeld, 69, famed veteran of the major leagues, was reported growing weaker at his home here from pneumonia, it was reported last night by his physician.

Buffalo—(AP)—Manager of the Buffalo Bisons in the International League last season, Greg Mulleavy yesterday was signed to manage the Lockport Club in the Pony League, it was announced by Owner William J. Schumacher. Mulleavy succeeds Roy Johnson who will coach the Chicago Cubs.

Vancouver — (CP) — Canadian Navy headquarters here announced last night the Navy team would complete its schedule in the Pacific Coast Senior Hockey League unless orders are received from Ottawa to cancel this plan. The team will not enter Allan Cup playdowns, in any event, it was stated.

Chicago — (AP) — Artful Willie Hoppe, king of the cue ball, held firmly to his lead over San Francisco's Welker Cochran today in their 2,150-point cross-country exhibition three-cushion billiard match. Hoppe won the final of yesterday's three 50-point blocks, 50 to 49, in 53 innings, after dropping the first two sessions.

Chicago—(AP)—Lowell D. (Larry) Rutherford, President of the Board of Directors of the Chicago District Golf Association, said last night the Chicago victory National open golf tournament, won last year by Sammy Byrd, will be held again in 1944 on June 28 through July 2.

BARONS CATCH UP WITH HERSHEY IN AMERICAN LOOP

BISONS WIN

By The Canadian Press

Cleveland Barons have finally caught up to Hershey Bears and now both teams stand tied for top honors in the American Hockey League race.

Sparked by centre Tommy Burlington who scored two goals, Barons last night whipped Bears 5-2 for the first time this season. In the only other league game scheduled Buffalo Bisons defeated Pittsburgh Hornets 4-3.

In 29 games played this season, Bears have won 18, tied five and lost six. Barons have the same number of victories and draws to give them a total of 41 points, but have lost seven encounters.

Burlington became the league's leading scorer with 17 goals and 26 assists. Bears' captain Wally Kilrea got only one assist and dropped back into second place with 41 points.

In the Bison-Hornet tangle Eldred Kobussen scored the winning goal at 18:29 in the third period after both teams were tied with two counters each.

Pittsburgh marksmen were Wendell Jamieson, who counted twice and Tony Hemmerling. Other Buffalo goal getters were Fred Thurier, Fred Hunt and Lloyd Klein.

LEARN TO COOK

MAJOR BASEBALL WANTED ON WEST COAST AFTER WAR

Los Angeles Willing to Operate Franchise in Big Time

WANT FOOTBALL TOO

By FRANK FRAWLEY
Associated Press Sport Writer

Los Angeles, Jan. 13—(AP)— In one manner or another, Los Angeles intends to have a major league baseball franchise after the war, and it fully expects, also, to be represented in the National Professional Football League.

The nation's fourth largest city has been supporting, and liberally, a first class minor league club, the Los Angeles Angels, who have out drawn at the turnstiles some of the major loop representatives, but, as Clarence (Pants) Rowland puts it, "we'll simply have to get Major League Baseball when this war is over."

Rowland, a shrewd veteran of the baseball wars, was voted the minor leagues' top executive in 1943. He made the Angeles the best drawing Minor League Club in America last season. He envisions the possibility of a third Major League, operating from Portland, Ore., south to Los Angeles.

"This Pacific Coast area is the fastest growing in the nation," says Pants. "If my associate presidents don't agree with me in striving to get our league classified as a third major, then Los Angeles is going out to buy into the American or National just as soon as a franchise is available."

There are several hurdles to clear, as Rowland knows all too well. There was an amendment to the Major-Minor agreement enacted at the last session providing that if any Major League team was placed in this territory the purchaser would have to acquire the physical property, reimburse the Coast League for loss of a member and also reimburse the league owners, individually.

Football Loop Gets Three Bids For Franchises

Casting an eye beyond 1944 to the post-war future, executives convened today in the final session of their annual midwinter meeting with action still to be taken on bids for franchises from Buffalo, N.Y., Los Angeles and San Francisco.

There appeared to be three alternatives emerging from yesterday's oratory:

1—To continue its pre-war size of 10 teams by having two clubs merge such as Philadelphia and Pittsburgh did last year.

2—To operate as an 11-team setup with Boston, which was granted a franchise last June, going into business as a sixth member of the eastern division.

3—To accept Buffalo's franchise, backed by Sam Cordovano, line coach under Lou Little for 14 years at Columbia and four other prominent Buffalo business men, and operate as a 12-team league with Buffala joining the western division.

It is understood the league executives were split 50-50 on all three propositions.

The War Today—
Nazi Air Force, German Aircraft Industry Suffer Major Defeat

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

America's air-fleet administered a major defeat, physical and moral, to the Hitlerites in Tuesday's giant daylight battle over Germany.

The attack was carried to the heart of Nazi defensive strength—a grand achievement. It did great damage to three of the chief aircraft assembly plants of the hard-pressed Reich, thereby inflicting a grievous wound on enemy aircraft production at the crucial moment of the war when the Nazis are girding themselves for invasion of Western Europe.

Airmen shot down some 100 Nazi fighter planes. But only the Germans know how many hundreds of aircraft were destroyed in the plants at Oschersleben, Halberstadt and Brunswick has been cut down by this attack, but it undoubtedly is large.

It was a good job. I hear a lot of folk trying to estimate the value of that daring operation by the number of men and aircraft lost. Certainly a loss of 595 men and 64 aircraft, including 59 huge bombers, is a tough blow. But you can't figure the thing on that basis.

Importance of Objective

When the air command considers such an attack the cardinal question to be asked is: Are the objectives worth the risk? If that can be answered with a "yes," then the project is justifiable. It would remain justifiable even if the attack failed of its purpose, through no fault of the forces.

What, say you, would it cost in lives, time and money to make our way across Western Europe with a land army to those three German cities and destroy the aircraft plants? The answer is that every time we carry out a successful air assault we are doing the work of a great ground force.

We shall have a chance to check on that before long, when we put an army of invasion ashore in Western Europe. And it's well for us to get our minds adjusted to the idea that we are going to see some very heavy Allied losses. Tuesday's unprecedented air battle was a mild preview of what we must expect at the time of invasion, and casualties in landing troops will be hard to bear.

Publishers Oppose Newsprint Stockpile

New York, Jan. 13 — (AP)—The Publishers Association of New York City opposes the United States' War Production Board's plan for a government-owned stockpile of newsprint paper on the grounds that it is impracticable and that "it would be unwise thus to open the door for the substitution of judgment of government officials for that of newspaper publishers."

A unanimous resolution of the 15 major papers of the Metropolitan area said: "The sounder method would be to distribute all paper produced as it becomes available, leaving to the determination of individual publishers the extent to which inventories may be increased and leaving to the judgment of these publishers the decision as to when and how newsprint may be used within the limitations" of the newsprint conservation order.

The W.P.B. is working on a stockpile plan it developed after Canada increased to 200,000 tons a month, from 182,000, the amount of newsprint it expected to ship to the United States in the first half of 1944. The W.P.B. curtailed United States consumption to match the 182,000-ton rate and plans to store the balance.

HAS NOT RECEIVED PRESENTS

Chicago, Jan. 13 (AP)—Sgt. Frank Rocke, veteran of 50 bombing raids in North Africa, arrived home for the first time since he entered the army 19 months ago. The Christmas tree lights shone through the front windows at his home—but his Christmas presents were not there. They were sent to him abroad last October and haven't caught up with him yet.

CONTROL MEASURES HAVE FREED CANADIANS FROM THE VASTLY HIGHER PRICE BURDENS OF THE LAST WAR

British Member Of Parliament Named in Suit

Elizabeth, N. J., Jan. 12 — (AP)—Counsel for James H. R. Cromwell, charged in court today that the former Doris Duke Cromwell had turned him out of their home in favor of an unidentified member of the British Parliament.

"The acme of refined cruelty was reached," James E. Toolan told Advisory Master Dougal Herr in Chancery Court, "when Mr. Cromwell's valet, calling at Duke farms for Mr. Cromwell's clothes, was compelled to wait several hours, until noon time, because Mr. Cromwell's bedroom was then occupied by his successor in his wife's affection, a truant member of the British parliament who found Duke farms as well as Mrs. Cromwell's home in Honolulu more relaxing than London, then undergoing the fury of Teutonic bombing"

"She saw no virtue in concealing her current affection," said Toolan, State Senator from Middlesex county.

Charges Husband 'Humiliated'

Toolan also charged that the former Doris Duke, tobacco heiress often referred to as the wealthiest girl in the world, had "humiliated" her husband while he was Minister to Canada and contributed heavily to his defeat in an election for United States Senator from New Jersey.

Toolan and Meyer Ruback, his co-counsel, asked the New Jersey Chancery Court to take three steps: declare Mrs. Cromwell's Reno divorce null and void, enjoin her from claiming a divorce or taking any advantage under the Reno decree, and attempt to persuade the court at Reno to set aside its decree on the strength of New Jersey evidence that her true residence was not in Nevada.

Cromwell Seeks Limited Divorce

Cromwell is seeking in New Jersey a limited divorce, under which neither party could remarry. He did not answer her Reno suit and she has ignored his New Jersey suit.

Toolan accused Cromwell's multimillionaire wife of "reprehensible" conduct while Cromwell was the American envoy at Ottawa early in 1940.

"She humiliated him greatly," said Toolan, "by her indifference and her rejection of those duties which necessarily rested upon the wife of a high diplomatic official. The story of that conduct and her carrying-on in Ottawa will have to be told at the divorce hearing in this cause, painful and shocking as that story will be."

Toolan continued: "Mrs. Cromwell at Honolulu was unexpectedly delivered of a child. Cromwell, intending at once to interrupt and if need be abandon his campaign, cabled her he was coming on by the next Clipper."

She refused to see him, a "cruel step" intended to make the public believe he was more interested in the campaign than in her.

Advisory Master Herr gave Mrs. Cromwell 30 days in which to answer.

Outlines Scope Of Veterans' Land Act

Toronto, Jan. 12 (CP)—G. Marchison of the Administrative Staff of the Federal Government's Veterans Land Act today outlined the purposes and scope of the statute in an address to the annual convention of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture.

"The act will fail in its purpose," he said, "unless its benefits can be extended to 100,000 veterans in Canada, 20,000 to 30,000 of them in Ontario.

The operations of the act, which gives veterans a credit for $6,000 to establish themselves on farm lands, were on a long-term basis and would not mature for 10 years after hostilities ceased.

Mr. Merchison said Ontario's problem was to rehabilitate more than 250,000 men and women from the province now serving in the forces. Of these he estimated almost 30,000 were farmers.

Arrangements had been completed with Canadian manufacturers to commence delivery of new farm machinery in the spring of 1945, he said.

The Federation endorsed a resolution to study the question of farm credits and seek to have the Canadian Federation of Agriculture and the Ontario Agricultural Commission of inquiry investigate farm credit in the United States, Suburban Credit Unions, the Veterans Land Act and the Soldiers' Settlement Act.

John W. Dafoe Laid to Rest

Winnipeg, Jan. 13 —(CP)— The body of John W. Dafoe, leading Canadian newspaperman, educationist and author on Dominion and International Affairs, was laid to rest in Elmwood Cemetery here late Wednesday after one of Winnipeg's largest funeral services.

Almost all of the Winnipeg Free Press staff paid respect to their president and editor-in-chief and hundreds of others, including leaders of the newspaper, political, educational and business life of Canada crowded into St. Matthew's Anglican Church for the simple but impressive service.

Canon George R. Calvert conducted the service and Archbishop L. Ralph Sherman of Rupert's land diocese read a comforting chapter from Corinthians and pronounced the benediction. The closing hymn was "Jesus, Lover of My Soul."

Some of those who attended were pioneers who, like Mr. Dafoe, had travelled the dusty ox-cart trails of Manitoba 50 years ago, compositors of the hand-setting days, or athletes who played lacrosse with him on a lot that now is the city's Central Park.

Officials of the federal government, provincial and civic administrations were there. Lieut.-Gov. R. F. McWilliams of Manitoba represented the Governor-General; Hon. T. A. Crerar, Federal Minister of Mines and Resources, was present as a Dominion Government representative, and Premier Stuart S. Garson represented the province.

Jap Attempted Landings Fail In New Guinea

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Jan. 13 —(AP)— Swift patrol-torpedo boats of the United States navy, darting at night among barges crowded with Japanese, are blasting to the bottom of Vitiaz Strait many of the enemy trying to escape a jungle trap closing on them along the Huon Peninsula coast of New Guinea.

Allied Headquarters reported the sinking of nine barges and the severe damaging of 11 others by P.T. boats operating in darkness offshore between Saidor and Sio.

"Many of the barges contained enemy troops," the communique said.

Australians now are battling northwestward within five miles of Sio, From Saidor, invaded by U. S. 6th Army elements from the sea Jan. 2, the other jaw of the nutcracker is being pushed southeastward. Japanese trapped within the approximately 55 intervening miles are taking to barges, preferring night movements apparently in an effort to avoid Allied bombers.

In all, Headquarters reported the aerial and naval destruction of 43 more barges, including two loaded with troops which were sunk by U. S. marine artillery while seeking to reinforce Nipponese now battling American invaders at Borgen Bay on northwestern New Britain.

W. Nova Scotias Fight in Italy Says Communique

Algiers, Jan. 13 —(AP)— Allied Headquarters officially announced Thursday that the West Nova Scotia Regiment has been fighting in Italy up to Dec. 14, 1943.

The West Nova Scotia battalion had been generally known to be in Italy, as part of the Canadian 1st Division with which it fought throughout the Sicilian campaign last summer, but its presence on the Italian mainland had not previously been formally announced.

Thursday's brief announcement gave no details. The West Nova Scotias are the 10th Canadian unit to be formally identified as fighting in Italy. The nine others are:—

The Royal Canadian Regiment, the 48th Highlanders of Canada (Toronto) and the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, which together make up the 1st brigade of the division;

The Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, the Seaforth Highlanders of Canada (Vancouver) and the Loyal Edmonton Regiment, which makes up the 2nd brigade.

The Carleton and York Regiment (New Brunswick), the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards and the Three Rivers Tank Regiment.

Also known to be in Italy, though not formally identified by Headquarters up to now, is the Royal 22nd Regiment of Quebec. All these battalions fought in Sicily before the invasion of the Italian mainland.

Improvement in Quality of Cheese Expected to Benefit Dairy Industry

London, Ont., Jan. 12 —(CP)—Recent improvement in the quality of Canadian cheese may have far-reaching effects beneficial to the whole dairy industry, W. C. Cameron, of Ottawa, acting chief of the Agriculture Department Dairy Products Grading and Inspection Services, said today in addressing the dairymen's association of Western Ontario Annual Convention.

Of all cheese manufactured in Canada in 1943, 95.02 per cent was found to be first grade, an increase of 1.34 per cent over 1942.

"Of greater importance is the fact that 70.94 per cent of all cheese graded scored 93 points or higher which is an increase of 4.91 per cent," Mr. Cameron said.

Total cheese gradings in 1943 were 22.54 per cent less than in 1942. The decrease was unfortunate because of the United Nations' need for food, but it did not indicate a slackening of the production effort, as milk output had been maintained. The demand for all dairy products for home use and export had been exceedingly heavy in the past year.

The improved quality of cheese had resulted in producers receiving larger payments in premiums. While the production of cheese and dropped 22.5 per cent, the disbursement of premium payments by the Dominion was down only 16.7 per cent.

"The present position of Canadian cheese on the export markets where Canada sells more than two-thirds of her entire production has been attained and maintained because the Canadian cheese offered for sale on those markets was superior in quality to cheese of a similar type from competing countries," said Mr. Cameron.

"The necessities of war have focussed attention on the key position of milk and milk products in human nutrition as foods of the highest protective and biological value, with the result that on every hand we find stress being laid not only on increased dairy production, but equally on the need for high quality milk and all its products.

"Every one of the United Nations is emphasizing quality as well as quantity in the production of dairy products and by no means the least of these is the United Kingdom, Canada's best customer for cheddar cheese."

Mr. Cameron said that butter production had increased and quality improved in 1943, with 314,024,353 pounds manufactured, a gain of 11.67 per cent over 1942. Of all butter graded in Canada last year, 34.79 per cent was scored 93 points or better, an increase of 1.29 per cent.

Deloro Safety Committee Reports Excellent Record at Annual Meeting

Marmora, (Special.) —The annual meeting of the Deloro Safety Community was held on Tuesday evening. Following an excellent banquet served in the staff dining room at which members of the committee and a few guests were guests of the management, votes of thanks were accorded the management for its provision and Mrs. John Eggett and staff for serving the same. Adjournment was then made to Deloro Hall, where the committee joined their wives and other employees and wives to enjoy an interesting program.

Troupe of Entertainers.

Five entertainers from Toronto were on hand to provide diversion in the persons of Gus Mauro, master of ceremonies and accordion player. Mickie Connolly, dancer, Bob Logan, ventriloquist and Punch and Judy, showman and the Lowells, tumblers and hand balancers. Gus Mauro and the Lowells, having given a turn.

R. A. Elliott, chairman, gave his report. His opening remarks referred to the advisability of having the ladies present at such a gathering since it was proven that in Canada and the United States, 48 per cent of the accidents yearly take place in the home. He then touched upon figures given on two large charts.

Excellent Results.

Speaking of the fact that the past year was the nineteenth year of operation of the Safety movement at Deloro, Mr. Elliott said the results obtained over the period were almost unbelievable. The lost days of 1923 and 1924 totalled 1,162 whereas only 1,083 days had been lost in the year 1925 to 1943, inclusive. He desired to place on record the work of the girl employees of the past three years as being especially good. The foreman's award he said had again been keenly contested, three having a clean sheet with respect to accidents. George Brooks came first with Warden Chrysler second and with Clifford Watson of the staff, will attend the Industrial Accidents Prevention Convention in April as representatives from the Committee.

Trustee Relief Fund.

Touching upon the Trustee Relief Fund he mentioned that its reserves had been increased in 1943 by about $328. C. H. Buskard of the staff and S. Sandham of the employees had recently been re-elected making up with W. H. Brown, H. O. Loveless and R. A. Elliott, the board of five. He also eulogized Wally Hilton and his staff, for the production of the Plant Bulletin and touching upon the St. John Ambulance Classes held in the early summer, thanked Dr. H. Crawford, who was present, for his services. Referring to the lamented death of W. L. Rigg last September, he said they could ill afford to lose such a man, and it was with regret his death was recorded.

Must Be Continued Effort.

Speaking of the future, Mr. Elliott said courage would be needed in 1944. The year presented a challenge which would have to be met. There must be continued effort to prevent accidents and to help on war work. "We are retarding production by absenteeism and carelessness", he reminded his hearers. "Industry will be required to stay on the job. May the New Year bring the freedom for which so many are paying the price. May it bring courage to us all. Let everyone work safely for victory. I wish to thank the management for their support of our Safety movement and extend best wishes to all for a Safe New Year".

Secretary's Report.

H. A. McNally then presented the report of the secretary, prepared by F. Paquet, who is retiring on grounds of health from the office he has held since the inception of the movement to be succeeded by Mr. McNally. Incidentally C. H. Buskard succeeds the late W. L. Rigg as vice chairman.

The secretarial report covered the work of the various sub-committees and among interesting facts disclosed may be mentioned the following—146 suggestions were received in 1943 as against 113 in 1942, 68 of these received an award. The Oxide and Engineers held the Star for six months each.

Representatives of the various divisions of the plant elected to the committee for 1944 are Silver and Cobalt metals—Gordon Knox; Oxide—Smith Fraser; Engineers—Robert Harris; General—Eugene Brady, Steelite—Jack Aitcheson.

Highly Regarded.

Adoption of the reports was moved by S. B. Wright, vice president of the Company, in a neat speech in which he mentioned the high position the Deloro Safety Committee has in the minds of the big business interests in Ontario if not in the whole of Canada and the assurance that the Company would support the movement in every way in the future as in the past. The motion was seconded by C. H. Buskard.

Certificates Presented.

A list of those to receive certificates of the St. John Ambulance Association was then read out and those present stepped forward to receive them at the hands of Mr. Wright.

The list is as follows:—

Harold Price and T. Cousins, three years. S. Barnett, Mrs. William Simmons, Miss Sylvia Trumble, John R. Fox, Albert Laton, Carmen Sanders, Carl McCoy, Miriel Leonard, Earl Leonard, Harold Landon, John Aitcheson, Merle Gordon, William Goodchild, Mrs. Stella Fraser and Charles Clemens. It was pointed out that Messrs. Price and Cousins would receive their medallions at a later date. The rest of the evening was spent in enjoyment of the variety entertainment.

Centenary

Centenary — The quilting for the Red Cross was held at the home of Mrs. Gordon Woods, on January 6th, with a good attendance

Thank-you letters were read from some of the boys who had received Christmas parcels, and from the Red Cross unit, showing how appreciative the boys are for all that is done for them.

It was decided to hold another meeting during January at the home of Mrs. D. Holton. After completing the quilt, the President Mrs. Fred Afkins, offered prayer and closed with all singing the National Anthem.

Personals

Mrs. Harry Robins many friends were sorry to learn that he is confined to the Belleville General Hospital. All wish for her a speedy recovery.

Mr. Phillip Ray, who has been confined to bed for the past month, is somewhat improved.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ray and children of Hamilton, spent the week with Mr. Ray's brother, Mr. Edgar Ray and family.

It was with feelings of regret that the many friends of Mrs. Jas. Radford, learned that she was confined to the Belleville hospital. It is the sincere wish of all that she may soon be restored to health.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Garrison entertained friends on Wednesday last.

Mrs. Kelley and Mrs. Geo. Avory were dinner guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. D. Holton.

Able Seaman Bruce Christie has returned to the East Coast after spending his leave with his brother, Mr. Norman Christie and Mrs. Christie, Thurlow, and his mother, Mrs. A. Salter.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Shortt, attended the funeral of the late J. A. Thompson, in Stirling, on Saturday.

Albury

Albury.—The annual meeting of the Albury Ladies' Aid was held at the home of Mrs. Harold Bonter on Tuesday afternoon with twelve being present. The year's work proved quite successful both in attendance and financially. A quilting was arranged to be held at the home of Mrs. Harry Peck on the following day. Rev. Mr. Lovelace called at the same home and visited the Aid. The plate Miss Corke donated was won by Mrs. Carl Williamson. Mrs. Earl Bonter invited the Aid to meet at her home next month.

The quilting at the home of Mrs. Harry Peck was well attended with everyone enjoying the pot luck dinner. Four dollars was realized.

Mrs. R. Onderdonk has returned home after spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Russell.

Messrs. Clifford Peck and Earl Onderdonk spent Tuesday and Wednesday in Toronto.

A large number attended the euchre and dance for the Eastern Star at Consecon on Thursday evening. Lunch was served.

This community was shocked on Friday to hear of the sudden death of Mrs. Glencoe Brickman. Much sympathy goes out to the family. The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon.

RUMOR SCORZA MAY FACE TRIAL

Execution of Ciano and Others Seen at Swiss-Italian Border as Part of Purge

By FRANK BRUTTO
Associated Press Staff Writer

At the Swiss-Italian Frontier, Jan. 13 — (AP) — Execution of Count Ciano and four other members of the former Fascist Grand Council on charges of treason to the Mussolini government was viewed here Wed. as part of a purge directed at all who opposed Italy's continuance as a partner of Germany.

The death sentences imposed on Benito Mussolini's son-in-law; Marshal Emilio De Bono and other high Fascists put teeth in an announcement that provincial trials of "traitors" in Nazi-occupied northern Italy would start next Saturday.

One of the first to be brought before these courts is expected to be Carlo Scorza, Fascist party secretary, who voted to sustain Mussolini in the meeting of the Grand Council last July but is accused of failing to mobilize the party after Mussolini's arrest and also of having later offered his support to the Badoglio government. Scorza was reported under arrest at Rome.

Say Wave of Strikes Sweeping Occupied Italy

The BBC said today that "75 prominent Fascists have been assassinated in Northern Italy by Italian patriots" in the last 10 days, and "another wave of strikes is sweeping occupied Italy, the third outbreak in four weeks."

A dispatch to the Gazette of Lausanne said Italian reaction to the Verona trials was that they were only another sign "of the depth to which Italy has fallen under German occupation," the ineffectiveness of the present Fascists and the complete lack of power of Mussolini, who did not appear at the proceedings.

Most Italians, it was held, believed to the last that the accused Fascists would not be put to death.

Ciano's execution yesterday was the first time in history that a member of the Annunciata — thereby a cousin of the King — had been put to death.

Montreal Strikers Return to Desks

Montreal, Jan. 13 — (CP) — The wheels of civic government machinery, idle for 23 days, began moving in Montreal again today as municipal white collar workers returned to their desks and city hall became active for the first time since Dec. 16.

It was not clear immediately what percentage of the city's 2,800 clerks, stenographers and accountants had returned but strike leaders and city officials agreed in a prediction that all workers would be back on the job shortly. The strike was called off so suddenly last night that it was thought possible some workers still were in doubt as to its status.

Empey Hill

Empey Hill—The first meeting of the Ladies' Aid and W.M.S. for 1944 was held on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Frank Hutchinson. Mrs. W. Bell was leader of the program. During the business period, Mrs. F. Hutchinson was appointed press secretary and Mrs. E. Price, corresponding secretary. Plans were made for the congregational meeting to be held on Thursday evening of this week, also for the meetings and programs for this year.

On Monday evening the stewards met at the parsonage at Selby and during the evening extended to Rev. W. R. Merrick an unanimous invitation to remain pastor for another year.

Mrs. Arthur Breen spent a few days last week with her sister, Mrs. F. Hutchinson.

Miss Aileen Stafford returned to Peterboro on Saturday after spending a week teaching in the Lonsdale school.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan McHenry, of Lonsdale received the sad news of the death of their only son, Justin, who was with the R.C.A.F. in England.

The Red Cross quilting was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. F. Hutchinson, with an attendance of eighteen ladies. Two quilts were completed. The next quilting will be two weeks later at the home of Mrs. Morley Schermehorn. Afternoon tea was served and the collection amounted to $4.45.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Oliver and Edgar were dinner guests on Friday of Mrs. Wm. Penny.

MORE FARMS NEEDED

Golden Lady

By Clarence Budington Kelland

CHAPTER 1

Darnley Carfax discovered during her seventeenth year that beauty was a peculiar commodity. It caused quite different reactions in a man than in a woman. In the presence of any beautiful girl a man would go all silly, like a cat with a catnip mouse. On the other hand, a woman would narrow her lips and her eyes and hold her head as if she had been sitting in a draft and got a pain in her neck.

She discovered that homely girls or dowdy girls could get more favors from women. She found out that it was a personal affront to any woman to be more beautiful or modern than she. But that a lumpy girl with a muddy skin and onion eyes had as much chance of getting anything out of a man as a radish has of getting into a strawberry shortcake.

Darnley pondered this matter. This pondering took place after she became possessed of the idea that she might be beautiful herself. She was not quite sure of the fact, but her observations caused her to wonder whether it was an asset or a liability. From a practical standpoint, was it better to delight men and to throw women into a fury; or to be ignored by the male sex and have the women on your side? This caused her to examine life as she had never examined it before.

Up to the middle of her sixteenth year Darnley had never troubled to be astute. She had taken things as they came and been moderately contented. But at this time she saw that astuteness undeniably had its uses and that she had better cultivate some if she were equipped to do so. It occurred to her at this time that people who got what they wanted did not sit and wait for fruit to drop in their laps. They shook the tree—or, better yet, they induced somebody else to climb the tree for them. In other words, the men and women and boys and girls who got anywhere in this world made use of other men and women and boys and girls.

The question then became: Was it more efficient to use men or to use women?

She noticed that it was the men who owned the stores along Main Street and the women who held paying jobs in the flour mill and with the railroad. It required little study to discover that it was the male sex who earned money and the female sex who spent it. And it was quite evident to her that money made the mare go. Therefore, a girl with any brains at all would prefer the admiration of men to the friendship of women.

But there was one drawback of which she became aware, and that was that women maintained a sort of labor union. And a girl would be wise to watch her step and not get this union down on her, or it might upset her applecart. Life, she perceived, was a complicated affair through which one must walk cannily.

If one could act so diplomatically that she would win the admiration of men without arousing the animosity of the women, her chances would be pretty good.

It dawned upon Darnley that she might be something out of the ordinary the night of high school commencement, when she heard Mrs. Morehouse refer to her in an unmistakeable tone as "that Carfax girl." It had been working toward this dawn for some time. She noted that when she passed the hotel the travelling men on the stoop stared at her and then whispered. There had been other signs and tokens which now added up into a body of evidence.

If she were beautiful she wanted to know it. She studied herself in the mirror and was reasonably pleased with what she saw, but this was by no means conclusive.

What was beauty? What did one have to possess to be extraordinarily lovely?

Darnley studied the pictures of beautiful women in various magazines. They were all different. No two of them looked alike. So it became apparent that there was no set rule one could go by.

About the only common factor she found in the lot was slenderness. She had that. Beauty did not seem to be a matter of the face alone; some girls were famous for beautiful hands; others for beautiful backs; any number for legs. Legs seemed to be exceedingly important if one were to judge by the eagerness of motion-picture stars to exhibit them.

She studied her face in her mirror, comparing it with the faces of girls from Hollywood or Broadway, or the photographed models in advertisements.

Once a famous artist wrote a story about his favorite model and appended a set of measurements which he claimed were those of the perfect figure. Darnley abstracted her grandfather's favorite old tape measurement and went in for an evening of engineering. On the whole it was satisfactory. In one place or another she varied from this paragon by a quarter of an inch or an eighth of an inch, but in general she was close that it was almost a tie. If, then, she came within a fraction of an inch of perfection she must be pretty fair!

Darnley was compelled to admit without argument that her hair would do. It was chestnut, and when the light hit it at a proper angle it gave off a glow of gold. And it curled naturally.

There only remained her face to be dubious about. Her hair was as good as anybody's; her body was within a fraction of an inch of being an artist's dream. If her face only came up to the necessary standard, then she was an authentic beauty and would have to plan accordingly.

Seventeen is a curious age. At that time a girl has lost the matter-of-factness of childhood, and has not acquired the experience and poise of womanhood. She lives in a sort of limbo made up of wishes, immature speculations, self-consciousness and undigested information — so that, while she may be lovely to look at, she is bewildering and irritating to talk to. Her mind has not jelled. Darnley was vaguely conscious that she was beginning to jell. She thought herself much smarter than she was and she actually was much smarter than people guessed her to be.

After studying herself in her faulty mirror for an hour before supper she went down to the dining-room, her tapering fingers lightly touching the banisters, her toes pointing, and her head busy with imaginings that she was some sort of princess tripping in stately splendor down a marble staircase to a great banqueting hall, where noble young men in uniforms would rattle swords and covet opportunities to die for her.

The only man in the Carfax banqueting hall was Grandpa Carfax and he was neither noble nor young; and what he wore certainly was not a uniform. Grandpa was about six feet, three inches tall. His face was brick-red and his hair snow white. There was a bristling shock of it. There was some trace of sawdust in his bushy eyebrows and he always smelled of planing mill—which is, if you like it, one of the most pungent and delightful aromas known to man. Though he dealt mostly in beech, birch and maple he had a sort of mahogany look about him and for the most part his face was so immobile that it might have been carved out of wood.

Darnley had lived with him since she was six, and in a vague way she knew that he was very fond of her. She was fond of him, though lately she had been a little ashamed of him on account of the sawdust in his eyebrows and the habit he had of appearing socially in overalls.

Grandpa Carfax was seated at the table when she came in. He had already speared a slab of fried steak from the platter and was scrunching a boiled potato with his knife blade. He grunted. "What did yer represent comin' down them stairs?" he asked. "Couldn't make out if ye was pertendin' to be a giraffe or a West P'int cadet."

Even then Darnley could laugh at herself. "Neither," she said. "I was being a princess—and you were a perfectly gorgeous young knight."

"I calc'late," he said, "that a princess 'ud swing her hips more 'n what you did. You was too stiff-backed."

He went on eating and paid no further attention to her. She sat down, helped herself, nibbled without appetite and gazed at the old man speculatively.

"Grandpa," she said.

"Yeah?"

"Will you tell me the truth?"

"Am I beautiful?"

"Lemme git a good squint at ye," he said. "Stand up 'n' kind of whirl around. Turn around sideways. Doggone! I swan to man! Growed up to a p'int where you're concerned if you're perty. Ye kin set down ag'in."

"Am I, or not?" she asked.

"It 'ud be jest my luck when I was calc'latin' on a peaceful old age," he said.

"What would?"

"Beautiful—really beautiful?"

He stared at her, with bushy brows almost touching. "So blasted beautiful," he said, "that it's probably a-goin' to pisen my declinin' years. I was kind of afraid of it. Lately I been lookin' the other way so's not to notice it."

"Why, Grandpa?"

"Because you're so tarnation perty that trouble's bound to come of it. It's dangerous fur a girl to look like you do. And I was plannin' on peace 'n' comfort."

"Dangerous! Why is it dangerous?"

"Fur a number of reasons. Fust one is—it'll go to your head 'n' you'll make a dum fool of yourself. In the second place, every male critter in the world 'll be urgin' ye to make a fool of yourself. 'N' third, because the'll be fights over ye. The fourth is you'll think jest because you're sightly you deserve a lot more'n you're entitled to git."

"Is it really so? Do you think you are a good judge?"

"Young woman," said Grandpa Carfax, "the' hain't no more profound student of magazine covers 'n' bathing-suit advertisin' than me. If it come to a pinch I'd qualify as an expert. Now shet up 'n' eat."

Darnley felt a great surge of elation well up within her. She was, indeed, beautiful. If it were not true Grandpa Carfax would never admit it. For he was not an old gentleman to fan anybody's vanity. But she was also a little frightened.

"Grandpa," she asked, "what will I do with this—this beauty?"

"That's the p'int," he said. "It's kind of like havin' a hippopotamus left to ye by last will 'n' testament. Ye don't know how to harbor the consarned critter." He thrust a gnarled hand through his mop of white hair. "Comin' seventeen, hain't ye?"

"Yes, Grandpa."

"Wa-al, best advice I kin give ye is to sort of put it in the savin's bank fur three-four years. Whilst both of us think about it. Beauty's got a lot of uses one way and another. Ye kin jest marry with it 'n' try to settle down. Or ye kin realize on it, like it was a gold mine or a delicatessen store. It's capable of fetchin' a sight of happiness or a sight of misery. Men'll love ye 'n' covet ye. Wimmin'll catclaw ye. However it goes, you're in fur a high old time and I got to see ye through it."

He pushed back his chair and got up to his full height. "My advice to ye now, young woman, is to forgit it. Leave it to grow, 'n' behave yourself becomin'. But, bein' headstrong like your pa, the's no tellin'. Doggone, it!"

He walked to the door, where he paused and turned.

"Lemme tell ye, baby," he said, "in the hull world the's nothin' like lovin' 'n' being loved. The's nothin' like findin' one feller ye kin worship 'n' bein' worshipped back by him. Love one man till ye die, and be loved by him. And never look at nor think about anybuddy else, neither one of ye. I've said my say, an' it won't do no good. Like your pa, you're the experimentin' kind. Now, go occupy your mind, 'n' keep away from mirrors till you're twenty-one."

It was thus that certainty of her possession of authentic beauty came to Darnley Carfax. Curiously enough, it did not stir her vanity. It did not go to her head, as beauty sometimes goes to the heads of young girls. Even then—though of course she delighted to have it—she regarded it as an asset, as a piece of property upon which she must realize. It was as if she had discovered a wonderful singing voice, or an ability to paint or to write—a thing that must be developed as a talent and used. She was rather cold-blooded about it.

Older people are always asking young people the silly question what they mea nto do when they get older. Darnley could have answered this promptly, but she was too astute ever to do so. Her mind was made up on the point. Suppose someone had asked her what she was planning to do with her life. If she had replied frankly, she would have said, "I'm going to be a professional beauty."

In a little town such as Colby was, a planing mill places one among the aristocracy. So does a hardware store or a fire-insurance business or an apothecary's shop. There was not a great deal of money in the village of two thousand citizens; though Mr. Panard, who owned the bank, was regarded as a rich man. By birth and position in Colby Darnley Carfax enjoyed the best socially that the place had to offer.

It was, of course, a small world, but it was a decent, self-respecting and old-fashioned world. Consequently, wise as she may have thought herself, she was startingly unsophisticated even when she neared her twentieth year.

The young of the species spoke in awed tones of Gertie Newsome, a pretty blond who had rifled her father's till and run away with a stranger. She was not considered as a glamorous adventuress, but as a lost woman.

It was in this atmosphere of regard for the old-fashioned virtues that Darnley Carfax passed from youth to womanhood; and it left its mark upon her. It will be impossible to comrehend certain actions in her later career if this is not borne in mind.

The great difference between Darnley and her young friends in Colby was that they were preparing to continue the same existence—to marry and to settle down in Colby—while Darnley knew that she would leave the village at the first opportunity to become a part of a life so foreign to what she and the town knew that it might have been on another planet. She was too acute to speak of this or to take any girl friend into her confidence.

Had Indigestion, Backache, Headaches, Praises Syntona

Says She No Longer Suffers With Gastritis, Heartburn, Dizzy Spells, Cramps and Constipation. Nerves are Calmed; She Sleeps Better and Has More Energy.

Almost every day you can read in the papers about how local folks have been relieved of common ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels and their long train of painful symptoms, by taking a treatment of Syntona Herbal Compound. Syntona helped them. Don't you think it will help you, too? Here, for example, is the splendid experience of Mrs Maude Spearing, 159 Locke Street north, Hamilton, as reported recently:

MRS. MAUDE SPEARING

"During the early part of this year I felt nervous, weakened and rundown. My appetite was poor and the little food I did eat just seemed to sour in my stomach and cause gas, cramps and heartburn. There were gas pains all through my chest, spots floated before my eyes and I was subject to throbbing headaches and pains in my back.

"I have only taken a short treatment of Syntona, but aleady it has done wonders for me. My appetite has improved and my food digests well, without all that gas and indigestion. I am free of headaches and dizzy spells, and I got relief from the pains in my back. Since my nerves are more relaxed, I sleep soundly and I arise mornings feeling rested and ready for the day's work."

If you, who read this, suffer like Mrs. Spearing did, make up your mind to begin taking Syntona today. See how much better you, too, can be feeling in just a short time.

Three Are Fined For Failing To Report for Training

Four members of the Argyll Light Infantry (R) appeared before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in County Police Court today charged with neglecting and failing to report for military training with the Reserve Army. Three of the young men pleaded guilty and paid $7.50, including costs. The fourth case was deferred to another court.

Troopers H. F. Bentley, H. Kellar and T. Bentley all paid fines, Tpr. H. F. Bentley producing a doctor's certificate indicating he was unfit for military training.

"This document will not be recognized by the military authorities. You'll have to appear before the army doctor at the Armouries", Crown Attorney B. O. Donnan informed Bentley. Bentley assured the court he would be present for a medical examination before Captain Dr. McKay at the Armouries tonight.

Tpr. D. Evans told the court he had been rejected as medically unfit from the Royal Canadian Navy. "I was instructed to turn in my uniform at the Armouries and did so", revealed Evans. His Worship ordered the case deferred to another court in order to ascertain the authenticity of the accused man's statement. "If this is true the charge will be withdrawn, I assure the court", added Mr. Donnan.

R. D. Arnott, local barrister, appeared on behalf of Tpr. T. Bentley.

Captain K. R. Holmes, adjutant of the Argyll Ligth Infantry, appeared as complainant in the court.

Mrs. Ranco Given 5 Months Term On Bigamy Count

Mrs. D. Ranco, alias Flood, alias Wagar, was convicted on a charge of bigamy and sentenced to serve five months in the common jail by Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in County Police Court here today.

Provincial Constable A. A. Kellogg arraigned the woman and stated she had married an airman by the name of Ranco, who is now stationed at Uplands R.C.A.F. base near Ottawa, while she was legally married to a man named Wagar. "However, I might state this girl did not enjoy a happy home life and first married to get away from the home surroundings", testified Constable Kellogg.

"In fairness to the accused I might say she wrote to the Department of National Defence at Ottawa stating she was not eligible for separation allowance from Wagar, who is also in the armed services", Crown Attorney B. O. Donnan, K.C. revealed.

"This is not a case of marrying to obtain additional dependant's allowance or defraud the Government", added E. O. Butler, local barrister appearing for Mrs. Ranco, as he sought leniency.

After the sentence was meted out Mrs. Ranco broke into tears and stated she did not know she was committing an unlawful act, especially after notifying the authorities.

'Exceptional Bravery' Wins Military Medal For Two Soldiers

Ottawa, Jan. 13 — (CP)—"Exceptional bravery" during a tank battle in Italy last Oct. 6, in which they saved other members of their crews after their tanks had been put out of action, won the Military Medal for Cpl. Robert Calvin Campbell, 25, of Clyde Forks, Ont., and TR. Joseph Wild Collins, 29, of Winnipeg. Clyde Forks is in Lanark County.

The precise language of the official citations, released today with the Defence Department's announcement of the awards, told how the two men, their tanks shattered and set ablaze by enemy shellfire, dragged wounded crew members to shelter under heavy fire.

Cpl. Campbell, a native of Clyde Forks, enlisted in the 12th Army Tank Battalion, Canadian Armored Corps in December, 1939, and went overseas in June, 1941. His father, Fred Campbell, lives at Clyde Forks.

TR. Collins, born at Brooklands, Man., was an automotive machinist in Winnipeg when he enlisted in the Canadian Armored Corps in June, 1942, going overseas that December. His wife, Mrs. Hazel Collins, lives at Winnipeg.

Citation:

"On Oct. 6, 1943, south of Termoli, when his squadron was in action, Cpl. Campbell's tank was repeatedly hit by A-P (armor-piercing) shells from enemy tanks and caught fire.

"Displaying great coolness and control, Cpl. Campbell supervised the evacuation of his crew, including one man wounded whom he helped carry 100 yards to cover, and then returned for a seriously-wounded British anti-tank gunner and sergeant, who were both evacuated under heavy fire to safety."

Prints Indicate Dog Had Saved Child's Life

Mountain Elf, N. S., Jan. 13—Footprints in the snow indicated to searchers here that a dog had saved the life of a three-year-old Amherst boy who strayed away from his home.

The youngster, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Crawford, became lost Tuesday. A search was organized, and the searchers learned a small boy and a dog had been seen on a marsh near here.

Following the trail in the snow, members of the party came to a spot where the dog apparently had prevented the boy from falling into a creek. Further along, they saw where the dog had pulled him out of a number of ditches.

Eventually—late Tuesday night—the two were found in an open barn on the marsh, the boy curled up asleep on a pile of hay with the dog alongside him.

News Representatives Will Visit U. K. Soon

Ottawa, Jan. 13 — (CP) — The United Kingdom information office today announced the names of eight newspapermen and magazine writers who will leave shortly on a one-month tour of the United Kingdom as guests of the British Ministry of Information.

The party will include Vernon M. Kipp, Ottawa Journal, Ottawa; Kenneth R. Wilson, Maclean's Magazine, Toronto; Willson Woodside, Saturday Night, Toronto; J. E. Barnard, Le Soliel, Quebec; George V. Ferguson, Winnipeg Free Press, Winnipeg; R. P. Maclean, Kelowna Courier, Kelowna, B.C.; Charles Allbon, Springhill Record, Springhill, N.S., and Robert J. Rankin, Halifax Herald, Halifax.

Names of the four representatives of daily newspapers had been announced previously by W. McCurdy, president of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Association, which made the selections by ballot.

While the men are likely to visit some points of interest, such as bomber stations and army camps, as a group they will be given complete freedom in deciding where they will go in the United Kingdom and facilities will be provided thru the information ministry.

MISS ISOBEL WATSON PROMOTED CORPORAL

Promotion to the rank of corporal has been received by Isobel Watson of the Canadian Women's Army Corps, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Watson, 149 Lingham Street, it has been learned by her parents. Taking a special physical training instructor's course following her basic training, Cpl. Watson is stationed at Kitchener as an instructor.

The two other Watson sisters, Evelyn and Ida, who enlisted in the C.W.A.C. at the same time as their elder sister, are at present home on furlough. Evelyn has just completed a stenographic course at Toronto and will report there at the conclusion of her furlough, while Ida, also a stenographer, is stationed at Ottawa.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Jan. 13 — (CP)—Stocks turned heavy in the morning session on the Toronto Stock Exchange and both mining groups and the industrials were lower at noon. The golds lost .81 in the index. Turnover totalled 491,000 shares for the first three hours.

Senior oils, utilities and miscellaneous industrials were off narrowly. Abitibi Pfd weakened a point and Page-Hersey lost a point. In the golds, McIntyre, Lake Shore, Buffalo Ankerite, Wright-Hargreaves, Madsen, Upper Canada and others weakened 5 to 10 cents.

Loss of a point for Hudson Bay was the main change in the base metal group. Western oils were quiet and small gains came out for foothills, British-Dominion and Vermilata against losses for Mid-Continent, Home and Pacific Refineries.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Jan. 13 —(CP)— Cattle trade was slow on a plain quality supply up to mid-session on the livestock market here today. The few calves, few lambs and few sheep offered were steady. Hogs were steady.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were, Cattle 50, calves 10, hogs 250, sheep and lambs 40.

Unsold from yesterday were 300 head of cattle.

Butcher steers and heifers traded at $8-$11.75, butcher cows $7-$8.50 with canners downward to $5.

Calves were $12-$16.
Lambs were $8-$13.
Sheep were $2-$5.50.

HOGS

Toronto, Jan. 13—(CP)—Dressed-weigth were up 10 cents at Barrie and prices were unchanged at other bacon-hob markets reporting early today.

Dressedweight: Barrie, London, Stratford $17 delivered, Hull $16.95 delivered, Chatham $16.50 plus transpotration.

Hamilton $17.10 delivered.

Cheese Gradings Up

Cheese gradings in Ontario and Quebec increased 75.1 per cent in the week ended January 1 compared with the same period a year ago, according to the Agriculture Department.

Gradings for the latest week totalled 10,944 boxes against 6,250. Since November 29, gradings for the two provinces have totalled 69,169 boxes, a gain of 14 per cent over the same period last year.

The most notable gain was shown by Quebec, which produced 6,017 boxes in the week ended January 9, compared with 1,693 last year.

POLICE COURT

Four traffic cases were disposed of before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in police court here today when Garnet Oxley, Belleville, and James Johnson, Trenton, paid $7.50, including costs, after being convicted of speeding in a restricted highway area.

Kenneth Grange, Deseronto, was fined $25.00 and costs after being found guilty on a careless driving charge, while Reginald Tite, Flinton, was sentenced to seven days in the common jail after he pleaded guilty to a charge of drunk driving. "He collided with a parked car on Victoria Ave., in Tweed causing considerable property damage," testified Chief J. C. Hayes of Tweed. Tite's licence was suspended for three months also. Traffic Officer W. G. Milton preferred the initial three charges on the docket.

David Ryan, Belleville, was sentenced to six months in the common jail after being convicted of the breach of his recognizance. "This man was ordered to pay his wife $8.00 a week in a previous court and he has failed to keep up payments for many months now," stated E. E. Follwell, who appeared on Mrs. Ryan's behalf. The accused man's mother asked to be permitted to speak, but she could throw no light on the actual charge. "I am not interested in hearsay or gossip," stated Magistrate Lloyd as he added it was unfortunate that the accused did not procure the services of counsel. "This matter borders on contempt of court," interrupted Crown Attorney Donnan.

Twenty-five cases were listed for trial necessitating the adjournment of the remainder of the court until this afternoon.

HELD ON CHARGE OF DISTURBANCE AT AUCTION

Charged with causing a disturbance at a public auction, 46-year-old Anthony Cain, of Foxboro, was arrested by Provincial Police after attending an auction at the farm of Emmerson Hough in Sidney Township yesterday afternoon. Complaints were received at the O.P.P. office here alleging that a man was shouting and generally disrupting the auction. Provincial Constables McKenzie and Driscoll proceeded to the scene and today stated they experienced difficulty in apprehending Cain. He was arraigned on a charge of disturbing the peace and police added a charge of resisting arrest was also pending. He was held in custody today.

Blind Youth Able to Perform Many Kinds of Work Despite His Handicap

Apparently there is just no limitation to the number of class of occupations to which blind persons might adapt themselves. At least that was the impression gained yesterday during a brief conversation with a local blind youth who since completion of his schooling days at Brantford, has been progressively a farmer a war-worker in a Belleville defence plant and finally an insurance agent.

Seen frequently walking about Belleville streets, this chap, Max Blackburn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Blackburn of the Glenora district, east of Picton, has been almost totally blind since birth. Since early in life he has not been able to tell daylight from dark and yet he walks Belleville streets with uncanny directness lending unbelief to his unhappy handicap.

Completing his schooling at the Brantford School for the Blind, Max worked for a Prince Edward farmer doing the chores, going for the cows and doing all the milking. He even harnessed the four-horse team and hitching them to the farm implement would say, "There they are, I'm sorry I can't drive them for you".

Coming to Belleville a year or so ago Max obtained work at the Reliance Aircraft plant as a silver plater and recently turned his job over to another suffering from the same handicap. He is now writing his examinations to be an insurance agent.

Disdaining to use the traditional white cane which throughout America is recognized as the symbol of the blind, Max was recently told by authorities that regulations call for his carrying one. "People will think I am a cripple", he commented disgustedly as he walked his straight course up the street.

COSSACK CAVALRY CUTS NAZI ESCAPE ROUTE

Enemy Retreating In White Russia Faces Disaster

Russians Slip In Between City of Mozyr and Route Of Escape

DRIVE TOWARD PINSK

London, Jan. 14—(CP)—The Red Army has captured Mozyr, Moscow radio announced tonight.

London, Jan. 14 —(CP)— The Moscow radio said today that Cossack cavalry, slashing out across the snows of White Russia, had cut the escape route of beaten Nazi forces streaming westward from Mozyr and had left Mozyr far behind.

Mozyr is a rail centre on the northern edge of the Pripet Marshes, reported earlier as being pounded by siege guns rolled up by the Russians in their drive toward Pinsk, Moscow-Warsaw railway junction 140 miles to the west.

Vatutin Storms Tutovichi.

On the lower side of the frozen Pripet marshlands 160 miles to the southwest, Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's First Ukrainian Army stormed the rail station at Tutovichi, 11 miles west of Sarny on the Kiev-Warsaw railway. His troops also captured Korets, 20 miles west of Novograd Volynski, and Brykov, nine miles further west.

Vatutin's centre also penetrated another important area of Nazi communications as pressure was increased on Rovno, 50 miles south of Sarny; Luck, 65 miles to the southwest, and Kovel, 80 miles to the west.

Loss of this area or deep penetrations such as are being effected would all but isolate the key city of Lwow by rail from the north and would make a tremendous bottleneck of that junction, already burdened by the heavy traffic moving through it on the Odessa-Warsaw trunk railway. Lwow is 85 miles southwest of Luck.

Head for Kovel.

East of Sarny, Vatutin's lightning units were roaring out of the Pripet Marshes and beating down the railway in the direction of Kovel, 73 miles away.

These units were only about 95 miles east of the Curzon Line—demarcation line between Poland and Russia which was proposed by an Allied commission at the end of the First Great War and the line which the Soviet government has indicated it is willing to accept as a basis for negotiation now.

The Germans were availing themselves of the numerous rivers in this area to make a stand but Red Star dispatches said the Red infantrymen were throwing them out of one position after another.

13 Enemy Barges, Some With Troops Aboard Are Sunk

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Jan. 14 — (AP) — Allied planes and light naval craft, further undermining the Japanese position in northeastern New Guinea, have taken a toll of 13 more enemy barges and hammered the supply base and troop centre at Alexishafen with 104 tons of bombs.

The naval craft sank three barges carrying around 90 troops off Reis Point and got two more while the enemy was loading them at Sio, an Allied communique said today.

Both Sio and Reis Point are in the vicinity of Kapugara River, where Australians are forcing the enemy from steep cliffs on the north bank. The Aussies have been overcoming stiff enemy rear guard opposition as they move toward the American invasion force at Saidor, about 55 miles northwest.

London Hails Budget Address

London, Jan. 14 (CP) — President Roosevelt's budget message was accorded large headlines today by the London press, which emphasized that the budget envisons the possibility of the war lasting until July 1, 1945, and called attention to the President's assertion that "we cannot safely rely on a 1944 victory."

Editorial comment on the message was generally favorable. The Daily Express, commenting on the President's tax demands, said:

"Thus in an election year President Roosevelt once again stakes his own popularity and the election chances of his party.

"He does his duty not only as the leader of America but as one of the great directing brains of a fighting alliance. To America, to Britain and all citizens of the United Nations he has said in money terms what the battles in Russia anad the day and night air battles over Germany are writing in blood—that the final effort against our enemies must be the greatest effort of all."

Belleville Boy in Crew of Seaboat Braving Sea to Carry M.O. to U.S. Ship

An Atlantic Port, Jan. 14 — (CP) —Six crewmen of the Canadian corvette Agassiz, answering a call for aid as a convoy struggled through a North Atlantic storm, took to a 17-foot seaboat and braved heavy seas and subsequent injuries to transfer a medical officer to a United States merchantman.

The merchantman signalled for a doctor to treat an injured officer, and in a matter of minutes the seaboat pulled away from the Agassiz on the first leg of its mercy mission.

In the four-oared dinghy were Lieut. Robert Douty, Leading Seaman W. C. Shaw, Winnipeg; Able Seamen Roland Poitras, Montreal; Dale Hudgins, Belleville, Ont.; M.J. Mayhew, Sturgeon Falls, Ont.; and Signalman T. I. Moore, Montreal.

Their first task was to reach the convoy's rescue ship, which carried a doctor. This wasn't easy, said Douty in his account of the trip.

"We had trouble getting alongside the rescue ship because we had taken a good deal of water on the way over and the boat was hard to control. To add to the discomfort, the ship was rolling heavily, and we were whizzing up and down its side like an express elevator.

"But finally we got a line fast, and during the course of the terrific upswings the doctor and a sick berth attendant managed to leap off the ladder into the boat." Names of the doctor and the attendant were not disclosed in the navy press release describing the trip.

The seaboat, said Douty, finally manoeuvred close to the merchantman's side ladder.

"The boat began behaving like an express elevator all over again. We saw that the ship was in ballast and riding very high. The rope ladder seemed to disappear up into the midst. The doctor managed to grab on, and scrambled away up the ladder with the boat a close second, chasing him up."

The sick berth attendant followed the doctor part way up, but the boat "boiled after" him and scooped him back on board.

The freighter rolled far over and down on the seaboat, tipping it so that the boat's crew were spilled out between the boat and the ships' side.

There was a crash, said Douty, and when spray had subsided "I could see Mayhew hanging on to the signalman and another member of the boat's crew.

"One Canadian rating had been thrown against the freighter's side. His shoulder injured, he was hanging over the stern of the boat, half-conscious. The attendant had a broken wrist and a black eye, and seemed in need of a sick berth attendant himself. Another man had a sprained shoulder."

The boat was filled with water but the freighter soon moved off and the lifeboat slipped out from under her stern.

The Agassiz picked them up withing half an hour. The injured attendant was treated by his opposite number in the Agassiz. The crew were given coffee and other restoratives, and soon afterwards said they felt little the worse for their experience.

French Troops Advance 2 Miles East Of Cassino

NAZIS LOSE 152 FIGHTERS IN RAID BY U.S. BOMBERS

Mosquitos Bomb West Germany and Shoot Down Eight Enemy Planes

ONE TYPHOON LOST

(By GLADWIN HILL)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 14 (AP) — Westbound formations of American bombers, shepherded by swarms of fighters, returned from across the Channel today, apparently from their first raid since the mammoth air battle over Germany on Tuesday.

The Allies at the same time resumed their big air offensive against the Germans' mystery targets on the northern French coast. All day relays of medium bombers and fighters streaked across the sunlit strait, returning after short intervals.

The last big attack on that area was January 4 when R.A.F. and U.S.A.A.F. medium bombers, fighter-bombers and fighters made 1,300 sorties against "military objectives in Northern France" — the exact nature of which has not been officially defined although the attacks have been going on for three months.

The German radio today raised its claim of American losses on the last big blow at western Germany, declaring that "at least 200 planes" were shot down Tuesday. American losses have been announced at 60 planes.

R.A.F. Mosquitos bombed Western Germany last night it was announced.

The Air Ministry also announced R.A.F. Typhoons and fighters had shot down eight enemy planes yesterday during patrols over northern France. One Typhoon was lost in this action.

It was the first time the Mosquitos had been out since Monday night, when they bombed Berlin. The specific objectives of last night's raid, from which one plane failed to return, were not immediately disclosed.

The actual number of enemy fighters that fell before the blazing guns of the 700 United States bombers and 500 escorting planes, however, may never be known.

"These figures," the 8th Air Force announcement said, "do not include enemy fighters that undoubtedly were shot down by United States bombers which fought to the last in the thickest of battles and of which the total loss now is known to be 60."

This was the heaviest loss in any U. S. air operation of the war.

Used Reserve Planes

Meanwhile, squadrons of planes drawn from Hitler's anti-invasion reserve were disclosed by Transocean yesterday to have been thrown into action in the vain effort to block the United States air raiders.

The German propaganda agency indicated in a broadcast recorded by the Ministry of Information that Germany had been forced to throw up virtually all available air units.

"It was openly admitted by authoritative military quarters," Transocean said, "that Luftwaffe (air force) squadrons which so far had been held in reserve for particularly important operations shortly to be expected went into action Tuesday."

A new type of high-climbing Nazi fighter plane equipped with a "gliding bomb" was used against United States bombers for the first time Tuesday, a German military spokesman told Swedish correspondents in Berlin last night.

(In Washington, War Secretary Henry Stimson said the Germans were using a twin-engined bomber — the Junkers 188 — equipped to carry radio-controlled glider bombs in attacks on ocean shipping.

(The Nazi announcement of a new fighter may be aimed principally at heartening the German people after unblanketing of a jet-propelled plane and the P-51B Mustang long-range fighter as weapons in the Allied aerial arsenal.

Swedish correspondents said the new German craft was reported "able to climb especially high."

CHANGES IN R.C.N. COMMAND

Vice-Admiral Percy Walker Nelles, C.B., R.C.N., Chief of Naval Staff for the past ten years, will assume the post of Senior Canadian Flag Officer Overseas, it was announced by Hon. Angus Macdonald, Minister of National Defence for Naval Services. Born at Brantford in 1892 he became a naval cadet in 1908 and has been in the service ever since. For the greater part of the last war he served in R.N. ships and subsequently commanded R.C.N. ships. In 1929 he became the first Canadian-trained officer to command a British cruiser, when he served as Acting-Captain in H.M.S. "Dragon." When promoted to Rear-Admiral in 1938 he was the youngest of that rank in the British Empire.—(R.C.N. Photo).

Rear-Admiral George Clarence Jones, C.B., A.D.C., R.C.N., of Halifax, who will succeed Vice-Admiral Percy Walker Nelles, C.B., R.C.N., as Chief of Naval Staff for the Royal Canadian Navy, entered the Royal Naval College of Canada in 1911 at the age of 15 and has been in the Naval Service ever since. Throughout the last war he served in R.N. ships. For two years of the present war he held the important appointment of Commanding Officer Atlantic Coast and since October 9th., 1942, has been Vice Chief of Naval Staff and Canadian Member of the Permanent Joint Board on Defence.—(R.C.N. R.C.N. Will Man Two British Escort Aircraft Carriers

Ottawa, Jan. 14 —(CP)— At a newsy press conference here today Navy Minister Macdonald announced a switch of naval chiefs of staff and the manning of two Royal Navy carriers by Canadian officers and sailors, and said that Canadians now were in training to take over two new medium cruisers of the latest type.

Vice-Admiral Percy W. Nelles will leave soon for London to assume the new Canadian rank of senior flag officer and is succeeded as chief of the Canadian naval staff by Rear-Admiral George C. Jones, former vice-chief.

The new move is in line with invasion plans which have sent chiefs of army and air staffs—Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Stuart and Air Marshal L. S. Breadner—to Britain recently.

In Charge Overseas

Admiral Nelles will remain senior ranking naval officer and will have "general oversight of all Canadian naval forces overseas," Mr. Macdonald said.

He said that the invasion of Europe would naturally involve considerable numbers of Canadian ships and men and it seemed logical that a senior Canadian officer should be on hand for general supervision.

However, Admiral Nelles would have no command "as such" for Canadian units would be intermingled with other Allied forces. It was possible, the Minister said, that Admiral Nelles would sit on some kind of a naval war council if one were set up.

The present senior Canadian naval officer in London—Capt. F. L. Houghton—will likely become a member of Admiral Nelles' staff, which doubtlessly will be enlarged as the needs arise.

FIERCE FIGHTING FOR CONTROL OF STRATEGIC ROAD

Banja Luka-Zagreb Railway in Central Bosnia Still Held by Partisans

DESTROY TROOP TRAIN

London, Jan. 14 — (CP)—Fierce fighting for control of the strategic Banja Luka-Zagreb railway in central Bosnia continued today, as German forces increased their pressure on Yugoslav Partisans attacking in the 25-mile sector between Banja Luka and Prijedor.

The communique of Marshal Josip Broz (Tito), broadcast by the Free Yugoslav Radio, said the Partisans shot down two Nazi bombers near the town of Bugojno, and reported expanding offensive operations by Yugoslav forces on other sectors of the front.

Near Brod, a rail centre 50 miles northeast of Banja Luka, the Partisans were said to have destroyed an enemy troop train, killing 45 German soldiers and capturing 85. Farther west, Tito's troops blew up a bridge on the Zagreb-Ogulin-Fiume railway near Karlovac, the communique said.

In Hercegovina, to the south, Partisans repelled an enemy assault at Stolac and seized a lead mine producing 800 tons a year.

BELIEVE POLAND'S REPLY WILL BE CONCILIATORY

London Papers Say Gov't. Weighing Every Word in Reply to Russia

CONTACT BRITISH GOV'T.

By JUDSON O'QUINN
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Jan. 14 — (AP) — Belief that Poland's government in London is framing a conciliatory reply to the Soviet proposal that the Curzon Line divide the two countries was expressed today as the Polish cabinet met to consider the problem for the fourth consecutive day.

The careful preparation given the statement indicated that it might be delayed. In the meantime British censorship prohibited speculation on its contents on the grounds that negotiations might be jeopardized.

However, London newspapers gave wide attention to the progress of the negotiations.

The Daily Express commented, "The Poles are weighing their reply word by word and obviously are in close contact with the British government. Indications are the reply will be on the whole conciliatory."

The Polish cabinet today heard a report on yesterday's long conversations between Foreign Secretary Eden and Polish Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, Foreign Minister Tadeusz Romer and Ambassador to Britain Count Edward Raczynski.

The Express noted that Mr. Eden, before seeing the Poles, lunched with Fyodor Gusev, the Soviet Ambassador.

2 ENEMY DROMES IN ROME AREA HEAVILY BOMBED

U. S. Bombers Leave Fields in Smoking Ruins and Eight Planes Shot Down

ALSO ATTACK SHIPPING

By LYNN HEINZERLING
Associated Press War Correspondent

Air Headquarters in Italy, Jan. 14 —(AP)—Heavy bombers of the United States 15th Air Force covered two enemy airdromes in the Rome area with large craters yesterday, leaving smoking ruins from one end to the other of the Guidonia experimental airport where Benito Mussolini's once shining air fleet was developed and tests made of jet propulsion.

Targets were at Guidonia, 15 miles northeast of Rome, and at Centocelle, seven miles east. The airdrome at Perugia, 90 miles due north of Rome, was also attacked. Only moderate anti-aircraft fire was encountered over any of the targets.

Fighters kept possibly 40 enemy fighters at a safe distance most of the time. Eight enemy planes were shot down for a loss of three American fighters.

The Italians had done some distinguished experimental work at the Guidonia laboratories. It was there that they worked on jet propulsion several years ago. Whether the Germans were continuing the experiments is not known, but the field has been an important base for Nazi planes operating over the Italian front.

Pocked with Holes

The experimental buildings, workshops, an assembly plant, and hangars were said to have been severely damaged while the landing area was pocked with holes. A large explosion was observed in the experimental section of the airdrome and several aircraft were reported hit on the ground.

At Centocelle airport a series of explosions highlighted by brilliant flashes started several large fires in an area apparently used as an ammunition dump. The administration building, hangars, barracks and other military installations and parked aircraft were in the area covered by bombs.

While the enemy airfields were being pasted, fighters went after shipping in the Adriatic, hitting three merchant ships and leaving one in a sinking condition.

Allied Planes Sweep To North France

London, Jan. 14 —(CP)— Strong forces of Allied medium bombers and fighters swept across the Channel toward northern France today, breaking the lull in the daylight aerial offensive which has lasted since Tuesday's great American penetration of central Germany.

The daylight offensive evidently was a continuation of the assaults on unknown targets of the Pas de Calais area.

German Attempt To Retake Cervaro Strongly Repulsed

Vichy Radio Says Move on Part of 8th Army Is Expected Hourly

PATROLS ACTIVE

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN
Associated Press War Correspondent

Algiers, Jan. 14 — (AP) — Gen. Alphonse Juin's French forces pushed through Italy's rugged Apennines for a two-mile gain from the east and Americans advanced slightly from the south yesterday in an encircling assault on the natural and artificial defences of Cassino, which the Germans call their "Gustav Line," Allied headquarters announced today.

The Americans repulsed a heavy German counter-attack on Cervaro about midnight Wednesday, then consolidated their gains and threatened the Nazi control of the northern slopes of Mount Trocchio, just south of the Rome road and less than three miles from Cassino.

But German resistance was extremely fierce in this final defensive belt around the next Allied objective, and the maze of weapon pits, road blocks, minefields, barbed wire entanglements and trenches, augmenting the natural defensive features of a north-south line thru the village itself, guaranteed a desperate struggle before the point is taken.

High ground around the village, plus the banks of the rapid river on which the village is built, has been converted into what German prisoners called the "Gustav Line."

Referring to the tough fighting which took place for Cervaro and the mountain features beyond, an Allied commentator said the forthcoming battle of Cassino would be harder yet.

French Outflank Village

Attacking over a wide portion of the rugged central Italian terrain, Gen. Juin's French forces captured the eastern slopes of Mount San Pietro in San Pietro ridge and completed the seizure of all Monna Casale range south of the Colli-Atina road.

The French now held all the high ground north, northwest and southwest of the village of Aquafondala, seven miles northeast of Cassino, and also had outflanked the village of Viticuso.

Mount Casale, 4,000 feet in height, overlooks Aquafondala. To the southwest of this rugged, roadless feature, the French also captured 4,000-foot Mount Aquafondala, between the village and Mount Raio which the French seized the day before.

8th Improves Positions

On the 8th Army's front near the Adriatic British and New Zealanders improved their positions near Orsogna by advancing 500 yards but most activity was confined to sharp artillery exchanges and patrol activity. The Canadian 1st Division on the Adriatic coast about four miles northwest of Ortona have confined their activities to patrolling for more than a week.

One Allied patrol penetrated deep into German lines to a position east of Pennapiedimonte, 20 miles inland and six miles southwest of Orsogna, where it engaged in a lively clash with the Germans.

Valuable information was said to have been obtained.

(The Vichy radio said "a move on the part of the 8th Army can shortly be expected.")

A recapitulation by Allied headquarters said more than 8,000 German prisoners had been taken on both the 5th and 8th army fronts since the original landings in Italy on Sept. 3.

Allies Four Miles Below Maungdaw

New Delhi, Jan. 14—(AP)—Allied troops, continuing their push down the western coast of Burma toward the Japanese base at Akyab, have advanced to a point four miles below captured Maungdaw, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters announced today.

Today's announcement said advanced elements of the Allied forces had occupied the villages of Kanyidan and Dilpara, one mile and four miles respectively southeast of Maungdaw.

The advance is continuing slowly the bulletin said, with the Japanese counter-attacking and holding tenaciously to strongpoints along the western foothills of the Mayu range. Allied positions have been pushed forward to the east side of the range itself.

Raid Announced Earlier

The raid had been announced earlier this week.

American medium and fighter-bombers ranged over much of Japanese-occupied China Monday, it was announced today, attacking enemy rail and river communications and shooting down one Japanese plane and one probable and damaging three others.

A communique added that Tuesday all three of a force of Japanese bombers that attempted to bomb a forward base were shot down with no American losses.

Two American planes failed to return from Monday's operations which also saw the destruction of three Japanese river tankers, two launches and other river craft on the Yangtse.

Today Mitchell bombers struck at four ships, of about 800 or 900 tons, near Fort Bayard, in Japanese-occupied French territory on the Kwangchowan peninsula. One of the vessels blew up and the other three were damaged. The fort's warehouses, cavalry barracks and radio station also were attacked.

More Than 2,000 Lbs. Butter is Stolen, Truck is Recovered

Stouffville, Jan. 14—(CP)—More than 2,000 pounds of butter, a dairy truck, a radio and a tank of gasoline were stolen here last night by thieves who forced an entry into the Stouffville Creamery. Stouffville is 18 miles northeast of Toronto.

North York police said the truck was recovered later in North York township.

Revival of Spirit of Enterprise Seen in Post-War Era by Woolton

Liverpool, England, Jan. 14 — (CP) — Lord Woolton, British Minister of Reconstruction, said today that one of the government's major reconstruction problems will be "unwinding the administrative machine" imposing controls in British industry and life.

Woolton addressed an audience at Liverpool University, where he received an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

"Our entire industrial capacity has grown accustomed to working under government control," he said. "We, ourselves, have become people controlled in our private lives; we pull down the blinds each night at an appointed time, and we regulate our consumption according to ration cards.

"That is war, but the reconstructed England isn't going to be like this."

Woolton said controls necessarily must remain until supply and demand are in balance, but added:—

"I venture the reminder that we are a democracy. I look forward when the time is opportune to a revival of that spirit of vigorous enterprise which, surveying the needs and well being of the country, will once again come forward and advise the government how it can further the commercial life of the nation and what controlling forces of law are necessary to give proper protection to workers in our industries at home."

He said he hoped traders and industrialists are planning for trade abroad as well as at home "and to call for such help as they may need from the government."

SUFFERS SHRAPNEL WOUNDS WHILE FIGHTING IN ITALY

First reported wounded on December 6th during fighting on the Italian front, the extent of Sgt. Archie E. Foster's injuries have been learned by his wife at their home, 39½ Cannifton Road. In a recent airmail letter from her husband in hospital in the Mediteranean area is was disclosed that he had shrapnel wounds in his hip and left knee as well as in the right leg.

No bones were broken by the shrapnel and all pieces of metal have been removed and at the time the letter was written the period of convalescence were purely a matter of the wounds healing.

A member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Sgt. Foster enlisted in 1939 and went overseas with the 1st contingent. He saw first action with his unit when they went to France in 1940 and after landing at Brest lost their equipment as the result of the rapid German advance. At that time he suffered an injured knee when he got crushed between two Bren Gun carriers. Born in Battle Creek, Michigan, he came to Belleville with his parents when a young boy and had liver here until his enlistment.

WADES IN RIVER TO RESCUE DOG

Both man and dog got a cold bath in the icy waters of the Moira River Wednesday afternoon when "Teddy", pet dog owned by Mrs. J. Hanna, 88 Moira Street, East, wandered off the ice at an open stretch of the river behind his mistress' house and had a narrow escape from drowning. Rescue was effected by a neighbor, Mr. Arthur Bourette, 82 Moira Street, when he noticed the plight of the dog. Notwithstanding the certain icy bath, Mr. Bourette waded into the water up to his elbows to bring "Teddy" to safety.

VETERANS OF THIS WAR GIVEN COMPLIMENTARY MEMBERSHIP IN UNIT

Several important questions were brought before the main body of the Army and Navy Veterans' Association in Canada meeting held in their club rooms on Thursday night. Two amputation cases of this war were greeted by the veterans of the last war, and these boys were both granted a years complimentary membership in the organization. Both these boys have suffered the loss of an arm and are recently returned from the Mediterranean area.

It is the intention of the Veterans to do everything in their power to assist the new veterans of this war in rehabilitation upon their return to Canada. The club voted to send a representative, Bill McKenna, vice-president of the organization, to the meeting of the Y.M.C.A. War Service Committee to discuss means and ways of forming a reception committee for meeting returning veterans. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the House Committee.

WILLIAM WOODS NEW PRESIDENT OF MADOC FAIR BOARD

In the report of the Madoc Fair Board it was stated in heading that William Forestall had been elected President. This should have read William Woods. The Ontario Intelligencer regrets the error. Mr. Woods has been a member of the Fair Board for some years and is most deserving of his election to the high position in the organization.

TRENTON SOLDIER REPORTED WOUNDED

The name of a Trenton boy, Pte. Donald Keith Whitney, is contained in the 407th Canadian Army Casualty List released for publication January 14th. Member of a Quebec regiment, he is listed as wounded with no particulars being given. His wife lives at 73 Scott Street, Trenton.

TRUCKER PAYS FINE FOR CARELESS DRIVING

While attempting to pass another transport on Highland Ave., a truck driven by Fred Murray of Toronto, was in collision with a motor car being driven out of West Dunas St. onto Highland Ave. by Mrs. Frank Townsend of Carrying Place. The automobile was proceeding to the east at the top of the West Dundas St. hill when the large transport, that was attempting to pass another truck, struck the motor car. Considerable property damage resulted to the front portion, left front wheel and axle of Mrs. Townsend's car.

Later at the police station Murray paid fines for careless driving and also for driving a motor vehicle while his licence was under suspension. P. C. Evans investigated.

MATTER OF DAMAGES AMICABLY SETTLED

Skidding on the icy pavement an automobile driven by R. L. Johnson, 10 Patterson St., was in collision with another automobile, driven by Arthur A. Powell, 75 Great St. Dundas St. onto Highland Ave. by James St. at the intersection of Church and Great St. James Sts. early Thursday afternoon. Mr. Johnson told investigating police he was proceeding down Church St. hill and when he saw a west-bound car on Great St. James St. he applied the brakes of his motor car immediately but due to the icy condition of the street his vehicle skidded into the left side of Mr. Powell's car. Fender and running board damage was the extent of damage to both vehicles. The matter of damages was amicably settled between the parties concerned.

DELEGATE TO BOYS' PARLIAMENT TO SPEAK AT TABERNACLE CHURCH

Parents interested in boys' work in the city are invited to attend the evening service at Tabernacle United Church Sunday to hear a report of the proceedings of the Older Boys' Parliament held recently in Kitchener. Mr. Reg. Edwards, local delegate to the Parliament will be the guest speaker at the service and in addition to his report is expected to discuss briefly the Kitchener program in its relation to boys' work in the city.

WATCH KEPT ON FIRE IN MARSH

Driving before a stiff west wind, a blaze which got started in the weeds and cat-tails in the marsh directly south of the Reliance Aircraft Company plant, caused firemen a half hour or so watching on Thursday afternoon. Taking precautions against the blaze gaining such progress as to get into the buildings, firemen took both the city pumper and the hook and ladder truck when answering the alarm but little effort was made to extinguish the blaze, it being permitted merely to burn itself out at the edge of the bay.

C.N.R. ORDERS 20 HEAVY LOCOMOTIVES

Orders for 20 heavy locomotives and a large number of freight cars of various types were announced last night by Canadian National Railways "in order to cope with the extremely heavy wartime traffic." The mountain-type locomotives were ordered from Montreal Locomotive Works.

TERRIER ATTACKS, BITES SEVERAL PEDESTRIANS

Confusion was seen along Front St. yesterday afternoon when a wire-haired terrier dog attacked and bit several pedestrians, police reported today. So vicious did the dog become that it frightened women who sought the sanctity of store doorways to escape the attacks of the animal. Mrs. J. Spencer, 91 Cannifton Road, was bitten on the instep, necessitating medical attention by Dr. G. S. Cronk. An airman also had his trouser cuffs ripped by the attacking animal.

Subsequently P. C. Evans and Thos. Thorne, city dog pound custodian, took the animal into custody and upon learning it was owned by a Bleecker Ave. resident took the dog home. It was left in care of the owner for nine days observation.

Pte. H. Burkholder Wounded Second Time in Italy

Returning to his unit after being wounded during the invasion of Sicily, Pte. Harold Burkholder, son of Mrs. Gordon Burkholder, Octavia St., has again been wounded, this time in the Italian campaign, according to word received by his mother. In a letter received from her son, which verified an earlier telegram, Pte. Burkholder received a shrapnel wound in the leg Dec. 22nd, and is now in hospital.

Son of a fighting father, the late Sgt. Gordon Burkholder, veteran of the last Great War and who was killed in an air crash in Manitoba two years ago, Pte. Burkholder enlisted in the Hastings & Prince Edward Regiment in January 1940 and proceeded overseas in May of the same year.

Although having been wounded twice in the Mediterranean campaign, the Belleville boy expresses a belief that he is one of the luckiest soldiers in this war. On both occasions that he was wounded, he reports having had splendid care and treatment in hospital. He says he had a real Christmas dinner.

Nerve-Shattering Experience Related By Hero of 250 Bombings

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 14 (AP) — Francis Hahn, on furlough after a year on Guadalcanal where he underwent 250 bombings, recounted what he considers one of the most nerve-shattering of his war experiences: "On our way to Guadalcanal, we became separated from the convoy during the night. When dawn came, we sighted what we thought was a periscope. We could all see it. It came closer. I was scared to death.

"The guns opened up. It still came closer, closer. Tension was at a breaking point. Suddenly it could be seen clearly, down in the water—a mopstick. The end was down in the water, holding the stick up straight."

Only Survivor Says Victims of Plane Wreck Were Robbed of Possessions

Hamilton, Jan. 14 — (CP)—Sgt. Vernon A. Murray of the R.C.A.F., in a letter received today by his sister, Mrs. C. C. Thompson, said he was the lone survivor of a plane crash in the mountains of Sicily and now is recovering in hospital from serious wounds.

He said Italians who found the wreckage robbed the victims of their possesions and clothing. He lost his watch, boots and gloves. For the theft, one of the Italians was shot and another sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment.

TWELVE PERSONS KILLED

Novice, Tex., Jan. 14. (AP)— Twelve persons— ten soldiers and two civilians—were reported killed and 75 injured in the rear-end collision of two Sante Fe passenger trains during a traffic-snarling snowstorm here yesterday. Both trains were westbound.

E. E. Baker, trainmaster at Brownwood, attributed the wreck to the snowfall, faulty communications and heavy traffic.

Soldier Gets Parcel Though Address On Package Is Missing

That the Canadian postal authorities will leave no stone unturned to deliver mail to boys overseas despite the fact of insufficient addresses or absence of address, is indicated by the fact that somewhere overseas a soldier at this moment may be enjoying a Christmas parcel from which the address had been completely torn away.

During the height of the Christmas rush a gift parcel reached the base post office but its delivery seemed impossible because the wrapper had become torn and the address was missing. Neither could the return address be found.

Upon opening the parcel investigators found the picture of a piper in Highland uniform with badges recognized as belonging to a Winnipeg regiment and on the back of the snapshot was a name, with regimental numbers and initials standing for the name of the regiment. Officials communicated with the district director of postal services in Winnipeg, sending him the photo and the details, with the result that enquiry was made which led to ascertaining the name of the person for whom parcel was intended. The staff at the base post office were thus enabled to fill in the complete address on the rewrapped parcel and forward it for delivery.

Flt. Sgt. McHenry Believed Killed On Active Service

Presumed to have been killed while on active service, Flight Sergeant Justin McHenry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel McHenry, of Lonsdale, was buried in England on January 8th, his parents have been informed. No other particulars were contained in the message.

Former student of Deseronto High School, from where he graduated in 1938, winning the Memorial Scholarship, Flt. Sgt. McHenry enlisted in the R.C.A.F. as a mechanic the year before the war broke out. He later remustered as air crew and after graduating as a navigator went overseas in May, 1943. A splendid athlete, he excelled in school sports and was also an officer in the school cadet corps.

Besides his parents he is survived by three sisters, Helen, a high school teacher; Monica, of Washington, D.C., and Nora, nurse-in-training at St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto.

Flt. Sgt. McHenry is the seventh student of Deseronto High School to give his life for his country. They are: Ray Harvey, Pat Hetherington, Clinton Topping, Robt. Armitage, Gordon Donaldson, Lloyd Brant, Justin McHenry, Arthur Hopping is reported as missing.

Many in City Witness Eclipse

Students of astronomy and others in the city interested in the movements of the stars and planets were afforded a splendid opportunity Thursday morning to see the eclipse of the planet Jupiter by the moon. At approximately eight o'clock, the moon in travelling its orbit, passed directly between the earth and Jupiter. School children at St. Michael's Academy, who witnessed the eclipse, reported the phenomenon could be clearly seen in the morning sky. Jupiter, although recognized as the largest planet in the earth's planetary system, is second in brilliance to Venus when viewed with the naked eye with its average distance from the sun being 483,000,000 miles.

POLICE COURT

Thomas O. Ellis, Trenton, was given a two-year suspended sentence after being convicted of the theft of a generator in Thursday afternoon's police court held before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd here. Ellis was arraigned by Provincial Constable W. E. Smith charged with stealing a generator from a motor car owned by Earl Keene, Donald St., city. The accused pleaded guilty, restitution was made in the matter of the generator and upon recommendation of Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan the suspended sentence was given.

Today in city police before Magistrate Lloyd, Ross Wannamaker, Belleville, was fined $12.50, including costs, after pleading guilty to a charge of driving a motor vehicle with defective brakes. A second charge of careless driving was adjourned when Deputy Chief Harman made it known that an elderly man, Dennis Mendeville, had been injured after being struck by Wannamaker's vehicle on Pinnacle St., on Tuesday. "In fairness to all concerned, maybe we had better defer this case for a couple of weeks," suggested Mr. Donnan.

George Miller, Belleville, appeared on a holding charge of vagrancy and was allowed his liberty upon his own recognizance to appear in a week's time while police complete investigations in the matter.

Vernon Orr, Belleville, appeared charged with assaulting one Ellen Anderson, West Bridge St. The case was enlarged until Tuesday at the request of the complainant. Mr. Orr assured the court he would be ready to contest the case at any time.

Presentation Made To Anglican Vicar

Trenton, (Special.):—More than 250 citizens representing possibly every church in the town, gathered at the Canterbury Hall on Wednesday evening to bid farewell to Rev. J. L. Hutchinson of St. George's Anglican Church, who leaves next week for his duties with the Royal Canadian Navy at Cornwallis, N.S.

Mr. F. W. Sherbert acted as chairman of the evening while Mr. Eben James and Mr. Gib Aziz voiced the regrets of the gathering at Vicar Hutchinson's leaving, wishing him success in his new endeavor.

On behalf of the congregation of St. George's, Rector's Warden C. W. Lott, presented Mr. Hutchinson with a beautiful wrist watch and travelling kit, while Mrs. N. Kidd presented him with a pen and pencil set on behalf of the choir.

Rev. Mr. Hutchinson thanked all those present for their kindly wishes and beautiful gifts and said that he would always hold kindly thoughts of his church and its members in Trenton as well as the many other friends which he had made during his stay in their midst.

Entertainment for the evening was provided by members of the R.C.A.F. following which dancing was enjoyed to the Air Force "Old Time Band". Refreshments were served by the ladies of the congregation.

Honored by Rotary.

Rev. J. L. Hutchinson, vicar of St. George's Anglican Church, was guest of honor at the regular meeting of the Trenton Rotary Club on Monday evening. Vicar Hutchinson, who is immediate Past President of Rotary, leaves next week for his new duties with the Royal Canadian Navy at Cornwallis, Ont. Rotarian Past President Bill House presented him with his Past President's Jewel, while in appreciation of the generous amount of fine work done by him during his stay in Trenton, Rotarian E. L. Fraser presented him with a travelling bag.

In thanking fellow Rotarians for their kindness Vicar Hutchinson said, "One great compensation in life is that we cannot truly help others without receiving a great amount of satisfaction to ourselves."

Fulfilling the idea of the Rotary Club being International, two outstanding guests at Monday's meeting were Rotarian John Bartos of Batanagar, India and Rotarian John Tusa of Tilbury, England. Both these gentlemen are engaged in post-war programs at the Bata Shoe Company. Mr. Bartos told of their plant in India and of conditions now existing in that country, while Mr. Tusa spoke of his work in England, and thanked the Canadian people for the big part which they are playing to speed Victory over there.

Paper Collection Disappointing.

Though the Committee in charge worked diligently to make Trenton's first real "scrap paper pick-up day" a success on Tuesday, it is regrettable that just over five tons of paper was salvaged in this way. Surely it must be that many families failed to get busy on the idea and put their paper out ready for the truck as it rushed along its way from early morning Tuesday.

It is understood a further meeting is to be held in the near future with all those interested in salvaging paper in the town and it is hoped that there will be a permanent understanding as to when and how this form of scrap is to reach the market. No doubt before another definite pick-up day rolls around those persons who have so far been toying with the idea of digging into their cellars for this precious commodity will have realized that this is just one more way in which they can and must help.

Says Mackenzie Made 'Proper Ass' of Himself

Rossland, B. C., Jan. 14 — (CP)— S. G. Blaylock, chairman of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company, said in an address here Wednesday that Pensions Minister Mackenzie made a "proper ass" of himself in a recent speech at Vancouver charging existence of a fund designed to wreck the Liberals in B.C.

(In an address at Vancouver last month Mr. Mackenzie alleged there was a "Tory-financial" conspiracy in British Columbia "aimed at the protection of vested interests against socialism and this in turn has been deflected against the government.")

Mr. Blaylock told the junior Board of Trade here his and other companies had contributed to a fund for "research work" in an effort to provide greater employment after the war, and said it would welcome the support of other firms.

"Ian Mackenzie saw a big, bad wolf," he said. "He heard something was being done and there was probably going to be money spent. As it did not appear to be earmarked as Liberal money he made up his mind it was Conservative money preparing to wreck the Liberals in B. C. and promptly proceeded to make a proper ass of himself."

Posthumous Honor To Carole Lombard

Los Angeles, Jan. 14 — (AP) — A Distinguished Service Certificate will be given posthumously to actress Carole Lombard, who lost her life in a plane crash two years ago while returning from War Bond rallies in the east, Howard D. Mills, west coast representative of the Treasury's War Finance Division, said last night.

R.C.N. WILL

Admiral Jones will take over the general control of naval affairs. No successor has been appointed to the vice-chief's post.

Mean Business Now

"The sending of Nelles, Stuart and Breadner to Britain is a sign that we mean business over there," the Minister declared. He said Admiral Nelles arrival in Britain might be taken alsod as a indication the Canadian Navy was reaching maturity and becoming less of an adjunct to the Royal Navy.

He said the two Canadian-sailored "flat-tops" probably will begin their job as convoy escorts in the Atlantic. Later they might go to the Pacific.

The Navy Minister said Canadians now are undergoing training fitting them for the job of taking over two new gift cruisers—Canada's first in this war—from the Royal Navy. He estimated the cost of the two ships at between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000.

Fewer U-Boats

Other topics brought up at the press conference included reference to the U-boat menace with Mr. Macdonald saying it had considerably abated "but there are still U-boats on the seas, although very few in our part of the Atlantic." The Canadian Navy does more than 40 per cent of North Atlantic convoy duty.

A press release, commenting on the Nelles-Jones switch, said that last year Allied shipping losses were than one-half of the 1942 figure. On the other hand, cargo shipbuilding by the United Nations was more than twice as great as it was in 1942.

Full Co-operation

"Last year saw spectacular successes against submarines in the North Atlantic and elsewhere," it continued. "Full and effective co-operation prevailed between the sea and air forces of Great Britain, the United States and Canada.

"Within the last few weeks decisive victories have been scored against German surface units. All in all, 1943 marked a great stride forward in the winning of the battle of the Atlantic.

"Canadian coastal waters, which in 1942 felt the presence of German submarines, were last year relatively free from this type of marauder. This condition may be attributed to the fact that the sea and air forces of Canada, the United States and the United Kingdom were able to engage German submarines well out at sea.

Great Events Impending.

"Now, however, other great events are impending. The United Kingdom has always formed one end of the Atlantic battleline, but now it assumes an additional importance as the area from which an attack against the German controlled regions of Europe will be launched. This attack will involve the fullest and most precise co-operation between sea, land and air forces. Canadian sailors, soldiers and airmen will have their part to play in this great assault.

"The Canadian Naval Service has had representatives in London from the beginning of the war. At present the senior Canadian naval officer is Capt. F. L. Houghton, R. C. N., who assumed his duties some months ago. Capt. Houghton has already done splendid service to the Canadian Navy at London, but in view of impending great events it is felt that the senior Canadian naval officer in Britain should be an officer of high rank.

"Realizing the great importance of the overseas post and bearing in mind the tasks that lie ahead of the Canadian navy, it has been decided that Vice-Admiral Percy W. Nelles, C.B., R.C.N., should assume the post of senior Canadian flag officer overseas.

"He will have general supervision of the affairs of the Royal Canadian Navy overseas, and the utmost confidence is felt that his long experience and distinguished service with the Royal Navy and Royal Canadian Navy can be put to the best possible advantage in this new post."

Native of Brantford

Admiral Nelles, a native of Brantford, Ont., entered the Navy in 1908 at 16 and has been Chief of Naval Staff for 10 years.

He served in the First Great War and in 1929 became the first Canadian-trained officer to command a British cruiser when he served as acting Captain of H.M.S. Dragon.

He attended the Imperial Defence College in 1933 and in 1934 was appointed Chief of Naval Staff. His promotion to Vice-Admiral came in 1941.

Admiral Jones, a native of Halifax, entered the Royal Naval College of Canada in 1911 and has had wide seagoing and administrative experience in the Navy. At the outbreak of war he was serving as captain of Canadian destroyers, commanding H.M.C.S. Ottawa.

He later commanded the destroyer Assiniboine and served as commanding officer Halifax force and Commanding Officer Atlantic coast before coming to Ottawa as Vice-Chief of Naval Staff little more than a year ago. He is Canadian Naval member of the Joint Defence Board and was promoted Rear-Admiral in 1941.

IN MEMORIAM

LUCAS — In loving memory of my dear mother, Sarah (Mayne) Lucas, who passed away January 14, 1943.

Your gentle face and patient smile
With sadness I recall;
You had a kindly word for each
And died beloved of all.
I miss you now, my heart is sore,
As time goes on, I miss you more;
Your loving smile, your gentle face
No one can fill your vacant place.

—Ever remembered by daughter Lena, son-in-law, Percy, and grandchildren, Marguerite, Milton and Ross (R.C.A.F. Overseas.)

FREDERICK — In loving memory of a dear husband, Wilbur Frederick, who passed away January 14, 1943.

There is a wife who misses you sadly, and finds the time long since you went, and I think of you daily and hourly and try to be brave and content, but the tears that I shed in silence, and I breathe a sigh of regret, for you were mine and I remember, though all the world forget.

—Lovingly remembered by his wife, Isabell.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. William Bedford and family wish to thank their many friends and neighbors for the kindness and sympathy shown to them during their recent sad bereavement, also for the beautiful floral tributes.

One of Judges Who Sentenced Ciano Killed In Car Wreck Report

London, Jan. 144. (AP)— The Berlin radio, quoting a Milan dispatch, said Dominico Mittica, identified as a lieutenant general in the Italian militia and one of the Verona judges who sentenced Count Galeazzo Ciano to death last Monday, was killed today in an automobile accident.

ONLY ONE IN DIVISION

Moscow, Jan. 14 (AP) — It is becoming increasingly hard to tell the strength of a German division.

The newspaper Izvestia yesterday told of the Russians capturing a German soldier and asking him where his division was.

"I am the division," he said sadly.

Eldorado Couple Celebrate Golden Anniversary

Marmora (Special)—Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wanamaker of Eldorado, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Monday at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Gordon of Marmora. The happy event which they were recalling to mind took place on January 10th, 1894 at Queensboro, Ont., the Rev. T. H. McDonald being the officiating minister. To honor them on having attained to this anniversary are one son Ernest Wanamaker, Stirling, and three daughters, Mrs. Percy Gordon, Marmora; Mrs. Robert Warren, Niagara Falls, N.Y.; and Mrs. Richard Warren, Colborne, Ont. They also have nine grandchildren, the eldest of whom, Driver Ernest Gordon has been serving overseas for some time. The anniversary supper was served at 5 p.m. by Mrs. M. Kouri and Mrs. C. Airhart on behalf of the family. With a few friends being in the number, twenty-one in all partook of a bountiful repast. Mr. and Mrs. Wanamaker were the recipients of many beautiful gifts, and also gifts of money.

Later in the evening, the number of well wishers was swelled to about forty. The evening was spent in games, music and dancing. Fred Matthews of Deloro furnished music for the dance. Included in the friends who participated in the dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Parnell of Eldorado who incidentally were celebrating the 21st anniversary of their own wedding.

Young Pupils Give Musical Recital

Frankford — Pupils of Miss Isabel Ostrom of Frankford presented an attractive recital of piano music at the recreation hall at Batawa on Wednesday evening and had an encouraging and appreciative audience.

The youngest performer was Dana Zapletal, seven years old, of excellent promise. The performer with most to do was Nada Marek who played with a sound technique Beethoven and Schubert. Others who contributed agreeably to this successful evening were Mildred Zurek, Carol Sine, Vera Pulpan, Mary Pulpan, Dana Michalek, Eva Hrachovec, Sylvia Moynes, Milan Kravacek, Ilona Patak, Grace Casement, Dasa Cecha, Betty Dickson. Mrs. Zurek contributed a vocal solo. Dana Kunicek is to be especially commended for her engaging quality of Mendelssohn.

Foxboro

Foxboro — Friends of Mrs. Harry Hoard (nee Nettie Stewart) will be sorry to know she is a patient in the General Hospital at Belleville.

OS. Garth Sine of Kingston spent Sunday at his home.

Friends are pleased to see Mrs. Bernard O'Brien out again after being ill for a time.

Mr. and Mrs. Gibson Hodgen of Belleville and Mr. Dale Hodgen of Halifax were Sunday evening guests at Mr. Wm. Hodgen's.

During the winter months, Church service will be held in the morning at eleven-thirty instead of the evening.

Mrs. Blake Johnston spent a day last week with Mrs. Percy Johnston.

3rd Sidney — The January meeting of the Aiken's Woman's Missionary Society was held on Thursday at the home of Mrs. Harley Hubble.

Due to illness in the neighborhood and also the icy condition of the roads, the attendance was smaller than usual.

The service was in charge of Mrs. E. K. Hubble the President appointed for 1944.

"The Bible for all Canada's Children," was the theme for the worship service, which was based on the statement. Our national life can only be Christian to the extent that the education of our youth is Christian.

A young Canadian soldier on being asked about the moral in the army replied: "I have not found it difficult to maintain my Christian standards in the army. But I entered the army with standards established in my Christian home and in my church. The tragedy of the Christian army is that so many boys and girls enter into the forces without Christian standards, and they fall like ninepins in the face of the new freedom and temptations."

Bible study in the home was urged, and prayers were offered for the Canadian boys and girls by Mrs. S. W. Spafford and Mrs. Fred Westover.

A "thank you" letter was read from Mrs. Arthur Saylor for remembrances received during her stay in hospital.

A letter was read from the mother of the family where the white gifts had been sent before Christmas. The gratitude and appreciation expressed in this letter, made the effort seem well worth while.

Letters were read from some of the boys overseas who had received the Christmas greetings sent them from the society and included Bob English, Eugene Irwin, Bert Shaw and Bob Kells.

Bob English, a former member of the Aiken's Church and Sunday School, asked that the hymn "O God Our Help in Ages Past", be sung in church early in the new year, as a special request from him.

Readings were given by Mrs. U. Perry and Mrs. S. Westover.

The third chapter of the Study Book, "Skill and Joy in Work" was presented by Mrs. Fred Westover, Mrs. U. Perry, Mrs. A. Latta, Mrs. S. Spafford and Mrs. Harold Rowe.

This very interesting chapter brought to light "another side" of the missionary activities abroad. The need has arisen for missionary farmers and industrial workers, who can "teach" as well as preach. Thus they can help the labor classes to gain the greatest of all joys—transformed lives through skillful work which yields an adequate reward for their labor. Then they can live the abundant life as Jesus said: "I A Come That ye May Have Life, and Have it Abuntantly."

A splendid paper was given by Mrs. Selburn Westover on: How can we use our personal influence and political power to gain social and economic security for all Canadians?

Social and Personal

Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Thrasher and Mr. and Mrs. George Shortts attended the funeral of the latter's cousin Mr. John B. Thompson at Stirling United Church on Saturday afternoon.

Due to an epidemic of measles in the neighborhood, the Hogle School was closed last week and part of this week.

Mrs. Wilmot Bailey returned to her home on Friday last, having spent the past two weeks with relatives in Peterborough.

Friends of Mr. Everett Bowers will be pleased to learn that he is making satisfactory progress toward recovery following an operation at the Belleville General Hospital on Saturday last.

Mrs. Poste and daughter Irene of Selkirk, Manitoba, are visiting their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rowe.

Mrs. Harley Hubble, Mr. and Mrs. Selburn Westover, Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Hubble, Donald, Burton and Harley were Sunday evening guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Rits and faily, Fourth of Thurlow.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Conley spent last Friday with relatives in Stirling.

FEWER NEWS CONFERENCES

Washington, Jan. 14 — (AP) — President Roosevelt, largely because of extensive wartime travels and occasional illnesses, apparently has discarded his schedule of twice-a-wek news conferences.

In 1943 he set a new low of 59, thus averaging a little more than one a week.

Blame 2 Suicides Of Nazi Prisoners To Persecution Fear

Omaha, Jan. 13—(CP)—The 7th Service Command last night attributed two suicides among German prisoners of war at the Concordia, Kas., internment camp to "fear of persecution wielded by the Nazis."

The suicides were Franz Kettner, German Army private, who slashed his wrists while held in protective custody at his own request and an unidentified German captain. The latter, accused of "making remarks against Hitler," hanged himself after being "removed from his quarters by fellow prisoners and taken to another room where he was left with a piece of rope, a bed, a chair, a table and his personal belongings," the command said.

The command reported that investigation into the captain's death resulted in "rather conclusive evidence of the existence of a system of "kanagroo court martials" in the prison camp compounds" at which "officers were 'tried' and informed that they were found guilty of treasonable acts of one kind or another."

Third Suicide Mental Case

A third suicide at the camp, by a German officer, was not connected with political beliefs of the man, the official investigation having shown it "was a mental case clearly unrelated to camp quarrels or factional disputes," the command said.

Kettner said "something like 'they're after me,' " when he approached an American officer and, at his own request, was placed in the guard house of the American guard force section where no person from the prisoners' compounds could reach him, the statement said. But "despite this security, the prisoner grew more despondent, as though under great mental strain."

Two high-ranking officers of the German Army suspected of being connected with the suicide of the German captain who hanged himself have been transferred to another camp, the command reported, but their connection with the incident "it still being investigated."

Address on Vocational Guidance Given at H. & S. Club Meeting

Fathers of pupils attending Queen Alexandra School acted as hosts to the members of their Home and School Club Tuesday evening during the annual Fathers' Night program. Highlighting the program was an address on Vocational Guidance presented by the public school inspector for the city, Mr. L. A. Kells.

President of the association Mrs. James Barclay presided over the meeting and welcomed the members and extended a cordial invitation to the next meeting when an address on Child Delinquency, would be heard. Miss Arkles led in community singing during the program with Mrs. Stackhouse at the piano, while the collegiate quartette, comprised of Bill Bankier, Gordon Bankier, Buddy Cavanagh and Donald Beavis favored with several popular numbers.

Men's Committee Chosen

Mrs. Ralph Morden gave a brief talk explaining in detail the work and aims of the Home and School Association and commented on the excellent co-operation received from the teachers which helped considerably in making the association a success. A men's committee was chosen to further the work of the organization with the following being appointed: Chairman, James Barclay; vice chairman, W. H. Finkle; secretary, E. Buchanan; treasurer, Chester Smith, with A. Harris, Gilbert Scott, Enos David and George Wishart being appointed as directors.

Outlined by the guest speaker Vocational Guidance was explained as an organized program directed by a personnel trained to give systematic aid to pupils requiring adjustments to problems of educational, vocational, civic and personal nature.

Community Enterprise

The program should be a community enterprise, according to Mr. Kells, and should centre in, but not emanate from the schools. It was suggested that school authorities would be wise to avoid definite commitment to an organized program until community interest, expressed through Home and School Association, Service Clubs and similar organizations had come to the point of pressing for action.

The speaker pointed to the Kiwanis Club as one service organization keenly interested and most strongly committed to the support and development of Vocational Guidance. In many instances this club has sponsored community co-operation with the educational authorities.

A typical program which might be followed was outlined by Mr. Kells with the personnel requirements being noted and the general activity cited. The program was graduated to follow a school pupil through his school years and to assist in occupation placement after school graduation.

Purpose in Education

In the individual case the boy or girl is brought face to face with the fact that there is a purpose in education. Instruction is given in how the various types of education enable boys and girls to proceed to various vocations in life. Tests in intelligence and aptitude are given in order that the counsellor may be in a position to guide the student away from occupational training for which he is not naturally adapted.

The cost of such a program of Vocational Guidance in Belleville was estimated by the speaker as amounting to a few hundred dollars per year. but indicated the main cost should not be computed in money. Rather it should be considered as a contribution to community welfare from which pupils would repay many times over in new interest.

Germans Stage Mock Defence Of City of Athens

Ankara, Jan. 14 — (AP) — Two German divisions staged a mock defence of the city of Athens in day-long manoeuvres Wednesday, reports from Greece reaching here yesterday said. The Nazi high command, these reports said, has set up a new Greek defence line which apparently envisages an Allied invasion from the southeastern tip of the Italian mainland.

The Germans were said to be sending smoke screen equipment to every island in the Aegean Sea with orders to throw a smoke screen over the islands every time an alert is sounded.

Greek saboteurs, meanwhile, were reported to have blown up a 5,000-ton German supply ship in Salamis harbor Jan. 3. In revenge, the Nazis shot 30 Greek hostages.

The Nazi command in Greece is reported to have published a warning that thereafter when acts of sabotage were committed everything within an area of 25 miles around the spot would be destroyed. It was estimated 1,500,000 Greeks already had been made homeless since the German occupation.

Oshawa Airman Wins D.S.O., Bar In Four Months

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Jan. 13 — (CP Cable) — The first Bar to a D.S.O. won by a Canadian in this war has been awarded Wing Cmdr. Lloyd V. Chadburn of Aurora and Oshawa, Ont., an unassuming youth of 24 who, as leader of a Canadian Wing, has become in the last few months one of the top-ranking pilots in fighter command.

Chadburn now wears the double D.S.O. beside the D.F.C. he received for spectacular work during the Dieppe raid Aug. 19, 1924, when Canadian airmen flew support for Canadian troops for the first time in the Second Great War.

To listen to this quiet, almost frail-looking young man with blond wavy hair you would be surprised at him wearing decorations at all, yet his qualities of leadership and fighting ability have "won him two D.S.O.'s in four months.

"It's a funny thing that when the boys put on a good show the wing commander gets the D.S.O.", he said at air force headquarters. "They put on another and he gets a Bar."

Chadburn's citation said: "This officer has displayed outstanding leadership and great tactical skill and courage. Since being awarded the D.S.O. he has led his formation on a large number of sorties during which 23 enemy aircraft have been destroyed and many others damaged. Chadburg shot down six of this total himself. Much of the success achieved during this period can be attributed to this officer's sterling qualities."

Chadburn's wing has been remarkably successful since he took over last June but he takes little of the credit for himself although he has destroyed 12½ of the 44 enemy aircraft shot down by pilots of the wing since then without loss of a single pilot due to enemy action. Altogether, his victories now total 14.

Warring on German Nerves

What with war news of a character that must bite deeply into German morale as it comes in from the Russian front telling of German withdrawals and the possibility of disaster and the ceaseless air war by the Allies, the Germans are facing a war of nerves being waged upon them with more and more intensity as Germany's plight grows worse.

The other day the production of American planes was announced with exact figures. No Goebbels could extract any pleasure out of that. Fear and trepidation would rather be the effect of the vast output of American aircraft.

Now the Germans have heard as well as the rest of the world of the jet-propulsion plane which the Allies are to put into production. That is bad news for the Germans for the Allies are determined to knock the enemy out at the soonest possible moment and the Huns would not have opportunity or time to go to work and to put into production anything like the Allied plane, the details of which are secret.

Now the fact that the British and Americans will produce this propellerless plane is something to undermine the spirit of the Germans who can expect that what is to come will be worse than what they nave already tasted. As the Montreal Herald says, "The Germans . . . will draw the conclusion that horrible as has been the recoil of the aerial blitzkrieg on their own head to date, they 'ain't seen nothing yet' compared with the horrors to come at any moment."

Again the Herald says, "Every added ounce of pressure in the 'war of nerves' plays its part in hastening victory and we can safely conclude that this advertising of a coming new terror of the skies will help along the good work of breaking down the German resistance, just as the actual bombing of the Reich is doing now.

"One of these days the Germans will realize the implacable fact that the time has come for them to quit. The news about the new plane, of itself, may not make them do it, but it will help, for it is a symbol highlighting the resources of ingenuity and resourcefulness, backed up by bomb-proof capacity and raw materials in profusion which are available to the Allies."

German Hand in Executions

The hand of the Nazis is recognized in the trial of Count Ciano and his four associates who were reported the other day as having been executed at Verona for overthrowing Mussolini's Fascist regime. Germany, according to Frank Bruttó, AP correspondent, is "making a supreme effort to instill fear in persons in Germany and the satellite lands who might be plotting similar coups against Hitler and his puppet dictators."

It is what might be expected of the German Fuehrer who has manifested throughout his public life a ruthless and selfish policy that will sweep anyone out of his path whether he be an opponent or one whom the brutal German can use as an example of what happens to those who in any way reflects upon his aggression and policy.

Hitler and Nazism are the real force behind the discredited Fascism of Italy, and even Mussolini if alive is but a stooge for the Hun. A Swiss paper quoted by the above-mentioned correspondent says that Mussolini no longer counts, and that if he did intercede for his son-in-law Count Ciano, it was without results and the paper inclines to the view that probably Mussolini was not consulted regarding Ciano's fate.

That newspaper went further and said that the Berlin reaction clarified the view as showing that "the Verona decisions above all acted to intimidate members of the German and foreign governments tempted to take a similar attitude."

Hitler of course cared nothing for Mussolini but he hated Ciano and those who dared discredit Fascism and Nazism through their repudiation of Fascism and would be pleased to make an awful example of Ciano and other Fascists who voted a dictator out.

There appears to be a general acceptance of the story from the Italian border which was taken up by D.N.B., the German news agency, that Ciano and his associates had been executed.

In striking at the Fascist Grand Council members who ousted Mussolini Hitler may again, in trusting to his soulless instinct for doing the deed of death, have committed the blunder of stirring up Italians to greater hatred for the Germans which the Italians have always felt for the German people who at many times in history attacked Italy and interfered with the course of her history and development.

The whole story of Fascism and Nazism is one of sordidness. A reprobate Mussolini setting up the ragged show and weak and false pretence of a revival of the Rome and Italy of the Caesars on the one hand and the murderous Hitler, callously plotting worldwide slavery and ignoring every human and divine law, on the other. This pair and their associates have been rooted in dishonor and evil, and slowly but surely judgment of this world is descending upon the unhallowed gangsters, and those that gathered about these men of evil.

Suiting the Male

Nearly every year some designer of women's fashions proposes in a thoughtless moment to remodel men's business clothes, observes The New York Sun. It never seems inappropriate for the foremost male designers to make seasonal changes in the apparel of our wives and daughters, but no man who goes about for a month with a button missing from his vest will spinelessly allow a woman expert to suggest radical reshaping of masculine attire.

Boldly, nevertheless, Miss Ellen Carney of the faculty of Cooper Union's art school comes out with the belief that women are less daring than men in adopting new fashions. Armed with that bit of flattery, she attempts to slip over on us a new design for business wear. She describes it as having "deep soft sleeves . . . with a neck combining collar and tie." Dark trousers of lightweight material are suspended from a V-shaped substitute for a waistcoat, with pockets.

Unfortunately Miss Carney has not chosen the proper season for urging upon men a suit which she says incorporates the ideas of a number of men. Unfortunately, also, men themselves seem to take less pity upon their servitude to custom in clothes than do women, who invariably deplore in mid-summer man's wearing of heavy suits in subways and offices. Perhaps an acute shortage of lightweight summer jackets and slacks would drive the potentially daring males into wilder experimenting in apparel.

Save Churches, Monuments

(Le Soleil, Quebec)

It was not Canadian troops who aggravated the ravages of war in Sicily. On the contrary, it was German regiments which, in retreat, pillaged and devastated areas before the advancing Allies put an end to their work of destruction. The Canadian soldiers carefully saved monuments and churches in their operations against the fleeing Nazis. They now learn with legitimate pride that they saved precious treasures, principally at Palermo and Syracuse. Old temples, the amphitheatre of Agrigento, the Greek and Roman ruins of Segesta, the old residences of the Thirteenth Century, cathedrals and palaces remained intact, thanks to the vigilance of the Allied leaders and the exemplary conduct of our troops.

The famous Dombeco sherry firm of Spain has refused an order for approximately £10,000 worth of wine placed by a German firm. The Spanish company required 50 per cent cash on delivery. The German firm was unwilling or unable to meet this request.

CAFE INCIDENT

Said Crankmire at our table gay:
"We must be careful what we say.
For instance, did you see nearby
A man depart and wonder why?
Here in this crowded eating place
Did no one see his solemn face?
Did no one overhear him sigh
As we called taxes much too high?
When one of us remarked he'd bought
As many war bonds as he ought,
And others then began to boast
They'd thought they'd done as much as most,
Did anyone sitting here
Notice him brush away a tear?
When we discussed the various drives
For funds for saving human lives,
Deciding we are over-tasked
And that too much of us is asked,
Did no one see his lips go set,
As if an enemy he'd met?
He quit his meal at hearing that
And rose and got his coat and hat,
And in a voice, subdued and shrill,
He asked the waiter for his bill.
'I can't stand talk like that,' he said.
'I have a son reported dead.' "

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

January 14th., 1924

A meeting of the Property Owners' Association will be held tomorrow evening in the city hall. Matters of interest to owners of property will be discussed and officers elected for the ensuing year.

The Rev. R. S. Laidlaw, of Knox Church Winnipeg, and former minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville, has been invited to become minister of High Park Presbyterian Church, Toronto. The stipend offered is $5,000. per year.

Mr. S. J. Fisher has returned home from Marmora where he spent several days on business.

Mr. Charles Hanna will go to Montreal to attend a meeting of the Kiwanis Trustees' Association.

A party of young people from Holloway Street Methodist Church enjoyed a sleight ride to Trenton last evening and spent a jolly time at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison.

January 14th., 1914

The Schuster Block, corner of Bridge and Pinnacle Streets was destroyed by fire last evening. The fire was discovered about 7.30 o'clock. As a result of the fire the following places of business were destroyed: Schuster Company Office; Canadian Northern Ticket and Express Office; Canadian Pacific Telegraph Office; Sam Domenico's fruit Store; Canadian Pacific Railway Engineers' quarters on first floor, also the following lodge rooms: Mizpah Lodge No. 127 I. O. O. F.; Juinte Encampment No. 19 I. O. O. F., and Quintena Lodge Daughters of Rebekah. The cause of the fire is as yet unknown. The street offices were not burned, but were ruined with the deluge of water which froze inches deep upon the floor. The desks and papers were rescued from the Schuster Company's office, the C. N. R. Ticket Office and the C. P. R. Telegraph Office. The telegraph instruments were saved early in the course of the fire. Nothing remains of the beautiful Mizpah lodge room, the regalia and robes of the I. O. O. F. and the brand new Rebekah garments, the latter were not insured and the loss is about $400. An effort was made to rescue the time honored charters of Mizpah Lodge and Quinte Encampment and the recent charter of Quintena Lodge, but the smoke could not be penetrated. The Mizpah and Quinte Encampment Regalia was valued at about $2,000. The walls of the building are strong and unshaken. A new building will be erected as soon as possible.

Dr. Gibson will deliver a lecture on health matters at the Y. M. C. A. this evening.

Mr. A. L. Chandler of the Deseronto Tribune was in town today.

Trains Delayed For 24 Hours

Istanbul, Jan. 14 —(AP)— Trains from Bulgaria failed to arrive at the Turkish frontier for 24 hours after Monday's day and night aerial blow against Sofia by Allied bombers.

Only two passengers from Bulgaria were aboard the Turkish train reaching here today from the border, and it was said police permits are required for entering and leaving Sofia and that the populace has been warned looting is punishable by summary shooting.

(An article in a Swedish newspaper reported by the Office of War Infomation declared "the whole of the railway traffic is paralyzed" in Bulgaria, and a Budapest broadcast recorded by U. S. government monitors said all automobiles in the vicinity of Sofia had been requisitioned to aid in the evacuation of the Bulgarian capital.)

RECORD GOOD BUT TOO YOUNG

Farragut, Idaho, Jan. 14—(AP)—Raymond Brenner completed training at Farragut Naval Training station with a good record, but is to be sent home. He is 13 years old. The young sailor from Chicago said his parents wrote him twice to come and when he didn't his mother took the matter up with United States Navy authorities.

Canadian Scene A Century Ago

By J. L. G.

Full justice should be done to the memory of Canada's earliest citizens. Their cheerfulness under adversity and courage in danger set an example for us who must also "fight the good fight."

Today we're asked to use less material in our clothes—to conserve fabric and help the war effort. Back in the 19th century there were no restrictions and no skimping. In fact, a dress ran into real money because of the yardage, and few women could afford to add more than a frock or so a year to their wardrobes. By 1874, skirts were becoming scantier—"often not more than three and a quarter yards at the hemline"! Quoting from a magazine of that year: "The fullness is carried far back, so as to make the front and sides lie as flatly as possible. Such extra fullness as is needed for house dresses is added in the straight breadths. It is not pleasant to note that the tendency towards trailing skirts for out-door uses is greater than ever. tI no appeal against the untidy and unladylike practice strong enought to induce sensible and refined people to abandon it? They would consider the wearing of soiled lingerie a sin against their nature; yet they will, day after day, put on dresses encrusted, for inches above the edge, with the sweepings of miry sidewalks. It does not depend upon modistes whether this shall be so; it depends solely upon women who should foreswear any fashion which forces them to be untrue to their instinct for cleanliness."

Among old customs long since disappeared in Canada is that of carving mottoes on the walls of houses. Citizens whose homes were originally in Switzerland and the Tyrol spent time and talent on this type of decoration, producing inscriptions that were sometimes pious often amusing and cynical. A favourite wording was: "The Lord this dwelling be about, And Bless all who go in and out." Satirically: "The old folks to me they say The times grow worse from day to day. But I say no! I put it so:—The times are just the times we've always had, It is the people who have grown so bad." . . . Samplers done in cross-stitch also took up the slack of empty hours. The quaintness and homely beauty of these embroideries have assured long life for the designs. Copies with some such wordings as: "There's no place like home" are still seen on many articles of household use.

The old oaken bucket made many a trip to the well in the thirsty days of logging and house-raising bees. Popular equipment called a "sweep" consisted of a post with crotch at top, from which swung a stick with one end heavier than the other. To the light upper end was fixed a pole of a length to reach down into the well. The bucket was placed on the end and when filled was raised by the weight of the heavy end of the pole, which stuck out over the top of the post. When wells were extra deep, a rope and windlass were pressed into service in drawing up the water.

With limited tools and still more limited experience, the settlers improvised and improved on articles of daily need. The pump began to supplant the well. The favourite sucker pump was a pine or tamarac log with a rod run down a hole bored lengthwise. A "sucker" made of leather finished off the lower end. In it was a valve that opened as the pump handle was lifted and let the water flow through. It closed as the handle was lowered, which brought the water up.

In our leisure moments we can lounge in overstuffed chairs and chesterfields, but our pioneer forefathers enjoyed no such comfort! Furnishings were rude and scanty in Canada's first log cabins. Seating accommodation consisted of three-legged stools constructed of split slabs with four legs set in auger holes. Tables were made in the same manner. Dishes were placed on flat pieces of wood held by pegs stuck in the walls. The family bed in these primitive houses was built by boring holes in one of the wall logs and driving poles into these supported by posts at the outer end. On top, slabs split from basswood were laid with the smooth side up. There were few homes with carpets on the floors or draperies at the windows.

Report Not True Says Headquarters

Toronto, Jan. 14 —(CP)— In a story from London, Ont., on Jan. 11 The Canadian Press erroneously stated that Military District No. 1 (London) was the source of a report that consideration was being given to increasing subsistence allowances to all ranks of the Canadian army.

The report, as published by the London Free Press, was credited to "reliable sources." There was no basis for the CP credit of the report to military sources. Wednesday Defence Headquarters at Ottawa said the report had "absolutely no foundation."

SEARCH WATERFRONT FOR SEDAN AND FOUR MEN

Washington Spotlight

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Washington, Jan. 14 — (CP) — Pockets and shopping bags of United States' citizens are soon to be flooded with some 2,000,000,000 fibre ration tokens so much like transit tokens that operators of buses and street cars throughout the country are shuddering in apprehension.

The issue has reached Congress where Representative Frank B. Keefe (Rep., Wis.) placed on the record a lengthy protest from Charley Gordon, managing director of the American Transit Association.

Gordon and his associates have been allowed to obtain advance specimens of the tokens for testing purposes and claim that thousands of coin fare boxes and turnstiles may either be operated by the ration tokens or will permit their insertion and be put out of commission by them.

He claims that the Commission was assured by the rationing officers of the Office of Price Administration that the ration tokens would be of a diameter and thickness which would keep them out of coin boxes.

However, rationing being what it is, there is little likelihood that ration tokens will be deliberately used for transit fares, at lease not until the rationing is ended.

Eyeing Canada: Some United States officials are reported to be enviously interested in Canada's newly created war assets corporation set up under presidency of J. B. Carswell, former Director-General for the Munitions and Supply Department branch in Washington, to handle surplus war supplies, property and plant equipment in the conversion from war to peace economy. Their envy is prompted by the fact that in Canada there is one procurement agency, Munitions and Supply, and the conversion will be simple as compared with here where there are numerous procurement agencies. A tremendous effort is being made to get agreement on one overriding organization to handle re-conversion and disposal when the war ends.

Current politics: The Washington Daily News forecasts that governor Dewey will be Republican candidate for President in spite of his protestations to the contrary, and for an odd reason. The paper says it is certain that after this year only a war veteran will have a chance for presidential nomination, that Dewey was too young for the First Great War and is not likely to be in the present war and, therefore, if he ever hopes to be president he must run this year.

DRIVING LIKE JEHU

For instance, a taxicab driver, especially a fast and reckless one, is called a Jehu.

Jehu, not to be confused with a prophet of the same name, was an officer in the Israelite army who led a successful rebellion against King Hehoram and then assumed the royal title with the blessing of the prophet Elisha.

In II Kings 9 we are told that, as Jehu in his chariot approached Jezreel, the Samarian capital, King Hehoram sent a messenger on horseback to learn whether Jehu's intentions were peaceful or warlike.

But the messenger fell in behind Jehu and joined the rebels.

A second horseman sent out as a messenger did the same, whereupon a watchman standing on the tower at Jezreel said to King Hehoram:

"He came even unto them, and cometh not again: and the driving is like the driving of Jehu the son of Nimshi; for he driveth furiously."

In the ensuing battle on the field of Naboth near Jezreel, Jehu personally killed King Hehoram and his men mortally wounded King Ahaziah of Judah, who happened to be visiting his royal uncle at the time.

Then Jehu as king trapped and slew the priests of Baal, destroyed the house and images of that god, killed the 70 sons of Ahab and virtually exterminated all members of the royal family of Israel.

It was Jehu who induced two or three eunuchs to throw the wicked Jezebel, Ahab's Phoenician wife, out of a window to be trampled underfoot by horses and eaten by the dogs.

At the time of the rebellion Jehu is pictured in the Bible as being bold, decisive, able, swift, blood-thirsty and fanatically righteous in the cause of the faith of Israel.

But in the end Jehu "departed not from the sins of Jeroboam, which made Israel to sin," lost large portions of his territory to the Syrians and had to pay them tribute.

The earliest use of Jehu in the sense of a driver or coachman recorded by the Oxford dictionary is dated 1682.

TAKAO IN FORMOSA RAIDED

Chungking, Jan. 14 — (AP) — A United States bomber attack against Takao on the western shore of Formosa, Japan's big island colony 90 miles off the coast of China, was announced today in a communique from the headquarters of Lt.-Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell.

Other raids against Bangkok in Thailand and Japanese shipping on the Yangtze river in China were disclosed as part of widespread offensive action in this theatre.

NOTICE
TO EMPLOYERS OF TECHNICAL PERSONNEL

Your attention is directed to:
NATIONAL SELECTIVE SERVICE REGULATIONS — Order in Council 246, Part III, Technical Personnel, Section 505, Subsection 1, reading as follows:

"All persons employing technical personnel from time to time, at the request of the Minister (of Labour) shall supply him with such information as he may specify with reference to the present and future requirements of technical persons for essential work."

Where such requirements include any engineering or science students who, through graduation from a recognized University during 1944, become technical personnel, it shall be the duty of the prospective employer to notify the Minister forthwith of such needs through the Wartime Bureau of Technical Personnel.

The information to accompany such notification of requirements shall include,

1. The anticipated number of prospective employees.
2. The nature of proposed occupation of each.
3. The type of training deemed best adapted to the occupation proposed.
4. Remuneration with respect of each position to be filled.

The filing of such requirements shall be no guarantee of their being filled. Each case will be considered on its merits and therefore such information should be submitted as will provide a basis for decision as to the labour priority of the work involved.

University courses which lead to graduates being classed as technical personnel include all branches of Engineering, Agricultural Science, Architecture, Forestry, Veterinary Science, Household Science and Honour Science courses which lead to a degree and various General Science courses (Mathematics, Physics, Chemistry, Biology, Geology and other natural science courses).

Prospective employers who fail to submit their requirements by February 15th, 1944, shall be deemed not to need the services of 1944 graduates in engineering and science courses and no provision can be made for requirements filed after that date.

Important Message to Folks Who Have

HEAD COLDS

If head is stuffed up, eyes watery, nose running or so clogged you can hardly breathe—put just a few drops of Vicks Va-tro-nol up each nostril. Then enjoy the grand relief it brings.

Va-tro-nol is so effective because it does three important things—(1) shrinks swollen membranes—(2) soothes irritation —(3) helps flush nasal passages, clearing clogging mucus. It's the specialized, tested way to relieve misery.

3-PURPOSE MEDICINE

If a Cold Threatens, use Va-tro-nol at first sniffle or sneeze. Helps prevent many colds from developing.

WEDDINGS

CLARK—GREENE

On Thursday, Dec. 23, Daphne Greene, of Hamilton, became the bride of Cpl. Emmerson J. Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Clark, Trenton. The ceremony was solemnized at King Street parsonage by Rev. J. D. Martin.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bonter, Trenton, brother-in-law and sister of the groom, acted as groomsman and matron of honor.

After a few days' leave, Cpl. Clark returned to his unit at Camp Borden and Mrs. Clark returned to Hamilton.

RYAN—WINDOVER

A quiet wedding took place in Trenton on Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 28, when Iva L. Windover became the wife of Sgt. David W. Ryan of the R.A.A.F. Rev. J. G. McKee performed the ceremony.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Windover of Trenton, wore a dress of skyblue jersey with black hat and carried a bouquet of pink roses and baby 'mums. She was attended by her sister, Hazel Windover, who wore blue rayon crepe adorned with a corsage of gardenias. The groomsman was a fellow countryman, Sgt. Allen F. Shearer of the R.A.A.F., whose home address is Brisbane, Australia.

Others who attended the ceremony were Mrs. H. Windover, the bride's mother; her brother, Carman and her younger sister, Betty.

Presentation

On Monday evening, January 10, about twenty friends gathered at the home of Mrs. Mather, Cannifton, to honor Mr. and Mrs. Jack McCall (nee Mary Mather), who were married recently.

Jack and Mary were invited to come forward by Mr. Clarence Downey, who acted as chairman for the evening. He called upon Mr. Clarence Hearns, who spoke of the high esteem in which Jack was held by his friends of the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company, where he has been employed for several years. He extended best wishes and congratulations to the bride and groom.

Presentation of an end table and smoking set was made by Messrs. Albert Eaves and Clayton Sullivan.

Both Mary and Jack thanked everyone for the gifts and extended an invitation for all to come to their home at any time.

Lunch was served and the evening was spent in dancing, music being furnished by Messrs. Jack Gowe and Roger Rose.

Women's Activities

ANNUAL MEETING OF ST. JOHN'S MISSION

St. John's Mission, Herchimer Ave., held its annual meeting on Tuesday at the home of Miss Jones with a good attendance. The meeting was opened by Rev. C. P. Heaven. The roll call and the minutes and the yearly report were read. All were so satisfied with the successful year that they wished the present officers to remain: Hon. Pres., Miss Beatrice Jones; Pres., Mrs. Harold Putman; Sec.-Treas., Mrs. W. A. Meens; Flower Fund, Mrs. Arthur Denyer. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the meeting.

JOHNSTOWN W.A.

Mrs. G. C. Stickle opened her home to the members and guests of the Johnstown W.A. on Jan. 12, with sixteen members, six guests and seven children present. The President, Mrs. Wm. Harry, took charge of the meeting with Mrs. Glen Stickle at the piano. Readings were given by Mrs. R. Harry, Mrs. C. Curtiss, Mrs. E. Stickle, Mrs. McKee, Mrs. E. Bush and Mrs. G. Harrington. The secretary, Mrs. E. Brooks, gave the minutes of the last meeting and the roll call. Two letters of thanks were read by the president from soldiers who had received Christmas parcels. A collection was taken for Red Cross material to use in making quilts, also a sum of money was voted to assist the mine-sweepers in Britain. The treasurer, Mrs. F. Meyers, gave a satisfactory report on the financial standing of the aid. The hostess served a lunch. Several ladies spent the afternoon quilting. The February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. E. Bush.

Pie for Breakfast Good Foundation For Day's Work

(From New York Times.)

Probably few readers will agree with the bald proposition that the beginning of the Decline of Modern Civilization coincided with the general abandonment of the practice of eating pie for breakfast. But nutritionists say a nourishing breakfast is the best foundation for a good day's work.

A recent report that a Grange in a north county town is planning to debate the proposition—Resolved, That Apple Pie is Better Than Mince Pie for Breakfast, is a heartening communique from the home front. The thermal candor which may be engendered by debating the proposition is inconsequential compared with the public good which may result from the debate itself.

One is naturally hesitant to recommend a single variety among the many available. A survey shows that apple, prune and raisin are favorites among confirmed pie-for-breakfast believers. A minority report would include mince, cherry, blueberry, lemon, squash and raspberry.

Bean Threshing Time.

It is bean threshing time on the farm. On a clear, windy day—usually a Saturday, when the boys are home to help—the barn doors are opened and the floor swept. The red kidneys, or yellow-eyes, or white pea beans are pulled from the branch-stubbed poles, around which they were stackled to dry, and spread in a six or eight inch layer on the floor.

The flails are taken from the spikes where they hang during the year. Flails are used to "thresh out" the beans from their tough, wizened, brittle pods. Noah Webster tersely defines a flail as "an instrument for threshing grain by hand". This states a fact but gives no inkling of the delicate and split-second timing needed. Flailing is an art. There are those who achieve smooth rhythm and efficient results; others no more than master the rudiments.

The handle is four or five feet long. The beating stick is two or three feet long and is fastened to the handle with a stout cord or leather thong. The whole flail is lifted in the air and brought forward so the beating stick strikes on an even keel. Many a lad learning to thresh beans has received a smart tap on the back of his head when he brought the handle too high. Each horizontal blow shatters dry pods and the beans spill out.

WOMEN TEACHERS' FEDERATION MEETS

The regular monthly meeting of the Women Teachers' Federation of Belleville, was held in the Y. M. C. A. rooms on January 12. The guests for the evening were Rev. Mr. Wright and Mrs. Wright.

Miss Thompson gave a report on membership. Miss Tucker reported that membership fees must be paid before any benefit can be derived from the Sick Benefit Fund. The president, Miss Smyth, confirmed the word that Miss Carr will continue to be secretary of the federation. Mrs. Anderson informed the teachers that the Red Cross Society had on hand some towels to be hemmed; the towels will be distributed among the Belleville teachers.

The evening's address by Rev. Mr. Wright, began by a quotation by General Smuts—"The great caravan of humanity is on the march." Mr. Wright told the assembly that in the new world order everyone must give up the old way of thinking; that is, of placing emphasis on material welfare, of believing in the self-sufficiency of man and in inevitable progress. He asserted that in the new world, church and school have got to combine and give youth a new sense of values, a new philosophy of life. Education has got to be rebuilt on a religious basis, for as the child is trained, so is civilization going to be.

A vote of thanks was moved by Miss Olive Elson and seconded by Mrs. Anderson.

Halloway

Halloway—Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Kingston called on Mr. and Mrs. Don Rose on Saturday.

Mrs. Will Cadman returned home after spending some time with her sister, Mrs. Herrington, of Wooler.

When Love Takes a Holiday

"Wonder if love and romance will be obsolete, by the time this war is over," wonders a girl on a war-job. "So many other antique things are being destroyed," she adds, "so many things we imagined we never could do without!"

Never fear! My dear girl, when romance becomes obsolete or extinct, the whole world will have to go out of business, the next day.

All the perfumers and toilet goods manufacturers, all the beauticians, all the jewellers and corset-makers, all the makers of artificial flowers, all the milliners and plastic surgeons will commit hara-kiri, and all the radio singers—the Sinatras, Crosbys and other favorites of the air—will cut their own throats!

When romance does a fade-out, publishers of best sellers will be jumping off the Empire State Building, screen stars will drown themselves in their swimming pools, magazine editors will be put in padded cells, and fortunetellers will have to go to work.

More than half the big industries in the world today are founded on romance—and on a woman's desire to have LOVE and to hold her man! In spite of war and shortages, these industries must struggle on; and most of them are doing a swell job of it and giving woman what she demands. This is not the best, but it is the most romantic, of all possible worlds!

Love like all peacetime pursuits, has plenty of competition these days; but don't imagine that separating lovers, as war does, will ever extinguish romance!

Besides, love has always had a lot of competition in a man's life. His work, his ambitions, his amusements have always been things for love to combat—but love usually wins the decision.

The NEW thing which love and romance have to face, is the competition they are meeting in a girl's life. Not that there is any normal girl who doesn't want and intend to HAVE her share of romance. But the average girl now wants so many other things besides that love sometimes gets lost or temporarily mislaid in the shuffle.

She wants adventure and independence and a chance at a job. She wants to try her wings and fly high before settling down. She wants a fling at a career or profession. She wants to make money, to travel, to write or to act. She wants to fly a plane, wear a uniform, start a business.

But don't let all that fool you. Above all these things she wants ROMANCE first. She soon discovers that success or fame or adventure doesn't amount to much unless there is someone to share it with you! Without love, they are all just dead sea fruit!

That's why love and romance will never become obsolete. After the war women will melt back into their roles and their homes, naturally and gracefully. And gladly. Just now they are marking time—while love takes a holiday!

Fashion Flashes

MILD WEATHER makes for a continued demand for fur-trimmed suits in some sections of this broad, fair land. A grand suit is in brown woolen with a cape of woolen lined and collared in brown Persian lamb, worn over a matching fur waistcoat, which in turn is worn over a long-sleeved blouse of bright green wool jersey.

PRECIOUS but wearable and lasting is the dress or suit of hand-knitted silk thread, braid or ribbon. A wonderful suit is of white silk cord, hand-crocheted, and detailed with a collar, cuffs and pocket tabs of sky blue sequins. Ideal for southern wear but just as good for northerners!

A BOON to the busy girl is the rain-coat made with a detachable lining of fur-fabric. A beauty of a coat in green, tan or black fabric that is water repellent has a button-in lining of a rayon pile fabric that is stencilled to simulate leopard skin.

IT'S NICE for young things to look smart in clothes that have fresh, youthful appeal. Made for early teen wear is a holiday dress of brown cape with an symmetrical bodice and a low neckline that is drawn to one side and finished with big pink chiffon roses. The skirt is draped into the hip curve.

NEVER ENOUGH blouses is the word from shops and consumers. A delightful blouse for afternoon wear is of silk chiffon in red and white double check shot through with thin silver threads, the yoke ties into a big, soft bow.

IT'S NOT GOOD for anyone or anything to be idle these times. So one gal got her little ermine coat out of storage and had it made into a beret, an ascot and a little barrel muff with which she dresses up her black woolen suit or her velvet lined black wool Chesterfield overcoat.

Victoria Avenue Baptist Have Successful Year

Members of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church heard a satisfactory financial statement on the year's work at the annual meeting Thursday evening when it was revealed that $7,017.57 had been raised for all purposes. Expenditures totalled $6,467.90, leaving a substantial balance of $549.67 to start the year. Included in the report was $972.58 which had been raised for missions.

An excellent supper was served by the ladies which, in spite of rationing restrictions, proved to be more than adequate. In appreciation of eight years of faithful and efficient service as church treasurer Miss Mary Cook was made the recipient of a lovely silver serving tray.

The pastor, Rev. H. O. Eastman, presided and spoke appreciatively of the co-operation he had received from all departments and workers. He looked forward to another successful year, spiritually as well as financially.

A happy event was the burning of a repair fund mortgage, amounting to $1,500.00, which had recently been liquidated. This ceremony was performed by deacons S. May and J. A. Blackburn, chairman and the Finance Committee.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Furlough Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My son hopes to have a furlough next month, and if so is to be married then. His furlough will be so short that my husband and I are trying to take care of as many of his obligations as we possibly can. We know that he buys the flowers for the bride and her attendants, but the other day, at a wedding we attended, the two mothers wore corsages, and that made us wonder if our son should provide these. Is this optional or customary?

The bride is planning a semi-formal evening wedding, with a reception afterward at her home. What expenses other than the flowers would my son be expected to take care of?

Mother.

Usually the bridegroom abides by the romantic custom of buying his bride her wedding bouquet (and usually sends her her going-away corsage.) But it is not so usual for him to supply the flowers for the bride's attendants; these are usually ordered by the bride's family (when they order the flowers for the church and reception), since they must be planned to harmonize with the attendants' costumes and with the color-scheme of the wedding. I believe that you and your husband could safely take it for granted that the bride's family will supply her attendants' flowers.

But it is a "must" that your son supply the corsage for you and the bride's mother. And I suggest you ask her mother what kind and color of corsage will best harmonize with her costume.

The other expenses for your son are not many: the wedding ring; marriage licence fee; wedding present to the bride; fee or gift to the minister; gifts to his best man and ushers, and their boutonnieres, if they are civilians; transportation for him and his best man to the ceremony; and . . . expenses of the wedding trip.

(I'll be glad to send you my "Wedding Expenses" pamphlet, if you'll send me an addressed, 3-cent-stamped envelope. This lists in detail the responsibilities of the bride's family, and those of the bridegroom.)

Congratulations to a Soldier

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I have always sent a wedding anniversary congratulatory card to a married couple, close friends of mine. The husband is now overseas. Should I send separate cards to him and his wife, or just one to the wife? I am not entirely sure of his present address.

2. Should the envelope enclosing a greeting-card to a 2-year-old boy be addressed to "Master" or "Mr.", or isn't it necessary to write any title before his name?

C. J.

1. You may send a congratulatory card to the wife, and on it write a message asking her to send your congratulations to her husband in her next letter to him. Or, since they are such close friends of yours, telephone or write her for her husband's address, saying that you would like to plan to mail your card to him so that it will arrive as near as possible on the anniversary date.

2. Always write a title with a name on an envelope . . . even for such a young boy. Write "Master" before his name.

Courtesy Tip

Have "Thank you so much for your lovely Christmas card" ready to say to your friends and acquaintances as you meet them these days.

Flash Hollett, Bought by Wings, Gives Detroit First Point On Montreal Ice This Season

HAWKS BEAT RANGERS

By The Canadian Press

Reports from Detroit that manager Jack Adams negotiated the "Deal of the Century" in trading Pat Egan to Boston Bruins for William (Flash) Hollett can't be discounted entirely, however partisan the source.

Although Hollett didn't seem much of a bargain at first — the Flash insisted he wouldn't play hockey for anybody but Boston — it appears now that he and Adams have settled things to their mutual satisfaction.

Anyway, Hollett appeared in the Detroit lineup last night — long enough to score an unassisted goal which gave Red Wings a 2-2 deadlock against Montreal Canadiens for the first point in seven games on Montreal ice this season. The split in points left Canadiens undefeated in 15 games at the Forum, 13 of which were victories.

At New York, Chicago Black Hawks stopped the tailend Rangers 5-2 before 13,493 fans to keep pace with Detroit, who hold a two-point margin over Hawks for fourth place in the National Hockey League standings.

Bill Mosienko and Doug Bentley, striving to reach the top in the individual scoring race while Bill Cowley is recovering from a shoulder injury, combined for three of the first four goals as Chicago ended a six-game losing streak while extending New York's string of defeats to the same length. Bentley set up the plays and Mosienko supplied the finishing touch on all 3 scores.

Cully Dahlstrom and aged Johnny Gottselig were the other Black Hawk snipers. Bob (Killer) Dill and Hank D'Amore scored for Rangers.

At Montreal, Canadiens appeared on the way to their 14th home ice victory after goals by Elmer Lach and Maurice Richard, but Billy Reay shaved the margin to 2-1 before the second period ended and Hollett fired the tying goal midway thru the third.

New York, Jan. 14—(AP)—Boxing's a funny business. . . . Six years ago a kid hitch-hiked from Long Island City to New Jersey trying to get his first professional fight. . . . He finally found a spot in a four-rounder at Passaic and did so well that co-promoters Angelo Pucci and George Kobb gave him an extra deuce besides the $10 they had promised. . . . Tonight the kid, Bobby Ruffin, fights Tippy Larkin in the main bout at Madison Square Garden (give the war an assist for their being there.)

Thrown for a Loss

Angelo Bertelli (Mr. Notre Dame) told this one on himself at the Heisman Trophy lunch in his honor. . . . When Bertelli reached Marine Boot camp at Parris Island, S.C., the drill instructor promptly called him out of the ranks and questioned him about football. . . "Did you ever play guard?" the D. I. demanded. . . . "No Sir," Angelo replied. "Well, you have a new coach now," said the instructor, "and you'll play guard. You guard the huts while we shove off for chow."

"Jo-Boy" Samain Plays Softball In Ceylon Loop

Recently the Winnipeg Tribune carried a three column picture of an R.C.A.F. softball team in Ceylon. In the picture and a member of the team was Cpl. "Jo-Boy" Samain, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Samain of this city.

"Jo-Boy" will be remembered as a promising young boxer prior to the outbreak of war. Tutored by his dad, "Jo-Boy" fought many ring battles throughout Eastern Ontario as a bantamweight and carried the boxing prowess of Belleville into such cities as Kingston, Oshawa and Peterboro, besides his native home town.

Incidentally "Jo-Boy" played second base for the R.C.A.F. Catalina Squadron in a service softball league in Ceylon. Called the "Maple Leafs" "Jo-Boy's" team won the softball championship of the R.C.A.F. stationed in Ceylon, according to the caption below the picture in the Winnipeg paper, that was received by Gaoler Samain this week.

PRO LOOP WILL NOT EXPAND TILL END OF WAR

Boston Taken in for 11th Club but Los Angeles and San Francisco Refused

CHEQUES SENT BACK

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Sport Writer

Chicago, Jan. 14 — (AP) — After scanning the player situation for 1944 and finding an acute shortage, the National Football League was hesitant today to follow through with expansion plans until after the war.

Club owners shoveled a pile of unfinished business into their brief cases after winding up their two-day midwinter meeting yesterday. Their next stop will be in Philadelphia for their spring session April 19. At that time they plan to take some kind of action on the bid for membership by Buffalo, N.Y., draw up a game schedule for the 1944 season, and hold the yearly draft of college players.

Each team will draft 30 campus gridders. Last year's raffle of 300 graduates netted only 23 recruits, many of whom entered military service before the season closed. Boston is definitely established as the league's 11th member for 1944.

The league probably will vote on whether to grant Buffalo a franchise so it can operate this fall, thus preserving a balanced circuit of 12 teams.

Tabled along with Buffalo's application were those from Los Angeles and San Francisco. Representatives of the two west coast cities were handed back their $25,000, which must accompany franchise requests. There is definite interest in Los Angeles and San Francisco for the post-war expansion plan.

Hockey's Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press.)

Although 11 goals were scored in two National Hockey League games last night and only change in the high-scoring list was Doug Bentley, who got three assists when Hawks defeated Rangers 5-2, to take sixth place from Toronto's Gus Bodnar. Buddy O'Connor, Canadiens, failed to collect any points in the Montreal-Detroit 2-2 draw and was forced out of the Big Seven. He was formerly in a seventh-place tie with Bentley.

SOCCER STAMINA PROVES AMAZING TO U. S. WRITER

Says Dunkirk and Singapore Courage No Mystery After Watching Teams Play

SAW TIGHT GAME

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Writer

London, Jan. 14—(CP)— Now I know why the British were able to take it at Dunkirk and Singapore.

I know why the people on this tough old island can stand the hardships of war and weather.

This, I am told, is the sport on which British youngsters grow up, just as American kids play baseball from the time they are big enough to hold a bat and throw a ball.

Such being the case, all the mystery surrounding the ruggedness of an Englishman's constitution, is wiped away.

Here is a game which requires the strength and stamina of a young ox to be a player and the spirit and cunning of a commando to be a spectator.

The weather was the kind that would have kept an Eskimo indoors but these stout lads skipped around in scanty attire. From any place in the spacious stands you could see their breath on the frosty air.

For 45 minutes they charged up and down a field larger than an American gridiron with no time out except for an injury and no substitution even in that emergency.

One player went down and didn't get up. He had to be carried off the field. His ten teammates went right on without him.

Strenuous Second Half

But that was only the half of it. After a 15-minutes rest, all 22 players returned to the field, including the chap who had to be helped to the sidelines, and they went at it again for another 45 strenuous minutes.

Even more amazing than the stamina exhibited by these topflight professionals is the dexterity with which they use their feet and heads to propel the ball, which can be touched with the hands only by the goal keepers.

And if the players deserve any credit for contributing to the ruggedness of Britain's inhabitants down through the generations, an equal share should go to those hardy souls who find their way into the spectators' seats only by dint of iron will and brute force.

Twenty-five thousand fans made their way into this arena, which is more of a trick than it sounds. The park seems larger than New York's Polo Grounds but with about one-tenth the facilities for getting in and out.

Then there was a little matter of transportation. The field is located in the suburbs of London, far from any railroad or underground station. Private automobiles have almost disappeared in London and taxicabs are hard to find. That leaves only the busses for transportation.

The game was between Arsenal and West Ham, two of the best pro teams in England. The final score was 1 to 1—they told me.

BUFFALO BISONS DEFEAT REDS

By The Canadian Press

Larry Thibeault scored two goals at Buffalo last night to lead Bisons to a 5-3 victory over Providence Reds in the lone American Hockey League fixture.

At the end of the second the score was tied at 3-3, and the veteran Dede Klein celebrated his 35th birthday by a blast in the final period which gave Buffalo a one-point lead. Four minutes later, at 17:45, Thibeault added his final counter for the decisive victory.

Maury Rimstad started the scoring late in the opening frame. At 17:47 Thibeault scored the second goal for Buffalo. Just 12 seconds before the whistle Art Giroux tallied for Reds.

In the second period Harold Cooper and Gordon Buttrey put Reds in the lead, but Rusty Waldriff bagged a goal at 19:27 to even the score.

What's Doing in Sport

Fergus —(CP)— Victory in the 110th annual bonspiel of the Fergus Curling Club, with 27 rinks competing, went to James Howard of Fergus, whose quartette comprised his son, PO. Joseph Howard, veteran of the Dieppe action, G. Mulvey and M. Bakke.

New York—(AP)— Headline attraction in the ring of Madison Square Garden tonight will be the 10-rounder in which two lightweight contenders will trade punches, Bobby Ruffin and Tippy Larkin. The former, with a recent win over Champion Beau Jack, is a slight favorite.

Ottawa—(CP)—Johnny Horeck of Ottawa Commandos joined the Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League yesterday as part of the deal for players between Manager Eddie Shore and New York Rangers.

Fall River, Mass.—(AP)—In the semi-final of a boxing card last night, Tony Brandino, 149, of Hamilton, Ont., scored a technical knockout in the second round of a scheduled six-round bout over Babe Nugent, 148, of Boston.

PREDICTS RACING IN UNITED STATES IN FOR GOOD YEAR

Established as Important Business in All States of the Union

STOCK SELLS HIGH

(Written for The Associated Press)
By HARRY PARR 3rd
President, Thoroughbred Racing Association and Maryland Jockey Club.

Baltimore, Jan. 14 — (AP)—The manner in which the entire United States thoroughbred industry voluntarily fitted itself into the war pattern in 1943 by wholeheartedly subscribing to all regulations made necessary by the war and the resulting tremendous popularity enjoyed by racing, even on a reduced scale, are strong factors in the prediction that 1944 will be another highly successful year.

The popularity and growth of racing in all of its branches has established it as an important business and to some states it is a vital source of income. It is interesting to note, however, that 4 per cent of all pari-mutuel play in the country was in New York and 75 per cent of the total was bet in five states.

Racing for the relaxation offered the public as well as for the maintenance of the industry is well exemplified by its continuance in such war-torn countries as England, Australia, Russia, Japan and Germany.

The breeders' sales of 1942 were the most discouraging in many years although in England in December, 1942, the brood mare, Olein, sold for $76,500. This showed that the English, who at that time were enduring more extreme hardships than we in the United States, still placed a high value on their thoroughbred blood lines.

It was not surprising, therefore, when in 1943 our sales became as successful as at any time in their history. A yearling, now named Pericles, sold for $66,000 and other stock in proportion.

Minor Baseball Leagues Plan Limited Expansion

New York, Jan. 14 (AP)—Baseball's lower class minors, planning a limited expansion in 1944, may have the answer to player shortage jitters in the use of schoolboys and part time defence workers.

A class E League, the twin ports, operating around Duluth, Minn., and Superior, Wisc., plans to go to the barrier on a twice-a-week schedule, a $250 monthly salary roof and talent recruited from local defence plants and school rooms.

Joe Donnelly, former President of the Ohio State League, already has reorganized his circuit to enter the Class D field along with the Pony and Appalachian, only 1943 finishers.

According to Donnelly there is no reason why several new D or E leagues should not start this year. The Ohio President says, "they can open ther season's after school lets out and employ youngsters who will not be called in the draft, closing their schedules about a week before school starts in the fall. Those kids will hustle their heads off."

Class E is an experiment by the baseball folks who usually are not given to new-fangled ideas, but it may be the solution to many wartime problems.

New York, Jan. 13 —(CP)— The German Transocean News Agency, a propaganda organization, said today that the Germans had withdrawn from south of the Garigliano river in western Italy. British troops of the 5th Army have been pressing up to the Garigliano for some weeks.

The broadcast, recorded by United States government monitors, said: "Allied troops yesterday threw such strong forces into action that the German High Command decided to withdraw its troops to the northern bank of the Garigliano river."

Petawawa Not Allowed To Play Ottawa Game

By The Canadian Press

The Petawawa Grenades arrived in Ottawa last night for a scheduled game against a civilian team in the Ottawa senior city hockey league but, before the army players "could get on the ice," notification was received from senior officers that, under the new defence headquarters ruling, the team could not fill the engagement. The incident was an apparent test of the recent prohibitory order against the participation of army personnel in competitions leading to the Allan Cup or Memorial Cup.

In the light of the notification, an emergency meeting of the league was called, following which the announcement was made by Len McKinley, president of the Ottawa Valley circuit, that the loop would operate with three remaining civilian clubs and the group would "definitely" make a bid for the Allan Cup playdowns. Last night at St. Thomas, a London civilian team was not permitted to use its regular goaltender, Moffat, who had recently joined the army and he was instructed to play with London Army in a scheduled group game. The Soldiers defeated the city club 18-4.

The Rose Bowl, emblematic of supremacy in women's athletics, was presented to Joan Langdon, outstanding swimmer, at Vancouver, the presentation being made by secretary Anne Clark of the Women's Amateur Athletic Federation of British Columbia.

With his four defencemen headed for record penalties, general manager Dick Miller of the Indianapolis Capitals yesterday protested against refereeing in the American Hockey League, alleging the referees were doing too much "officiating."

Golfing's headliners are again teeing off today, this time in quest of chief awards in the $10,000 San Francisco Victory Open tourney, a 72-hole four-day feature, the favorites being Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Philadelphia, Bryon Nelson of Toleda, Olin Dutra of Los Angeles and Sam Byrd, Detroit.

The New York Giants yesterday sold catcher Joe Becker, secured only recently from Baltimore Orioles, to the Jersey City club of the International League. The Giants still have four backstops, all of whom are rated 4-F for the draft.

Before leaving for the Fritzie Zivic-Jake La Motta fight in Detroit tonight, promoter Jake Mintz announced at Pittsburgh Zivic had been signed to fight in his home city of Pittsburgh Feb. 7 although the former welterweight champion is due to appear before a draft board there next week.

In their exhibition match at Chicago yesterday, Willie Hoppe, world's three-cushion billiard champion, defeated Walker Cochran in the ninth and 10th blocks by 52 to 44 in 44 innings and 50 to 33 in 52 innings respectively.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Jan. 14—(CP)—One of those taking a dim view of the injury which has benched Bill Cowley is Herb Cain, the Boston centre's line-mate. Cain was in the limelight almost for the first time in his National Hockey League career and all because Cowley's picture passes had enabled Cain to score 26 goals in 25 games and lead the league in that department. It's a pretty safe bet that Herbie's goal total will mount slowly until Cowley returns. Cowley's injury will definitely slow the pace that would have given Cain a record of 52 goals in a 50-game season and a place in the record books that would have taken some beating. In fact Cain has already surrendered second place in the points table to Lorne Carr of Toronto, whose four points Tuesday night against Canadiens gave him 47 to Cain's 44.

Repercussions:

Strange isn't it that so many hockey players have been discharged from the army lately, fellows like Kilby Macdonald, Johnny Mahaffy, Pat Egan, Murray Armstrong. . . Undoubtedly the Army-R.C.A.F. withdrawal from hockey influenced Winnipeg Navy in posting some of its players elsewhere. Some of the Winnipeg Tars had been held in the same spot considerable time and the Navy would not want to be forced into action similar to the withdrawal orders of the other services.

Incidentally:

Now that Hamilton Tigers have definitely decided not to return to football until after the war, early revival of the Interprovincial Union is unlikely. . . . Jackie Callura, of Hamilton, former world featherweight boxing champion, probably didn't even know Hamilton Wildcats won the Canadian grid title but that Grey Cup victory meant a watch for Jackie. When Hamilton city council was authorizing expenditure of $750 to buy watches for wildcat players, Ald. J. L. Easton insisted Callura deserved a watch too and Easton won his point. . . . Women have finally decided to invade a previously exclusive male field in Moncton, N.B., where a Ladies' Curling Club is being formed. The women have been granted use of the rink five afternoons a week.

LAST NIGHT'S STARS

By the Canadian Press

Conny Dion, Detroit net-minder, who made his debut in the National Hockey League by holding Canadiens to a 2-2 draw.

Maurice Richard, Canadiens, who scored one goal and assisted in the other, and kept up the Montreal offensive all through the game.

Doug Bentley, Chicago, who set up one goal and assisted in two others, when Hawks whipped Rangers 5-2.

Billie Mosienko, Chicago, who bagged three goals.

CRITICIZES APPOINTMENTS

Toronto, Jan. 14—(CP)—E. B. Jolliffe, leader of the C.C.F. Opposition in the Ontario Legislature, yesterday criticized the appointment, announced Wednesday by Premier Drew, of W. J. Stewart as Legislature speaker "as though it were another political plum to be handed out by the party in power."

CASUAL COMMENT

by K.J.C.

The wayward gentleman arrived home safely enough, but, in negotiating the front steps somehow smashed the bottle in his hip pocket. Several painful scratches were the result.

Eventually he made his way into the bathroom removed his clothes and applied adhesive tape to his wounds. Then he got into bed without arousing the household.

When he came down to breakfast the next morning, his wife gave him the following startling good morning:

Wife—So you were drunk again last night?

He denied the accusation with vehemence, and managed to appear somewhat hurt at the injustice of the world!

Wife (in an icy voice)—If you weren't drunk, perhaps you can explain why you stuck adhesive tape all over the bathroom mirror.

When Lieut. Fred Jobson learned the 1944 edition of the Belleville juniors was purely a homebrew squad he and his associates, of the Belleville Municipal Band, readily agreed to appear at the Hume Arena and not only entertain the patrons between periods with band music, but also help to encourage the promotion of junior hockey in Belleville. The members of the band are giving their service gratis to help promote sports among the teen-aged of the city. (Parents and sports lovers please note.)

There seems to be a tenseness in the air just before the Combines and locals cross sticks tonight. When Coach Wally Hilton's Stirling-Marmora combination sextette blanked the Flyers 2-0 they immediately commanded the respect of all teams in the group. However, the locals feel they have what it takes to beat the Combines, but a little moral support wouldn't go astray. After all these kids play a good brand of hockey and deserve patronage.

Loisa goals.)

Fl. "Buff" Horton's star-studded Trenton Flyer juniors took another one on the chin last night losing 9 to 7 to FO. Stan Jackson's Trenton kids. Now the Trenton lads have two wins and a loss, which puts Belleville on the well known spot tonight. Reports are it was a rough free-swinging contest with tempers flaring aplenty.

The Flyer kids led 4-1 at the end of the first frame and 7-5 at the end of the second, but the courageous Trenton kids came back strong in the final stanza and scored four goals as Stogan and Harvey stood off all and sundry Flyer attacks. Incidentally Ross Lemorre was the driving threat in the last period, scoring three goals as the homesters rallied strongly.

Although the young airmen have lost their initial two starts, the fact they have players of repute on their oster still leaves them the threat of the group and their puck ability isn't to be discounted. The lack of practice no doubt has taken its toll. But, this in no way detracts from the fine showing of Trenton's strong comeback last night.

Hockey fans will be surprised to learn that old "Ching" Johnson, once one of the most colorful figures in the N.H.L. but long since passed off the scene, is still playing professional hockey at the reputed age of 45 years. John McLean in the "Taking Time Out" column in the Ottawa Citizen reveals Ching's current activity in the following paragraph: "They're probably not aware of it out in Los Angeles, but California has, in Ottawa's Jo-Jo Collins an enthusiastic press agent. Collins, who has been playing hockey with Pasadena Panthers in the Pan Pacific League, and who is home on a short visit, dropped in to say hello last night. And so attractive was Jo-Jo's description of life in L.A. we were all for chucking the old typewriter in the ash can and hopping the first freight going west. They're hockey crazy out there, Collins assures us. Phil Henderson is running the show and he's built himself a rink, which he calls the Pan Pacific Auditorium and which seats 5,000. And they hang the S.R.O. sign up each time out! John Beauchamp, another Ottawa hockeyist, has also joined forces with Henderson's circuit, plays defence with the Panthers. Then there's Charlie Sands—remember him?—and there's Ching Johnson. Sands is Henderson's right-hand man, the contact between players and promoter. Johnson—he's close to 45 now—lines up with Hollywood's Wolves."

(Farewell Bill Terry.)

When William (Bill) Harold Terry, former manager of the New York Giants, made his very undiplomatic statement the other day —quote—"Baseball is too cheap for me"—he brought the wrath of American sportswriters heavily upon his proverbial noggin.

After all when Terry first went to the Giants he was a poor cotton farmer from Georgia and all he possesses today he owes to baseball. After all Terry had the uncanny knack of always saying the wrong thing at the wrong time and his parting blast from the game, that made him was just another example of his undiplomatic make-up. Terry was most hated in Brooklyn, that was following his history-making stab—"Is Brooklyn still in the league?"—but strangely enough when Mel Ott took over the reins of the Giants the "Flatbush" fans cheered the popular Louisiana leader.

Baseball may be "too cheap" for Terry now, but no doubt he has long since regretted his blow-hardiness. Actually as a player Terry was one of the best first basemen of all times. It's too bad he let his gab leave such a stain on his baseball career.

(Remember when—)

Baseball Commissioner K. Mountain Landis four years ago today declared five major leaguers and 88 minor league baseball players free agents as the result of an investigation of the farm operations of the Detroit Tigers of the American League. Detroit lost an estimated $500,000 in player-material as the result of this decision.

Horse Sense Bridge

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When bridge was still in diapers, to bid and make a slam was something for the neighbors to talk about. But nowadays, to bid a slam and not make it is almost inexcusable.

You get slambitious when you see 12 tricks and know what's trump. Then, if your hand contains two aces and a king or better, you ask partner how many aces and kings he has.

The way you ask partner is by using a signal. The signal is a bid of four no-trump. And partner must reply with a signal to tell you the exact number of aces and kings he has.

When partner tells you, look at the position you are in. You can decide the best final contract for your pair. You may stop at five, or go to a small slam, or barge to a grand slam.

You are south in this pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH
♠A K 6 3 2
♥7 5 3
♦A 5
♣A K Q

♠9 8 7 5 4
♥A K 2
♦K Q
♣5 4 2

Your opening bid is one spade. With no takeout suit of his own and adequate support for yours, partner assists. In this case, his immediate response is three spades.

His assist tells you spades can be trumps. His one-jump admits he has tricks enough to help make a game. The fact that his one-jump was at once tells you he also has two sure tricks.

You thus know your partner has five tricks. And your own hand contains seven; three aces, two kings, one queen, and a short card in diamonds. So, you see 12 tricks in your pair.

With trumps decided and 12 tricks discovered, you are ready to believe that a slam may be there. And with at least two aces and a king, you are the one to find out about aces and kings.

So, you bid four no-trump. Which says: "Partner, I know what's trump; I see 12 tricks; I have two aces and a king, or better; tell me how many aces and kings you have."

You can feel like some punkins in a spot like that.

"This is the Army" Ends

Irving Berlin's "This is the Army" the Warner Bros. technicolor production of the famous Broadway hit is now in its sixth and final record-breaking day at the Belle theatre.

Sonja Henie in "Wintertime"

Moviegoers, who watched with awe the inspired performances of Sonja Henie as she sped swiftly across the ice as easily and gracefully as a zephyr, have a new treat in store for them. Sonja, for the first time in her screen career, dances in her picture, "Wintertime" which is slated for the Belle theatre this weekend.

The same grace that characterizes her skating is apparent in her effortless dancing with Cesar Romero in the film—and the same downright hard work went into the preparation for the sequence. Sonja accepts only perfection in her skating, and for the dance number which is to the music of Woody Herman and his orchestra, who is featured with Jack Oakie and Carole Landis, Sonja did everything she could to perfect her technique.

The girl from Oslo, who started winning skating championships at the age of 10, is still winning championships as far as the public is concerned. Sonja started dancing lessons at the age of 3 and then turned to skating, and won enough trophies and medals for skating to fill an entire room in her Long Island home. She numbers among her achievements three Olympic championships and 22 world championships.

When Sonja turned professional she continued to originate all her own skating routines. Not only does she train herself rigorously, but she still has her own troupe of skaters which appears in her ice shows and revues throughout the country. She works daily with the group, polishing their routines and achieving perfection in her own.

People never tire of watching Sonja perform the intricate swirls, turns and pirouettes which characterize her numbers. Daily on the lot there was an audience of stars not only working with her, but working on other sets on the 20th Century-Fox lot. During the filming of one sequence in the film Jack Oakie, Carole Landis and Cesar Romero, who have important roles in "Wintertime," actually applauded loudly as she finished a particularly difficult routine with her usual precision timing and nimble grace.

In order to maintain her strict regime she must be in perfect physical shape. Proper diet and long hours of sleep are essential to her. She can neither smoke or drink. Yet instead of detracting in any way from her glamour as a movie star, these things only make her more admired. She's still the same young girl who captivated America nearly ten years ago.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Tarzan's Secret Treasure"

Coming on the twenty-fifth anniversary of the filming of the first "Tarzan" picture, M-G-M's "Tarzan's Secret Treasure" opened last night on the Capitol screen as one of the most entertaining of this popular series of pictures.

Johnny Weissmuller, as "Tarzan," again presents his breath-taking feats of swimming underwater, diving off cliffs and swinging through the trees, while Maureen O'Sullivan offers a fascinating picture of a wife who can do wonders into transforming a tree-house into a comfortable home despite the absence of such modern conveniences as frigidaires, plumbing and electricity.

Laid in the world of the jungle, peopled by wild animals and the perilous traps and devices of nature the new "Tarzan" tale revolves about Tarzan's association with the members of a scientific expedition who come upon his jungle paradise and, finding gold, seek to permeate the ugliness of civilization upon this untouched haven. After one of them attempts to murder Tarzan they abduct Jane (Miss O'Sullivan) and "Boy" (Johnny Sheffield), their adopted son, then fall into the hands of savage tribesmen. But Cheeta, the faithful ape, finds Tarzan, and the jungle monarch, together with his army of elephants, saves the day.

"Campus Rhythm"
(Musical Comedy)

Thanks to extremely funny situations arising from life on a college campus, Monogram's "Campus Rhythm," fast-moving comedy now showing at the Capitol Theatre, rates special recommendation as an escape film for the entire family to enjoy.

Producer Lindsley Parsons and Arthur Dreifuss, able director of the film, insured the success of their picture when they selected a proven group of favorites that includes Gale Storm, Johnny Downs, Robert Lowery, Doug Leavitt, Herbert Heyes, Marie Blake, Claudia Drake, Ge-Ge Pearson, Johnny Duncan and Candy Candido, formerly of the team of Candy and Coco. The result is a highly entertaining light comedy, designed to make the theatregoer forget his troubles.

A color cartoon and the serial, "Secret Service in Darkest Africa," complete the big weekend program.

TRENTON JUNIORS TAKE FLYERS IN LAST PERIOD

Score Four Goals in Last Canto to Win From Air Station 9 to 7

NOW LEAD GROUP

Trenton, Jan. 14th (Special to the Ontario Intelligencer).

Rallying to score four goals in the final period, Coach Stan Jackson's Trenton juniors came from behind to win 9 to 7 over the Trenton R. C. A. F. "Flyers" in a scheduled O. H. A. game here last night. The youthful airmen led 4-1 and 7-5 in the initial two frames, but roughness entered the picture in the final stanza, when the homesters took a physical trouncing, but scored four goals and left the ice a winner.

Free-for-all fights were the order of the night giving Referee "Bennie" Bowen ample worries as the star-studded "Flyers" proved their fighting worth, but failed to take off the night's hockey honors. Filion, Lemorre and Hamilton of the home squad left the ice showing physical markings as the results of fisticuffs and high sticks, but apparently happy in the fact victory was theirs. Discolored optics and bloody noses were the order of the night as high sticks entered into the picture to give the patrons added entertainment from all angels.

The line-ups:-

Trenton—goal, Harvey, defence, Stojan and Filion, centre, Taylor, wings, Hamilton and Maxwell, alternates, Campbell, Haggerty, Lemorre, Scott, Johnson, Putman and McMaster.

Trenton R. C. A. F. "Flyers"—goal, Benson, defence, Ellis and Chartis, centre, Schmidt, wings, Stewart and Holher, alternates, Flynn, Jockwitz, Halte, McGee, Porteus, Green, Hayes and Rozumick.

Referee "Bennie" Bowen of Trenton.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was looking through the paper on his way to the sporting page, and ma said, Well William, you'll be interested to know that I'm a high officer in the Gils, with quite a resounding title.

The Gils being short for Give Lifts to Service Men, and pop said, Congratulations, do you mean they've elected you President?

They couldn't of done that even if they wanted to, because the Gils is a military organization, or at least it will be as soon as we get our uniforms, so naturally we have no room for any common civilian titles, such as president and secretary and so on, ma said, and pop said Then what did they make you, the General?

Nothing so lowly, thanks, ma said. That was the whole point of today's election at Maud Hewses house. I mean you must remember that there are only 6 ladies in the entire organization, and they are all charter members and the spirit of the Gils is that there shall be no favortism among the members, and in fact none of us even expected to be elected to a title that wold make any of the others seem inferior to us, so that will give you an idea of the fine spirit of equality that prevails in the organization, she said, and pop said, But for Peet sake you cant have an election without somebody coming out on top.

Maybe you cant if you're an organization of mere men, but when women get together where there's a will there's a way ma said. So we compiled a list of 6 titles that all seemed to sound about equally important, and Maud put the 6 slips of paper in one of her husband's hats because the proverbial official way to draw a slip is out of a hat, and the result is, you see before you Pontentate Pawleen Potts, she said, and pop said, Yee gods, and what are the others, I cant go on living till I know?

So ma read them to him from a piece of paper, being Tycoon Maud Hews, Nabob Hanna Jefferies, Premier Kitty Summers, Marshal Blantche Hipple, and Geralissimo Mary Deeter.

Army Newsman Given Air Medal

London, Jan. 14 — (CP) — Sgt. Oram C. (Bud) Hutton, former New York Post and New World-Telegram writer, has been awarded the United States Army Air Medal and honored by the Association of American Correspondents in London for making five bombing trips over Europe as a volunteer gunner-reporter.

Hutton qualified as a gunner and flew on the missions as a regular crew member so he could give the soldier-readers of the army newspaper Stars and Stripes a first-hand picture.

The Association participated in the decoration ceremony at Hyde Park today. Robert Bunnelle, Chief of the Associated Press London Bureau and Association President, presented a letter of commendation to the newsmen after the Army Air Medal was pinned on him by Maj.-Gen. John C. H. Lee.

Aussie Capital Built on Site Which Was Sheep Pasture 29 Years Ago

Written for The Canadian Press
By A. R. FORD

Canberra, —(CP)— Canberra, the capital of Australia is an unusual city; rather a fantastic place. It was laid out for a city of 100,000 and the total population today is only about 13,000. It is scattered over several miles and really consists of a series of scattered villages. One will see a monument apparently in the centre of nowhere. To pass from one public building to another one crosses pastures where sheep are grazing. And yet it is planned so that ultimately it will be a model capital and a show place in town planning.

But if Canberra seems today a strange sort of capital, with the atmosphere of a country town, no one can question the beauty of its location and the charm of its wide, sweeping boulevards. Canberra was picked as a site after a long acrimonious debate. There is bitter jealousy between the states of New South Wales and Victoria, and particularly between Sydney and Melbourne. Jealousies between Ontario and Quebec and Montreal and Toronto are nothing in comparison. After 11 years of wrangling it was finally decided that the national capital was to be in New South Wales, but should not be within 100 miles of Sydney. A commission was appointed and finally decided on a lovely valley in the foothills of the Australian Alps, about 200 miles from Sydney and 400 miles from Melbourne. The plan was drawn by a young Chicago architect named Walter Griffin, who won a world-wide competition.

Canberra is girdled by hills and in the valley, which some 29 years ago was a sheep range, the new city has been laid out. Eight million trees from all over the world have been planted along its wide boulevards, and in its parks. This is the only place in Australia where I have seen good Canadian trees. Many oaks, poplars, maples, and fir trees have been planted. They have flourished and their vivid green is in striking contrast to the rather dull blue-green native trees. Flowers are everywhere. I never saw such magnificent roses. Practically every flower one can imagine grows in Canberra.

International Flavor.

It is only recently, as in Canada, that foreign countries started establishing legations here. But already some 10 countries have ministers or representatives in Canberra. There is an international flavor to this country town.

Hon. Thomas Davis, the Canadian High Comissioner, has picked out one of the most beautiful sites in Canberra for the Canadian Legation. All property in Canberra is held by the government. Mr. Davis hopes that immediately war is over, Canada will erect in Canberra a fitting building to house the minister and the Canadian offices. At present the Canadian staff works in a building originally erected as a home for Richard Casey, former Australian Minister to the United States and now in Egypt.

Parliament House is a temporary structure. Plans call some day for magnificent parliament buildings on a commanding site known as Capitol Hill. The temporary building is something of which Australia has no reason to be ashamed. In this building we were entertained by Prime Minister John Curtin and members of his cabinet. Canberra is still not the centre of all government activity as Ottawa is in Canada. Many of the departments have never been moved from Melbourne. Most of the war boards have their office in Sydney or Melbourne.

The chamber of the House of Representatives, follows the American, rather than the British and Canadian form. It is circular in style. The members all have desks, except the cabinet ministers, who occupy a long bench on the right of the speaker. Opposition leaders have a similar bench to the left. The prime minister and his chief deputy, as well as the opposition leader and his first deputy, sit opposite each other at the clerk's table directly in front of the speaker.

Received Canadians

Mr. Curtin received the Canadian newspaper delegation and talked fully and intimately on war problems and particularly on the relation of Australia to the British Empire as a whole, in regard to the Pacific. He has already announced that he favors the setting up of a permanent secretariat of the Empire where members of the British Commonwealth can discuss foreign problems with their feet under the same table. He expanded on his ideas. While his talk was off the record, it is no breach of faith to say that he does not favor setting up any super-government of Empire, but feels that in future the whole of the Empire must be consulted in decisions on foreign policy.

Canberra lies in the highlands. While it sometimes becomes very hot in the summer time, yet for Australia it is comparatively cool. The two days I was in Canberra it was like September or October in Canada. It was warm in the sunshine, cool in the shade and at night one was glad to have an extra blanket, because as in most of Australia, the houses and buildings have no central heating. Occasionally there are white frosts, but there is never a month in the year the flowers are not blooming.

There is still argument over Canberra, but the Australian people are beginning to realize that it was a wise decision to erect the capital away from the great central cities. Plans for the capital are ambitious, but when all the departments are moved to Canberra, the pasture fields will be filled up. It is the only capital in the world which was started from nothing and where town planning has had a free hand.

The Last of Twenty-five

This address was given at the fourth session of the Herald Tribune Forum on current problems by Wing Commander Guy P. Gibson, speaking for Great Britain on "Our Part in the Post-War World."

It is a great honor and a great privilege to be here tonight, talking to you in New York City, on the last few days that I will be in this country. I have been down to Florida, up north to Chicago, Detroit and out West to Hollywood, where I had a very good time, and everywhere I have found the most charming people in the world.

But, I might say, and Major Royal would like me to say this too, that you are probably all wondering why we are so young. Well, I might tell you that in England, the Eighth Air Force and ourselves have placards put up in every bar that all lieutenant colonels under the age of 19 must be accompanied by their parents when they go into a bar. But I, ladies and gentlemen, am here to speak to you as a bomber pilot, in a very limited time, and I'd like to tell you what we feel over there in England bombing the Germans.

Our idea is not to bomb Germany out of the war by bombing alone (although if we could do it would be a very nice little gift, and a way to shorten the war); what we are trying to do is soften her up to such a tune that when we do invade France, as we surely will, then we will have a punch-drunk enemy. This in turn will save lives, save lives of our young men, your young men young men who are going to plan the future of this world; young men who, I hope, when they come home will be able to have a free life, and will be able to live free for the rest of their lives.

I might say that these aerial battles which we fight on their account involve often 6,000 or 8,000 young men, and the strain is tremendous. Picture the scene. Picture England in autumn. The leaves are falling, the grass is still green, everything is very pretty. A crowd of young men may be playing games, they may be playing a ball game, they may be riding, they might be taking their girls out to a movie show, they might be doing anything — and then suddenly throughout the villages and the towns, loud speakers blare, "All crews report back to your bases immediately!" A few swift hours later those boys are 600 miles from home, fighting for their lives above a German target whether it is day or night.

I might say that these night raids and day raids which I have been on are, in a way, the most thrilling things, and in another way the most gruesome. You are talking to your pals, boys you were brought up with, and then suddenly you see one burn up, and down he goes, and you know that you've got one pal less.

I hate the Germans for that reason, I hate them for many things, but I hate them for this reason. I started this war in a squadron which bombed Kiel Canal on September 3, 1939. I started the war with 25 chaps, four great friends of mine. I knew their sisters; we were brought up together, Now I am the last one left. That is why I hate the Germans, because I have lost all my friends.

Well, when we have bombed the Germans we will turn our noses, our blunt bomber noses, toward Japan. I might tell you that there are many ways of conquering Japan. Bombing is one of them. A combination of bombing and sea power is another, but as I am just a bomber pilot I'll be proud to lead the first British air fleet over Tokyo itself, and I'll be proud to drop the first 2,000-pounder on the emperor's palace.

I'm leaving America in a few days' time. As I said. I've never had such a good time for a long time as I've had over here. And I hope that after the war we'll see much more of each other. British and Americans. All I would like to say to you now, and it comes from the bottom of my heart, is when I go back to England I can tell all my boys, 'God bless America!"

Pilots of Planes Catapulted From Warships Skillful Fliers

By Lt. Cmdr. Mansfield, R.N.V.R.

Personally, I wanted to be an A.B.R. pilot from the first day I rolled up my bell-bottomed trousers and began to scrub decks and bend ropes into most uncommon shapes. Often I found it difficult to see just how these jobs fitted in with the training of a naval pilot. They do fit in, because a naval pilot without seamanship is very soon a naval pilot without aircraft, and best back in an ox-wagon. They fit in, because, when a naval pilot is not in the air, he's a sailor and expected to stand his watch on the bridge, in the plot, or wherever he's needed. He's as much a part of the modern navy as the mess cooks and the Lords Commissioners.

But let's leave the deck scrubbing and the brasswork and go forward a year; past the months of flying-training in England and northern Ireland and Scotland and

(BBC Press Service)

London by Mail — In other words A for "Amphibian," B for bomber, R for Reconnaissance; the aircraft of the Fleet Air Arm which, instead of flying-off from carriers are catapulted from battleships and cruisers.

Their function—to sweep ahead of the fleet, to depth-charge submarines, to report air or surface units of the enemy forces, to spot the fall of shot when the enemy is brought to action.

Very nice too, but a big order, and not very many A.B.R. or "Shag-Bat" pilots as the navy likes to know them, have achieved each and all of these functions. Sometimes for month after month they may pop and splutter across the ocean without a sight of anything but sea and ice. But those are not wasted months because, to know where the enemy is not, is the next best thing to having him Wales; past the soup-and-fish course for prospective officers; forward in time and a long way north in latitude.

* * *

Let's put ourselves in the hangar of a cruiser somewhere between the Denmark Strait (where, you'll remember, the Bismarck was picked up by our patrols) and Spitzbergen.

The flight crews, ground and air crews, are groping their way around their machines; groping because the hangar deck is oily and the endless work of maintenance must go on to the pitch and roll of the ship. The aircraft for reasons best known to the Flight-Commander, are known as "Marshal Jannie" and "Colonel Stal."

The loudspeakers announce quite quietly "Aircraft to short notice." A second later the securing tackles fall away from "Colonel Stal." The port hangar door goes up. The air crews double away over the icy, slushy upper-deck, on their way to the bridge for briefing. The aircraft on its trolley, rolls out on to the ice-covered flight deck while gloved hands spread the wings and lock the trolley on to the catapult. At these temperatures, bare hands would freeze and stick to metal. The engine warms while the Indaba on the bridge goes on, until a few minutes later, the aircrew climbs aboard and "Colonel Stal" is traversed back to the launching position. The telegraph signals up to the bridge "Aircraft cleared away." Back comes the signal "Stand by to launch." The safety pins are removed from the catapult and shown to the pilot. The cordite charge is guided into the breech. The pilot gets a "thumbs up" from his crew. They are strapped in and their heads are laid back on their catapult cushions. The order to launch is signalled down and, as the engine opens to full throttle, a small blue flag begins to circle. The pilot raises his hand, then cuts it smartly down. The blue flag drops. Fifteen pounds of cordite fires; transfers its punch to steel rams, and with a noise like the Union Limited, aircraft and crew are hurled into flight.

* * *

Catapulting is a simple and efficient way of getting into the air. It's also a very likeable way once one's stomach is trained to leave the ship at the same moment as the aircraft.

Aboard the "Colonel Stal" the observer hands the pilot a chit with the course, height, and speed for the particular mission written on it. Perhaps they are off to find the convoy; perhaps on an anti-submarine patrol; perhaps to photograph and plot a hundred miles of ice, watching the brash turn into little glass-like discs, then into pieces the size of soup-plates until finally they reach the pack ice itself. Whatever their job is it must end in finding their way back. That means navigation in the truest sense, for there is no familiar Drakensberg to mark the route; radio would give away the position of the aircraft and the fleet; visibility may be bad and the ship is a moving base. So it's up to the observer to get his sums right, and it's up to the pilot to fly a straight course. They do arrive back, of course, on time and, more often than not, over the right ship.

Being over the ship, and being back in the ship is not, however, quite the same kettle of fish. Battleships and cruisers are not carriers, and their aircraft land in the sea, and are hauled aboard by a crane.

* * *

Now landing in the sea, in the open sea, is rather different from landing on an airfield or in a sheltered bay. There will probably be a sea running, with white tops to the waves and deep furrows between. In fact, the open sea, in the more northerly latitudes is seldom a good proposition for a sixty-five knot touch-down.

The answer to this problem comes from the ship where two flags are run up at the dip. The aircraft promptly begins to weave from dead astern up to the starboard quarter. The two flags are hauled close-up and at cruising revolutions the ship goes hard to port, pushing up a wall of water on the outside of her turn and leaving a smooth run of water on the inside.

This is called the "slick." Into the "slick" the pilot must drop his aircraft. His timing must be exact. A few seconds early and he will land in the open sea. A few seconds late and he will over-run into the wall of water on the edge of the "slick."

Above all, he must land, be alongside, and hoisted clear of the water within two minutes, or the "slick" will have disappeared and he will be driving "Colonel Stal" into the full weight of the sea.

Does all this sound a little strenuous? In reality, it's a great deal of fun and whether one is hauled aboard as dry as a Free State river, or whether one is hauled in with every window in the aircraft smashed by the sea and half the Arctic in one's flying boots, nobody gets bored.

Back in the ship, the captain must have his report. Then while the observer logs the flight, the pilot and air-gunner will look in at the hangar where the ground crews are already at work again; for the aircraft must be refueled, checked and checked again.

After that—dry clothes, the wardroom, and a glass of something that tastes all the better for being duty free. Tot siens.

A Possible Cure for Vitiligo White Patches on the Skin.

One of the unusual and distressing skin ailments is leucoderma, vitiligo, or piebald skin. There are oval or irregular milk-white spots which may spread and form large patches. These patches are smooth, being level with the surrounding skin which may be browner than normal because the pigment has gone from the light spots into surrounding skin. The disease may progress slowly and finally become an embarrassing disfigurement.

The cause has been unknown although a couple of years ago a number of cases were found in workers who tanned leather. It was hoped that these cases might give a clue to the cause of vitiligo. Treatment up to the present has been the use of a coloring substance which matched the skin surrounding the spots. A few cases were reported cured by the use of thyroid extract.

That some gland deficiency may be the cause of vitiligo is reported by Drs. J. C. M. Fournier, J. M. Cervino, and O. Conti, in the Journal of Clinical Endocrinology, Springfield, Ill.

The fact that the pituitary gland, lying on the floor of the skull, produces a brownish horome and that a change in the pigment occurs when not enough or too much pituitary hormone is being manufactured, led these physicians to investigate the possible effect of treatment of this hormone in 11 cases of vitiligo.

Treatment was started by giving 400 frog units twice a week. There was a striking reduction in the size of the white spots on the skin and the treatment was successful in 8 of the 11 cases.

One patient was given fresh bovine pituitary hormone by mouth; 9 others were given a purified extract of the hormone on the spots or by hypodermic injections. The hormone entered the blood and improved spots at considerable distance from where injections were given.

Improvement was more rapid and was of a greater degree in the patches which had appeared recently. Satisfactory results were obtained, however, in cases of vitiligo of ten years standing.

Now, eleven cases is not many but 8 of 11 cases cured is a large percentage.

Further, as there has never been a "cure" for vitiligo the fact that pituitary hormone has a part in the formation or control of skin pigment or color should cause other research workers to further investigate this mysterious skin disease.

Secret of Plane Nearly Leaked Out

London, Jan. 14 — (CP-Reuters) —The secret of the jet-propelled plane very nearly leaked out — and all through a small boy with a model plane.

An officer somewhere in the Midlands came across a group of small boys playing with model planes. At first he watched with interest and then with dismay, as one boy had a model plane without any propellers.

It was an excellent model of the secret jet-propelled plane of which the public then knew nothing. The officer confiscated the plane and questioned the boy's father. The father, who had worked on Britain's "secret weapon," admitted thoughtlessly making a model for his son.

The model was destroyed and the father sternly warned.

CHAPTER 2

It was in June of the year in which Darnley was to reach her twentieth birthday that she saw her first artist. He came to visit his uncle and aunt, the Arthur Orricks, who owned the Busy Big Store, and his name was Peter Orrick. Of course, Colby knew that the Orricks had a nephew who drew pictures for magazines and lived in a studio in New York and in a vague way commiserated with them. Darnley had clipped examples of his work to place in her collection of pictures of beautiful women, for he owed his vogue to an ability to make his girls seem alluring, provocative, chic . .

He had been ill, said Mrs. Orrick, and was coming to the quiet of Colby to recuperate. When he came, he turned out to be a young man of thirty-five or so, who wore horn-rimmed glasses and lounged about in the sunshine dressed in yellow, flapping trousers and a coat of cerulean blue. The more sophisticated of Colby recognized this as a beach costume. Darnley, from the kitchen window, often saw him in the Orrick back yard under the apple trees. Sometimes he sat in the hammock on the front porch, and at such times Darnley found it necessary to walk downtown upon some sudden errand.

On the third day of the young artist's visit, Mrs. Orrick called to her as she was passing, eyes straight before her and obviously unaware that a young man was anywhere in the vicinity.

Darnley halted and turned with lifted chin.

"I wish't you'd come up and meet my nephew," said Mrs. Orrick. "He gits restless with nobuddy to talk to but me."

Darnley climbed the steps as Peter got to his feet, grinning and extending his hand.

"Miss Darnley Carfax — my nephew, Mr. Orrick," smiled Mrs. Orrick primly.

"I instigated it," said Orrick. "I said to my aunt, 'Auntie, if you don't introduce me to that girl two doors away I'll create a scandal!'"

"Well, you set right here on the front stoop where everybuddy can see you," said Mrs. Orrick, before she left them, "and I guess no tongues'll go waggin'."

"You've been ill?" asked Darnley.

"We'll skip that. Have you got a favourite topic?"

Darnley's eyes twinkled. "Artists," she said.

"Miss Carfax you're a smart girl. You're a genius. How did you know that the only topic an artist really can do justice to is himself?"

"I read it in a book," said Darnley.

"Would you mind taking off your hat?"

"What for?"

"With your face and hair you can't wear a hat like that. It doesn't compose. It gums up the picture. I'll have to go shopping with you."

Darnley was not offended. Rather, she enjoyed it; more than that, she determined to profit by it.

"We have one millinery shop, and it has a wide selection of six hats, most of which are for women of sixty. You take what you can get." She removed the offense.

"By Jove!" exclaimed Peter. "How do you do!"

"And you?" parried Darnley. "You act as though you think me beautiful."

"There are two ways of telling if a girl is beautiful—first, to see her properly dressed; second, to see her—"

"Unfortunately, the facilities of Colby will not let you see me properly dressed," interrupted Darnley. "As to my figure, my latest measurements are almost exactly those published by an artist as ideal."

"What artist?"

"A man named Peter Orrick."

He nodded. "The world's greatest authority," he said firmly. He shrugged his shoulders, half closed his eyes, tilted his head, and studied her. Then he declared: "Now that you have been assured by an expert that you have beauty, what do you propose to do about it?"

"Go and think it over," she said, getting to her feet. "Thank you, Mr. Orrick.

"You are quite welcome, Miss Carfax," he said ironically. "I shall be in your lovely village for a couple of weeks."

"How nice for Colby," she said, and proceeded with straight back and erect shoulders down the steps and along the walk toward the business section of the town.

"Incredible," said Peter Orrick to himself. "And interesting too."

Next afternoon Peter came down from the porch to meet Darnley as she passed. "What sort of debauchery does this town afford?" he asked.

"The movies and ice-cream sodas," she said.

"May I ply you with entertainment?"

"If you'll answer questions."

"About what?"

"Artists," she said, "and models."

"That subject always comes up," he remarked ruefully.

"I'm interested in the professional side of it," said Darnley.

They walked on down the street and stopped in Green's Drugstore for chocolate sodas; then, instead of going to the motion pictures, they strolled.

"Commence," she commanded.

"Models," he said, "used to be models. Today everybody takes a hack at it. Everybody from society matrons to street sweepers. There are men, women and children models."

"I'm not interested now in the men and babies," she said. "How does a girl get to be a model?"

"First, he answered, with a sidewise glance, "she goes where models are useful."

"To New York," she said, nodding. "And when she gets there?"

"She can either make a round of the studios asking for work, or she can register with one of the agencies, get her picture in the catalogs supplied to people who hire artists and hope for the best."

"How much do models earn?"

"Artists pay five dollars a sitting. But a girl who catches on with the advertisers, who photographs like a million dollars, can get a better price. The books list girls at five dollars up to twenty-five dollars an hour. I've known a topnotcher to make three or four hundred dollars a week."

"Those are the ones who pose for photographs?"

"Yes."

"Do you think I would be a good model?"

"I don't know. It takes more than looks. Maybe you don't photograph well. Maybe you're a stick—I mean, couldn't catch the mood of the pose. Modeling doesn't just mean standing like a ramrod while somebody paints or photographs you."

"How much does it cost to live ly. in New York?" she asked practical-

"How long is a piece of string?" he countered. "Girls can live well, more cheaply than men."

"Why?"

He grinned wryly. "Because a pretty girl who ever has to buy a meal for herself is just inefficient," he said. "And a girl can live anywhere. Nobody knows where she lives. She just appears in the right places."

"I wish I knew," she said wistfully.

"Knew what? If you're nice to look at?"

"No. If I could make a living in New York—as a model."

"Only way to tell is to try." He grinned at her, enjoying her youth and her freshness. But as he looked he became an artist. He felt a sudden desire to work, to try to imprison the loveliness he saw on canvas or drawing board. Artists never can tell when the urge to labor will seize them—or when it will depart.

"How," he asked, "would you like to have me paint you? Just for fun."

"Oh, would you?" Then her face fell. "But how can you?"

"How can I? Why, I've got my tools. My room has a pretty fair north light. Nothing to interfere that I can see."

He did not see because he did not know local ability to gossip and misconstrue, and its unerring faculty to read evil into anything it failed to understand.

"I couldn't," she said regretfully.

"Nonsense. We'll start in the morning. The Orricks are away all day at the store and nobody'll disturb us. You barge in about ten o'clock and we'll start. Um . . . Got a red bathing suit?"

"Bathing suit!"

"Yes."

He was so matter-of-fact about it! From his point of view it was just an ordinary episode. But she hesitated . . .

"Well?" he asked impatiently.

"I'll do it," she said. "But nobody must know. It's got to be a secret."

He shrugged. "If you're going to be a model it's going to be tough to keep it very secret," he said. "If you should get photographed for some cigarette it would be a secret between you and fifty million people who saw your face in twenty magazines."

"This is different," she said.

She wanted to do this as she had never before wanted to do anything in her life, but . . . even though she had agreed, she hesitated. What would Grandpa Carfax say? What would Mrs. Orrick say? What would all Colby say?

But it was a chance, a heaven-sent opportunity. Grandpa Carfax was at the mill all day. Mrs. Orrick went to the store right after breakfast and remained until suppertime. Darnley scanned the situation and believed she could pose for Peter Orrick and nobody would ever know she had done so. And she, Darney Carfax, would find out in the one certain way whether she had the sort of beauty that has commercial value. She set her little chin.

"But it's just for fun. You'll never show it to anybody," she said.

"It may be so bad I'll never want to."

"I'll be there at ten," she said.

"Atta girl."

They were in front of her home. She turned in.

"Look your prettiest," he urged.

"I'll try," she said, but as she went up her walk she was not at all easy in her mind. She was more than uneasy. She was suffering from an acute attack of uncertainty and premonition. . . .

• •

Darnley was posing upon an improvised model's stand. She thought she had never been so tired in her life. Her back ached; her neck burned; her knees trembled. She did not know how long she had been standing there and Peter Orrick had forgotten, in his concentration. Had she been a professional model she would have demanded a rest long before this, but, in her ignorance, she believed this was the way models had to do.

In the beginning she had been embarrassed. But Peter Orrick scowled at her, his head on one side and nodded his head. "Up there," he said peremptorily, pointing to the stand. "Just stand a second while I think."

He stood back and stared at her, and her embarrassment departed. Orrick was not seeing Darnley Carfax; he was seeing a hundred and ten pounds of beauty that was nameless and sexless. He strode to her. He moved her about as he would have moved a bit of bric-a-brac on his piano. After ten minutes he was satisfield. "There, hold it" he said and seated himself at his easel.

For five minutes, ten minutes, it was pleasant. The novelty of it, the adventure of it, entertained her. Then she began to discover joints and muscles. Her head commenced to whirl and she found difficulty in keeping her balance.

"Please, please, hold still!" he snapped.

At the end of an hour—it seemed a week to her—he tossed down his charcoal. "Rest."

She tottered off the stand and threw herself into a chair. Peter Orrick fussed with his drawing, squeezed dabs of bright-colored paint on his palette. Darnley sat with closed eyes, vaguely hoping she was done for the day. It seemed to her she had not rested a minute when she heard his voice.

"Ready?" he asked.

She struggled to her feet and mounted the stand again. He readjusted her into her pose and commenced to paint. This time the aches and cramps and burnings came more swiftly. They became acute, unbearable, but she resolutely endured them. She would not give in and beg for mercy. She was thirsty. But still Peter Orrick painted. A time came when she could endure no longer. "Hey," she said, "I think I'm going to die!"

"Eh?" He glanced at his wrist watch and then was solicitous, apologetic. "Oh, I say, I'm sorry. Why didn't you holler? I forgot the time. Get down and take a long rest. You shouldn't have let me go on."

"I thought that was what models had to do," she said.

"Art," he said, "is supposed to give pleasure, not to be an instrument of torture. After this when you get tired let out a yelp."

Some time after noon Peter went down to the kitchen and returned with milk and sandwiches. Then they went to work again. It was four o'clock before he let her go, and then she tottered home and threw herself on her bed and was asleep in an instant.

For three days this continued. In mid-afternoon of the third day Peter slumped in his chair and sighed. "There," he said. "Have a look."

"Finished?"

"Nothing's ever finished, but I've given it all I've got."

She moved around behind him and looked at the painting. "Do I look like that?" she asked, with a quivering sensation of triumph.

"Unless I'm a very much overrated artist—you do." He leaned back and studied his work. "That's a darn good painting. Composition, color—" He stared at it critically.

"Was I," she asked, "a competent model?"

"Just as good as a girl from Wolfgang's!" smiled Orrick.

"Wolfgang's?"

"That's the name of the agency which supplies most of my models."

"Could I do it in New York? Do you think the Wolfgang agency could use me?" asked Darnley.

"What's the matter with Colby?" he asked. "What's the matter with staying right here and marrying a nice boy and settling down?"

"Remember what happened to the man who hid his light under a bushel?" countered Darnley.

"I'd mildly suggest that you don't make a fool of yourself. In Colby you're secure. You're comfortable. Life is easy and pleasant for you. Better just sit back and take it. Why go looking for trouble? New York is full of pretty girls from country towns who are having one awful time getting by."

"But I'm not asking you for advice about my life; I'm asking a practical business question. Can I get away with it in New York?"

"The competition is tough."

"You haven't answered," she said.

"All right then—I think you'd have better than an even chance. But you don't know what you're getting into."

"Did it ever occur to you that I might want to get into things? I want to find out. I want to be a part of things, have things happen to me."

He cocked his head and looked at her slantwise. "You will," he said. "You will."

That night at supper Grandpa Carfax peered at her over the steel bows of his spectacles and grunted. "You look like the cat that et the canary," he said. "What ye been up to?"

"You'll see;" she remarked mysteriously.

"When a woman says that," he said, "it don't bode good to nobuddy." He snorted.

Neither of them could know that old Mrs. Martin was then on the party telephone talking to old Mrs. Parrent:

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Jan. 14. (CP)— Trading in golds speeded up this afternoon on Toronto Exchange. Other groups were lower. Volume was heavy at 606,000 shares.

Dome, Lake Shore and Hollinger firmed fractions and McIntyre advanced a point. In cheaper group stronger prices ruled for Lamaque, Wright-Hargreaves, Teck Hughes, East Malartic, Little Long Lac, MacLeod-Cockshutt, Hard Rock, Kerr-Addison and others.

Steep Rock, Nickel and Falconbridge were weaker base metals.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, Jan. 14. (AP)—Paced by rails and specialties, selected stocks added further recoveries in today's market although many leaders still were shunned by bidders. Trends pointed irregularly higher near the fourth hour. Fractional gains ruled, although several wider jumps were in evidence.

R.K.O. Pfd., Greyhound Corp. and Delaware & Hudson recorded new 1943-44 tops. In front were Union Pacific, Du Pont, U.S. Steel, Sears Roebuck, United Aircraft, Sperry and Goodyear. Allied Chemical and Eastman Kodak were soft spots.

Canadian issues were steady with Dome Mines and Lake Shore adding fractions and Canadian Pacific and McIntyre unchanged.

HOGS

Dressedweight: Hull $16.95 delivered, Barrie, London, Stratford $17 delivered, Hamilton $17.10 delivered, Chatham $16.50 plus transportation.

DUTCH NAZIS MARKED MEN

London, Jan. 14 —(CP)— Handbills reading "Pick your Dutch Nazi in time for the day of liberation" have been posted on trees, walls and billboards throughout Holland, a young refugee told the Netherlands News Agency, Aneta.

Weekly Livestock Review

Toronto, Jan. 14 (CP)—Prices on cattle dipped about 15 cents cwt. in dull trade on the livestock market here this week. Calves, sheep and lambs were down 50 cents cwt. Hogs were steady.

Stocks of all grades of meats were plentiful in the coolers and in local stores, in contrast to a year ago when any kind of meat was hard to find.

Deand for cattle was fair at the market but only at slightly reduced prices. A top load of choice weighty steers sold at $13 with others from $12.75 down to $11. Butcher steers and heifers closed at $10.25 to $11.75 and a few light steers reached $12. Butcher cows were $7 to $8.75 with a few at $9. Canners and cutters sold at $5 to $6.75. Bulls were $7.50 to $9.25 and fed yearlings $12 to $13.50. Small lots of stockers sold at $8 to $10.50 and a few feeding steers brought $11. Good milkers and springers were steady at $140 to $180 each.

Calves were slow at $15 to $16 for choice with common vealers downward to $10.

Lambs dropped another 50 cents cwt. as the new raise in the ceiling for dressed lamb brought retail lamb cuts too high for consumers taste. Good ewes and wethers closed at $13 to $13.50. Bucks were $12 to $12.50 and culls $6 to $11. Sheep were down 50 cents at $2 to $6 with some unsold.

Hogs sold steady at $17.15 dressed for the basic grade with sows $13 dressed.

Weekly summary of receipts:

First Session Of Legislature To Open Feb. 22

Toronto, Jan. 14 — (CP) — The fifth session of Ontario's 21st Legislature will open Tuesday, Feb. 22, Premier Drew announced today after conferring with Lieutenant Governor Albert Matthews.

The Premier said the opening date was later than usual to avoid having to adjourn until the Dominion budget is brought down.

"Because of the wide powers under the War Administration Act the Dominion budget has considerable influence on provincial legislation, particularly on provincial finances," he said. "A break in the main session would be very inconvenient for members."

He recalled that in the last two years the session was adjourned for the Federal government's budget.

'The German Zoo' Russians Call It

Moscow, Jan. 14. (AP)— A new expression, "the German zoo", has found its way into the language on the Russian-German front as the Red Army advances past piles of wrecked Nazi tanks, guns and armament.

A Soviet war correspondent asked a sapper the way to a certain village.

"It's over by the German zoo", said the sapper.

"Zoo?" asked the surprised newsman.

"Yes, zoo", the Red Army replied. "You'll find there six tigers (Germany's largest tanks), three panthers (medium tanks) and two cats (tankettes)."

RECTAL SORENESS AND PILE TORTURE

QUICKLY RELIEVED.

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from J. S. McKeown or any I.D.A. or other drug store, and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results your druggist will gladly return your money.

The Ontario Intelligencer

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, JANUARY 14, 1944

Newsletter From Home

Regulations forbid individuals sending newspapers overseas, though mail subscriptions are still allowed. To overcome this regulation, The Ontario Intelligencer prints the news of the week in letter form. Clip it out and send it to your loved ones and friends who are in distant parts of Canada and overseas.

The most welcome news of this week is the return of several Belleville and District men home from the Italian theatre of war. These men are listed as casualties, and have spent months in hospitals in Italy, Sicily, North Africa and England, and their return marred by these wounds, they are Pte. H. Munro, 18 Victoria, Tpr. Joseph Wilson, son of Scotty Wilson, Dundas Street East, and Pte. Joseph Seames. A casualty in the Sicilian campaign, Pte. Munro lost his right arm and received a shrapnel wound in his right chest. Tpr. Wilson of the Princess Louise Dragon Guards was injured near Melfi, Italy, when he drove his armored car over a land mine. Pte. Seames, a member of the H. & P. E. Regiment, enlisted in 1939 and went overseas with the 1st continguent and was wounded in Sicily. Both Trooper Wilson and Pte. Seames will report to Kingston Military Hospital, but will return home shortly. A fourth Belleville boy to return to Canada following being wounded in action in the Mediterranean area is Pte. Albert St. Denis, son of Mrs. Orpha St. Denis, 157 Pinnacle Street. Pte. St. Denis received a fractured shoulder during the Sicilian campaign. Pte. Seames suffered the loss of his left arm.

A large and enthusiastic gathering of servicemen and young ladies enjoyed the varied "Open House" program sponsored by the Army and Navy Veterans, Unit 201, at the Y. M. C. A. on Sunday. In the afternoon general entertainment was supervised by the officials of the Vets., while in the evening a variety program was presented in the gymnasium. These "Open House" programs will be recalled by many of the city boys who have been guests at them before leaving the city for overseas or distant postings in Canada. Every effort is being made to make these Sunday programs better.

Probably several thousands of men and women in the armed services, both in Canada and overseas, will recall Ken McAdam. Ken is now a Pilot Officer in the R. C. A. F. Auxiliary Services and has been overseas for almost two years. For the past several months he has been associated with the "Y" services in North Africa. PO. Ken McAdam has returned to Canada where it is presumed he will continue his activities in the "Y" services.

There has been no snow to speak of . . . in fact, there has been no snow in the city this winter. With the complete absence of it, youthful merry-makers are taking full advantage of all patches of ice available to get in some skating before a white mantle despends to make them work for their fun. Every evening and throughout the day over the last weekend, the cutting sound of skates and the laughter and shouts of the skaters could be heard in almost every part of the city. The Moira River comes in for its share of popularity from the kids, while over the weekend the ice-covered bay in and about the local harbor was a gathering place for dozens of fans of both sexes.

With at least four names being mentioned, keen competition is likely to feature the race for the Wardenship of Hastings County when the January session of County Council gets underway. The names of the four reeves seeking the post are Fred Wilson of Sidney; Thomas Fleming, Huntingdon; John Bell of Marmora Township, and James Nickle of Madoc. All four reeves have been active in county council circles for a number of years and are held in high regard by council colleagues.

A later report from official sources lists two more district boys as wounded, they are A/Sgt. Alvin Edward Neil, of St. Ola, Hastings County, is listed as severely wounded, while Pte. Raymond Neal of Trenton, is listed as slightly wounded. Both boys are members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regt.

Sport fans taking in the opening dual bill of girls' basketball at the "Y" last Monday night were doubly surprised. Unfortunately the winning teams, Alemite and Belleville Sargent won by a goodly margin, but judging from the initial appearance of the squads, the "Y" gallery won't accommodate the fans once the lassies get under full power. Ev. Allison led the Sargents to win over Deacons 28 to 10 with Ruth Gariepy and M. Barnhart adding to the victors scoring. For Deacons two softball players, Joyce Woodhouse and "Stewie" Stewart accounted for all points, as the losers lacked defensive measures. When it came to the Alemite-Reliance game experience proved the factor for Frank Martin's Alemite 46-20 win as the Alemite starting quintette scored all points paced by Doris Mansfield, Marion Salisbury, Dot Ronsky and Betty Gilbert in order. For Reliance it was all Kay Coathup, who sank eight baskets in a losing cause.

The Senior O.H.A. loop started out with six clubs, but under previous rulings, Toronto Army Daggers and Toronto R.C.A.F. were compelled to withdraw. The withdrawal now of Kingston Frontenac Army will leave only three teams in the loop. . . .St. Catharines, Hamilton and Toronto Navy.

Following 23 years of service as special constable with the Canadian National Railways, policeman Fred White, of this city, was retired to superannuation over the weekend. Constable White was in Mons on Nov. 11th., 1918, when Armistice was declared. Returning to his family in Canada, Mr. White joined the Belleville Police Department in 1919 and two years later resigned to accept a position as constable on the Old Grand Trunk Railway police service. He was sixty-five at retirement.

Out of ten applicants for the R.C.A.F. only one was accepted by the Mobile Recruiting Unit which spent a day and a half in the city. The officer in charge of recruiting with the Unit stated that the ones who failed to come up to standard would have a later chance, when a further call is made for ground-crew; the rejected men were all applicants for air-crew. The army and air force are combining their recruiting campaigns now and a representative of each branch is present at interviews.

Official confirmation of the permanent appointment of Acting Inspector Harry Storey, of the Ontario Provincial Police, stationed here, to the rank of inspector was announced this week. Inspector Harry Storey joined the O.P.P. at Toronto in 1922 and was immediately transferred to the Lindsay detachment. Later he was moved to Cobourg and in 1928 he was made Sergeant and located at District No. 8 headquarters. It was not until March, 1942, that he returned to the Belleville district.

Overseas since December, 1939, Cpl. Alfred T. Platt, of the H. & P.E. Regt., was killed in action in Italy on December 23rd., according to word received by his brother, Mr. John Platt, 4th Concession, Sidney Township. Born in England 38 years ago, Cpl. Platt came to Canada in 1921 and made his home in Sidney Township where he engaged in farming. He enlisted in September 1939, and went overseas with the 1st Contingent. He married while in England. Besides his wife he leaves his brother, John, in Sidney and two sisters in England.

Marmora and District

C.W.L. Holds January Meeting

Marmora — The January meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held in the school on January 12th, with a fair attendance. Mrs. James Black presided. Following the roll call the minutes of the last meeting were real and adopted. A large number of thank you notes were read from the sick and shut-ins who had received Christmas baskets. Mrs. Black also advised the members of Christmas cheer baskets that had been sent to needy families. The president gave special thanks to Mrs. H. Auger who had arranged for the sending of the baskets. The feature of the evening was a presentation made to Rev. H. J. Farrell of a beautiful gold chalice. Father Farrell in a few well chosen words voiced his thanks and appreciation for the gift. Mrs. Black announced that a donation of stamps had been sent to the Sisters of Service, and she gave a full report of the work accomplished during the past year. Father Farrell then addressed the members congratulating them on the success of their efforts during the past year, the large amount of money raised, and the co-operation that existed among the members.

Arrangements were made to hold a bingo the first week in February.

Ten games of bingo were then played, followed by a delicious lunch, after which the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Women's Institute Meets

Marmora Women's Institute met on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Eugene Brady with the president, Mrs. L. R. Green occupying the chair ,and a good attendance of members on hand. The meeting which resolved itself into a "Grandmother's Night" opened in the usual way. The roll call was "A Suggestion for Postponing Old Age." The treasurer's report showed a creditable balance. Reports of social welfare war work and visiting committees were given. The appropriation of $100. was decided upon as follows: Marmora Branch Canadian Legion, $15; Marmora Community War Workers $25; Canadian Red Cross $15; Navy League $15; British War Victims' Fund $15. A paper under Historical Research entitled "History of Early Residents of Marmora" was given by Mrs. W. R. Lavender and was well received. An exhibit of wearing apparel belonging to grandmothers of present members of the Institute was viewed with interesty. Mrs. E. C. Prentice conducted a spelling match which was won by Mrs. G. Hazlett. Mrs. J. A. Rice staged a drawing contest with lights out which occasioned much humor. Mrs. Frank Sweet gave a reading "Clothes Patching in Olden Times." The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

C.G.I.T. Meeting

The C.G.I.T. meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Thomas Dickson on January 12th. After the singing of "O Canada," the purpose was repeated, then prayer by Mrs. Dickson. The Scripture reading was taken by Blanche Young followed by the singing of a hymn. Business pertaining to C.G.I.T. week was discussed and it was decided to hold a song service. Miss Bartlett read part of the Study Book. The game Biblical baseball was played. The meeting closed with Taps.

Social News

Group I of St. Paul's Ladies' Guild held a euchre party in the parish hall on Wednesday evening, the prize winners being Doug Jones and Mrs. Art Smith.

Lt. Col. A. V. Yates was called to his home in Preston on Tuesday owing to the sudden death of his mother, Mrs. Thomas Yates, who passed away on Tuesday morning in her 78th year. The funeral was held on Thursday afternoon from St John's Anglican Church, Preston.

The Kinsmen Karnival held at Deloro on Monday evening proved to be a gratifying success. Over $100 was realized for the "Milk for Britian" fund.

A social evening was held in the Separate School on Tuesday evening in honor of Sgt. Tom Maloney who leaves this week for Lachine, Que. Dancing was enjoyed.

BERNHARD BACK IN LONDON

London, Jan. 14 (CP)—Prince Bernhard of The Netherlands returned today from Canada where he spent the Christmas and New Year's holidays with his wife, Princess Juliana, and their three daughters at their home in Rockcliffe near Ottawa.

During his stay in North America, the Prince went to Washington to be the overnight guest of President Roosevelt at the White House.

The War Today—

Polish Issue May Solve Problem Of Wiping Out Prussian Militarism

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

It begins to look as though the Russo-Polish territorial dispute, inflammable as it is, may in the long run help the Allies to a solution of one of their most difficult problems —that of wiping out the arrogant, swaggering, bullying Prussian militarism which for generations has been the curse of Europe and has whelped two world wars within our time.

Much depends on whether the Poles and Moscow are able to get together for negotiations over the new Soviet proposal. News this morning from London, headquarters of the Polish government, shows that the dispute is balanced on razor edge.

Russia has offered to negotiate on the basis of the so-called Curzon line, which roughly is the frontier adopted by the Red Army when it occupied eastern Poland in 1939. The Soviet intends to keep most of this territory but is willing to discuss some adjustments of the border.

In addition — and this is where the fate of Prussian militarism is involved — the Russians offer Poland German territory which presumably would include East Prussia and part of Prussia proper — dominant state of the Reich. Now it's interesting — and perhaps a hopeful sign — that Moscow's willingness to see Poland make these annexations coincides with a claim already made by the Polish government. Of course, the Poles also demand return of the area which Russia proposed to retain — but that's another side of the story.

Polish Minister's Statement

Last autumn Karol Popiel, Polish Minister of State, made this statement to an Associated Press correspondent in London:

"All the United Nations agree post-war occupation of Germany is necessary. It is obvious that the Poles, knowing the Germans better than anyone else, will take part in the obligation of serving as occupation authorities. This will not affect the eventuality of Poland having to bring part of certain German territories within her boundaries.

"Certainly the territories east of the river Elbe, the area Germany cultivated for years as the home of the Herrenvolk area trying to displace the Slavonic peoples who formerly inhabited it, must be occupied and its German inhabitants re-educated (this area comprises a large section of Prussia).

"Silesia must return to Poland. East Prussia must be exterminated. It must be part of Poland."

E. Prussia Hot-Bed of Junkerism

"Extermination" of East Prussia—perhaps with transfer of all Germans back to the Fatherland — would remove one of the running sores of eastern Europe. It's a hot-bed of Junkerism. The Junker belongs to the insufferable "Me-Und-Gott" Prussian aristocrats, which believes that the Prussian race was born to rule and has maintained its supremacy with lash and sword.

Foxboro United Church Holds Annual Meeting

Foxboro, Jan. 14—The annual congregational meeting of Foxboro United Church was held in the Sunday School Room on Jan. 12. The business period was preceded by a pot luck supper. The minister, Rev. E. M. Cook, conducted a brief devotional period and reviewed the main events of the past year, chief of which in total effort was the complete renovation of the church interior. Like the Hebrews of old under Nehemiah who built their city with their swords buckled on, so everyone has met the extra demands of war and also built on the home front. The membership report showed one hundred and sixteen resident members and twenty non-resident. Thirteen men and one woman directly out of the congregation are on active service. One member, Mr. Ira Simmons, died during the year.

The most difficult organization to carry on owing to war condition is the Young People's Society. Five young men enlisted in the Navy during the past year while most of the other older members are working away from home. However they completed their usual gift to Missions, $30, for the year 1942-43, and the same for year 1943-44.

S. C. Gay, superintendent of the Sunday School, reported for that organization and reviewed its work. There was an average attendance of 63 and a total income of $159. $34 was given to Missions.

Mrs. Walter Scott, President of the W. A. and Mrs. Alfred Wickett, Sec. Treas. reported for the W. A. which is sub-divided into three groups. The total net income was $306 with a balance of $149.

The report of the W. M. S. was given by Mrs. S. C. Gay, president, and Mrs. Walter Scott, Treas., Mrs. Geo. Priest for the Mission Band. The W. M. S. has 24 yearly members and five life members. It sent to the branch treasurer, $143, plus $43 raised by the Mission Band.

Mr. Robinson Morton, Circuit Treasurer for the Missionary and Maintenance Fund,. reported $333 for the charge, Foxboro's contribution being $208. That is $15 in advance of 1942.

Particular interest was attached to the Church Treasurer's statement this year owing to the greatly increased expenditures. Mr. J. W. Daniels stated that the year began with a balance of $143, the total expenses were $2594 with a favourable balance of $89. The total income was $2683. This is almost $1000 more than in 1942.

For the church in all its branches the income was about $3000 net.

In the elections, Messrs. S. C. Gay and Everett Sills were appointed elders for three years. Clare Finkle and John Read were added to the Board of Stewards. I. P. Eggleton, M. C. Reynolds, John Gowsell and J. W. Daniels were elected as ushers. Walter Wickett, John Gowsell and Harry Dafoe were elected to the Parsonage Board. M. C. Reynolds was re-appointed church secretary and highly commended for the splendid records he had kept for the past historic year.

In the general business period, a special vote of thanks was extended to Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Waddell for the gift of a Communion Table given on January 1 and used for the first time on January 2. Letters of sympathy are to be sent to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cooke, generous members of the church, and he a member of the Board of Management, who have been indisposed for several weeks, and to Rev. C. E. Cragg, a former pastor, whose church, Grace Church, Toronto, has lately been destroyed by fire.

Letters will also be sent to members and others who are on active service for King and country. A committee was appointed to arrange for gowning the choir and for a special service for their introduction.

On motion of Mr. W. E. Tummon and Mr. S. C. Gay a motion of appreciation was heartily passed to Rev. E. M. Cook and Mrs. Cook for their leadership and the quality of their work during the past year.

Citizens' Forum Meets

Foxboro Citizens' Forum, with nine members present, met at the Parsonage on January 11. The subject of the Broadcast was "The Right to be Healthy." After some animated discussion it was agreed that any Boards appointed to administer a National Health Scheme should be composed of members who are answerable to the Governments that supply the finance; that the Health Boards or Councils should be composed of not more than 50 per cent of doctors and other health personnel and fully 50 per cent of citizens generally; and that it should be a completely National Health plan would have a tendency to bear ion Government including all citizens. It was felt that any other plan would have a tendency to hear hardest on those citizens that need it the most. Present experience in preventive and immunization work proves that some and perhaps more compulsion is necessary. It was arranged to meet next week at the home of Mrs. Wanda Sine.

Letters recently received from local boys in the services show L/Cpl. Gordon Elder in Sicily. O/S. Bill Read in New York, Garth Sine in N. S., Ken. McCaughen in Quebec, Robert Cook in N. S., and P/O. E. Spencer, E. Tummon and R. Campbell in England. They all report splendid and generous treatment at Christmas and appreciation for letterz received.

Bancroft

Bancroft (Special) — Bancroft police court was held in the community hall at Bancroft on January 12th, presided over by Magistrate J. L. Lloyd of Northbrook, with Assistant Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson and Captain Smith, of the O.P.P. of Belleville being present. Captain Smith has just returned home from overseas, having served with His Majesty's Forces for over three and a half years and is now back on the Provincial Police Force at Belleville.

The following is a list of the cases disposed of at the court sitting: Lorne Phillips of Gunter pleaded guilty to a charge of indecent assault and was sentenced to two months in the county jail, Belleville.

Lorne Bruce, Herson Card, Howard Plumley and William Redmond, all of Bancroft, were each found guilty on a charge of vagrancy and each assessed $5 and costs.

Archie and Mrs. Roy Helm, of Gunter, both pleading guilty to a serious charge under the Criminal Code were remanded for one week for sentence.

Arthur Shore, of Bancroft, charged under the Masters and Servants Act with refusing to pay an amount of wages to John Radchuck of Bancroft now serving in His Majesty's Forces in the Provost Corps at Kingston, was found guilty and ordered to pay fine and costs and restitution amounting to over $34.00.

Maynooth boys were in town last night and staged a hockey game with the locals on a fast sheet of ice which resulted in a score of 7 to 1 in favor of the visitors.

2,000 TONS BOMBS HIT GERMAN PLANE CITY

City of Brunswick Home of Airplane Producing Plants

38 BOMBERS LOST

London, Jan. 15—(CP)—The R. A. F. and R. C. A. F. threw their full weight into the pre-invasion campaign to exterminate the German Air Force, burying the Central Germany City of Brunswick under a heavy load of explosives Friday night as an after-stroke to the American daylight attack last Tuesday when heavy bombers fought one of the great battles of the war to bomb the Messerschmitt plant.

The heavy R. A. F. bombers dumped 2,000 long tons of bombs upon the plane-manufacturing city in what the air ministry termed "a very heavy attack." This and other operations cost 38 aircraft.

The R. C. A. F. share of the night's losses was seven aircraft.

As this main force was over Brunswick, Mosquito bombers returned again to attack Berlin, and other planes bombed Madgburg southwest of Berlin, and targets in northern France.

Round-the-Clock Attacks

The overnight blow at Nazi defence fighters swung the Allied aerial offensive into a round-the-clock attack again, following by only a few hours a day-long assault on military targets in Northern France by strong formations of Allied heavy, medium and light bombers, fighter-bombers and swarms of fighters.

Nine enemy craft were destroyed in the daylight raids by American heavy bombers, and 18 more by their fighter escorts, and by Allied medium and light bombers and their escorts. Allied losses in yesterday's daylight operations were 16 planes, three of them heavies.

The Canadian Lancaster squadrons were included in the bomber command force which ranged over Germany during the night, it was learned.

A German broadcast said "major" formations had attacked during the night, and added that Nazi fighters had offered strong resistance.

The Lancaster squadrons of the Canadian bomber group fought through a big force of German night fighters to do another of the cloud-bombing jobs that set Brunswick so alight it looked like a city "that was not blacked out," as one pilot put it.

"Just Like Daylight"

This flier added, "It was just like daylight. Fires on the ground lit up the clouds and the clouds lit up the sky. You could see the big bombs going off."

"The Germans were using their new fighter flares, several times brighter than the old ones," a Canadian gunner said. "The whole target area was dazzling with them and we could plainly see our Lancasters swarming all over the place."

One of the Canadian Lancasters shot down an antiquated four-engined Focke-Wulf Condor, primarily a transport plane, which the Germans threw up with its fighters in frantic opposition to the fourth big night attack of the month on Germany.

Brunswick, a city of 200,000 people 100 miles west of Berlin was last bombed by the R.A.F. on Sept. 27, 1943, in an attack that was secondary to a smash that night at Hanover. It was also hit by daylight by Americans last Tuesday, along with four other German cities.

Brunswick is the home of airplane works, and plants turning out artillery, motorcycles, tractors and railroad signals.

"We could see what looked like a lot of little stars down there and they seemed to rush up and burst," a pilot said of the German anti-aircraft fire.

Friday's daylight attacks called into action in the neighborhood of 1,400 Allied planes. Last night's twin blows by the heavy bombers and the Mosquitos made the fourth notable United Nations air assault against the Germans within 24 hours.

The Berlin correspondent of the Swedish newspaper Aftonbladet said about 100 Mosquitos made last night's raid on Berlin.

Transport Fliers Real Gypsies Of This War

By HAL BOYLE
Associated Press War Correspondent

An American Airfield in Italy, Jan. 15—(AP)—The real gypsies of this war are the transport fliers who operate aerial jitneys, and flying freightcars in war theatres around the world.

They are an offhand, likeable crew. They wear anything from Brazilian to British battle dress. They fly battered old planes that would give a civilian pilot the Sunday morning shudders and they take them anywhere on a moment's notice. There's been nothing quite like them since the barnstorming days after the First Great War.

They learn to know the airfields of two continents the way they used to know the streets of the old hometown; and the Mediterranean is just a blue puddle they cross so often they almost can call the waves by name.

In nine months of knocking his transport plane around the Mediterranean, La Prade has carried everything from paratroops to whiskey.

The day before I saw him he had taken off from Casablanca, paused overnight in Algiers, then rambled on over to Italy. He thinks no more of a 3,000-mile round trip than a street-car motorman does of going out to the city limits and back.

He has flown some 300,000 miles in 2,000 hours in the air and the toughest grind came during the battle of Salerno.

"With one transport plane operating out of North Africa, we kept three P-38 fighter groups in Sicily supplied for two weeks," he said.

La Prade is proud of that feat. He is even prouder of the great job his transport outfit did earlier in the campaign, ferrying 100,000 gallons of gas—6,000,000 pounds—in three days to one of the Mediterranean islands.

Would Require 500 Men for Two Years

Toronto, Jan. 15 — (CP) —Plans for rehabilitating land in the Ganaraska river area near Port Hope which would employ 500 returned servicemen for two years were described last night by A. H. Richardson of the Ontario government's forestry department.

Richardson told the 110th annual meeting of the Toronto Horticultural Society a survey he made in 1942 indicated returned men could be used for tree planting, wood lot improving and construction of dams and reservoirs.

Methods for Removing Manpower Control Regulations Under Study

By JACK WILLIAMS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Jan. 15 — (CP) — With Canada's compulsory manpower regulations apparently at their peak, extensive study of the methods to be used in removing Canada's manpower control regulations have been undertaken by labor department and National Selective Service officials.

"As far as we can see no new compulsory regulations will be required," Arthur MacNamara, director of National Selective Service, told The Canadian Press today.

While there is no indication that controls are to be immediately slackened, departmental officials are giving considerable attention to developing techniques which will be required when the manpower war needs relax.

Steps Already Taken

Already steps have been taken along this line, particularly in the placing of the great majority of the 2,50 workers laid off at the Nobel, Ont., explosive plant in other jobs.

When the inevitable general slow-down of war production comes, the problem will be accentuated and will have to be handled on a much larger scale.

Selective Service regulations have been largely administered through the chain of government-operated employment offices.

Although a shortage of some 100,000 skilled workers still exists in top priority industries some lay-off have taken place and it is recognized that with the end of the war these offices, instead of being primarily concerned with finding men to fill jobs, will face the task of finding jobs for men.

Complicated Problem.

One of the complicated problems will be the return to their previous occupation of workers who, under compulsory transfer regulations, have been shifted from less-essential occupations to war or other high-priority jobs.

In some cases, for instance, men have been taken from hotels and placed in war idustries. They may, subsequently, have shifted to another war plant.

The compulsory regulations provide that if they are moved under Selective Service orders they are assured their original jobs back when their services are no longer required for war work.

Serious administrative problems are also likely to arise from enforcement of the act passed by parliament in 1942 providing for the reinstatement in civil employment of members of the armed forces.

This act requires employers, in all cases where it is reasonably practical, to re-employ men now serving in the forces under conditions "not less favorable" than would apply if they had remained in their civilian employment during the war.

Reds Pursuing Disorganized Nazis West Of Horyn River

POLAND NEITHER ACCEPTS, REJECTS SOVIET'S OFFER

Calls Upon Britain And United States To Bring Parties Together

CHANCES BRIGHTER

London, Jan. 15 — (AP)—British official quarters and the London press today hailed the Polish government's reply to Russia's boundary offer as brightening the chances for settlement of this knottiest of United Nations' problems.

The Poles, in an official statement early today, neither accepted nor rejected the Soviet Union's offer of the Curzon Line as a possible Russian-Polish frontier, but called upon the United States and Britain to bring them and the Russians together to discuss all outstanding questions.

The British government was represented as more than willing to lend aid as an intermediary, especially to restore Soviet-Polish relations to co-ordinate the Polish underground with the Red Army's drive.

(The U.S. State Department announced in Washington that it had received and was giving attention to the Polish request.)

The diplomatic correspondent of the London Times said that Britain as well as Russia had assured the Poles their borders would be extended westward as compensation for the Soviets' Curzon Line proposal, which would leave Russia with the bulk of the Ukraine and White Russian territory incorporated into the Soviet Union in 1939.

The press generally alluded to the Poles' "wise, statesmanlike" reply, which it said avoided "Polemics" and seized the opportunity offered by the Russians to get down to brass tacks in negotiations.

The Polish statement, a copy of which was given to the Russians before its publication, came after a cabinet session which lasted throughout Friday morning and was followed by another meeting between British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Polish Foreign Minister Tadeusz Romer.

"The Polish government," it said, "are approaching the British and United States governments with a view to securing through their intermediary discussion by the Polish and Soviet governments, with the participation of the British and American governments, of all outstanding questions, settlement of which would lead to friendly and permanent co-operation between Poland and the Soviet Union."

The War Today— Titanic Struggle for Air Mastery Foreseen When Allies Invade

(By DEWITT MacKENZIE)
(Associated Press War Analyst)

The chief Allied lessons emerging from the mighty daylight air battle over central Germany Tuesday are twofold: (1) encouragement, because the air fleet was successful in a most hazardous attack, and (2) warning of future dangers, because of the strength displayed by the enemy.

The magnitude of the attacking force, comprising some 700 great bombers and 500 fighter planes, resulted in the Nazis flinging into the air every available craft to meet the assault. Thus they confirmed that Hitler has a reserve which he has been husbanding against the day of Anglo-American invasion when air power is likely to be the determining factor.

This reserve will come into full action when Allied forces move out from England for the greatest amphibious operation ever attempted. Then we shall witness an aerial conflict such as heretofore has been seen only in the fantasies of imaginative writers and artists. The British military commentator who writes under the nom de guerre of "Veritas" has this to say about probable German activities at this crucial moment as the Allies rush for the kill:

Bomber Force in Reserve

"Apart from Terrorism (against Britain), it is obvious enough that as a great expeditionary force with its vast mass of equipment and supplies begins to converge on the invasion ports, the enemy will go all out to inflict the maximum damage and as far as possible to cripple transport and cut down our war production—by bombardment and possibly by using air-borne suicide squads.

It is known that the Germans have a bomber force in reserve for this purpose, and that, by enforcing a system of drastic priorities, they have been able to raise their fighter strength in north Europe to about 2,000 front-line aircraft.

"In the titanic campaign for air mastery, both sides can be expected to throw in everything they have. While it lasts, the civilian population of England may well experience something in the nature of a state of siege. Whatever they may be called upon to endure, they will be right in the front line, and their contribution to the gaining and sustaining of bridgeheads will be an indispensable one. They have been at 'action stations' for four years: and they are ready."

That's the grim picture which the people of Britain see in the gathering clouds over the French coast. We on this continent will do well if we try to orient ourselves to this Armageddon towards which we are rushing.

TOTAL EVACUATION OF SOFIA ORDERED BY BULGAR GOV'T

Dispatches From Turkey State Centre of City Totally Destroyed

CURFEW IMPOSED

London, Jan. 15—(AP)—The Bulgarian government has ordered immediate total evacuation of Sofia's 300,000 citizens as a result of the heavy Allied air blows against the capital, the German radio announced last night.

Dispatches from Istanbul quoted travelers as saying the centre of the city was almost knocked out by the American-British day and night attacks this week. The German marine headquarters and the hotel Slavianska Besseda, housing most of the German army staff, were reported destroyed.

The German broadcast said most of the evacuees would be accommodated in the provinces and added that other large towns in Bulgaria also were to be evacuated.

(The Bulgarian home radio broadcast an order of the day by interior Minister Docho Christov which threatened the personnel of Sofia's health services with prosecution if they did not report for duty in the capital within 24 hours. The broadcast, recorded by U. S. government monitors, said the city's banks and motor repair shops were also ordered to reopen immediately.)

The death penalty has been ordered for looting and a curfew imposed from 8 p.m. to 8 a.m, the Berlin broadcast said.

The Istanbul advices said the ministries of the interior and finance and part of the foreign ministry were reported destroyed among many other buildings, including the National theatre.

Three Feared Drowned in Lake

Windsor, Jan. 15 — (CP) — Two men and a boy who left in a car for fishing shacks five miles out on the ice of Lake St. Clair were feared drowned today after searching parties failed to locate any trace of them Friday night. The searchers returned to their task at dawn.

Missing are Walter Mineau, 28, his son Gerald, seven, and Fred Parent, 63. All are from nearby Stoney Point.

Provincial Constable H. J. Tinson of Belle River reported to Windsor headquarters that two bad places in the ice had been found near the fishing shacks for which the three set out at five o'clock yesterday afternoon. No trace of the car or the missing persons has been found, he said.

UNBROKEN CHAIN JAPANESE BASES HEAVILY BOMBED

Allied Planes Range From Borneo to Bougainville to Plaster Targets

FIRES, EXPLOSIONS

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Jan. 15. (AP) — Japanese tropical island bases in an almost unbroken chain of 3,000 miles from Borneo to Bougainville were listed today as having felt the wrath of bombs and bullets from far-ranging Allied planes.

From end to end of the long line, an Allied communique told of fires and explosions among such enemy facilities as a big oil refinery, a 7,000-ton cargo ship, planes, airdromes, barges, supply dumps, buildings and bivouacs.

Flying more than 1,000 miles northwest of Australia, heavy bombers set ablaze a cracking plant at the Balikpapan oil refinery on Borneo on the westernmost end of the operational line. On adjacent Celebes, the Wilhelmina wharf area was blasted.

Southeast of there, Liberators started fires in the harbor town of Dili on Portuguese Timor. Northeastward, on Ceram, explosions rocked Amahai airdrome and Geser village.

On nearby Dutch New Guinea, four-engined bombers attacked Keaukwa village.

Alexishafen Attacked.

Closer to the northeastern New Guinea jungle front 75 tons of bombs were dropped on Alexishafen in the Madang sector.

From there, the operational line swung across New Britain, with attack planes tearing into enemy positions at invaded Arawe on the southwest coast; fighters strafing buildings and small craft to the east of Gasmata; and Mitchells and Liberators delivering a one-two punch from Solomons bases against Raboul on the northeast end of the island.

Ground successes were reported on both sides of the narrow waters separating New Britain and New Guinea. At Borgen Bay, New Britain, United States Marines battling up the slopes of a strategic hill have killed 500 Japanese to raise enemy losses there to nearly 3,000 since that sector was invaded last Dec. 26.

On New Guinea, Australians winding up to Huon Peninsula campaign captured Nambariwa and moved their artillery within shelling range of the enemy barge base of Sio.

80 PAY TAXES TWICE

St. Joseph, Mo., Jan. 15—(AP)—Buchanan county has 80 of the most absentminded persons in the world, county collector C. C. Van Ardle believes. He's just completed mailing cheques to that number of property owners who have paid their taxes twice. The total amount involved was $1,567

COUNTER-ATTACKS FAIL TO HALT FRENCH ADVANCE

Push Forward Two Miles More Toward Cassino Despite Fierce Opposition

TAKE ACQUAFONDATA

(By EDWARD KENNEDY)
(A.P. War Correspondent)

Algiers, Jan. 15 (AP) — French troops, staving off five German counter-attacks in fierce fighting on the right wing of the 5th. Army front in Italy, have pushed forward two more miles toward Cassino, it was announced today, capturing the village of Acquafondata and three important heights in its vicinity.

Pressure by the French forces under Gen. Alphonse Juin was applied over a considerable length along their mountain line in the general area northwest of Cassino and greatly strengthened the flank of the Americans driving toward that stronghold 70 miles from Rome.

The advance of the French put the Allies in a commanding position on heights entirely surrounding the village of Viticuso, which now apparently is in Allied control.

The Berlin radio announced yesterday that the Germans had evacuated Acquafondata, which is approximately seven miles northeast of Cassino.

All the heights taken by the French were more than 3,000 feet.

Mount Ferro, the most advanced of the three, is two miles northwest of Acquafondata and directly overlooking the village of Vallrotonda, which is about six miles north and slightly east of Cassino.

They also took Mount Pogano, two miles southwest of Acquafondata and Mount Pile, two miles northwest of Viticuso.

The fierecest of the German counter-blows was made some five miles north of Acquafondata along the San Pietro ridge.

During the first two days of their current campaign in this sector the French have taken 250 prisoners, it was announced.

American forces to the south and west of Casisno have plowed into strong enemy fortifications on Mount Trocchio, last big physical barrier on the road to Cassino, and are engaged in hard fighting. The Germans have covered the slopes of the mountain with motars and machine-gun nests requiring slow, determined effort to root them out.

Scientific Research Probably Reached Peak in Canada During Past Year

Ottawa, Jan. 15 — (CP) — The National Research Council, in a review of its operations, said today that scientific research in Canada probably reached the peak of its contributions to the armed services in 1943.

Canada had "an enviable record" of accomplishment in the application of science to war needs.

Science had served the forces in radio-location instruments and the optical glass for their manufacture; aerial photography and cameras; ballistic developments of importance in gunnery; new and powerful explosives; defence measures in chemical warfare; improvements in the design of nearly every item of clothing for special conditions such as tropical and arctic warfare, including flying and navy needs; nutritions, safe storage and transport of food, camouflage; design and construction of aircraft and tanks, and consideration of thousands of maintenance problems.

New Aviation Fuel

A new aviation fuel, special vaccines, air transport of wounded, and medicine in all its applications under service conditions had been studied.

The council served as the central co-ordinating body directing scientific research in Canada, with research in its own laboratories and in universities and industries used in a combined effort at present directed to the solution of new and urgent problems arising out of the war.

Scientific problems referred to the council and dealing with the forces are studied jointly by officers from defence headquarters and civilian personnel on the council staff, allowing decisions to be taken properly.

Technical Problems Arise

"Highly technical problems have arisen from anti-submarine warfare and minesweeping operations," said the review.

"Problems on the direction of gun fire have been attacked with success. Tests have been made on the armoring properties of various materials and work is in progress on the improvement of anti-aircraft projectiles."

The council had developed secret radio-locator equipment which was placed in the hands of the services.

"Important studies are in progress on the development of superior fighting aircraft and in working out all possible safeguards for the personnel who use them," the report continued.

Seeking substitutes in making parachutes, the council successfully developed a man-carrying 'chute using nylon in the canopy, shroud lines, tapes and sewing thread. Viscose rayon was used as a substitute for silk.

Adopt Standard Cure

"Investigations on modified curing practices for bacon resulted in the adoption of a standard cure by Canadian packers. Research on the drying of pork has yielded an excellent product which retains about 75 per cent of its natural vitamin B1 content after cooking and drying.

"Specifications for the processing and storage of dried eggs prepared for the special products board and the Canadian Army have been accepted by these bodies as well as by the industry and the British ministry of food . . ."

Some 40 active committees now are working under the council's auspices.

Moscow, Jan. 15 —(AP)— Russian troops pursuing a disorganized German army over a large sector west of the Horyn river beyond Sarny have driven within 70 miles of the big communications base of Kovel in pre-war Poland, front dispatches declared today.

To the north, a White Russian army offensive battering into the Pripet Marshes toward Pinsk 115 miles away has smashed the backbone of Nazi defences, the newspaper Red Star said, and Gen. Konstantin Rokossovsky's troops are pouring through the broken enemy line.

The army newspaper said the German High Command vainly ordered a line held between the Sluch and Horyn rivers, but Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's Ukrainian forces battered through and the Germans probably will attempt another stand in the Styr river running 25 to 35 miles west of the Horyn, or between the Styr and Stochod river 20 miles east of Kovel.

Moscow radio said the Nazis did not have time to blow up or mine bridges.

Soviet units that seized Stepan 18 miles southeast of Sarny were driving down behind Rowne (Rovno), 35 miles south, which was reported becoming outflanked.

Heavy Artillery Support.

Rokossovsky's five-day-old offensive hammered into the Pripet Marshes on a 30-mile front beyond fallen Mozyr and Kalinkovichi with extraordinary artillery support after breaking one of the strongest lines the enemy has yet established.

In one seven-mile sector the Germans had built in depth defences of four trenches, 27 artillery points, 37 heavy machine-gun nests and many mortars and mines.

Red Star said Soviet troops had crossed the Ippa river 13 miles west of Kalinkovichi, and ski troops and cavalry dashed after the Germans and raided rear areas. Swift cavalry strokes through the swamps surprised Nazi garrisons, it added, and Nazi soldiers hopped out of windows in their underwear.

Moscow radio said the Germans appeared bewildered by the stunning Red army blows in the Pripet area. Rumanians were dying in great numbers, it said.

The Russians had reached Skrigalov, 20 miles beyond Mozyr and 115 miles from Pinsk, the industrial river city.

40 Places Liberated.

"Tremendous losses" were inflicted on the fleeing Germans, the Russian communique said, as Rokossovsky's Cossacks, ski-shod veterans and light mobile units plunged westward through the marshes.

More than 40 smaller towns and villages, including the rail station of Kotsury, 16 miles west of Kalinkovichi, on the north bank of the Pripet, were liberated in the fourth day of Rokossovsky's advance, the bulletin added and 3,000 Nazis were killed.

South of the marshes, Gen. Nikoli Vatutin's 1st Ukrainian army broadened its front along the Kiev-Warsaw trunk railway and crossed the Horyn river, ten miles west of Sarny. More than thirty towns were captured in this advance, including Stepan, 35 miles north of Nazi-held Rowne (Rovno), important junction on the Kiev-Warsaw railway, supply artery for the German 6th and 8th armies in the Dnieper River Bend, far to the southeast.

Armies Sixty Miles Apart.

The twin offensives were rolling westward about 60 miles apart along the only two rail routes serving east-west traffic through the Pripet marshes.

Vatutin's drive south of Sarny threatens to outflank Rowne from the west, and the Germans stiffened their resistance in the area between Rown and Novograd Volynski, 55 miles to the east. Despite this, the Russians continued to advance, dispatches said, killing 400 Nazis and wrecking 11 tanks and guns.

Wishful Thinking War Over Soon Says Frank Knox

Cleveland, Jan. 15 (AP)—Navy Secretary Frank Knox Friday termed "wishful thinking" any belief that the conflict in Europe will end soon through collapse of the German home front.

Here to address Cleveland's Boy Scout Council tonight, Knox said at a press conference:

"A quick ending of the war is unlikely. Those who wishfully think for an early end of the war are necessarily doing a disservice to the war effort.

"There is no ground for hope that the German home front will collapse. It's a different kind of front from the last war, with the control Himmler and his Gestapo have over the people.

"The German people realize they are surrounded by enemies. They have the French on one side, Czechs and Poles on the other, and the Russians coming in. The prospect of Germans surviving at home if the military breaks down are not very rosy."

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

LAWRENCE LAJOIE, ACTINOLITE, KILLED

Tweed, Jan. 15 (Special)—Employed as member of an extra gang working in the vicinity of Newcastle for the Canadian Pacific Railway, Lawrence Lajoie, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Lajoie, Actinolite, has been instantly killed as the result of being struck on the head with a rail. The youth had just started to work on Monday of this week following being laid off work for a period. Details as to the accident are meagre. The body is being brought home for burial.

WO2 S. LATURNEY RECEIVES COMMISSION

WO2. Stewart Laturney, son-in-law of Mrs. Pat Lee, John Street, graduated as a pilot officer in Montreal, Friday as a aero-engineer, WO1. William Brown, who married Lorraine Smith of this city, also graduated in the same class. The wives of the two graduates attended the ceremony.

Mrs. Lee stated today she had received word her son Flt. Lt. Ted Lee who is also in the areo-engineer branch will remuster for air crew to become a pilot. His twin brother WO2. Frank Lee is in the ferry command at Ottawa.

NO CANNED SALMON UNTIL MIDDLE FEB.

Despite the fact that Dominion ration board officials have advised the Canadian public that canned salmon would be available in grocery stores throughout the country on January 17th., Belleville grocery supply houses reveal there is little possibility of residents in Belleville seeing much of this commodity until considerably later.

With the announcement by ration board officials that canned salmon would be available by January 17th, Belleville grocery store proprietors have been continually calling up wholesale houses in an effort to learn when supplies would be available. To the disappointment of prospective customers wholesale supply men have been forced to report there is little likelihood of canned salmon being available in Belleville before the middle of February. Even then there will be little of the better quality with supplies being mostly of the cheaper grades.

BOMBED THEATRE WAS SCREENING SAME FILM SHOWING HERE

Newspapers today are carrying the story of the sneak raid on a suburban section of London by a line Nazi bomber Friday night. Damage was done in one place only, a movie house where 3,000 persons were seeing the motion picture, "Wintertime", starring Sonja Henie. The unusualness of the story is that the title of the picture was given in the press and the local tie-in with the Canadian Press cable is that the same picture opened today at a local theatre. Local movie-goers, when attending this theatre might think of what happened last night to seven persons in the London audience as they sit in their security safely enjoying the picture.

Spence Clarke Dies After Illness Of Seven Weeks

William Spence Clarke, Trent Road, Belleville, died in the Kingston General Hospital early this Saturday morning after an illness of seven weeks' duration.

The late Mr. Clarke, who was in his 78th. year, was born in Campbellford and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clarke. Fifty years ago he came to reside in Belleville and for a considerable time he was a partner with the late H. K. Smith, the firm being widely known as Smith & Clarke, Photographers. Later he entered business on his own account and except for a short time during which he lived in California, he carried on a successful business in this city. He stood high in his profession as a photographic artist.

To many friends in Belleville and elsewhere the death of W. Spence Clarke has brought much regret. He was well known in the city and district and was highly esteemed. In religion he was a member of Bridge Street United Church and fraternally he was a life member of Moira Lodge No. 11 A.F. & A.M.; Moira Chapter No. 7 R.A.M., and King Baldwin Preceptory No. 6.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Agnes Campbell; two brothers, Mr. Jamieson Clarke, of Buffalo, N.Y., and Mr. James Clarke, Los Angeles, California.

Resting at the Martin Funeral Home, Church Street, until Sunday morning, then at his late residence, Trent Road; the funeral announcement is made in this issue.

Five Directors Elected In Final Ballot

The final election for directors of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce was concluded yesterday afternoon and resulted in the return of the following five candidates, names in alphabetical order:

E. P. Bernstein
O. W. Duff
J. G. Galloway
C. L. Jewell
J. A. McIntosh

There was a large vote recorded and the totals for the various candidates were probably closer than in any preceding year.

Messrs. Russ White, R. J. S. Dewar and George A. DeVuyst performed the duties of counting the ballots and acting as the election committee.

On Thursday next, the directors will meet and elect the president, vice-presidents and other officers for the ensuing year.

War Services Committee Meets

At a meeting in the Y. M. C. A. on Friday night, the Belleville Citizens' War Services Committee appointed a nomination committee to bring in the nominations of the executive for 1944. These nominations will be made at the next meeting of the Committee. Mr. C. B. Morgan and E. Shapiro were appointed auditors at last night's meeting.

During the year 1943 the executive has functioned in an effort to coordinate war service activities. A grant of $200.00 was received from the City Council in order to finance the work of the committee, and other grants from the Catholic Women's League and the Salvage Committee were received for this purpose. During the year a tag day was held, the proceeds of which amounted to $519.53. These funds enabled the committee to carry on for the year.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion requested assistance in providing apples, oranges and cigarettes to troops on their way back through Belleville from overseas. The matter was shelved until such time as the Auxiliary presents a concrete proposal. The subject of meeting returning men from overseas was not brought up for discussion at last night's meeting.

Production of Special Flying Suit Will Feature Deacon Bros. Open House

Preparations are being made at Deacon Brothers Ltd., of this city, to hold an "Open House" program during the afternoon of Monday, January 17th., starting at 4.00 p.m. and to be resumed in the early evening at 7.00 p.m., in their plant on Dundas Street East, Mr. Fred H. Deacon announced today. Several distinguished guests of the three armed services and other civilian dignitaries have been invited to attend.

The workers and management of the Deacon Brothers Ltd., wishing to make a definite demonstration of interest to those who will attend the program, have arranged to manufacture a specially designed flying suit which they will present to a Belleville boy who has won distinction with the R. C. A. F. overseas.

The gift from Deacon Brothers workers will be flown by bomber to England. It was only after considerable contemplation that the individual was selected in the person of Pilot Officer A. G. McAuley, the son of Mrs. James McAuley, 15 Queen Street. "Mike," as he is known to his fellow flyers and friends in the city, at the age of 21, joined the Air Force in September, 1941. He is married to the former Miss Grace Prentice of Marmora. He trained at No. 6 Initial Training School in Toronto, took his Elementary Flying Training at Oshawa and was one of the members of the 1st class to graduate from the R. C. A. F. Service Flying Training School at Centralia. In December, 1942, he went overseas and was posted to the "Goose Squadron" after completing his operational training in England.

New Veteran Airman

Pilot Officer "Mike" McAuley, has named his Halifax bomber "Piccadilly Princess" and has flown it on operational tours over enemy territory upon innumberable occasions. He has piloted the "Piccadilly Princess" across the English Channel to Duesseldorf, Leverkusen, has taken part as one of the famous "Pathfinders" of the R. A. F. on several raids, returning in this capacity to Duesseldorf when over two thousand tons of bombs rained down upon this German industrial city. Originally with the "Goose Squadron", PO. McAuley is now with the famous "Lion Squadron", which has been so often in the news lately. An account in the November 27th, 1943, edition of the London "Daily Dispatch", carried the story of the heavy aerial raid on Frankfurt which took place in 36 degrees below zero weather. Reaching the target "dead on time" which was a little before 3 a.m., the attack was completed within 30 minutes. This youthful Belleville pilot was also a member of one of the Halifaxes which took part in the raid on Berlin which practically ended that city's existence.

Mayor Rollins to Officiate.

His Worship Mayor Harry Rollins will be present at the "Open House", and will complete the final stages of the flying suit's manufacture. Lieut. Cmdr. A. J. Kernohan, R.C.N.V.R., H.M.C.S., "Cataraqui" of Kingston, will say a few words on behalf of the Navy, while Group Captain G. E. Hall, A.F.C., of the Royal Canadian Air Force, Ottawa, will present to each of the Deacon Brothers employees, on behalf of the management, a button which will be enscribed "To Keep Fighting Men Fit". The Mayor will present to the workers of the company the "V" Three Star flag which they have earned by virtue of 98 per cent of the number of workers contributing over 15 per cent of their earnings in war savings stamps, certificates or victory bonds.

Due to the fact that many elements of the flying suit remain on the secret list, it was not possible for Mr. Deacon to give a complete description of the garment. However, he pointed out that the suit will be lined with a special material differing from the usual material used for quantity production. As a further gesture, and to make the flying suit a more personal article, one which will be kept by PO. McAuley all his life, each worker at the Deacon Brothers plant, and those visitors who wish, will autograph the suit in a permanent ink.

Special Flying Suits.

At the present time the workers at Deacon Brothers Ltd., are fulfilling Government contracts for the R.C.A.F., and the Royal Canadian Navy. Electrically heated flying suits which are worn under a specially constructed winter flying suit are being manufactured here as are weather proof protective suit and North Atlantic convoy suits. The company is, also, manufacturing paratroopers' winter jump suits. This fine record of achievement will be displayed during the Monday "Open House" program. A display of work done for the United States Quartermaster Corps, Washington, will be on view during the afternoon and evening. A tent which was used during test made by the U. S. Quartermaster Corps on Mt. McKinley in June, 1942, will be on display at the same time. Photographs which appeared in Life Magazine will be on view with the other articles of apparel which were used on this expedition.

Residents of Belleville are invited by the Deacon Brothers staff to be present at the "Open House" and inspect the plant during the afternoon and evening. The plant will be in operation during the program.

Trenton and District

L.Cpl.C.Sheppard Wounded in Action

Trenton, Jan. 15—Lance-Corporal Chester Lott Sheppard, serving with the 11th Canadian Tank Regient the 11th Canadian Tank Regiment battle of Italy on Dec. 31st, according to official word from Ottawa received by his mother, Mrs. M. Sheppard, 46 Marmora Street. The extent of his injuries were not ascertained.

L.-Cpl. Sheppard a graduate of Lawrence Park High School in Toronto, enlisted first in the Toronto Scottish non-permanent and took his basic training in North Bay. He then transferred to the Tank Corps and spent some time at Camp Borden, Ont. He went overseas in the summer of 1942 and went through the entire battle of Sicily before going on into Italy. He narrowly escaped serious injury last fall when his tank was completely demolished in a battle, but all its occupants escaped uninjured.

Twin Brother Serving

A twin brother of L.-Cpl. Sheppard, Trooper Gordon Roy Sheppard is also serving in Italy, recently transferred to headquarters. He enlisted with the Hastings & Prince Edward Regiment and went overseas two years ago at the age of 18. He spent soe time in England with that regiment but on arrival of his twin they asked that he be transferred to the Tank Corps, where he served as a dispatch rider. He also has been through both the battle of Sicily and that of Italy and to date has been extremely fortunate in not having been injured in any way. Gordon was a graduate of Trenton High School, having lived here with his grandparents Mr. C. W. Lott until recently retired C.P.R. agent, and the late Mrs. Lott.

The boys celebrated their 21st birthday in Italy on January 3rd. Mrs. Sheppard has received several letters from them over the holiday period and when at all possible the boys manage to be together and have told their family here of some interesting times they have spent.

Douglas Carr Takes Officer's Course in Britain

Choosing to attend a British military college to take his officer's training course rather than be returned to Canada, Douglas Carr, 28, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Raymond Carr, of Barrie, formerly of Belleville, has now received his commission as a full lieutenant. Overseas since August, 1941, Lieut. Carr started his officer's training course in July and graduated Friday.

Following graduation leave, during which time he expects to be married to an English girl, he will be posted to his service unit.

Born in Belleville, Lieut. Carr attended local schools and prior to the war was associated with the 34th Battery in Belleville. He went active with his unit and after a year's training in Canada, proceeded overseas. Formerly stationed in Belleville as conductor, his father is now assistant superintendent of the C.N.R. at Barrie. Ont. He is also an ex-alderman of this city.

Officers and Air Cadets at I.T.S. For Gas Drill

Officers and cadets of the local Air Cadet Squadron learned at first hand this week what would be the terrible effects of a poison gas attack when on Thursday evening they went through a demonstration of gas mask drill through facilities provided at No. 5 Initial Training School, where the corps personnel was invited for the evening.

The cadets and their senior officers donned gas masks provided at the air training school and jogged around the grounds to "get the feel of things" and later entered special gas chambers where with removed masks they inhaled rather liberal quantities of tear gas. According to Commanding Officer Dawson Boyd, the cadets and their officers had a real "crying" spell as the effects of the gas were felt by the subjects. Following the gas mask drill the cadets were given their usual drill and instruction period at the air station.

The visit of the air cadets to No. 5 I.T.S. was arranged through their liaison officer Flying Officer Earl Weber, the evening's program being terminated with the serving of refreshments in the new station canteen.

Inaugural Meeting of Board Of Education Held; C. Crosby Named Chairman of the Board

New Chairman Member of Board Three Years and Last Year Chairman of Finance

COMMITTEES NAMED

Carl D. Crosby was named Chairman of the Belleville Board of Education for the year 1944 at the Board's inaugural meeting held in the Collegiate Institute Friday evening. Other conventional Board committee chairmen were also named and W. J. Harrison named Vice-Chairman. Chairman Crosby replaces Mr. Harrison who held the position in 1943.

The new Board Chairman has been a member of the Board of Education for the past three years and in 1943 held the responsible position of Chairman of Finance and also served on the Vocational Committee. Chairman Crosby was twice elected to the Board, first in the fall of 1940 and again at the last municipal election. He was chairman of supplies in 1941 and chairman of Public Schools in 1942. Since the outbreak of war Mr. Crosby set aside an insurance business to accept a responsible post with the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Chairmen Named

The chairmen of the various committees appointed for 1944 were as follows: Public Schools, Dr. G. G. Brearley; Finance, A. L. Hill; Separate School, F. G. Cushing; Collegiate and Vocational Management, B. C. Sisler; Property and Supplies, J. McIntosh; Vocational and Advisory Committee, Messrs. Cushing, Fetterly, Follwell and Chairman Crosby by virtue of office; to the Library Board, L. A Kells and to the Entrance Board, C. I. Frederick.

The Board's induction ceremony was conducted by Rev. Jas. Semple, of Bridge Street United Church, who first commented upon the work of the Board in general and assured the members their choice of chairman had been well guided, as he considered Mr. Crosby a man well versed in the matter of civic principals pertaining to better fields of education. Before Dr. Semple blessed the inaugural gathering he pointed out that the post war period would issue a challenge to boards of education and teachers in general to mould the children of Canada for future citizenship.

Thanks Members For Honor

"It is an honor and privilege to be named chairman of the Belleville Board of Education and I hereby pledge myself to the important post you have elected me to," assured the newly elected chairman in his inaugural speech.

"With the co-operation of the members of the Board I will endeavor to give the best of my ability and knowledge towards the betterment of education in Belleville. However, we must all work together and it is only with the wholehearted efforts of the Board and the teaching staffs of our schools that a better system of education may be realized," added Chairman Crosby, as he referred to the Board as "perhaps the biggest business in Belleville." He also stressed unity in all.

Chairman Crosby congratulated the principals of all local schools and concluded by stating that the future of Canada was wrapped up in the boys and girls of the Dominion, who will be moulded and tutored by the teaching staffs of our schools. "I hope to see the day when every boy and girl in Canada will attain at least their matriculation," urged Mr. Crosby.

Short Business Session

Following the appointment of officers, during which Secretary-Administrator L. A. Kells occupied the chair, a short business session was held during which accounts rendered were ordered paid.

The Public School Nurse's report presented by Mrs. Watt for the month of December showed there was a large degree of absenteeism due to head colds and a mild type of influenza. Since the beginning of the year a total of 1350 pupils have been examined by the school nurse showing a marked improvement in the general health of the students. Regular lectures are given the pupils pertaining to the control of communicable diseases, which have decreased considerably of late. In December 51 first aid treatments were given and 21 home visits made by the nurse. Dr. M. Clarke, school dentist, reported his dental work at King George and Queen Victoria Schools has been completed. Last month he completed 49 permanent fillings, made 25 other examinations, had 12 extractions and 66 general treatments.

The Board was asked to consider financial assistance to the Ontario Teachers and inspectors superannuation Commission. Reports disclosed, that the superannuation fund is running behind financially owing to the increased number of teachers reaching the retiring age throughout the province. The Board promised consideration of the request.

Meets With Principals

In making his Public School report, Inspector-Administrator Kells informed the Board he had met with the four city public school principals to discuss the advisability of the erection of skating rinks on the various public school yards. It was deemed inadvisable owing to the difficulties of proper supervision.

The members present included Messrs. C. Crosby, chairman; W. J. Harrison, A. Hill, Dr. Brearley, F. Cushing, A. E. Geen, E. E. Follwell and J. Mcnltosh. Mr. B. C Sisler was absent on leave attending a military training program in Brockville having obtained leave at the last Board meeting. The financial statement of the Board will be found elsewhere in today's issue.

Financial Statements P. Schools, Collegiate

The financial statements for estimates and expenditures of the Board of Education for the year 1943 were presented before the Board by O. D. Crosby, chairman of finance, on Friday evening. The financial statements below are the estimates for Public Schools and the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School showing itemized receipts, estimates and actual accounts paid.

The reports:

Total Disbursements	$93,500.00	$92,585.79

Explanatory Notes:

Cost of Instructional Supplies — Actual costs were considerably less than amount allowed in estimates because surplus stock in city was distributed from school to school to provide for loss in revenue in discontinuing collection of fees. Present stocks are low.

Cost of Administration — Supervising Principal's salary is charged to instruction.

Auxiliary — Slightly higher on account of increased cost of health supplies.

Accounts Payable — Utilities and telephone bills for December.

There are five sisters and one brother.

Funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this issue.

Late MICHAEL McDERMOTT (Tyendinaga)

The funeral of the late Michael McDermott took place Friday morning from the residence in the 7th concession of Tyendinaga to St. Charles Church for Requiem Mass which was conducted by Rev. R. J. Coyle. Rev. V. Meagher of Stoco was present in the Sanctuary. The funeral was largely attended.

Bearers were Francis Nicholas, Thomas Deady, Ted Bradden, Joseph Bradden, William Hunt and G. Hunt. Interment took place in St. Charles Cemetery.

IT HAD TO HAPPEN SOONER OR LATER

Salisbury, England, Jan. 15.—The men of this town are going to get good meals—even if they have to cook them themselves.

Because most of the women in the town are at war work and the town's restaurants cannot cope with abnormal wartime demands, Salisbury Education Committee has decided to start a cookery school for men. It opens Jan. 20.

There will be 12 two-hour lectures in the course, starting with snacks and working on to soups, stews, pastry, etc.

ON MONDAY, JANUARY 17, Salvage will be collected from the Entire EAST SIDE of the city, including Front Street, all streets EAST of the River, north to the City Limits and South to the Bay of Quinte.
—If raining, Salvage will be collected following day. —
Please have salvage ready at the curb for speedy pick-up and your magazines tied in separate parcel as they are to be given to the boys in the Navy.
The government is in urgent need of old rubber. Salvage all the rubber you don't need N-O-W.
Do not put bottles, glass, tin cans, sheet steel metal or old shoes in your salvage as they are of no value.
C. R. CLAPP, Chairman of Salvage.

We Have It!
When you're a victim of a hold-up
And your payroll disappears,
Or a thug arrives on pay day
And leaves your staff in tears,
Or your messenger is way-laid
And robbed of all the cash,
Or your plate-glass window's broken
And goods swiped in the smash,
Or your property is damaged
In the robber's vicious hurry,
Have you got the kind of policy
So you will not need to worry?

A Weekly Column Devoted to the Activities of the Members of the Armed Services at Home and Abroad

Twenty pairs of skis, parkees and other skiing equipment arrived at the Armouries for the winter training of the officers and members of the Argyll Light Infantry. "All we need now is sufficient snow and skiing manoeuvres will commence immediately. There are ideal skiing facilities in and around Belleville and now we have adequate equipment at our disposal all that is needed are the elements of winter weather," reported Lieut.-Col. B. C. Donnan, Commanding Officer of the Argylls.

Ski training for Canadian army troops is considered basically necessary as part of the soldiers' training in modern warfare. Two years ago Lieut.-Col. Donnan introduced ski-troop training into the 2nd Battalion of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment (R) with success. As soon as snow is available ski experts will take company squadrons in rotation in ski practice for military training.

Bayonet instruction, under Sergt.-Major "Dick" Wale, of M. D. 3 at Kingston, was introduced to the N.C.O.'s of the Argyll Battalion this week. Sergt.-Major Wale will conduct classes Tuesdays and Thursdays for the benefit of the N.C.O.'s until such time as they are qualified in bayonet drill and then they in turn will instruct other lower ranks. The senior N.C.O.'s find bayonet fighting intensely interesting, as it is an advanced phase of the reserve army training.

Mixed Up.

It was guest night in the mess, and the Irish colonel was telling an exciting story of an encounter with a wounded elephant which charged at him and bore him to the ground.

At the critical moment an orderly entered to say the colonel was wanted on the telephone.

He was absent for some minutes and on his return had forgotten which of his favorite stories he had been telling.

"What happened, colonel?" asked one of the guests. "You were telling us of your dangerous situation."

"Oh, I kissed her," said the colonel airily. "She simply couldn't resist me, and we dined together that evening. Her husband never knew."

The Argyll sports committee was named Tuesday night with Lieut. Taylor Franklin chief sports officer for the year. Others on the sports committee include Sergt. Jack Murphy, Cpl. C. LaRue, L/Cpl. Archer and Tprs. D. R. Thompson and J. Darlington. Already an extensive sports program for the entire personnel has been launched with Jan. 25th being set aside as the first night when a gala sport agenda will be presented for the benefit of all ranks. ("To miss this show will be folly, boys.")

Purely Personal . . .

Lieut. "Bert" Life, former member of the Argyll Light Infantry and now stationed at Camp Borden, was a visitor at the Armouries while home on furlough this week. Lieut. Life obtained his commission with the Argylls and later went active.

Sergt. "Rosy" Turner, of the R. C. Signals, also renewed old acquaintances in the Mess Tuesday night. "Rosy," former signal instructor here, is now engaged in the same capacity for the 2nd Battalion H. & P. E. and stationed at Frankford. "Gettin' nearer home, 'Rosy'."

Cpl Helen Knopp, who has been connected with the local branch of the C.W.A.C. at their recruiting office on Bridge St., married a schoolday sweetheart last weekend. The lucky fellow is Sergt. Stan Tysowski, R.C.O.C., stationed at Kingston. Incidentally Mrs. Tysowski was transferred to the C.W.A.C. recruiting station in Cornwall today, leaving Cpl. Lois Pilkington in charge of the local "WAK" office.

While on the subject civilian lassies could do worse than review the local lassies' recruiting centre whose motto is—"The Proudest Girl in Canada," when in a C.W.A.C. uniform.

Owing to increased demands for the use of the Belleville Armouries that is now heated throughout by a central heating plant, it has been found expedient by Lieut.-Col. B. C. Donnan, commanding officer, to nominate a program committee in whose hands the use of the building will be in charge. The committee will consist of Lieut.-Col. Donnan as general chairman, Sergt.-Major Walter Harden, secretary, Lieut. Jack Andrews of the 34th Battery and Lieut. Mary Vose Smith of the C.W.S.F. All enquiries pertaining to the use of the Armouries must be filed through the hands of the secretary.

* * *

It was with regret Lieut.-Col. B. C. Donnan announced the resignation of Lieut. R. E. Neal from the strength of the Argyll Light Infantry this week. The popular Ross found his business too pressing for continuance in reserve army training. "He was one of our good junior officers and we all regret Ross' having to leave us," remarked his commanding officer.

* * *

Judging from the keenness of all ranks the boys seem to appreciate the new syllabus introduced for reserve army training since the new year. The new program features new phases of advanced army training which is more interesting and naturally tends to create more attention of the men of all ranks.

* * *

Seems Sergt. Lester Ellway started something when he proposed "setting 'em up" for a 24-hand at cribbage in the Sergeants' Mess. Captain Fred Douglas invaded the Mess cribbage scramble the other night and counted a 24, which naturally he paid for. The N.C.O.'s were giving "Cap", the rib when it bounced back as Sergt. Nixon held the same hand on the next deal. Yep, it was "Nick's" turn. Will the boys never learn?

Major — What are you scratching your head for, Rastus?

Rastus — I got 'rithmetic bugs in mah haid, sah.

Major — What are arithmetic bugs?

Rastus — Dey's cooties.

Major — But why do you call them arithmetic bugs?

Rastus — 'Cause dey add to mah misery, dey subtract from mah pleasure, dey divide mah attention and dey multiplies like de dickens.

C.W.S.F. News.

Major C. Malhoney, C.O. of the C.W.S.F., resigned her command and position on Wednesday evening. Miss Malhoney is connected with the Ontario School for the Deaf in Belleville and finds her civilian duties are too strenuous to devote the necessary time to reserve army training. Naturally it was with regret her associates learned of Miss Malhoney's decision. The resignation leaves Captain Marion Harden in charge as commanding officer of the local detachment of the C.W.S.F.

Just to show their versatility the officers and members of the C.W.S.F. called off training Wednesday night and engaged in a full evening of recreation and sports. Basketball, softball and other indoor recreation were enjoyed for the entire evening. This program will be repeated once a month to divert somewhat from military training. Civilian girls wishing to assist in the war effort can find training, as well as recreation by joining the C.W.S.F.—recruiting station at the Armouries.

* * *

After completing a grand gesture in sending cigarettes and other personal favors to the boys overseas at Christmas, the C.W.S.F. have adopted an entire troop of Canadian soldiers overseas, and this is where the general public comes into the picture.

The girls of the C.W.S.F. in Belleville have adopted Troop "H" of the 54th Lt. A.A. Battery, 2nd. Lt. A.A. Regiment, Canadian Army in Italy. It is fitting the local girls should adopt Troop "H" for little less reason than a Belleville boy is in the troop. He is Lieut. "Beau." Smith, husband of Lieut. Mary Vose Smith of the C.W.S.F.

Where the civilian public appear in the picture of adoption is in the provision of small magazines, such as Readers' Digest, etc. The lassies of the C.W.S.F. will send cigarettes, chocolates, magazines and other needed articles to their adopted troop and in the event the general public wish to assist, phone Captain Marion Harden at 155 or 2279M.

Promotions posted on Part Two Orders on the Argyll bulletin board this week included the following: A/Cpl. Stan Lessels to A/Sergeant, L/Cpl. F. Archer and Tprs. W. T. Page and B. R. Sills to A/Cpls. Which reminds one emphasis should be placed on the sports syllabus, which the members of all ranks are taking a marked interest in fortnightly.

Expression of sympathy to Lieut. Cecil Cherry of the 34th Battery, R.C.A., in the loss of his wife, is given by his fellow officers and enlisted men of his unit. Mrs. Cherry died Thursday morning following a lengthy illness, leaving four sons, two in the armed services, Pte. Gerald Cherry, overseas, and Leading Seaman Kenneth, R.C.N., Halifax.

* * *

Completely satisfactory progress in the officers' and N.C.O.'s course being given members of the 34th Battery is being shown according to Captain Steve Sword, commanding officer of the unit. Approximately 12 men are taking the course with lectures to be increased in the near future in preparation for the examinations which will be started during the latter part of March. Three new recruits, including one student from Albert College, have been added to the strength of the unit since the Christmas holidays, it was stated by the C.O.

U.S. Justice Dept. Probes Charges

Washington, Jan. 14—(AP)—C. I. O. leaders reserved immediate comment today on a United States justice department inquiry into charges their political action committee had violated criminal provision of the Smith-Connally anti-strike law through a fund-raising campaign.

Rep. Howard W. Smith (Dem., Va.), co-author of the anti-strike law put through congress last year, made the charges, asserting also the political action committee was seeking "to influence, if not control, the 1944 elections."

Smith acted on the basis of an article by Philip Murray, (C. I. O. President, in the February issue of the American magazine, and in his letter to the justice department quoted Murray as saying in that article that "the various C. I. O. unions have made an initial contribution of $700,000" to accomplish political aims this year.

This was described by the congressmen as "a defiant confession of the violation of the (anti-strike) statute," which contains a clause making it unlawful "for any labor organization to make a contribution in connection with any election at which presidential and vice presidential electors," or members of congress are to be voted upon.

Pulpwood Production Shows Improvement

Washington, Jan. 14 — (AP) — Pulpwood experts of the War Production Board who have been crying the shortage blues for months, reported happily esterday that United States pulpwood production took an unexpected spurt in the last six months of 1943 to make the outlook for adequate 1944 production much brighter.

November estimates had put the 1943 pulpwood cut at 11,700,000 cords but production repors today caused upward revisions, said James L. Madden, W.P.B. pulpwood director. It now appears that U.S. pulpwood cutters exceeded the 13,000,000-cord mark for 1943.

The W.P.B. pulp division warned, however, that adverse weather and other factors could quickly precipitate another pulpwood shortage crisis in the south, where part-time pulp cutters are swelling present totals.

As an indication of the improved outlook, the November report of the combined raw materials board estimated U.S. 1944 pulpwood production at 9,949,000 cords, whereas today the W.P.B. said the goal for 1944 production, based on current indices, is 14,000,000 cords.

While saying that the supply situation had eased, and that the outlook for 1944 production is better, W.P.B. officials said the pulp and paper situation remains serious, due to the increased military demands for paper and paperboard containers.

SISTER OF EX-PREMIER HEPBURN SUES CITY OF HALIFAX FOR DAMAGES

Halifax, Jan. 14. (CP)—Mrs. Irene Sinclair, sister of former Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario, has filed a damage suit against the City of Halifax for injuries suffered Christmas eve. She fell on the icy sidewalk while returning from her duties as a Red Cross transport driver, and was taken to hospital with a broken leg.

London — (CP) — Fourteen thousand pairs of trousers have been issued to war-time British postwomen.

West Huntingdon

Young Peoples' Union Holds Monthly Meeting

West Huntingdon — The Young People's Union met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Sills on Friday evening with Miss Della McMaster in charge, Mr. Geo. Ashley and Mr. Dave Fargey arranging the program. Mr. Don Runnals read the Scripture lesson and Miss Joan McCurdy offered a reading. Miss Muriel Thompson and Mr. Chester Sills gave musical numbers. Mr. Kenneth Stewart was in charge of the topic "1943 and 1944" and with him were associated Mrs. Sills, Miss Jane Gay and Mrs. E. J. Chard. There was an extra large attendance and the young people are to be congratulated for the fine programs they are enjoying each meeting.

District L.O.L. Meeting.

District Lodge L.O.L. Centre Hastings held its annual meeting on Tuesday afternoon in the lodge room of L.O.L. No. 300 West Huntingdon. District Master Sam Twiddy presided over the gathering. Encouraging reports were received from the lodges of the district. Following the business of the day Mr. John Geen conducted the election of officers for 1944 and those who will give guidance to the district this year are:

District Master—Mr. Harold McGee

Cannifton

Cannifton — The weekly community card parties have begun after the recent festive season.

Christmas cards and best wishes were received from Eastern and Western Canada, also from Italy and England, from the boys with most grateful thanks for boxes and cigarettes sent in the past year.

There were six tables of euchre playing. The winners were Men: Mr. Urch, Mr. Eves, Mrs. Dafoe; Ladies: Mrs. Sharpe, Mrs. Billings Steel, Mrs. Spencer; Lone hands, donated by Mrs. Cole, was won by Mr. P. Lloyd; Draw, donated by Mrs. Holgate, was won by Herb Urch.

Congratulations to Pte. and Mrs. Bradley on the arrival of a baby boy.

Miss Alice Urch has returned home after spending a week with her brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. E. Urch, Peterborough.

Mrs. P. Grass, Frankford, was a visitor at her son's home here recently.

Mrs. Charles Parm entertained ladies from Corbyville and Cannifton recently. During the afternoon contests were played the winners being Mrs. Sharpe, Mrs. Lywood, Mrs. Thomas. The hostess served a delicious lunch.

SEATING PLAN REARRANGED

Toronto, Jan. 14 —(CP)—Premier George Drew said yesterday the 21st Session of the Ontario Legislature will see members revert to the rectangular seating plan used prior to 1930, when a semi-circular arrangement of desks was instituted. Reason for the change is that four political parties—Progressive Conservative, C.C.F., Liberal and Labor-Progressive—are represented in the House.

THINKS S. S. FAIR

Winnipeg, Jan. 14 —(CP)— Geo. Thiem, Agricultural Editor of the Chicago Daily News said in an interview here yesterday that Canada's system of selective service was a "fair and sound" one. Visiting in Winnipeg to prepare a series of articles for his paper on price and wage control in Canada, Mr. Thiem said "it was fair system and I don't see why civilians as well as soldiers and sailors shouldn't be used to meet the needs of the country."

Britain's Airfields

A few days ago a news story told of the great extent of land used for airfields by the British Royal Air Force and the United States Army Air Force. 250,000 acres have been used for this purpose in Britain.

This is an evidence of the war effort which the people of Britain have reached. These airfields and runways are of vast importance, especially when the main land thrust is to be made against Germany and Nazi-occupied Europe.

Several years ago Britain had no such a vast extent of fields for defence and offensive action. In the early days of the war Britain had a small air force but she built up her strength so that in September 1940 she was able through the Royal Air Force to hurl back the German Luftwaffe defeated. The steady development of airplanes and the growth of output of aviation plants have put at the disposal of the British defence forces great fleets of planes and have made necessary these great airfields covering a quarter of a million acres.

The development of the training of airmen, the production of planes and the laying out of adequate airfields for the British and American planes form one of the amazing stories of Allied enterprise and engineering.

Though so much good land has been taken for airfields, Britain has expanded agricultural production to a great degree.

The people of the "tight little isle" of Britain have many great achievements to their honor in their long and glorious history and among them are the growth and development of the armed might of the country, the production of field and factory and the great leadership and inspiration she has given the United Nations.

Winter Car Travel

Motorists in this section have not had to worry about snow drifts, but on rural roads there has been the problem of a thin coating of ice to cope with. Ice on the roadways in Belleville has lingered for two weeks or more, but it stays because the temperature, while not very cold, is low enough to prevent melting to any degree. This condition is a novel one for the car-driver and also the pedestrian.

Motorists in the country and city have to drive cautiously for fear of skidding, which is one of the dangers that accompanies winter. In the event of rain or sleet this possibility increases.

The New York Times quotes figures for traffic accidents last winter, in the snow belt states, showing that they increased 24 per cent above the summer total. "In studies made of winter accidents on city streets, it has been found that only one half of one per cent occurred on dry pavements and six per cent on wet pavements, but thirty per cent on pavements covered with ice or snow. On rural roads the figures were one per cent, eighteen per cent and forty per cent respectively. In one state in a single winter month last year 69 per cent of all accidents occurred on snow or ice covered highways. These hazards are serious enough in daylight, but are much aggravated by darkness."

These facts impress the need of every precaution for driver and pedestrian.

June 1940 Recalled

A period of the war is recalled in a speech recently made by Mr. Henry Morgenthau, Secretary of the United States Treasury, which seems far away from today when the Allied Nations stand on the offensive everywhere against the enemy. It was the spring of 1940 and after the evacuation of the British and Allies from Dunkirk in the greatest mass evacuation in history. Everyone can recall something of those days when France fell and Prime Minister Churchill made his memorable speech which showed the indomitable character of the British spirit:

> "We shall not flag nor fail. We shall go on to the end. We shall fight in France, we shall fight on the seas and oceans, we shall fight with growing confidence and growing strength in the air. We shall defend our Island, whatever the cost may be; we shall fight on the beaches, we shall fight on the landing grounds, we shall fight in the fields and in the streets, we shall fight in the hills. We shall never surrender."

The British fought on with an example of courage unequalled in history in the hope and confidence in the fine words of Mr. Churchill, "we are sure that in the end all will be well."

Mr. Morgenthau's reference to those days of June 1940 is in these words:

> "Winston Churchill had made it clear that equipment losses at Dunkirk had been staggering. Britain needed everything—artillery, ammuntion, aircraft and, most of all rifles. Every able-bodied man in England had to be prepared to fight off invasion, and not much of anything else, and you can't stop Nazis with sticks and stones.
>
> "The British needed help. Somehow, by some means, we had to get them some rifles, and enough other equipment to prepare them for the invasion which seemed imminent—and which, if it had been imminent, almost certainly would have been successful.
>
> "General Marshall and a group from the War and Navy departments came several times to my office to discuss what might be done. After 20 years of peace we had very little equipment of any sort to use in fighting a war. But we felt that if we dug deeply enough we could find some obsolete material, and perhaps some equipment in private hands, that would help out. Before long we found quite a collection of usable material. For example, we found 500 old 75-millimeter guns, and 400 Thompson sub-machine guns left over from the last war. The Navy turned up 5,000 obsolete 30-pound bombs and the Army found 560 100-pounders. Some place we found 80 out-of-date torpedoes, and someone came up with 500 38-calibre revolvers which antedated even the First World War.
> "To arm the foot soldiers and the home guard, we managed to dig up nearly a half million rifles. We might have added to this several thousand more old Springfield 30-30's, but there was no ammunition to be found anywhere in the world, and the guns were no good without bullets."

That day is now far distant. In the interim great forces have been developed by the United Nations, greater than were thought possible and these are at work for victory. The outlook can best be expressed in the confident message of Mr. Churchill in his broadcast to the nation on June 17, 1940, "in the end all will be well."

Shaw Writing Political Play

(Manchester Guardian)

Besides finishing a new political handbook, Bernard Shaw is said to be at work on a new political play, sequel to "Geneva." Such activity in a writer who has reached the age of 87 is rare. Verdi when he was 80 produced "Falstaff," in many ways the richest, ripest of his operas and then lived on, still composing, until he was 88. Among painters Michelangelo continued active right up to his death at 89, and Titian, who died of the plague at 99, was painting masterpieces in his last decade. Among the great actors, Macklin was on the boards at the age of 92 and lived to be 100.

A Crowing Playwright

(Bennett Cerf in Saturday Review of Literature)

George S. Kaufman's chicken farm now numbers more than 1,300 inhabitants. The other morning the playwright sauntered out for an inspection tour. All 1,300 chicks descended upon him at once. "I think these chickens expect me to say a few words," said George, and clearing his throat he proclaimed loudly "Chickens of the world, unite! You have nothing to lose but your eggs." At this point a Connecticut bantam pecked him on the left ankle.

GAMES ROOM LAUNDRY

It used to be our games room, but the war has made a change,
And where we all made merry once the atmosphere is strange;
Since mother does the washing now, and
I'm assistant, there
To dry, up on the chandelier's the other shirt I wear.

Upon the old victrola now are mother's "pretties" spread:
That moose I got in Canada wears shorts upon his head.
Time was a mighty elk I shot, and now
on every tine,
As though he'd gored a sewing bag, are socks of mine.

I know we serve a noble cause, and yet,
somehow, I wish
She wouldn't string her hosiery along that mounted fish.
He was a finny monster once, the glory of the deep,
To see him so employed today would make an angler weep.

From east to west a line is strung. No more we meet to dance.
Where once the air was fragrant with the dainty scents of France
Today there is a soapy smell; and by that treasured sword
Which once was waved at Gettysburg
there stands the scrubbing board.

Canadian Scene A Century Ago

By J. L. G.

One more river to cross . . often meant great hardship at the end of a tiring journey. Settlers who travelled the covered-wagon way into and through Canada complained bitterly of the lack of bridges over the streams. Sometimes there were ferries — big flat-bottomed boats urged on by horse power, the horse keeping the paddle-wheel moving by walking on a tread-mill. More frequently there was a rope and capstan—or simply a rope pulled tight over the river between two trees. A pole with roller on the end was put on the boat's prow and the force of the current caused the roller to revolve, which took the boat over. When the rope broke there were long, wearisome delays . . .often when all food supplies had been used up and there were no places to obtain estables until the other side of the stream was reached.

• •

Many of Canada's first citizens came from homes of comparative comfort overseas to a wilderness of seclusion and peril. A strong will and iron nerves were needed even before the settlers landed on their new home-land, for conditions on board ship were appalling. Accommodation was unsanitary and crowded on the sailing vessels. Moreover, passengers had to bring along their own food for the voyage, which lasted for weeks.

• •

Arrived in the New World there arose the problem of how to make the best use of money carefully brought across the ocean. Land was priced according to the quality of the timber growing on it. $3. an acre denoted an inferior type of wood. $12 an acre meant that the forest furnished the best class of timber. Hardly had necessary sums been handed out for terrain when came the expense of clearing off the trees. Records tell that this came to approximately $25. an acre. Then there was the job of removing the stones and stumps, of putting up fences, of providing drainage and buildings. One change followed another until civilization with all its blessings obliterated the last vestige of primitive living. Schools multiplied and the arts and sciences were cultivated.

• •

Because of rationing we're training ourselves to be miserly with our tea. 'Way back in pioneer days, house-wives were even more stingy with what went into the tea-caddy. Chances were, it was empty most of the time, since tea, the real thing —cost $1. and more a pound. A common substitute was bread crumbs, browned almost to the burning point, then brewed and sweetened with maple sugar. Served steaming hot, the drink was fairly refreshing.

• •

Usually when the head of the family went to town for supplies he took his axe or draw-knife along. It might happen that there was no road leading to his destination, in which case a trail would have to be blazed. This was accomplished by slashing the trees of the forest route. The white gashes showed up nicely on the return trip and prevented the traveller from getting lost. Women, too, braved the woods. They became as proficient at trail-blazing as their better halves and ventured miles alone through the dense thickets for the pleasure of visiting a neighbour.

• •

The early settlers took everything with a pinch of salt . . . or almost everything because there were few other condiments or preservations. Salt was brought home by the barrel, at the good round sum of $2. to $2.50. Besides going on the table, salt was used to keep game, other meat and fish for winter eating.

C. P.'s Time-Harried Ontario Filing Editor Scissors 130,000 Words Daily to 25,000 For 23 Daily Papers

By STEPHEN FORD

For the benefit of many readers who may wonder how the news is dispatched to the newspapers, the article below gives an insight into the work. It describes the work day of the wire filing editor in The Canadian Press office in Toronto. This first appeared in December issue of Canadian Printer and Publisher.

The clatter of an alarm clock on a tin plate starts off one of Canada's screwiest working days at 4.56 a.m. The subject tumbles out of bed and into his clothes, washes, snatches the morning paper from the doorstep and is breakfasting at 5.26.

The breakfast is cereal, toast, boiled egg and coffee—whipped up by the subject himself from a post-time at 5.16 sharp. It is finished and at 5.36 the subject and the morning paper disappear with a whoosh and a muffled slam of the front door.

The next scene opens at 6.02 a.m. in a clatter of teletypes and a clutter of news copy on the eleventh floor of one of Toronto's skyscrapers.

The early-riser dons an eyeshade, lights a cigarette and begins his job of telling one-third of Canada's evening newspapers what the world is doing. Through the broad windows across the desk, the sleepy dawn struggles up for another day.

This is the Ontario filing editor settling down to his day's work for The Canadian Press. A filing editor is the news-agency equivalent of a newspaper's telegraph editor. The average filing editor selects and cuts twice as much news copy as the telegraph editor: but he doesn't write headings on it as the telegraph editor does.

What strikes the investigator of this screwiest working day is that the Ontario filing editor is by no standard an average among the species. No other editor in Canada scissors the full day's wire report for so many papers, does so much slicing or needs such knowledge of transmission technicalities.

Clocked to the minute in every move, he chooses the news for 23 Ontario dailies between Cornwall and Sarnia, between Chatham and Timmins. He feeds a teletype devouring a word a second. He sweats to catch thirty deadlines within five hours each day. He is a time-harried historian of the hour, a multiple mind-reader and an embittered foe of verbosity—all rolled into one.

In ten years, one of every three Ontario filing editors has been bald-headed, which is not surprising; not one has gone mad, which is. Most amazing is how this fabulous task of journalistic juggling has remained a secret from newspapermen in Canada, even from those whose teletypes click out the product of the Ontario filing editor's snapping scissors and plying pencil.

The secret came out the other day. An Ontario newspaper asked to see the routine instructions for the wire to make a change in its requirements. By return mail came an almost-book-length treatise on what Ontario's provincial dailies want, when they want it and how to make sure they get it on time. The pamphlet disclosed that just one man did the job.

This one man—back of the anonymity of news-agency editors and daily paper deskmen—turns out to be "Ab" Fulford, the 38-year-old Ottawan who covered the Royal Visit from coast to coast for The Canadian Press in 1939. News-readers know him for his years of work on the Dionne quintuplet story. A close friend of the late Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, Fulford represented the newspapers of Canada as pallbearer at his recent funeral.

Fulford went back to wire-filing when The CP's young, technically-trained editors trooped into the services. A wizard at detail, he was a main cog in the complicated news-machine which collected the vote in the 1942 Dominion plebiscite. One reason he wants the war to end is so that Flying Officer Jack Calder can come back to take over his job. Calder, an R.C.A.F. bomber navigator, is recovering after a crackup in Britain.

What an Ontario editor thinks about, jotted down from his job memo: Soo wants steel and wolves in full . . . Kingston gets all drama and Welsh . . . Orange celebrations and cheese in full for Woodstock . . . cheese for Belleville . . . obits for Galt . . . odd stories for Peterborough . . . Brantford likes postwar plans but hates misplaced "todays" . . . items with morgue-picture possibilities for Welland . . . rubber for Sarnia.

Fulford shows no sign of stress, though he is within a few hairs of the bald-heads who can say they used to do the job. Usually they don't say so until they get out of Toronto, for fear some staff shift may put them back on the Ontario desk with its pre-dawn breakfast and distraction-deadlines.

Most of the graduates of the desk are, in fact, away from Toronto. Foster Barclay, for instance, has been overseas since the eve-opening night of the great "fire-blitz" in December, 1940. For four years Barclay, who started as a newspaperman in Ottawa 15 years ago, filed the Ontario wire. Three times he was ticketed for a reporting job only to be disappointed when no one could be found to take over. Finally The CP, a bit conscience-stricken, shipped him off to its London Bureau and now he's a war correspondent with the Canadians in Italy.

Correspondents in London still tell of Barclay's arrival in blacked-out Euston station. Bombs were thudding in the financial district nearby and fires were wildly ablaze. Barclay walked out of the station into the brilliant glare of the orange sky, set down his bags, blinked and said:

"Boy, what a town! But what a relief after those Ontario circuit deadlines!"

Authority for the story is D. E. Burritt, chief of CP's London bureau until named New York Superintendent recently. It may not be accurate because Burritt is a bit of a joker and himself an Ontario wire alumnus. Home on furlough after three years in London, he walked into the Toronto office of The Canadian Press and recognized only a few of the war-wrecked staff. Old-timers greeted him, newcomers asked what they could do for him. Sober-faced, he looked over at the linoleum-topped news desk and said:

"What I want to do more than anything else in the world is file that Ontario wire again for a day."

Burritt was kidding but before he went back to England he did the job for a day—probably so he might tell Barclay about it some evening in a Fleet Street pub.

At 6.30 a.m. the teletypes start to chatter at the 23 points on the Ontario wire: in most cases they are turned on by electric clocks before the newspaper offices open.

First over the wire come bulletins with word of what happened overnight. These tip editors to new developments since the morning papers—then they are chalked up as window-bulletins.

Then comes the News Budget, listing the day's main stories so the editor may visualize the make-up he will select. Then the Pickup Note tells editors what stories to scalp from morning papers so that only fresh news need go on the teletype.

The news report on the Ontario wire is sectionalized like a symphony. Any departure from the score brings discord—among newspaper editors who have pages to send away, linotype operators to keep busy, deadlines of their own to meet. Its timetable includes everything except the editor's hurried 9 a.m. shave (because there was no time before breakfast) and whether his lunchtime sandwich will be cheese or ham. Here it is:

6.30—Bulletins, News Budget, Pickup Note.
6.35—Briefs (10) from the Night Report.
6.45—Early sport.
7.15—Early front page news (five top stories).
7.45—Cleanup—Briefs (16) from the Night Report.
8.00—Sport cleanup.
8.20—Day lead parliament.
8.45—Flashes of Life, Ontario Spotlight.
9.00—Front page news cleanup (remaining top stories).
By 900 morning-paper pick-ups should be cleaned up.
10.00—The War Today.
10.15—General news.
By 11.00 filing editor should be abreast of incoming circuits.
By 1.00 the wire should be running clear.
1.15—Advance copy for next day as possible.
3.00—Close.

With one on the clock and both shuffling copy, the Ontario editor cuts down 60,000 or 80,000 words of daytime spot news to 20,000. He fits into the fast-moving report about 5,000 words of night-wire matter sifted from 50,000 words of night copy.

When the wire closes with a teletyped "Good afternoon," he has condensed as many words as make a fair-length novel to approximately three solid pages of newspaper copy. By then he is ready to go home.

Hard Training.

CP men who leave the Ontario wire job to work on individual newspapers are like soldiers who say that commando training is tougher than the real thing.

After a spell trying to outguess more than a score of Ontario editors and a year at New York as a cable editor, Charles Nichols joined the Winnipeg Tribune as telegraph editor. He says: "I always thought those Rube Goldberg inventions of the mad professor were pure imagination until I got tangled into the transmitter-tape on the Ontario wire. Anyone who finds trouble concentrating should have a spell of that—it teaches you to concentrate simultaneously on anywhere from a dozen things upward. The Ontario wire editor would lapse into solitude depression if he had to concentrate on one thing at a time."

The Ontario wire is really five separate circuits, each operated by a separate transmitter through which flows half-inch paper tape perforated like a player-piano roll to send out impulses to teletypes along the line. By the end of the day almost half-a-mile of tape has purred through the transmitters and overflows from high-piled wastebaskets.

Fulford says he likes the job—but he says it with a curious twinkle in his eye as if expecting to hear a new man will take over next morning.

"I find it excellent for the figure," says Ab, who was beginning to billow at the middle before he took over the job a year ago and now is a trim 180 pounds. "But maybe that's because I get home early now and can bend my back among the radishes and carrots in my victory garden. In the old days the sunset used to beat me home."

NUGGETS OF KNOWLEDGE

"Pia mater" is the name of the delicate membrane and tissue connecting the brain and the spinal cord. Literally it means "tender mother," being derived from Latin "pia," feminine of "pius," tender or kind, and "mater," mother.

Under date of June 2, 1825, President John Quincy Adams made the following entry in his now famous diary:

"McCorkle came for a subscription to a Bible of parallel texts. I told him that I would take a copy, but it had been a uniform practice of the Presidents of the United States not to make subscriptions."

Our sailors call overalls or fatigue clothes "dungarees." A dungaree suit in the navy usually consists of a jumper and trousers made of blue denim drill. The name is of Anglo-Indian origin and was borrowed from the British sailors. "Dungri," the native word, is derived from the name of a suburb of Bombay where a coarse kind of blue cotton cloth was first manufactured. Such cloth is much used for tents and sails as well as for clothing among the poor classes in India.

Mrs. N. Hall Humpherson, of Toronto Canada, takes exception to the "You'd Be Surprised article on "The Cat and Mouse Act." She writes that she was a victim of that act and that she was Prisoners' Secretary of the W.S.P.U., which was the militant organization for which the act was passed by Parliament. "I have no recollection of any prisoner serving a complete sentence," she says. "One of our boasts was that we defeated it in every way."

Mrs. Humpherson was Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst's secretary when she died in 1928 and has never heard anything about a plaque to Mrs. Pankhurst in Westminster Abbey. There is a statue of her in Westminster Gardens (just near the House of Lords), and there is a portrait of her in The National Portrait Gallery (unique in the fact that it was hung during her lifetime) painted by Miss Brackenbury. "The term 'suffragette' was coined to distinguish the militants from the non-militants, and you are probably right in saying it was coined by The Daily Mail."

"Don't meddle with Camarina," was a proverb among the Romans. It means let well enough alone, don't create a worse evil by removing a lesser. Camarina was a lake in Sicily. Because it was a source of malaria, the inhabitants of a near-by city consulted an oracle about draining the lake. Appollo replied, "Don't meddle with Camarina." Nevertheless, the people drained the lake, and shortly thereafter an enemy army marched over the lake bed and plundered the city.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. J. Hollas, of Toronto, wish to announce the engagement of their daughter, Lillian to Douglas Browning, Signalman, R.C.N.V.R., son of Mrs. J. Browning and the late John Browning, of this city. The wedding will take place in Toronto in February.

Mrs. Fred M. Rutherford, of Bonarlaw, represented the North Hastings district W.I. as their delegate at the convention of the Provincial Dept. of Agriculture held at the King Edward Hotel in Toronto recently.

Petty Officer Gene J. McCormick has returned to the East Coast after spending Christmas with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. McCormick, North Park St.

Mrs. W. J. Richards, of Oshawa, is in Belleville after receiving word that her daughter, Bessie, had been taken to Belleville General Hospital for an emergency appendectomy.

Friends of Miss Dorcas Bird, 146 Bleecker Ave., will be sorry to hear that she is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital—where she underwent an operation this morning.

The newly-formed Joy Club of St. Andrew's Church, which is an affiliate of the W.M.S., were at the home of Mrs. J. G. Hornsby this week to hear an address by Miss T. Negoro, who is the girls' travelling secretary. Officers selected for the club are: President, Miss Margaret Fairbairn, Vice-President, Jessie Cunningham; Treasurer, Jean Muir; Secretary, Mrs. Lillian Rutherford.

WEDDINGS

OUDERKIRK—DUESBURY

A pretty wedding took place at the home of Rev. E. Farnsworth on Thursday, Dec. 30th, when Betty Lorraine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Duesbury, became the bride of LAC. William Clifford Ouderkirk, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Ouderkirk, of Syracuse, N. Y.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a grey tailored suit, white shirred blouse, black accessories and corsage of red roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Ivy Armitage chose a blue tailored suit similar to the bride's, with matching accessories and corsage of red roses.

The groom was assisted by a fellow airman, Cpl. Garfield Benn.

Following the ceremony, Mrs. Doris Trumble, sister of the bride, was hostess to a reception and wedding supper and was assisted by Mrs. K. G. Loucks and Mrs. A. W. Armitage and Mrs. Logan.

Friends at the reception were from Toronto, Kingston and Belleville. Later the couple left on a wedding trip to Chesterville, Ottawa and Syracuse, N.Y., and on their return they will reside in Belleville.

DELINE—THORNTON

The marriage of Elizabeth Thornton, Lancaster, Penn., to Cecil O. Deline, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Deline, Sulphide, took place in Hamilton on Christmas Eve at the home of Rev. W. Waite who officiated. The bride wore an original gown of black transparent velvet with white pearl trim and a corsage of white gardenias. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Lakotas, Sulphide. A wedding supper and small reception followed at the Murphy Hotel in Hamilton. Those present were the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lasher, Napanee and Mr. Jack Deline, Toronto.

GADBER—DORAN

In St. Carthagh's Church, Tweed on Monday, Dec. 27, 1943, Rev. Dean D. A. Cullinane officiated at the marriage of Anastasia Mary Doran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Doran, Tweed, to Chief Petty Officer William Thomas Gadber, R.C.N.V.R., son of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Gadber, of Toronto.

At the organ was Rev. Sister M. Sheila, and the soloist was Mr. Jack Marchen, of Belleville.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white bridal satin. Her finger-tip veil was caught by a band of seed pearls and she carried a white prayer book with a shower of orchids and bouvardia.

Attending the bride were her two sisters, Mrs. Kenneth Callahan as matron of honor in gold colored silk jersey and Mrs. Arthur Courtenay, as bridesmaid, in pink taffeta. They wore similar headdresses of feather calottes and matching face veils, and carried colonial bouquets of roses and baby 'mums.

Mr. Kenneth Callahan acted as best man and Mr. John J. Doran, brother of the bride was usher.

At the reception held at the home of the bride's parents, Mrs. Doran received, wearing fuchsia silk crepe with corsage of Johanna Hill roses and bouvardia.

For travelling the bride chose a brown dressmaker suit with muskrat coat and matching accessories.

Chief Petty Officer Gadber will return to duty on the East Coast.

Quinte W.I. Entertained At County Home

About seventy-five members and friends of the Quinte W. I. were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Sandercock at the County Home on Friday evening. In her usual gracious manner, Mrs. Sandercock welcomed all and expressed the wish that all might have an enjoyable evening. The proceeds of the euchre amounted to $20.45 which will be used by the W.I. for war work.

At the close of the evening's entertainment, lunch was served by Mr. and Mrs. Sandercock and assistants and a social time was enjoyed. Prizes for the euchre were as follows: Ladies, Mrs. D. Atkins, Mrs. H. Murphy, Consolation, Mrs. A. Houston; Gentlemen, F. Gray, C. Reid, Consolation, D. Whalen

On behalf of the Quinte Institute Mrs. Garbutt moved a vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Sandercock for their kind hospitality, which all had so thoroughly enjoyed.

THE REMEDY THAT NEVER GROWS OLD

An authority say that many people are prone to turn to new remedies and treatments which are seldom better and often not as effective as medications which have been known and recommended for years.

For centuries, mustard has been known for its many remedial effects on colds, chills and congestions of many kinds. Used in poultices or plasters, and for foot baths and complete baths, it still pours out its heat-inducing qualities and relieves countless aches and pains with a minimum of distress or cost.

Says Wounded Are Wonderful

By DENISE DALTROFF
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 15. (CP)—Madame Vanier will soon follow her husband, Maj.-Gen. George Vanier, to Algiers where he has been appointed Canadian representative to the French National Committee of Liberation.

In Algiers Mme. Vanier plans to help in operating clubs for servicemen and women such as the canteens of the Y.M.C.A., Y.W.C.A., and the Knights of Columbus which will be opened there shortly. She hopes too, to "help with the spade work of organizing social services for relieving starvation and suffering in France".

Mme. Vanier has been in England more than six months, occupied not only in looking after her flat but in helping the Canadian and Allied Red Cross societies on special occasions and visiting Canadian wounded besides the normal duties of the wife of a diplomat.

"Visiting the wounded", Mme. Vanier said, "was a lesson in itself. They are all in a wonderful frame of mind, not one of them was depresed. They all have such good faith in their officers and praised the work of the stretcher bearers and Red Cross which evacuated them over very difficult country with as little pain and discomfiture as possible".

At her home Mme. Vanier has done all her cooking besides the shopping.

"Rationing here is wonderful", she said, "Nobody need ever go hungry. For a while I enjoyed queuing, it was a novelty and the remarks made by other people in the queue were often so amusing. Many a time I have asked the butcher how I should prepare a particular joint of meat he gave me, because all the cooking I know I had to teach myself just recently, and several helpful ladies in the queue would offer their advice and give me recipes".

"War has done that for the British", Mme Vanier said. "You don't travel any longer without speaking to your fellow passengers and everybody is most friendly and helpful".

Mme. Vanier's chief admiration is for the old people. "It is so difficult for them to accommodate themselves to new conditions, but their spirit is wonderful, and there is no bitterness in any British women whatever the sacrifices they have had to make".

Carrying Place Couple Honored by Friends

Carrying Place — On Saturday evening Jan. 8th over seventy-five neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Snider gathered at their home to welcome Mrs. Snider to the community and to express esteem in which Wilfred is held by those who have known him from childhood. Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Snider were asked to take seats and were presented with many valuable and useful gifts. An address was read by Luther Alyea and signed on behalf of the neighbors and friends by Luther Alyea and Harvey Brown.

When the gifts had been unwrapped both the bride and groom expressed their sincere appreciation of the kindness of their many friends as manifested by many pretty and useful gifts and asked all to come and visit them.

Fashion Flashes

IT ISN'T NECESSARY to glitter to be smartly dressed at an evening gathering. At a recent party, the outfit that stood out most amidst such fashions as frocks made entirely of sequins, was a dark brown moire frock with strapped halter neckline worn with a turquoise ostrich feather hat and muff.

LOOKING AROUND we note that the fur stole is increasing in popularity. More than one movie star is going in for a cape-stole of natural lynx which is worn with everything from casuals to glitter.

HARDLY A WOMAN who does not look well in a tricorne. A charming tricorne, made of red velours, is high in back and worn tipped forward. It is trimmed with a question mark in pheasant plumage and a misty brown veil.

ONE WAY for a gal to pamper herself is to prepare a breakfast or supper tray and then carry it to bed and dine whilst wearing a dainty bed jacket. Pale blue crepe quilted and trimmed with an embroidered scalloped outline in pink makes a pretty model.

A GOOD COMPANION ready for winter sports, or for evening wear in suburbs or country is a pilot's coat of white alpaca fleece with red collar and bright green revers. May be worn with or without a belt.

BRING CHEER into the house with the aid of cheerful house frocks. A trig, neat little brunch coat is of seersucker in a splashy red, green, blue and rose print border design with solid blue border for sleeves, hem and pockets.

SAYS HE PAID $1,050

Toronto, Jan. 15—(CP)—Evidence that during May of last year he paid Naiffe Stephen a total of $1,050 to obtain deferment for three of his friends who had received military call-ups was given Friday by H. Kirshenbaum as the trial continued of Stephen, R. A. Allen, R. A. Irwin and Robert Douglas, charged with conspiracy in connection with obtaining deferments from military service.

French Countess Hoodwinked The Nazis To Reach Britain

By MARGARET ECKER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

London, Jan. 15 (CP)—The best stories of this war are the ones you can't write—or the ones you have to disguise heavily at the sacrifice of journalistic accuracy.

Take the story of the countess, for instance. She probably wouldn't have talked to me at all if she'd known I was a reporter. But she met me at lunch at the home of a friend, so, on the friend's urging, she talked of her adventures.

It was a tale that made Etta Shiver's "Paris Underground," pale by comparison. Her son was wounded and she got away to England. But the Gestapo's ring was closing around her and finally she herself was forced to travel the underground road. Her story, of course, is of the bloody trail she followed across France.

She told one story of how she had smuggled a French officer out of home in the French equivalent of a garbage can. The Gestapo became suspicious of the garbage collector and gave chase. The man, who was wounded, leaped over a wall as the truck sped past. His wound opened but he managed to elude the searchers in spite of a trail of blood behind him.

Finally he became exhausted from the race that led him over walls down alleys and even over rooftops. The door of a large apartment block had been propped open and half fainting, he slipped behind it.

But his wound was bleeding profusely and when the concierge came out a few minutes later, she saw the trickle of blood from behind the door. Fortunately she was a loyal Frenchwoman and she took the officer to her own apartment where she hid him until he was strong enough to make another dash for the border.

Army Not Dead.

The countess had more stories—more exciting than this but they can't be written—yet.

But she had words of optimism "A man came to me the other day," she said. "He told me that France today is more united than ever before. All classes, all religions, they are united for France and for freedom.

"The French army is not dead. It exists stronger than ever today. In central France, in the wildlands, there are thousands of soldiers, ragged, yes, but well trained, well-disciplined. As soon as the Allies step on European soil they will make themselves felt. They have planned exactly what they will do, every detail is taken care of.

"I even know the name of the brave girl who will command an ambulance corps in France. These people are trained. In small groups men attend hidden training camps.

The countess and her friends are optimistic about the second front.

"It should not be a difficult campaign," she said. "From information I have received I know the fortress of Europe is manned by old men and boys. They are poorly equipped. The Nazis in France are terrified. They are ready to pack up and run for Germany on the first hint of invasion.

"But that invasion must come soon. The German propaganda machine is extremely dangerous. They are cleverly stirring up distrust of the British. They may succeed if the blow doesn't come soon."

Women's Activities

CHRIST CHURCH W. A., SENIOR BRANCH

The Senior Branch of Christ Church W.A. held its annual meeting on Wednesday in the Parish Hall. Reports of all officers showed a most successful and progressive year of work. The Rev. G. G. Wright presided during the election of officers for 1944. The following were elected: President, Mrs. G. G. Wright; Vice-Pres., Mrs. Waterhouse; Sec., Mrs. A. V. Orr; Treas., Mrs. Bruce Sills; Dorcas Sec., Mrs. Leo Blaker; Living Message Sec., Mrs. H. Wright; Red Cross, Mrs. W. Ashton; Rep. on Parish Council, Mrs. Winter.

QUINTE W. I.

On January 11th, Mrs. Wesley Gray opened her home to the Quinte Women's Institute, when it held its monthly meeting and enjoyed Mrs. Gray's kind hospitality. There was a large attendance of around fifty members and visitors. The meeting was opened by Mrs. A. Greatrix, President. Minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. G. Bradshaw, Sec.-Treas., and approved. Plans were made for the officers' rally at Front Road hall in January. Mrs. W. Gray spoke words of welcome to all. Mrs. W. C. Mitchell took charge of the program, which was as follows: Community singing, "O Canada;" reading, "New Year's Thoughts," Mrs. G. Conners; music, Mrs. C. Reid and Mrs. B. Portt; reading, Mrs. F. Doxtator; community singing, "The More We Get Together" and "The Old Rugged Cross;" music, Mrs. C. Reid and Mrs. B. Portt; solo, Mrs. F. Haight; Paper, "Health and Worry; What a Wonderful Piece of Machinery our Bodies Are," Mrs. G. Connors. Mrs. Mitchell thanked all who had helped in the program. Mrs. Geddes invited all to her home for euchre for war work on Tuesday evening. Mrs. G. Palmer gave a good report of some of the highlights of Belleville area convention. Roll call, first school and first school teacher. Collection, $4.60. Sympathy and good wishes were expressed for Mrs. M. B. Weese, Mrs. S. Anderson and Mrs. C. Holmes. Mrs. Gray and conveners served a lunch and a social time was enjoyed.

Allan Mills

Allan Mills — Mrs. Thos. Webb was taken to Kingston Hospital for treatment. Her many friends wish her a speedy recovery.

Mr. John Webb is very ill at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Chas Benson.

Mr. Sam McComb suffered a heart attack and is very ill.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Burkitt visited Mr. and Mrs. C. McKeown on Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Hogle George and Calvin spent Wednesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. A Burkitt.

Friends and neighbors were sorry to learn of the death of the late Mr. Hiriam Barrum at his home on the 11th concession of Seymour, at Rylestone.

He is survived by his wife and four sons, Lorne, Harold, Doug and Gordon and one daughter Mrs. H. Watson. The funeral was held at Rylestone United Church on Friday, Jan. 14th, interment in Rylestone cemetery.

HEPBURN MAKES PREDICTION

St. Catharines, Jan. 15 —(CP)— Mitchell F. Hepburn, independent liberal member of the Ontario legislature for Elgin, predicted in an address before 200 milk producers and dairymen here yesterday that John Bracken, leader of Progressive Conservative Party, would be Canada's next Prime Minister.

Windsor — (CP) — Sir Charles Jowell Thomas, chairman of the Tithe Redemption Commission died here after an operation.

Red Cross Work Earns Gratitude Of Fighting Men

By MARGARET ECKER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 15—(CP) — Four Canadian soldiers who were captured in Italy and released from Nazi prison camps by Italians to make their way tortuously back to Allied lines, had a special prayer of thanks for the clicking needles of Canadian women.

The men arrived in London with nothing but the tropicals they stood in, as they had lost all their kit at the time of their capture. They went to headquarters of the Canadian Red Cross here and were given sweaters, scarves, gloves—everything they needed to keep out the damp cold of an English winter.

"Their gratitude was touching," said Mrs. Dudley Ryder, formerly of Montreal, who is in charge of the distribution department of Red Cross overseas.

Canadian women whose tireless hands seldom put down their knitting and whose afternoons are spent in Red Cross workrooms from Victoria to Halifax, should be able to visit headquarters here and see the distribution of the things they make.

The big boxes from Canada are unpacked carefully and most of the hospital supplies, clothing and soldiers' comforts they contain stay a very short time here. As requests come in for these things from the services, the goods are shipped immediately. In November, 32,159 articles went out to Canadian men in uniform and 3,297 to women.

As officers on their stations see that those under their command need warm underwear, scarves, sweaters, the requests are sent in to Red Cross through auxiliary services.

Many Comforts Available

Besides clothing, there was a pile of gay patchwork quilts and some cushions the day I visited headquarters. These go to the women's services, and they make many a chilly Nissen hut where Cwacs or Wids live a warmer, more cheerful place.

If there's a surplus of clothing beyond the needs of the Canadian women here, they go to British girls. Mrs. Ryder had been sorting out heavy woollen underwear for Auxiliary Territorial women at an ack-ack post on the blustery coastline. Another box of heavy Air Force blue sweaters was ready to go to a squadron of Waafs who operate a barrage balloon in all types of weather. There were heavy underclothing and stockings for the Wrens, those who man the small coastal boats and who are often soaking wet day and night.

At a table an English volunteer worker was unravelling knitted mitts. Men overseas don't wear these, so thousands a month are unravelled and reknit into gloves by British women.

Warming the servicemen and women isn't the only job of Mrs. Ryder's department — they often warm the heart of a Canadian mother too. When a boy or girl comes in to get warm clothing personally, the staff writes to the mothers at home to tell them how their children are looking and what they are doing.

"We write them all by hand," said Mrs. Ryder. "A typed letter might be a shock to some nervous women who would think her youngster was ill or hurt." Sometimes they write seven or eight letters a day.

McLEAN AT IT AGAIN

Sydney, N. S., Jan. 15 —(CP)— Canada's No. 1 bankroll-peeler—Millionaire Harry F. McLean of Merrickville, Ont.—paid a whirlwind visit to Sydney Friday and was reported to have left in his wake gift cheques running up to $500.

Planning Breakfasts for Workers

Overtiredness and "that hungry feeling" so common especially in factory workers, may be due among other things to lack of high quality protein.

Authorities are certain that the factory production would increase if the workers would get properly balanced meals. Many persons are working harder both mentally and physically, than ever before. This, in turn has led to a condition called postprandial hypoglycemia. This merely means a lowered blood sugar which occurs after meals. When a person has hypoglycemia he feels hungry and weak and tired. In many plants, an effort has been made to combat this condition by giving the workers lunches in the middle of the morning and afternoon. In many industries, however, this practice has certain disadvantages, and it is especially impractical for those who are overweight.

Doctor George W. Thorn and his co-workers of Harvard Medical School believe that the condition can be combatted best by giving the workers a breakfast which is rich in protein rather than high in starches, and sweets. He has found that after eating a meal that is rich in the protein foods, persons have a continued feeling of well-being. In order to test out his idea, he selected a number of workers and gave them meals of the same heat or caloric value but made up of different amounts of starches, proteins, sweets and fats. The first breakfast was made up mainly of starchy foods, while the second contained fat mostly, with small amounts of starchy foods and proteins. The third was composed, for the most part, of protein foods with limited amounts of starchy foods and fats.

When the meal was rich in starches and sweets, following the eating of the foods, the amount of sugar in the blood increased rapidly but, within two hours, there was a rapid decrease. Then within an hour the blood sugar again rose and the symptoms disappeared. With the high fat meal, the decrease in blood sugar was less noticeable but, again, symptoms of lack of sugar in the blood appeared within about three hours after eating. When the breakfast was rich in protein foods, no lowering of the blood sugar occurred and the persons felt well for the six-hour period during which they were studied.

As a part of the study, tests were also made of the basal metabolism, that is, the rate at which the chemical activities go on in the body when the person is at rest. It was found that the basal metabolism rate rose sharply but dropped off rapidly with the starchy meal, changed very little with the high fat meal but, with the protein meal, rose steadily and was maintained for a six-hour period after eating.

From these tests it would appear advisable for those who do a great deal of work to make sure that their meals contain a sufficient amount of protein foods, such as meat, milk, eggs, whole-grain cereals, beans and peas. Of course, the diet should at all times be well-balanced so that it supplies all of the necessary food parts, such as vitamins and minerals. Keeping the diet rich in proteins may be helpful in preventing mid-morning and mid-afternoon let-down.

BETHANY W. M. S.

The January meeting of Bethany W. M. S. was held at the home of Mrs. Horace Casey with an attendance of twenty-five ladies and three children. The President Mrs. F. Easton opened the meeting. Quiet music was played by Mrs. H. Casey. The call to worship was given by the president after which the scripture lesson was read by Mrs. R. Ritz. Rev. Mr. Trumpour led in prayer. A poem was read by Joy Osland. The secretary's and treasurer's reports were given. Mrs. H. Walker invited the W. M. S. to hold their February meeting at her home. Rev. Mr. Trumpour then took charge of the installation of the new officers for 1944. Miss Hazel Walker leader of group one took charge. Interesting readings were given by Mrs. C. Ritz, Mrs. W. Yateman, Mrs. R. Ritz, Mrs. U. Hamilton, Mrs. G. McPherson and Mrs. W. Doxtator on what great men have to say about the Bible. Mrs. Clarke gave an interesting reading on Christian Stewardship assisted by Mrs. H. Walker, Mrs. O. Beer, Mrs. B. Hollinger and Mrs. H. Casey. An instrumental was given by Joy Osland which was much enjoyed. Mrs. P. Osland gave a reading on Practical Christians in Wartime. A poem was read by Mrs. G. Denike on the Bible. Mrs. J. Ritz gave a reading on Christianity in New China.

Rawdon W.M.S. Annual Meeting

Rawdon.—Mount Pleasant Rawdon Woman's Missionary Society convened for its January meeting at the home of Mrs. Carleton Potts with eight members, eight visitors and two children in attendance.

The Vice President Mrs. Percy MacMullen, took charge due to the illness of Mrs. T. F. Townsend.

Mrs. Edgar McKeown was pianist.

A Bible reading was given by Miss Doris Sine.

Mrs. Carleton Potts read: "I am the Church School" and the pastor offered prayer.

The year's reports were given.

The society has five life members. Sixteen annual members, with an average attendance of twelve. Eleven meetings were held with the president Mrs. T. F. Townsend in charge of them all, and three members attended every meeting. Letters have been forwarded to all bereaved families.

The treasurer has remitted $202.90 to Presbyterial, of this fees $8; Thankofferings $83.09; monthly envelopes $67.63; Mite boxes $25.40 and other sources $19.78 with one dollar expenses.

There is one associate member. Stewardship and Temperance have been presented and the Missionary Monthly used at every meeting.

The Supply Dept. received $17.36 from dinners and donations and forwarded two bales valued at over $92 to Montreal and St. Ola. These contained 3 new quilts, twenty pairs knitted mitts, eight pairs hose, nine children's new dresses and some underwear besides a large assortment of good used clothing.

The community friendship secretary and her committee visited 87 people in homes and 16 in hospital besides cards, telephone calls and bouquets of flowers.

The literature secretary ordered two study books and three annual reports. There were nine subscriptions to the Monthly and 15 to World Friends.

The press reported 44 items of Missionary News for W.M.S. and 22 for Mission Band.

Three missionaries were on the prayer list, Miss Elsie Hunt, Reg.N., Miss Mabel Clazie and Miss Wilma Paddock.

The Mission Band has 20 members and remitted $35.67.

The Baby Band with 19 members remitted $7.08.

Letters of thanks were read from Miss MacIvor, Montreal, Mr. James Wood, St. Ola, and the corresponding secretary.

Mrs. Percy Hubble, the new supply secretary, asked for one cotton sack from each member and quilt blocks. A special donation for this fund realized $5.75 from those present and other members are asked to contribute at the February meeting.

The offering was gathered by Mrs. Phillips and dedicated by the Stewardship secretary, and amounted to over $5 with eight fees being paid.

Rev. T. F. Townsend installed the new officers and Mrs. Percy Hubble sang.

Mrs. Edgar McKeown presented Chapter Four of the Study Book, assisted by Mrs. Sid Demorest, Mrs. Milford Wrightman, Mrs. Arthur Phillips, Mrs. Kenneth Weaver, Mrs. Blake Sharp and Mrs. Percy MacMullen. The Archbishop of Canterbury in his enthronement address in 1942 said "as though in preparation for such a time as this God has been building up a Christian fellowship which now extends into almost every nation and binds citizens of them all together in unity and mutual love".

Mrs. McKeown closed her chapter with the poem, "I Love to Meet the Common Folk who Travel the Indian Road".

The Stewardship secretary presented letters from Presbyterial and Dominion Board.

The hostess served candy and was graciously thanked for her hospitality in opening her home for the meeting.

News Items.

A large number of Rawdonians attended the farm sale of Mr. Emerson Hough last week.

Rawdon roads are terribly icy, especially the hills.

Lack of Produce Held As Cause Of Quiet Market

"The farmers just haven't got the produce for sale. That's the reason for the slim attendance on the market these days." This was the explanation offered by a farmer for the small market attendance seen locally since the holiday season. Only a few vendors were in evidence on the outside market while in the market building numbers were almost equally small.

Fresh eggs held at 40 cents dozen for Grade "A" with vendors quoting up to 43 cents for specials. Mediums brought 38 cents and pullets 35 cents dozen. The offering of fowl was not large with prices being 45 cents for best grade chicken.

Apples predominated on the outside market with best grade Spies and McIntosh bringing $3 the bushel. Lesser grades and Delicious sold at $2.75, with Snows selling at 70 cents peck and Sweets at 80 cents, or $2.50 bushel. Pippins also brought $2.50 bushel.

A few potatoes were offered at the ceiling price of $2 per bag and were quickly bought up by anxious customers. Carrots sold at 40 cents the peck and parsnips at 50 cents. Cabbages sold generally at five cents the pound and sauerkraut at 15 cents.

There were no young pigs, nor wood, offered on the market.

The Marry-Go-Round

Ties—and Home-Ties

This is the time at which the serviceman in faraway lands gets the greatest thrill from a letter from home A letter from his own people, his own town, or even just from his own country — anywhere in Canada.

Many girls and women are voluntarily writing to the boys out there who have no home-ties, nobody to write to them. And they cannot know how their letters will be treasured by those lonely, homesick men! That's what they want most, letters that will remind them of home and home-ties!

TIES! Strange how we sometimes resent them, when we are very young. It isn't until we are mature that we begin to see vaguely that the most vitally important and precious things in life are TIES. Most men and many girls spend their youth trying to escape ties or dodge ties—home-ties, family ties or marital ties!

Ties mean responsibility and self-sacrifice. Ties restrict your liberty, interfere with your amusements and sometimes deflate your pocketbook. Ties may be a spur to your ambition—or a hobble cramping your style. Yet the bleakest, emptiest and most pathetic life on earth is that of the man or woman who hasn't a tie in the world. The woman who nobody needs! The man who is responsible for nobody's happiness and necessary to nobody's life!

Do you remember the homeless soldier in Saroyan's "Human Comedy," who had been brought up in an orphanage and had nobody to come back to? Perhaps, the man to whom you are writing is one of those. No ties!

Why do widows and widowers remarry? Why do divorcees remarry? Why do people marry at all in this cynical age? Why do young lovers rush into these war marriages knowing they must part in a few hours? Why do successful career women marry?

Sometimes men struggle to free themselves from ties—and then go right out and tie themselves up with somebody else. Women rush off to Florida or Reno, feeling they will choke unless "the ties that bind" are cut; yet before the ink is dry on the decree they are signing again on the dotted line.

And all this marrying and remarrying are for what? For ties—that's what. For somebody to belong; somebody to share things with; somebody to work for; for somebody who needs you—and is needed. Somebody to come back to. Somebody to call your own!

The untied man or woman is not oriented. He or she has no vital or definite reason for "carrying on;" no base from which to work out a life-pattern. No particular goal—and no great incentive.

"He travels fastest who travels alone"—but where is he going? And what has he got when he gets there? What's his hurry? Nobody's waiting for him!

Belleville Juniors Secure Tie For First Place by Defeating Stirling-Marmora Combines

Defence Improves and Addition of Gordon Rounds Out Front Lines

SCORE IS 4-0

Coach "Toots" Holway's up-and-coming Belleville Juniors forged to the top of the district Junior "B" O.H.A. shuffle Friday evening at the local ice palace, when they took on the Stirling-Marmora "Combines" and after 60 minutes of crowd-pleasing hockey during which the boys were in there fighting every minute, emerged clean-cut 4-0 winners.

It was the first shut-out of the year with the honors for the most part going to Fitzpatrick in the Belleville nets. This boy kicked and booted out the proverbial million during the first and second periods when the northern lads pressed hardest but with the help of a sturdy defence proved equal to the occasion on every sortie.

As well as offensive strength, offensive ability was demonstrated with Coach Holway unearthing in Al Gordon what appears to be a real find. That this lad who centres the second forward line has hockey brains was demonstrated clearly when he was on the spot to sink two of the locals' goals as well as gaining an assist on the initial counter in the first period. Belleville goals were scored by Barrett, while Stirling was short-handed at the close of the first period, and by Day and Gordon, who rapped in three quick ones in a third-period landslide.

Stirling Line Dangerous

The boys went right to work as the play opened in the first canto with the northern lads having a slight edge in territorial play as well as in shots on goal. Stirling's forward line of Patterson and the Bastedo boys on the wings proved dangerous, while the Gordon-led Belleville line bore watching all night. Belleville was short-handed on more occasions than was Stirling with five locals going to the hoosegow as against three for the opposition.

A penalty to Bert Bastedo for boarding near the close of the first period gave Belleville their first period lead as with their one-man advantage they stormed the Stirling citadel with Barrett batting in a pass-out from Gordon and J. Wardhaugh.

Stirling strove hard to get the equalizer in the second period and outshot the locals twelve to ten. Although the period went scoreless both goalies were called upon to make difficult saves. Greatrix went right in on McInroy and missed the open corner of the net, while at the half-way mark the locals hemmed Stirling in their own end of the rink but McInroy was unbeatable.

Outsmarts Entire Team

Taking a pass-out from behind his own goal, Gordon out-smarted the entire Stirling team when he went through alone to pick an empty corner of the Stirling goal at the 14.10 mark in the final period. And from then on it was just a case of how many. Seconds later Day took a pass-out from Bill Holway to sift the third Belleville goal behind McInroy and just before the bell went to end the game Gordon took a pass from Barrett to make it 4-0.

Defensive play of the locals improved as the game progressed with the work of Holwy, Rosette and Bush being noticeable. In the final period the Belleville boys were back-checking tenaciously and playing their positions like veterans to ride out the Stirling thrusts before they got in close.

The teams:

Stirling-Marmora "Combines" — Goal, McInroy; defence, McIntosh and Utman; centre, Bert Bastedo; wings, Patterson and Doug Bastedo; alternates, Trumble, Leonard, Goodchild, Cousins, Lavender and Whitehead.

Belleville—Goal, Fitzpatrick; defence, Rosette and Bush; centre, Moher; wings, J. Wardhaugh and Barrett; alternates, Day, Holway, Greatrix, Semark, Meagher and Gordon.

Referee: "Speedy" St. Louis.

TWO N.H.L. TEAMS PLAY TWIN BILLS OVER WEEKEND

Toronto Entertains Detroit Red Wings at Home and Abroad

BRUINS PLAY RANGERS

By The Canadian Press

Two teams whose current records suggest sharp form meet in a weekend National Hockey League double-header which may make or break Toronto Maple Leafs as a potential threat to the pacemaking Montreal Canadiens.

Now riding a three-game winning streak but still six games behind Canadiens, Leafs play host to Detroit Red Wings in Toronto tonight and travel to Detroit Sunday for a return engagement. Anything less than a split of points would just about cripple Toronto chances of overhauling the leaders.

The double bill is of equal significance to the renovated Red Wings, now one point ahead of Chicago Black Hawks in a duel for fourth place. Detroit, strengthened in recent weeks by addition of several players discharged from the Canadian army, showed improvement Thursday in holding Canadiens to a 2-2 tie in Montreal.

Boston Bruins, two games behind Toronto, entertain New York Rangers at Boston Saturday and assume the guest role at New York Sunday in another weekend double-header. Canadiens play at Chicago Sunday in the only other scheduled game.

Many Hun Officers Wounded by Grenades Thrown Into Cafe

London, Jan. 14 (CP)—A Reuters dispatch from Zurich said last night that many German officers had been seriously wounded by hand grenades thrown into a restaurant at Nice in what was "believed to be a French commando raid from Corsica."

The dispatch said the bomb-throwers escaped in a speedboat. The Nazis, it added, immediately imposed an 8 p.m. curfew on the city's restaurants for this interruption of their dinner.

Byron Nelson Commands Field In First Round of Tourney

By the Canadian Press

Byron Nelson of Toledo, Ohio, posted a four-under-par 68 to take command of the field in the first round of the 72-hole $10,000 San Francisco victory open golf tournament yesterday on the harding park public course. Included in his card was an eagle three. One stroke behind were Llyod Mangrum of Monterey Park, Calif., and Art Bell of San Francisco, the former chalking up four birdies.

Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Philadelphia, winner last week of the Los Angeles open, and George Fazzio, Pine Valley, N. J., came in with 70's, two under par, but Craig Wood, National Open champion from New York, stumbled to a 76 due largely unfamiliarity with the course, this being the first time he had played it.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Blake Thmopson of Toronto yesterday received official notification their son, Flt.-Lt. Eddie Thompson, co-Captain of Toronto R. C. A. F. Hurricanes when they won the Grey Cup football championship in 1942, was killed April 22 through enemy action in the North Atlantic when a ship carrying 52 Air Force officers was twice torpedoed. Only 16 officers are known to have survived.

Reg Threlfall, coach of the Winnipeg R. C. A. F. bombers last fall, declared the Western football champions would seetk games with neighboring teams in the United States next season if the grid sport failed to develop in Eastern Canada. He declared there were 15 college or service' teams in the States within reasonable distance of Winnipeg.

The Boston Braves yesterday sent infielders Joe Burns and William Heltzel to Indianapolis of the American Association to complete the deal through which southpaw James Trexler had been acquired. Trexler, 33, won 19 and lost seven games last year.

Announcement was made at Philadelphia yesterday of the dissolution of the combined Philadelphia-Pittsburgh team in the National Football League. Splitting the merger means the clubs will operate as separate units next fall.

Sixteen entries for today's Palm Beach handicap at Hialeah Park forced the management to split the race into two $5,000 races over the seven-eighths-mile course. A Woolford farm horse immediately became a favorite in each event, Signator and Adulator respectively, with owner Herbert M. Woolfe in line for a "sweepstakes double."

John J. Evers, second baseman of the Chicago Cubs who snatched the 1908 National League pennant from New York Giants in the famous Fred Merkle "bonehead" play, yesterday was reported in poor health at his Albany, N. Y., home. One of his treasures is a 50-pound baseball scrapbook, mostly containing 35-year discussions of his great putout.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLIE EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, Jan. 15 — (CP) — Reports are current that the National Hockey League is thinking of breaking off relations with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association but Red Dutton, N.H.L. managing director, favors continuance of present relations.

Chief point of objection by some N.H.L. governors is the agreement to pay $500 to the C.A.H.A. for each Canadian amateur making good in the major league. The agreement was made originally with the idea amateur clubs should be repaid for money spent in developing youngsters and so have funds for further development.

Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson writes: "Those who would scrap the agreement, or scrap-paper it, take the stand that every Canadian kid wants to play hockey, that the National League is his goal, and that the payments aren't necessary for the development would come along in the natural course of things as it always did."

Dutton takes the stand that $500 is cheap for a player making good in the big time and therefore worth probably thousands of dollars in subsequent deals. And he believes it is to the N.H.L.'s advantage to spend money for development of such stars.

In an interview with Ferguson, Dutton mentioned Russ McQuarrie of Saskatoon, who promoted junior teams and developed two great players, Harry Watson and Charlie Rayner, both of whom played with Dutton's New York Americans. "Every year he'd lose $300 or $400 which he really couldn't afford," said Dutton. "Don't you think a fellow like that deserves a little help?"

Reports say the amateur-professional dispute was brought to a head by the case of Johnny Horeck, recently discharged from the army. It appears Horeck had been on New York Rangers negotiation list before he enlisted and, after discharge, Lester Patrick was prepared to offer the player a good contract. However, Eddie Shore of Buffalo Bisons obtained title rights to Horeck in the deal which sent Bob Dill to Rangers. Then Horeck crossed them all up by locating at Ottawa and stating he wished to remain there and play for Commandos.

No matter how annoyed, however, the N.H.L. will not sever relations with the C.A.H.A. because it can't get along without co-operation with that body. The C.A.H.A. has international affiliations which will exert some measure of control over transfer of hockey players to Europe when hockey booms there after the war. If the N.H.L. severed relations it would have to compete in player salaries not only with European rink owners but with the Canadian amateur clubs which actually are professional in everything but name.

And amateur hockey is just reaching the big money bracket. Already there have been cases where amateurs have refused big league offers because they were making more money as amateurs. A good job paying perhaps $2,500 a year plus a hockey bonus of $2,000 is not unusual for an amateur star. That isn't "hay" in the N.H.L. either — and on top of the gravy the amateur is establishing himself in business.

What's Doing in Sport

New York — (AP) — In his last appearance before entering the Navy, Bobby Ruffin of New York fought Tippy Larkin of Garfield, N.J., to a draw in a 10-round battle in which both performers put on a slugging display. The crowd of 15,323 disliked the verdict.

Portland, Ore. — (AP) — Comeback Henry Armstrong used a left to the stomach and right cross to the chin to knock out Aldo Spoldi of New York in the third round of their 10-round benefit bout last night. Armstrong weighed 141, Spoldi 138.

Chicago — (AP) — Welker Cochran defeated champion Willie Hoppe, 50 to 38 in 40 innings, last night in the 40th block of their three-cushion billiards exhibition here and retained his lead over Hoppe in the Chicago matches.

Montreal — (CP) — Managing Director Mervin (Red) Dutton of the National Hockey League announced yesterday that suspension of Canadiens' centre Phil Watson "had been lifted after all circumstances had been taken into consideration." Watson had been suspended after "having allegedly struck linesman Jim Primeau" during a melee at Toronto.

Philadelphia — (AP)—The Philadelphia Eagler and the Pittsburg Steelers have called it quits as a combined team and will go their separate ways in the National Football League next fall. The merged clubs during the past season played as the Eagles-Steelers, or 'Steagles.'

St. Catharines Scores 11-6 Win Over Navy to Lead Revamped League

JUNIOR SAILORS WIN

By The Canadian Press

St. Catharines Saints, leading team in the revamped Senior O.H.A. series, made a runaway of last night's fixture against the tail-end Toronto Navy, scoring eight straight goals in the first two periods and winning 11-6 after the Tars staged a rally in the final frame. The contest, first in the latest revised schedule, took place on St. Catharines ice.

Paul Mundrick and Umbo Concessi fattened their individual records by notching three tallies apiece while Blink Bellinger added two to his season's total, with Red Reynolds, Mason and Doug Fritz getting singles. Mann, with two counters, was the leading sniper for the Sailors and Mair, Barlow, Livingstone and Thompson accounted for one each. The game was played with only one penalty, Concessi incurring the displeasure of the Arbiters in the first period.

The one clash of the Junior "A" grade at Port Colborne resulted in an 8-4 setback for Toronto Young Rangers although the latter were clinging to a 4-3 advantage at the finish of the second stanza, the recreationists running in five straight tallies in the final session. Simpelle with three goals, Wallace and Gravelle with two each and Pitts with one constituted the winners' scoring record. Ranger goals were by Thompson, Imonti, Dewsbury and Gagnon.

JAKE LA MOTTA GIVEN DECISION OVER F. ZIVIC

Fritzie Possibly Fractured Hand in First Round of Bout

SMART CONTEST

By WATSON SPOELSTRA
Associated Press Sport Writer

Detroit, Jan. 15 — (AP) — With a possible fractured left hand and facing a date next week with his draft board, Fritzie Zivic appears to be at the end of an illustrious ring career, but Jake La Motta, who beat him decisively Friday night, thinks Fritzie could keep fighting until he's 50.

The 30-year-old Zivic, former welterweight champion from Pittsburgh, dropped a unanimous 10-round decision to the younger and bigger La Motta, New York middleweight, before 10,834 fans who paid $29,774 at Olympia Stadium. Thus Jolting Jacob seized a 3-to-1 edge in the series that previously played at Pittsburgh and New York.

In the dressing room, Zivic's injured hand was encased in splints by the Boxing Commission physician who ordered an x-ray examination today. Fritzie said he hurt it in the first round.

La Motta, who weighed 159 to Zivic's 151 1-2 and is eight years younger, declared he sighted a knockout in the late rounds but that Zivic outfoxed him.

"You gotta hand it to that guy," said Jolting Jacob. "He's as smart as they come. Say, I believe he could fight until he's 50."

Largely because of Zivic's stoutheartedness, there was some outcry at ringside against the decision, but the three officials went right down the line together.

Air Force Loop To Show Wares Monday Night

Air Force service hockey will be introduced at the Hume Arena on Monday night when the strong Trenton Main Station sextette crosses sticks with the No. 6 Repair Depot team to open the season.

The "Sixardee" team is being coached by F/Sergt. Dickens and boasts of several new faces aside from those of last year. For example there is Ross Hunt, who played senior O.H.A. hockey with the strong Research Enterprise squad last year, the reliable Bobby Dixon and Gord Derry former Belleville and Trenton junior.

High-scoring forward is Mac McGinness who played with the Flin Flon "Miners" in the Manitoba senior league two years ago and "Blondie" Broomfield, who played with the Lachine seniors only a few weeks ago before being posted to No. 6 R.D. "These are only a few of our players we have to toss in against the Main Station team Monday night," revealed F/Sergt. Dickens today.

F/L. "Buff" Horton has at least two former professional players ready for Monday night's fray, Dick Raymond, formerly a teammate with Pit Lepine on Les Canadiens and Mike Dzura, star of the New Haven Eagles of the American League. Lads named Voss and Darte who played with the Montreal Royals last year are also slated to play with Trenton. "We expect some newcomers now that the Air Force is out of Allan Cup competition," revealed Horton today.

These service league games are played each Monday and Thursday night at the Hume Arena.

True to His Troth.

As business was a bit dull in town the carpet-sweeper salesman though he'd try the wide open spaces. Presently he came to a remote cottage, at the door of which stood an extremely tough-looking man indeed.

But when he began his usual line of sales-talk the cottager interrupted him.

"Don't waste you breath," he said, "I've got a carpet-sweeper already."

"Good! Then I can make you a splendid allowance for your old sweeper in part payment for this splendid new model."

The cottager thought for a few moments; then he said:

"No, I won't do a deal. After all, I took 'er for better or wuss, didn't I?"

Up on Top.

Carrying the play in the latter stages of the struggle "Toots" Holway's local kids moved into top position in their O. H. A. group Friday night. True enough the homesters carried too much staying power and dominated the picture during the last half of the game. However, as we've advocated before, the locals couldn't shoot themselves out of a paper bag.

Defensively Holway's kids stood up superbly and moved into the group leadership. Actually outstanding credit should go to Goalie Dick Fitzpatrick in the early stages and then for offensive efforts hand the bonquets to Al Gordon, Skipper Holway's new find from I. T. S., with Billie Holway following well in line.

"Spoke" Speaks.

During an oldtime fancing bee recently, Tris Speaker, the grey-eagle of another baseball era who starred fod Boston and Cleveland and was one of the game's better outfielders, was asked to name his all-time all-star baseball team.

"Any such team that I pick has to be about 90 per cent American leaguers," he replied. "But, if you, insist . . .

"Well, I'd put Cochrane as my catcher and Walker Johnson as my pitcher, of course. I'd put Hal Chase on first—greatest of them all. I'd take Eddie Collins at second, Wagner at short and Jimmy Collins at third. I saw just enough of Jimmy Collins to convince me that he was the best. But when you're thinking of fine third basemen, don't forget Buck Weaver.

"The outfield's easy—Cobb, Ruth and Joe Jackson."

(P. S.—He modestly forgot one of the best—Tris Speaker.)

Perennial Hitter.

Batting .311 for Brooklyn in 32 games last season, Paul Waner, 40-year-old outfielder, topped the .300 mark for the fourteenth time in his National League career. Thus, Big Poison took third place in number of seasons as a .300 socker, being topped only by those immortal National League batting champions, Hans Wagner and Rogers Hornsby, with 17 and 16 seasons, respectively. Waner's 70 hits in 1943 brought his lifetime total to 3,112 for 18 years. This is second only to Wagner's all-time National League high of 3,430 in a career which stretched through 21 seasons.

Trust the Dodgers.

The Brooklyn Dodgers already have announced their group plans for the reservation of seats at Ebbetts Field for 1944. Plan 1 includes 14 tickets—opening day, one holiday and 12 Sundays—and costs $23.10 for a grandstand seat and $30.00 for a box seat. Plan 2, which adds 12 Saturdays to Plan 1, means $42.90 or $57.20, according to location. Both plans call for a deposit of only $4. Jack Collins, who is in charge of the sale, said that if night ball is allowed, as now appears likely, the ducat schemes might be changed.

Remember When—... .. ..

The Governors of the National Hockey League decided three years ago today to impose automatic fines of $25.00 each on players taking part in fist fights they did not originate. The rule was intended to discourage free-for-all brawls similar to those which had broken out in New York, Chicago and Montreal during the 1940-'41 season. Of course since that Tuesday night's donnybrook in Toronto made those shows look like a Sunday school picnic and resulted in Phil Watson of Les Canadiens drawing an indefinite suspension for striking an official.

Flyerettes Play Here.

As it is impossible for the Deacon girls to play their scheduled basketball game versus the Reliance lassies at the "Y" on Monday, the Mountain View "Flyerettes" will play Reliance in an exhibition cage loop game. However, the first game between the Alemite and Bellville Sargents will go on as scheduled. Incidentally these two quintettes won their opening games last week and the league leadership is at stake Monday.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 277

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Slambitious players need some kind of an ace-and-king showing convention to reach slams safely. The Kibitzer's Convention fills the bill better than any other method.

A bid of four no-trump signals: "Partner, I see 12 tricks; I know what's trump; I have two aces and a king, or better; tell me how many aces and kings you have."

In reply thereto, partner selects his response from a list of code answers. Here is The Kibitzer's Convention list of replies and what they show:

5 C — No aces
5 D — 1 ace and no kings
5 H — 1 ace and 1 king
5 S — 1 ace and 2 kings
5 NT — 1 ace and 3 kings

6 C — 2 aces and no kings
6 D — 2 aces and 1 king
6 H — 2 aces and 2 kings
6 S — 2 aces and 3 kings

Run through this pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH
♠ A K 6 3 2
♥ 7 5 3
♦ A 5
♣ A K Q

NORTH
♠ 9 8 7 5 4
♥ A K 2
♦ K Q
♣ 5 4 2

After an exchange of bids, south sees 12 tricks and knows that spades will be trumps. With two aces and a king or better in his own hand, he proceeds to find out how safe is a slam.

He bids four no-trump. North replies with a bid of five spades. Not because he likes spades. It is merely the convention reply for showing he has only one ace and two kings.

South thus knows there are all four aces and all four kings in their pair. But it is possible to lose a heart or a trump trick. So, he should be content with a small slam of six spades.

A slam in the hand is worth two that you boot.

"One Thrilling Night"

Few of the new pictures to be previewed in Hollywood this season have elicited more unanimous praise from preview critics than "One Thrilling Night," the hilarious Monogram comedy which comes to the Capitol theatre next with John Beal and Wanda McKay featured as a pair of young newlyweds on a hectic 12-hour honeymoon in New York City.

For example, George Fisher had this to say on his nation-wide "Hollywood Whispers" broadcast over CBS: "The idea that good pictures cost more than bad ones is so firmly rooted in the Hollywood subconscious that when a producer contrives to make a cheap picture which is also good, it occasions an almost panic confusion. A little like the famous Clark Gable-Claudette Colbert picture, 'It Happened One Night,' 'One Thrilling Night records the amazing entanglements which a bride and groom stumble into on their wedding night. You'll roar, and also break out in a cold sweat, when you see 'One Thrilling Night'."

"Action in the North Atlantic"

"Action in the North Atlantic,' Warner Bros.' spectacular picture of the men of the United States Merchant Marine and the convoy of war cargoes to the fighting fronts, starring Humphrey Bogart will open next at the Capitol theatre as the added big attraction.

Directed by Lloyd Bacon, "Action in the North Atlantic" has already been hailed by maritime officials as "the most honest war picture ever made". It features actual sequences and adventures that have been experienced by the men of the United States Merchant Marine.

The cast of this stirring film also includes, in addition to Humphrey Bogart, Raymond Massey, Julie Bishop, Alan Hale, Sam Levene, Dane Clark and Ruth Gordon. "Action in the North Atlantic" was prepared for the screen by John Howard Lawson from the story by Guy Gilpatric, noted writer of sea stories.

The Canadian Universal News completes the big program.

AT THE BELLE

SONJA HENIE in "WINTERTIME"

Set against the background of the snow-capped mountains of Canada, "Wintertime," 20th Century-Fox's new musical starring Sonja Henie, which will start its run at the Belle Theatre today is a tuneful comedy that has plenty of laughs, pretty girls and lilting songs.

In addition to Sonja Henie, the cast includes Jack Oakie, with wisecracks and advice galore; Cesar Romero, dashing after and away from the women as usual; Carole Landis, lovely and still after her man, and Woody Herman and his famous orchestra.

Snow-covered mountain peaks are a natural habitat for Sonja. In this film she has an opportunity to present several of her elaborate skating routines to her devoted fans. She has a chorus of skaters who make up her regular troupe, to skate with her in this picture.

Featured among the skating routines is a dramatic number known as the Snowbird sequence. There is a chorus of 48 skaters who perform in this number with Sonja. Costumes in the scene are brilliantly interpreted and feature the usual short ballet-skating skirt of net, long sleeves, huge epaulet "wings" on the shoulders, and high headdress of feathers. The costumes are trimmed with shiny paillettes that glitter as the skaters glide across the ice. Large curving feathers trim the shoulders and back to carry out the bird theme.

The girls do their dance on skates to the incomparable rhythms of Woody Herman's orchestra. Included among the songs penned by Leo Robin and Nacio Herb Brown are "Wintertime," "I Like it Here" and "Dancing in the Dawn." The title tune is a standout, while the novelty numbers include "Drums and Dreams" and "I'm All A-Twitter Over You." The best tunes, it is said, in many a moon.

Cornel Wilde and S. Z. Sakall complete the featured cast of the picture, which was directed by John Brahm.

"TRAINING TABLE", In Color

The added special attraction on the same program is "Training Table," a multiple-reel film produced in beautiful technicolor revealing food for fitness, what the men in the R.C.A.F. eat to be fit, and what is good for the health of all Canadians.

Here for the first time — is the story of the scientific diet of the R.C.A.F. The Canadian Paramount News and a colorfun cartoon, "Superman Rides Again" complete the program. Continuous shows will be presented today.

RHEUMATIC PAINS
Quickly relieved and Kidneys stimulated by RUMACAPS

AT THE CAPITOL — All night long, uninvited intruders marred their wedded bliss. It's Wanda McKay and John Beal bouncing another stranger in "One Thrilling Night," starting next at the Capitol with the added big attraction "Action in the North Atlantic."

WILL CHECK EXEMPTIONS FOR MINING

Non-Prospectors Taking Advantage, is Complaint; "Ten Thousand Dollar Syndicate" Named

The Ontario Mining Commission is investigating operations of many "ten - thousand - dollar prospecting syndicates" following complaints that non-prospectors were taking advantage of government exemptions given to mining prospectors to enable them to raise funds for mining developments.

These syndicates have sprung up in the last two years after an amendment of the Ontario Securities Act was passed to encourage prospecting in this province by offering certain exemptions. These exemptions permitted prospectors to raise up to $10,000 for prospecting and mining purposes without the necessity of registration with the Securities Commissioner.

It is claimed that many of these syndicates are taking advantage of the legislation to raise funds from the public for purposes not entirely connected with prospecting and preliminary mine work. Since they are exempted from registration with the Ontario Securities Commission all the promoters have to do is file a copy of the syndicate agreement with the Provincial Secretary.

While the amendment stipulates the amount to be raised by a prospecting syndicate must not exceed $10,000 there is nothing to prevent the promoter of such a syndicate from taking two-thirds or more of the stock for himself as vendor's stock and placing his own valuation on it.

The Government is anxious to encourage prospecting in every way possible but it is pointed out that proper controls must be created to prevent non-prospectors from profiting through the Government's desire to aid prospectors. It is believed this encouragement can be given to prospectors and at the same time stop the abuses reported to be in existence.

What's Doing in Sport

Mexico City — (AP) — Jorge Pasquel, president of the Veracruz club of the Mexican Baseball League, said last night that Rogers Hornsby, one of baseball's immortals, would manage his team during the coming season.

New York — (AP) — Golf play during 1943 was only 28 per cent below that of 1941 despite war-time shortages of equipment, candies and travelling facilities, the executive committee of the United States Golf Association reported today. The report revealed that membership dropped from 758 clubs a year ago to 703 but that 27 other clubs joined the public links division.

New York — (AP) — Southpaw Marius Russo of the New York Yankees has notified his club he will be definitely out of organized baseball this year, having been reclassified A-1 by his draft board for military service.

Worcester, Mass. — (AP) — Tony Brandino, 150, of Hamilton, Ont., won the decision in a six-round preliminary of last night's ring card here over Alex Rebark, 152, of Pawtucket.

Educational System Reform Is Seen Aiding Taxpayers

Revision in Real Estate Taxation, Under Drew 22 Point Plan, in Near Future

Major reforms in the Ontario Educational system that will relieve real estate of unfair taxation burdens was forecast by Provincial Treasurer Leslie Frost at the annual meeting of the Secondary School Teachers Association.

Mr. Frost said that within the near future points 9 and 10 of the 22-point platform of the Progressive Conservative Party will be implemented which calls for the revision of the real estate taxation system and overhauling of the educational system.

"The reform measures will basically affect an educational system left undisturbed in many respects since Egerton Ryerson laid the foundations a century ago", he said.

The provincial treasurer pointed out that the transfer of 50 per cent or more of educational costs from real estate to the broader field of Provincial taxation must be accompanied by a corresponding reduction of the municipal taxes levied against real estate. "Otherwise the principle involved in such a transfer would be defeated", he said. "Any such scheme must be accompanied by more equitable treatment of teachers and the dignity and importance of the profession must be recognized. The standard of compensation and security must be improved. An improvement of building and teaching facilities must be made, particularly in the smaller and rural places.

"Any revamping of our system must not exclude the authority of the local school boards", he said. "Education, however, can be too decentralized There is a middle course which provides for the consolidation of school sections, the improving of standards of both teachers and school and with a reduction of tax rates. Local loyalties must not stand in the way of reform".

Mr. Frost stressed the importance of the work done by vocational schools in the war training program. At the end of November in Canada approximately 111,000 persons have been trained as skilled or semi-skilled workers for munitions and other war plants and 35,000 men as artificers and technicians and office workers for the armed forces.

"Well over half of these came from the vocational schools of Ontario", he said. "It is a part of system that should be encouraged".

Sports Roundup

New York, Jan. 15 — (AP) — The talk about post-war planning in baseball is just a headache for one official of a local club, who moans: "We can't even plan for the present." ... His complaint is the singular lack of co-operation by the men who should be the most concerned — the players ... For instance, Bobby Coombs joined the Navy Dec. 29 but the Giants, who were bringing him up from Jersey City, haven't heard about it officially so he's still on their reserve list ... and only three Yankee players bothered to send Christmas cards to their ailing boss, Ed Barrow... in case they're interested, Barrow thinks he'll be well enough to make daily visits to his office before long.

Frank Sinatra, the crooner, has bought heavyweight Tami Mauriello's contract for $10,000...no, it wasn't because Frank needed something stronger than a microphone to prop him up. They've been pals since Sinatra went to Tami's trainer, Al Silvani, to try to build himself up physically. ... Howard Callanan, whose running gave Southern California its grid victory over College of the Pacific last fall, will sprint for the Columbia Navy midshipmen's school in the Grover Cleveland track meet tonight ... that young fellow, Alan Gould, who made the AP sports service what it is today, expects to answer to "Grandpappy Gould" before long... Army-bound Bobby Ruffing broke one of the New York State Athletic Commission's strongest traditions when he refused to pose for pictures at the weigh-in before last night's scrap with Tippy Larkin.

CHAPTER 3

Mrs. Parrent solemnly promised silence, but she could hardly wait till Mrs. Martin got off the line. She passed the story, embroidered suitably to Mrs. Hichcock: "Yes, Emmy and Mis' Martin saw it with her own eyes. Them two a-carryin' on as if they didn't care who seen 'em. And they say that artist's reppitation is suthin' dreadful—"

So, even before Peter Orrick left for New York a week later, Colby seethed with the scandal. Darnley, going about her business, became aware that something was wrong. There was a subtle antagonism.

• •

Peter Orrick went back to New York and took her picture with him. She had rather hoped he would give it to her, but he had not offered to do so. Ten days after his departure she had a letter from him. Out of it dropped a check for fifty dollars.

"I knew," he wrote, "you'll be tickled to death. When I got our picture done I liked it. So I, being a practical soul, started out to see if I couldn't peddle it. No use wasting three days' hard labor, is there? Well, the first art editor I showed it to went off the deep end and I sold it to The Metropolis Magazine. So, Darnley, you're, in effect, a professional model with a bang. Two million and a half Metropolis Magazines will deluge the country in September and you will be on the cover of all of them. Hence the fifty dollars, and long may you wave."

Darnley's first sensation was one of vast elation, of pride. She was so beautiful that a great magazine had bought her picture and put it on the cover! All the United States and several foreign countries would see her and admire her. All Colby would see her—there she paused and was frightened. All of Colby would see her displaying herself, concealed only tenuously by a scrap of a bathing suit and Colby would see her and affix its own interpretations and draw its own conclusions and take its own arch-puritanical line of action.

Grandpa Carfax would see it and would know that she had done something clandestine. She had not told him. In common with all Colby she was a little afraid of him. He was an uncertain and explosive quantity. She debated confessing to him now, but came to the conclusion that it was too late. There was nothing to do but wait for the detonation and take the consequences.

So Darnley waited with eager impatience and a sort of terror for the appearance of the Metropolis and Orrick's painting.

Grandpa Carfax came home to his dinner on the day the Metropolis came to town and Darnley laid a copy on the table at his place. The old man sat down, tucked his napkin in his collar and then caught sight of the magazine. He affixed his steel-rimmed spectacles on his nose. "What's this here?" he asked.

"Take a good look at it, Grandpa," said Darnley, quivering between excitement and fear.

Grandpa Carfax tilted back his head and peered at Orrick's cover. He made a noise with his lips something like the popping of a

"I see her with my very eyes. I hain't one for gossip, as you well know. But every day, soon's Mis' Orrick gits out of the house, that girl skedaddles right in the front door. And there she stays all day with nobody seein' hide or hair of her. Alone in the house with that artist nephew from New York. I never see sich barefaced carryin's-on."

"Hadn't somebody ought to tell Mr. Carfax?" asked Mrs. Parrent.

"He'll find out quick enough," Mrs. Martin said ominously. "Don't you tell a soul what I been a-sayin'."

cork. "Gee whitaker!" he exclaimed. He gazed at it a long time. "Hain't seen the whole of ye like this since ye was a baby bein' bathed."

"Aren't you—are you happy?"

He looked over his spectacles and under his bushy brows. "Expect me to be?"

"I hope not."

"It's done, hain't it?"

"Yes, Grandpa."

"Then I calc'late we'll have to endure it," he said.

"Is that all you're going to say?"

"Sounds like plenty to me. Huh. Fetch me my dinner."

He was in one of his most difficult moods. At times like this you could get nothing out of him and it was safer not to try. But Darnley, womanlike, was not content to leave well enough alone.

"Aren't you just a little proud of me?"

"Didn't occur to ye that what with this here high-class work of art you'd be all-fired notorious before sundown?"

"There's nothing wrong about it. Nothing wicked."

"Be ye able to prove it to a jury?"

"I'm telling you," she said angrily."

"I hain't the audience you'll have to reach. Come the dawn, like they say in the movies, you'll be recruited into the ranks of fallen women."

"Wa-al, ye done it in the wrong place. This here accounts fur them hints 'n' whisperin's."

"What do you mean, Grandpa?" But she knew very well what he meant.

"Hush your nose n' lemme enjoy my dinner," he said.

He would not speak again and she could not tell whether he was furious with her or what was his state of mind. You could never tell what Grandpa Carfax was going to do. He pushed back his chair and got up from the table. Still without speaking, he walked with his stiff gait out of the room and left her alone.

• •

The next day was Sunday. Grandpa Carfax was an elder of the church and Darnley always accompanied him to the morning service. This morning she found herself reluctant to go, but she did not dare suggest that she remain at home. So she dressed as usual and went down to her grandfather, who was waiting in the hall, wearing his black Prince Albert coat, with his Bible under his arm.

They were a striking pair as they walked under Colby's maples to the church and up to Grandpa's pew, which was in the very front of the auditorium, under the pulpit. Darnley kept her eyes on her hands, which were folded in her lap. She did not glance about her. The church was not full of bustle as usual before the organ commenced to play, but was queerly silent. Darnley felt she had something to do with that silence.

Following the hymns and the collection and the reading of notices of events of the week, the Reverend Mr. Benedict advanced and stood with his hand upon the big Bible. He did not announce his text, but suddenly darted to the verge of the pulpit and leaned far over with pointing finger. "Woman," he bellowed, "did you come to this holy place to confess your sin?"

Darnley heard but didn't realize. Her eyes were still downward upon her folded hands.

The preacher paused. The congregation sat as if frozen in their seats.

"Dare you not lift your eyes?" the Reverend Mr. Benedict said in a voice which he strove to make awful. "Dare you approach the altar of the Lord with lewdness and vileness upon your soul? It is to you I am speaking, Darnley Carfax—you, who aid the devil in his work." Then he launched into a flight of oratory. "Oh, purge yourself by open confession. Stand, woman! Stand Darnley Carfax and confess and beg for forgiveness!"

Darnley felt as if a hot blast from some awful furnace had blown upon her, was consuming her. She dared not lift her eyes. Her soul cried out against the injustice of it: yet she could not stir.

Suddenly Grandpa Carfax rose to his full height; and then she heard his dry, rasping voice and felt his bony hand upon her shoulder.

"Preacher," she heard her grandfather, explode eloquently in his creaking, ironic voice, "Preacher, I calc'late I'd be doin' the Almighty a service if I was to snatch you off'm that pulpit 'n' claw ye naked fur all the world to see how streaked ye be with malice 'n' hyocrisy." He paused. "This here service is ended right here. The Session of this here church is called to meet. Parson, you've preached your last word under this roof, and you've preached the last word you'll ever preach me." He turned to face the congregation. "You folks," he said, "keep your seats. Me 'n' my granddaughter is a-goin' to pass out of this here desecrated place."

He lifted Darnley to her feet and held her arm in a grip of steel as he led her down the aisle and out upon the street. He could feel the shudders that ran through her body, but he did not speak softly, gently, comfortingly to her. She fought back hysteria, her teeth sinking into her lip; her hands clenched until her nails cut her palms. No word passed between them until they were within the shelter of their home. Darnley sat down stiffly in a chair, but she neither sobbed nor covered her face with her palms. She stared straight ahead of her. Grandpa Carfax made a shrill, whistling sound through his teeth.

"I calc'late you'll be wantin' to clear out of here," he said finally.

"Yes."

"Don't blame ye. Aim to be one of them artists' models?"

"Yes."

"Go git ready," he ordered.

"Grandpa — are you — are you throwing me out?" Her voice was pitiful. "Do you believe that lie? Are you throwing me out?"

"To be sure," said Grandpa Carfax, "like I'd throw ye out of a burnin' buildin'. Go 'n' pack."

"I—I can't leave you to face this," Darnley protested.

"Better be sorry fur them I aim to face," he said. "Go 'n' pack."

She went to her room and filled her trunk and a suitcase. Then, walking as if in a dreadful dream, she went down again to the old man. He had uttered no word of sympathy, made no effort at consolation. He might, even, be on the side of the preacher after all.

"Takes money to git started in New York," he said as she entered the room. "Here's some to travel. Go to the Woolsack Hotel. I'll mail ye an ample check tomorrow."

"Thank you, Grandpa," she said.

Suddenly he bent over her. She was conscious that the thing he was doing was hard to do and he did not do it well. For the first time in her life that she could remember her grandfather kissed her. "Whenever trouble busts loose," he said gratingly, "jest bear in mind it's you and me agin' the world."

The old man drove her to an adjoining town where a train for New York could be had. He put her on the train. "Headstrong, like your pa," he said. "Don't waste no common sense till ye come to an emergency."

"Good-by Grandpa—and thank you."

"Schucks," grumbled Grandpa Carfax.

• •

Darnley primped in the ladies' room of the Pullman. For she meant to make her first entrance into New York looking her best. She worked on her hair, saw that her make-up—of which she needed to use very little—was efficiently put on. When she was through there was little of the rural or bucolic in her appearance and the gentlemen in the car, as they waited for the train to draw into the station, eyed her with marked admiration.

Darnley was one of the last to leave the train. She followed her porter for what seemed an interminable distance along the concrete platform. As she walked along she saw some sort of activity beside the most modern of trains. There was a group of men bustling about lights on iron standards; there were a couple of cameras, but, most exciting of all to Darnley, there was a girl. She was a beautiful girl, very exact as to coiffure, with lipstick applied as if it had been done with precision instruments. She stood by the entrance to the car in an indifferent bored pose and seemed quite unaware that activity surrounded her.

What with the photographers and their paraphernalia, Darnley understood the situation. Here was one of those commercial picture-takers Peter Orrick had told her about, and the girl was a model. An actual model in the flesh!

"Wait a minute," Darnley said to her porter, "I want to watch."

She stood and studied the other girl. One of the men—and patently in charge of them—was a tall person in a dilapidated hat that he wore at a careless angle and trousers that might have been pressed with advantage to themselves. He talked a great deal, as if he liked to hear his own voice.

"Now, Marie," he said, "if you can discontinue your week-end with the polo set I wish you would take some kind of pose over by the door there."

Marie moved languidly to the door and stood indifferently.

"What," asked the young man, "does a member of the upper classes do just as she enters a streamliner?"

"You're taking this picture," said Marie shortly.

"But not very rapidly."

One of the cameramen interjected, "Why not have her just stepping aboard with that little weekend bag in her hand and turning as if she were going to say goodbye to someone?"

"Now, there's an epoch-marking thought, Tony. Originality's the hallmark of our shop. Hey, Marie, why not do something natural for once?"

"I'm here to pose, Mr. Farrish," said Marie. "If you'll tell me what to do I'll do it."

"You might start by picking up that weekend bag."

"I wouldn't be carrying a bag. The porter would have it."

"They toil not, neither do they spin," quoted Mr. Farrish. "Well, you're a different kind of a debutante. In fact, you're almost human. You sympathize with porters, so you carry your own little bag."

Marie sniffed, looked disdainful, and picked up the tiny case.

"Maybe it's got your jewels in it," said Farrish, "and you can't bear to have it touched by plebeian hands. Now step across the threshold, as it were, and then look back over your shoulder."

Marie stepped, tilted her chin regally and looked back at the cameras and then her foot seemed to slip and she crumpled to the floor with a thrill cry of pain.

Farrish ran to her anxiously. "Now what?" he demanded without sympathy.

"I—I've sprained my ankle," she said.

He lifted her to her feet and she moaned and sank to the floor again.

"I can't stand up," she moaned. "It hurts. I can't bear it!"

"Listen, Marie; this is one time you've got to take it. You can stand long enough to get this picture. We've got twenty minutes left before this dingus pulls out of here."

"I can't," she said, "and I won't."

CANADIAN NAVY GROWING

Ottawa, Jan. 15 —(CP)— Navy Minister Macdonald disclosed at his press conference Friday that the Royal Canadian Navy, with it 80,000 men and women, 250 combat ships and 450 ships of other types, was reaching the peacetime strength of the Royal Navy. At the outbreak of war the Royal Navy had a strength of 100,000.

Changes Suggested In Poultry Policy To Federal Gov't

Ottawa, Jan. 15 — (CP) — Suggested changes in national poultry policies and proposed methods of finding a market for poultry products after the war demand passes were ready for study by government officials today after approval by the National Poultry Conference Friday night.

The three-day conference ended just before midnight after strenuous activity by 10 committees formed by the 100 delegates from coast to coast.

Extensive changes in poultry policies were recommended, and Dr. G. S. H. Barton, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, said some of them might be "castles in the air" at the moment but all would receive close study.

The conference recommended that a four-year egg contract with the United Kingdom be sought at prices similar to those now paid under a one-year agreement.

Recommendations Made

Other recommendations were:

1. A Dominion board to purchase poultry products surpluses.
2. Arrangements for training persons leaving the forces in poultry husbandry.
3. A survey of possible postwar markets in the United Kingdom for dried eggs.
4. Advertising campaigns to maintain home markets after the war.
5. Floor prices for poultry products payable to the producer at grading stations.
6. The sale of all poultry on grade to maintain quality.

Prospects Not Good

The conference was informed that prospects were not good for early export of numbers of breeding stock or hatching eggs to Europe, as other food sources would have preference in first relief shipments.

By vote, the conference accepted the suggestion that all approved flocks should be tested for pullorum disease by government inspectors.

Government agencies should encourage the popularity of poultry breeds shown by investigation to be most economical in production of eggs and meat, the conference said.

The Prices Board was advised that a price ceiling on day-old chicks would serve no useful purposes as the price structure had not been abused.

Examination of the relative feeding values of forage crops for poultry was recommended.

A turkey production and market requirements committee received the support of the conference at large in recommending a national turkey committee to seek co-ordination of provincial turkey approval policies.

A floor price of 27 cents a pound to the producer for dressed turkey was recommended, this rate being for Ontario with adjustments for other provinces in light of freight rates.

New York, Jan. 15—(CP)—Maxwell Anderson brought a breath of war to broadway this week with his play, "Storm Operation."

The play is a realistic depiction of an actual war operation, a phase of the North African landings late in 1942. To get the atmosphere, Anderson went to North Africa.

Despite the sincerity of the play and the competence of the acting, "Storm Operation" received a chilly reception from the drama critics. The criticisms ran the range from "dull" and "bad" to "disappointing."

Burton Rascoe of the world telegram, however, recommended it as a play "in which soldiers talk and act like soldiers and not like pantywaists."

Civic Centre: The revival this week at New York's civic centre, popular-priced theatre sponsored by Mayor LaGuardia, was "our town," Thornton Wilder's pulitzer prize-winning play of 1937 which has since been made into a successful movie.

Again, as in the original play and the motion picture, Martha Scott is Emily Webb, the High School girl and young woman about whose romance with George Gibbs and premature death in childbirth the simply-told play revolves.

Capital Closeups

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Jan. 15 —(CP)— War is Hell: Lord De La Warr, the cheerful and fluent chairman of the United Kingdom Agricultural Research, left some sparkling examples of English wartime humor when he completed an Ottawa visit the other day.

In England, the rare oranges are for the young, and cigarettes are for those of mature years.

Lord De La Warr said a 15-year-old boy went to the store in his village and asked for a package of cigarettes.

"Go on out, you're far too young for cigarettes," said the storekeeper.

The boy: "Too young for cigarettes, too old for oranges! Blimey what a ruddy war!"

Progress?: Out of the North comes the story of the missionary who thinks all this talk about wonderful airplanes is the bunk.

The good man decided to visit an air base about 100 miles away, hitched up his dog team, laid in a store of tea for his Eskimo guide and whipped over the snow to complete the jaunt in a couple of days. En route, he wrenched his ankle, and the hospitable airmen said he must stay and rest and they'd fly him home.

Grateful, the missionary sent the Eskimo home with the dog team.

Recovered, an airplane took him over the Mission in half an hour, but the ice was rough and they couldn't land. So they went back to the base. A few days later they flew back and the fog was so thick they couldn't land.

A third time they flew over and again the fog made a landing impossible.

The missionary got on the radio that night and asked the Eskimo please to come back from the Mission with the dogs. He finally walked home with the team, facing the chill wind and the drifting snow, and muttering.

Coal Factor: There has been a suggestion in the United States that as aluminum purchases are decreased home plants should have to suffer less than the Aluminum Co. of Canada which operates a large plant and power development at Arvida, Que.

One reason for their opinion is that a considerable part of United States aluminum production is made possible by power generated from plants using coal. Coal supplies are limited in the United States as well as in Canada, while the waters of the Saguenay river which turn the turbines at Arvida, are unlimited. Therefore, these authorities say, both Canadian and United States plants using Hydro power are likely to keep their aluminum orders longest.

Not So: A story going the rounds among the thirsty has been nailed.

Those who found liquor restrictions onerous repeated a yarn that the one cabinet minister fighting the controls was Finance Minister Ilsley. His objections were said to be on two counts: 1. That substantial government revenue came from liquor sales; 2. That when people spent money on liquor they were not using it to crack the price ceiling on more essential goods.

But Mr. Ilsley has let it be known he has not been fighting the liquor restrictions and fully agrees with the cabinet policy.

These English-Speaking Vampires at Lisbon Are Not British, and the "Lame Venus" Who Seeks Out Jewish Refugees Has a Secret Mission

(By Melville Williams, Writing from Lisbon, Portugal, to the Milwaukee Journal.)

This is not a large capital—there are not quite 800,000 inhabitants—but to day it is the finest tuned international listening post in the whole world.

I will try to give as vivid a picture as I can of the various listening posts plus the picturesque personalities who represent the clashing interests which tend to make Lisbon a ringside seat.

Look at them as they come:

Here is our latest arrival; M. Clarac, something of an exquisite. He is the personal ambassador of Gen. Henri Honore Giraud, commander of the French military forces.

The little lady so beautifully dressed? She is the Countess de B. She looks after the personal interests of Marshal Henri Philippe Petain. She is Swiss.

Pierre Laval? Of course, he, too, has his personal ambassador here, listening in. That "portly capon" yonder is here on behalf of Laval. His name is Jules Sauerwein, one of the best known French journalists.

Am I neglecting the ladies? I am sorry I cannot show you beautiful vampires who smoke foreign cigarets and stick secrets in their stockings. Wait a minute, though. Over there, the tall blonde, who walks with a limp and a stick; she must have been very good looking not so long ago. Yes, we know her. Her job is to hang around a certain cafe in Rossio square and contact German Jewish refugees and tell them there was a whole lot of misunderstanding, so why not think it over, etc. Her nationality? What does it matter? Her English is excellent, but then so is her French; her Portuguese is weak, and how natural that it should be. Because is she not a refugee herself? Where from, did you ask? Well, I wouldn't know about that.

And now come a group of jack-tars, just off a warship here for a few hours. My, my, but aren't the ladies busy? Those two slim blondes who talk such excellent English are two secretaries from the German embassy. The jack-tars came ashore and, sailors being sailors, they began buying up the water front. Jack began to buy bananas; he bought pineapples and oranges; he was assailed by bootblacks. Then came the ladies.

Jack ashore most probably would have been surprised to learn that the ladies who spoke such good English, were not English, just Jerries. That evening in the club, after the ship had sailed, one of the secretaries of the American legation said: "An hour after that ship got in, there wasn't a single English speaking female on duty in the German embassy".

When an English convoy gets in, other ladies get busy. They know the bars where there is the best beer; they know this, that and the other, and their knowledge of English is enough to get by with. What do they get to know? Do they learn anything? I cannot and would not if I could, answer that question. Haven't you ever picked up a dud station on your wireless set?

Sometimes an observation and listening post provides a neutral ground where both sides may get to know things. Such a place is the dressmaking salon of Frau B., who calls herself Mme. X. She is a non-Jewish refugee from Vienne. In her salon ladies of the legations meet but do not speak unless they are on the same side of the blanket. Madam must pick up quite a few interesting crumbs of information.

Yves Chatel has a nice flat and such nice offices here. Why has he offices in Lisbon Oh, says M. Chatel don't you know I am very interested in the French Red Cross? Very, very laudable, but M. Chatel also is the accredited representative of the comte de Paris, the pretender to the throne of France, and Lisbon is such a good listening post.

The comte de Paris is a Bourbon, but there is another Bourbon in the field, Prince Xavier de Bourbon, who is working quietly behind the scenes and whose activities make M. Chatel's earphones work overtime.

But Austria has another listening post in Lisbon. Herr L represents what is called "free Austria". He seems to be on the best of terms with the United Nations, although his lady friend is Frau von N of the German legation. Frau von N is an assiduous customer of Mme. X the French dressmaker from Vienna whose salon is such an amusing listening post for the ladies from the legations.

Britain still does quite a business with Portugal in tweeds. There is a certain Portuguese tailor in this city who makes suits of British tweeds for the Germans. This may merely show excellent discernment on the part of the Germans. Not only do these Germans speak excellent English and wear British tweeds, but they show a nice taste in British pipes. British pipe tobacco and British cigarettes. Close to the port there are bars which call themselves British, English and American; they are not owned by the citizens of either country, but here you may find the Germans wearing their British tweeds, smoking their British pipes and cigarettes. One can draw one's own conclusions.

Also in exile at Estoril, outside Lisbon, is the 79-year-old Spanish Republican leader and former premier, Alexandre Lerroux. He listens in, too, but he has no illusions. He stops and he looks and he listens. "Ah", he says, "Don Alfonso (King Alfonso) wasn't such a bad chap after all".

Quite an admission for a Republican.

To return to the tall blonde with the limp, whom, we know as the "Limping Venus", the name she uses here is Senhora da Silva; she has a Portuguese passport. Her work, as I said, is to contact German Jewish refugees. There is just a little more information about the "Limping Venus" which may be revealed, and that concerns the manner in which she came into the German service.

She was living in a good second rate hotel and was asked to leave because she was leading "a scandalous life". (Lisbon since Salazar is a very austere city.) She owed a bill of $75 and could not pay. The Germans paid. Shortly afterward she obtained a visa to go to Germany, "to consult a German specialist about her hip".

The "Limping Venus" limped back to Lisbon and began to turn her charm on the refugees. The beautiful blonde spider in the Nazi net.

Says Hirohito Heads The List Of Arch Criminals

(The article below combats the idea that the Japanese Emperor has been opposed to war and is merely a tool in the hands of the war lords. It holds that Hirohito must be brought to justice and punished as the arch-criminal responsible for the whole Japanese scheme of world conquest by armed aggression.

From Contemporary China, published by the Chinese News Service New York.

When the arch-criminals of World War II are rounded up and made to answer for their crimes against humanity, Hirohito's name no doubt will head the list.

The millions of men, women and children in devastated China, the tortured Philippines and the plundered East Indies will not be satisfied merely with the punishment of a few of the Mikado's underlings to expiate the crimes committed at his explicit order and with his full knowledge.

They will demand the death of the Mikado, who has caused the death of so many of their fathers, mothers, wives and children.

They will clamor for the confiscation of the Mikado's vast properties in partial compensation for the homes he has burned, the villages he has sacked, the cities he has destroyed.

After all, they will insist on the removal of the absurdly outmoded system of Mikadoism which has been at the bottom of the whole Japanese scheme of world conquest by armed aggression.

For the assurance of world peace and the safety of mankind after these terrible years of suffering and sacrifice, one of the first conditions is clear: The mikado must go!

While other nations in times past have made much over the divine right of their rulers, and Chinese Emperors used to speak of holding the decree of heaven, no nation in modern times has deliberately maintained the fiction of divine descent in the person of its ruler. The myths and legends of this type may make interesting fairy tales to tell of a winter's evening, but when they are taught as serious history in a nation's schoolrooms, they constitute a dangerous seed of international wars. A people accustomed to follow blindly the orders of a half-god monarch is not prepared to take part freely in the affairs of a peaceful world.

The development of modern Shintoism in Japan is an outstanding example of the exploitation of a people's religion to further the interests of governmental policy.

The Japanese Government requires all the Mikado's subjects, from the Prime Minister down to the smallest school child, to worship at the national and local shrines. These shrines house the spirits of the Imperial ancestors, national heroes and warriors who have died for their country, as well as the numerous gods of thunder, lightning, rain and fertility, and even the deified fox-spirits and spirits of trees and mountains.

The culmination of this state-sponsored pantheistic religion is the worship of the Mikado, during his lifetime as well as after his death. School children are required to bow to a picture of the Mikado each day at school, and everyone passing the Mikado's palace must lower his head in reverence and worship. Since the Mikado is Commander-in-Chief of all the armed forces, every soldier who dies in the war is deified at the national shrine, and thus joins the legion of gods in the Shinto pantheon.

Thus, the people of Japan will never be rid of the shackles of Shintoism, or able to enjoy real freedom of religion, until the whole Mikado system is abolished, and all forms of political coercion removed from the religious worship of the people.

Hirohito has not only known of the plans of his military underlings, but has undoubtedly given explicit approval to their actions, from the invasion of Manchuria to the attack at Pearl Harbor and ever since.

Three months before the attack at Pearl Harbor, Hirohito received his Privy Council, heard lengthy reports from the military and suddenly assumed direct command of the Army in setting up a new defence headquarters for the Japanese homeland.

Since there was at that time no threat from any source of an invasion of Japan, the inference is all too clear that the whole Japanese strategy has been settled and personally approved by Hirohito during those conferences in September, 1941.

When American airmen under Gen. Doolittle's command raided Tokyo in April, 1942, they carefully avoided bombing the Mikado's palace, confining themselves to military objectives. Unfortunately, some of these airmen later fell into the hands of the Mikado's troops.

Some of them were executed in the name of the same Mikado whose life they had so painstakingly protected. It might be advisable for the Allied command to bear in mind the possible disillusioning effect upon the Japanese people of a direct hit upon the palace of their divine Emperor.

Hirohito is probably one of the wealthiest men in the world. His vast holding in the numerous economic interests of his empire could furnish considerable compensation for the immense losses he has inflicted on the peoples overrun by his hordes.

Crusaders' Feat Dwarfs 8th Army Achievement

(By H.P.A. in Windsor Star.)

The achievement of the British Eighth Army in fighting its way from El Alamein in Egypt to the Moro River in Italy since October 25, 1942, represents close to 3,000 miles and over a year of almost continuous fighting, and will stand as one of the proudest achievements of British arms. Yet, as a movement of armed men, it is not to be compared with the First Crusade, when at the close of the 11th century the Christian men of Western Europe succeeded in taking the Holy City from the Seljukian Turks on July 15, 1099, and holding it against Mohammedan opposition for 88 years thereafter.

Most of the Crusaders came from France, Germany and the Norman kingdom of Sicily. Mustering in the West, they had to cross the most of Europe before they crossed the Bosphorus at Constantinople, then in the hands of the Greek Emperors in order to get into action against the Turks, first at Nicaea, just a little way from Constantinople in Asia Minor. From there on to Jerusalem, the Crusaders were obliged to do the same kind of fighting which the Eighth Army has done so well—with organized opposition nearly every step of the way, and strong points to take and overcome. Their problem of supply was far more difficult than that of the present-day British warriors, even when the Eighth Army was fighting in the Libyan desert. The long wars in which the Mohammedans took Asia Minor from the Greek Emperors had left the fertile parts of the country thoroughly ravaged and much of it always had been desert and hard to travel. The Crusaders got some help from fleets sent out from Genoa and other Italian maritime cities. But in the main they were obliged to live off the country. Moreover, they had a great deal of trouble with the Greek Emperor, Alexius, who wanted them to turn over to him any conquests which they might make in what had once been territory of the Roman Empire. His small realm centring about Constantinople was the only fragment left of the huge territory the Emperor Constantine had ruled in the early 4th century.

The Crusaders Army.

The size of the Crusaders army is hard to estimate. Some historians claim that fully half a million men started out from Western Europe, and others believe that there were but half that number. Somewhat over 300,000 might be a fairly correct estimate. It is said that 150,000 got across the Bosphorus to take part in the capture of Nicaea. Hilaire Belloc, English historian, claims that not more than 15,000 knights and foot soliders were concerned in the storming of Jerusalem and the butchering of the garrison. They were led in the final assault by Godfrey de Bouillon, who became the first king of Jerusalem.

The task facing the Crusaders was made all the more difficult by the feudal organization of the armies. In fact there was no army as we know them nowadays, nationally organized and under rigid discipline. Each feudal leader was his own boss, as were the knights and their little bands of retainers who served under the more powerful feudal chieftains. It was a case of everybody pay his own way, and feudal leaders used revenues from their principalities to pay expenses. Moreover, if they got sick of the job or couldn't get along with those who undertook to lead them, they were privileged to turn back and go home, as many of them did. It certainly was not organization that carried the First Crusade through to success. Nor was it territorial ambition. We must look for another motive.

Religion.

This lay in religion. Back in the days before the present outbreak of Nazism proved how an apparently civilized and supposedly Christian nation can relapse into utter savagery, we of the 20th century used to look down on our half-barbarous ancestors of the 11th century. We used to think their profession of Christianity was only skin deep, and that it had taken all the intervening centuries to breing forth a race which fully appreciated the teachings of Jesus and would try to abide by them. But we will have to admit that we were mistaken, at least as to the strength of the ties which held our civilization together prior to the two great wars which have broken out within a generation to menace our world.

The men of the 11th century were truly religious. Their faith meant much to them, else they could not have accomplished what they did. It was emotional dynamite set off by the reports which had been coming from the Holy Land of the treatment of pilgrims by the Turks. Jerusalem, equally a Holy City to the followers of Mohammed as to those of Christ, fell first into Mohammedan hands in 637 when Omar took it. But the earlier Mohammedan rulers were lenient and even made Charlemagne Emperor of the Franks, protector of the Holy City in the 9th century. But the rude Turks were different. As recent converts to Islam, they proved intolerant and the centuries of truce between the two faiths in their mutual Holy City came to a final end in 1071, after the Frankish protectorate had been terminated in 1010. Pilgrims suffered indignities and lost their lives, and that touched off the spark in Western Europe.

The Explosion.

That explosion was strong enough under the preaching of Peter the Hermit and Pope Urban II to send two Crusades ahead of the one which finally reached Jerusalem in triumph. In both, crowds of unarmed farmers and laborers set forth. One was led by Walter the Penniless and the other by Peter the Hermit himself. For the most the peasants who had vowed the cross under the stimulus of Peter's fervid preaching left their bodies along the way to Constantinople. Thousands died in Hungary, where they made war on the Hungarian king. Then, too, there was the fantastic children's crusade, in which thousands of young boys and girls were betrayed and sold into slavery or met far worse fates at the hands of the mariners who were to have taken them to the Holy Land.

Many tales have come down through the centuries of visions seen which stimulated the western knights to victory against superior hosts on the long road through Asia Minor to Jerusalem. Once in Antioch when the Crusaders were hard pressed and near to starvation, Adhemar, bishop of Puy, their spiritual leader who had died a little while before, appeared in a vision to a humble man of the entourage of Raymond of Toulouse and directed them to dig in the old church of St. Peter in Antioch, where they found the spear that had pierced the side of Our Lord at the crucifixion. And they wiped out the great Turkish host of Kerborgha forthwith. All these tales go to prove the underlying motive, without which no such badly organized army could have succeeded.

Remarkable, in view of problems of supply and recruitment and lack of adequate transport, was the holding of the Kingdom of Jerusalem for 88 years after Godfrey de Bouillon took it. This was done through a feudal organization and the building of huge castles at strategic points in Syria. After defeat of the Crusaders in the battle of Hattin in 1187 the castles fell one by one, and finally Sultan Saladin took Jerusalem itself. Many expeditions were sent out after that, but Jerusalem was never retaken by the Christians until General Allenby entered it in the First World War.

The Teutonic Knights.

One of the last of the Crusades is having its repercussions today. It was that of the Teutonic Knights againts the heathen of Lithuania. The Knights took over the country which later became Prussia and East Prussia, and their descendants today form the officer caste of the German army.

One of the means of keeping a Christian hold on the Holy Land for so long in face of the almost insuperable difficulties was in the two great orders of chivalry the Hospitalers and the Knights Templar. Originally organized to aid pilgrims on the way to and from Jerusalem, provision them and care for them in hospitals when they fell ill, the two semi-monastic orders grew great and rich during the Crusades. They built and manned great castles in Syria and on the island of Malta, then as now one of the keys to the Orient.

One of the effects of the Crusade, and a lasting and beneficial one, was that it opened up trade between the East and the West. Traders from the Italian maritime cities followed the knights and their men. They had special privileges in the cities, and out of the Crusade grew the greatness of Venice and Genoa. And when, in the 14th century, another race of barbarian Turks blocked that trade, the merchant adventurers turned west to find a route to the East, and a New World was opened up in the closing years of the 15th century by the discoveries of Columbus.

Look at it any way you like, the Crusades are remarkable. The best way to explain the movement is to compare it to an explosion of pent-up human energy.

Eats Only Luxury On Atlantic Crossing

(By H. M. M. in Windsor Star.)

So the returning Canadian is aboard a ship, bound for home from Britain. It is a big ship. In peacetime it would be a luxury vessel. But there is little of luxury about it just now. Most of that has given way to the grim uses of war.

It does not take long to find that this is to be no pleasure voyage. From the time the returning passenger steps aboard, he is constantly reminded that he is traveling aboard a troopship. That means he is under military discipline and he is never permitted for a moment to forget it.

In the first place, he has no choice as to his accommodation. Herded with the rest of the passengers up to a desk, he is handed a card, when his name is called, which bears the number of his cabin. He finds his way there, and any thoughts he might have had about a pleasant, "homey" voyage disappear.

Ordinarily, this would be a de luxe cabin. The wall decorations indicate that, but little else suggests it. The furniture consists solely of steel bunks, two tiers deep. There are six of them accommodation for 12 people, and they leave only a scant space for moving about and dressing.

There is, of course, a bath, but its usefulness is strictly limited. There is no running fresh water. Even the taps have been removed. The steward explains why. (Yes, there is a steward, the one concession to comfort and convenience. But he is in shirt-sleeves. There are no natty shipboard uniforms in wartime.) On its eastbound crossings, the ship carries troops, fantastic numbers of them. If fresh water were readily available, these throngs would use it up at a rate that would exhaust the supply before the ship was half-way across.

Fresh water is, of course, available, but only at certain widely separated stations about the ship, jealously watched over by the stewards. They carry in a supply each morning, and it is really hot for washing and shaving. It can also be had at other times for baths. And the running salt water, both hot and cold, is always available at the turn of a tap. It really isn't so bad.

The passenger soon learns that he cannot wander at will about the ship. The women's cabins, for instance, are strictly out of bounds. Men cannot even go into the corridors where they are situated. Even husbands and wives are separated, but a husband may obtain a pass to visit his wife in her cabin at certain intervals. These calls, of course, must be carefully arranged in advance, for the wife is quartered with anywhere up to 11 other women, and it is not always convenient or politic for a mere man to barge into such quarters.

Guns No Ornaments.

Certain of the decks are open to passengers, but others are strictly closed off. That is because there are guns there and civilians are not allowed in their vicinity. They are not ornaments. They are grimly utilitarian and determined-looking crews are always in the vicinity.

There are no deck chairs and steamer rugs. The available decks are bare and are usable only as promenades.

The lounge, of course, is open to passengers, and it becomes the centre of all life aboard ship. It is almost constantly jammed. It has comfortable furniture, including a piano, but the chairs and tables are actually makeshifts. The de luxe equipment originally in the big room has been removed and now awaits in storage the return of more normal days.

Smoking becomes a problem, as there are so few places one may indulge in it. It is permitted only in the lounge and on the open decks. It is strictly forbidden in the corridors, the cabins and the dining saloon.

The restrictions are rigorously enforced. Wherever the passenger turns there are military guards. They are armed with policemen's truncheons which look business-like enough to discourage even the hardiest from any idea of insurrection against the regimentation.

On every bulletin board are printed warnings. They tell the people what they must not say when they land in Canada. They are not to tell the name of the ship, the port of departure or arrival, any details of shipping seen in either of these harbors, the time taken in crossing, anything about the armament aboard or the size of the military personnel. In fact, the friends at home, when they become curious, can learn only that the returning traveller crossed on a ship from a British port to a Canadian or American port. The rest of the story must wait until after the war.

The printed warnings are not considered sufficient. Every little while, the loudspeakers situated here and there throughout the ship blare forth with the voice of a mysterious, god-like person who identifies himself as the staff captain. He repeats what is on the printed notices and enlarges on it. He points out that the ship has made many crossings in safety, but this is only because the strictest security regulation have been imposed. Careless talk or actions endanger the whole company aboard, and will not be tolerated.

Then there is the matter of life-belts. The passengers are not only told how to use these. They have to carry them wherever they go. The person who moves ten feet along a corridor without his impedimenta of two kapok cushions fastened together with a rather intricate arrangement of web straps will find one of the boys with truncheons barring his way, with the curt order to go back to his cabin and get his white cotton Old Man of the Sea. One finally gets to feel as if he had been born with the contraption hanging over his shoulder.

The first morning out sirens shriek, and one soon learns that this means boat drill, which takes place daily. Everyone has to double to his station. The men assemble on deck, the women and children in the lounge. There they stay, doing nothing, for a quarter of an hour or more. The men on deck are forbidden to smoke. Then the voice of the Olympian staff captain comes over the loudspeaker, telling them that they may "Break off and smoke", but they must not go inside the ship. The passenger learns that, during this period of enforced fresh air, the interior of the vessel is being subjected to a thorough inspection. Just what is being sought, no one ever finds out, but it is certain that the staff goes through every corridor and cabin meticulously once a day.

"Action Stations"

Finally comes a morning when, shortly after the muster parade, the sirens shriek again, this time with a series of short, sharp blasts. From force of habit, everyone rushes to the deck, only to be met by guards who curtly order all hands below decks. The passenger guiltily remembers that the bulletin board has told him that this signal means "Action stations", and that all except those on duty must stay below.

Huddled in their cabins, the travellers are treated to a tremendous cacophony of sound. Every gun aboard (the number of them, of course, being a military secret) opens up. There are enough to make a terrific din, and they bang away for ten minutes or so, while the more excitable passengers pass the word around that this is "the real thing" and that an enemy bomber has actually been sighted. It is quite a letdown to find that this is merely a routine gun drill, and that it takes place every voyage.

There are compensations, of course, for all the discomforts. Chief among these are the meals. After a sojourn in ration-ridden Britain they are Elysian. There are real fresh eggs, white rolls, oranges and lemons, and what is best of all to a Canadian, coffee made without the British talent for making it look and taste like greenish-hued mud.

The servings are tremendous. The British passengers are wont to remark that they get a whole week's meat ration every meal. One of course, eats too much and suffers for it, the facilities for exercise being strictly limited by the hemmed-in decks.

One does not drink too much. In fact, one does not drink at all. The ship is "dry", strictly so. There is no bar, and no one is allowed to bring liquor aboard. It is rumored that the crew members get their regular rum ration, but that is confidential, below-decks stuff, another military secret.

Prices Amazingly Low.

Other things can be bought, however, in plenty and at amazingly low prices. American cigarets, tax-free, sell for 60 cents a carton of 200. There are chocolate bars and chewing gum, soap and razor blades, all unheard-of luxuries in the country one has just left. Of course, the fact that each passenger has been allowed to bring only £10 out of Britain, which must cover all expenses on debarkation, puts a crimp in the buying.

But there is a library, there is bridge in the lounge (gambling is sternly suppressed), there is usually an impromptu orchestra made up by the sailors which plays sprightly concerts on the heavily shuttered deck in the evening. So, all in all, the trip is not too burdensome. There are friendships to be made, which come easily when half a dozen or more men sleep in the one small cabin.

One of the warnings on the bulletin board adjures the passengers to reveal nothing about the ship's escort. One wonders why that is mentioned. There is no escort. This is a big, fast passenger liner, and it dashes across the Atlantic entirely alone and unprotected, depending only on its speed to outwit and outdistance lurking submarines.

It is a bit of sublime audacity, this figurative thumbing of the nose at the Nazi sea power. And they get away with it.

INVASION PLANS FAR ADVANCED—EISENHOWER

Praises Naval, Air, Supply and Others For Work Done

Tunisian Veteran, Lt.-Gen. O. Bradley, Named Commander U.S. Invasion Forces

NEW BLOWS HINTED

By LEWIS HAWKINS
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Jan. 17 — (AP) — The pre-invasion task in Britain is far advanced, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower disclosed today, even as Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson hinted at new blows in the Mediterranean, possibly into southern France.

This picture of Allied might menacing Hitler from the west and south as well as the east was thrown into sharper focus with announcement that Lt.-Gen. Omar N. Bradley, veteran of Tunisia, has become senior American General under Eisenhower in this theatre.

Eisenhower, in his first press conference as western invasion Commander-in-Chief, warmly praised naval, air, supply and other forces for "the work that has been done in advance of my coming," and lauded infantrymen in the United Kingdom who "are getting themselves ready and toughened for any job that lies ahead."

Gen. Wilson, the new Mediterranean Commander-in-Chief, in his first press meeting at Allied headquarters in Algiers, declared his front extends from the Maritsa river in the Balkans to the Pyrenees, and "we've got to hit home wherever we see the opportunity... if we saw an opportunity for going into southern France, we should do so."

He added he would confer today with Gen. Charles deGaulle.

"With luck," Gen. Wilson said, the Allies will win the war in Europe "this year, but whether we'll finish it this year is another thing." He drew the parallel of a boxer who has won but whose opponent still is on his feet.

Speculation Stirred

Bradley's appointment stirred speculation he would be the invasion commander for U.S. ground forces as opposite number to Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery, who heads the British army group, but there was no official confirmation. Bradley commanded the 2nd. Corps in Tunisia.

Making it clear that preparations were not just starting with his arrival, Eisenhower said:

"I hail the good work of the naval forces, particularly recently when they nailed the Scharnhorst and got those three destroyers in the Bay of Biscay. These were simply dramatic moments — the grand work the navies have been doing is evidenced by all the troops brought to England safely.

"We salute the grand work of the air forces—what they have done by pounding Germany, reducing her military potential and at great risk to themselves and with absolute courage.

A Wonderful Story

"It's a wonderful story—even those parts of the effort that have not been publicized. We should not overlook the good work of base supply nor the fine infantry training and preparing out on the cold moors and on the countryside in mud and rain."

Eisenhower, ruddy and healthy-looking, said "fundamentally, public opinion wins wars," and asked the frankest and fullest possible reporting of operations in this theatre.

"I take it you are just as anxious as I am to win this war and let it be done so we can all go fishing," he said.

Striking strongly at any idea that any apology is called for in connection with Allied efforts in the Mediterranean, he said troops down there "have become extraordinary fighting men—navy, air and ground.

Work as Team

"They work together as a real team. I don't mean only in the higher echelons among the commanders-in-chief working with me, but on down to the different units of the command."

Gen. Wilson said the present objective in Italy is capture of Rome, and that the Allied aim is "to bring the maximum pressure on the Germans wherever we can and with the maximum force we can use."

He added that the possibility of wa rextending into Spain had receded.

7 Anti-Fascists Reported Killed

Berne, Jan. 17 — (AP)—The Milan Catholic newspaper Italia, received at the Italian border, reported today seven anti-Fascists had been executed at Savona. Among them was the noted attorney, Renato Wiullermin, a leader of the Catholic Popular Party before the dictatorship and a secret organizer of the anti-Fascist Christian Democratic Party.

The Fascist newspaper, Republica of Florence, announced that Aldo and Mario Crespi, proprietors of the newspaper Corriere Della Sera of Milan had been arrested on charges of aiding Italian Partisans.

$30,000 Damage Caused by Fire C.P. Roundhouse

Chapleau, Ont., Jan. 17.—(CP)—E. S. McCracken, Canadian Pacific Railway superintendent of the Algoma district, said today damage estimated at $30,000 was caused to the C.P.R. roundhouse and repair shop here by fire which swept through the large building yesterday.

McCracken gave no estimation of the damage to 13 locomotives, six of a transcontinental type, which crewmen were unable to remove from the roundhouse because of the burning roof over the turntable.

C.P.R. officials in Toronto placed damage to the engines at between $6,000 and $7,000, stating there was no damage to the boiler room, machine shops or stores. There was no delay or interruption in the handling of traffic, they said.

A large frame bunkhouse and the three-storey Young Men's Christian Association building near the roundhouse were saved from the flames. About 150 men and women are employed at the roundhouse.

The fire followed a flood of sparks through the smoke stack system after an engine fire box had blown out, McCracken said, adding there was no indication of sabotage.

Cabs of the engines must be rebuilt, the electric wiring replaced and moving parts tested for crystallization, he said. Value of the locomotives was placed at $2,000,000, with the buildings valued at $100,000.

Reconstruction of the roundhouse will be started immediately, he said, and in the meantime repair work will be transferred to Schreiber.

BIG ORDER PLACED

Montreal, Jan. 17—(CP)—Orders have been placed by Canadian Pacific Railway for 70 locomotives and 2,140 freight cars, it was announced here today.

Contracts were let, the announcement added: to firms here, Kingston and Hamilton, Ont., and New Glasgow, N.B. Freight cars ordered include steel-sheathed box cars, tripple-hopper and gondola cars and refrigerator cars.

REMOVE RECORDS

New York, Jan. 17 —(AP)— All Rumanian ministries have started moving their records from Bucharest in fear of Soviet columns driving toward the country, the Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter said in an article reported to the United States Office of War Information Saturday night.

Reports on Activities of Canadian Army in Italy Praised by Official

Ottawa, Jan. 17—(CP)—Canadians receive as thorough and clearcut a report on the activities of their army in Italy and Sicily as the people of any country have yet received on forces overseas, Joseph W. G. Clark, chief of information for the Armed Forces, said last night on his return from a lengthy visit overseas.

This happened, he said, despite many difficulties encountered by the war correspondents and the public relations officers in the forces.

Areful and detailed plans have been made for reporting Canadian participation in the new invasion of Western Europe now believed to be in prospect, he added.

With the experience gained in the Mediterranean theatre he was sure the arrangements would work smoothly and that Canadian newspapers will receive a steady flow of live news from the fronts on which Canadian forces are engaged.

Mr. Clark had high praise for the newspaper and radio correspondents with the army and for the public relations officers with all three services.

In North Africa, Italy and Sicily he found air force public relations officers doing a "great job" covering air activities which war correspondents could not cover.

nI London, Northern Ireland and in the Mediterranean area he found naval public relations officers covering news of the Canadian navy and extended co-operation to newspaper correspondents.

Clark's 5th Army Opens Offensive On 30 Mile Front

SOVIET WILL NOT NEGOTIATE WITH GOV'T OF POLAND

Diplomatic Break Of Last April Is Cited As the Reason For Decision

CHARGE IS STUDIED

By A. I. GOLDBERG
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

London, Jan. 17 (AP)—The Soviet government, interpreting the Polish statement of Jan. 14 as a rejection of its offer to negotiate a new Russian-Polish border on a Curzon line basis, emphasized today it could not "enter into official negotiations with a government with which diplomatic relations have been interrupted."

Moscow's short sharp reply also revived the Katyn forest mass graves accusation by Nazi propaganda Minister Goebbels last April with a reminder that Polish recognition of the charge caused the diplomatic break.

Hard on the heels of this response Moscow announced in another broadcast—both of which were recorded here by the Soviet Monitor—that a Russian state commission now is investigating "the murder of Polish officers and prisoners of war killed by German occupationists in the Katyn-Smolensk district."

The Moscow broadcasts received the immediate attention of the Polish government, which was expected to summon a cabinet meeting during the day. Some Poles in official circles, who have been frankly pessimistic of reconciliation, regarded Moscow's tone as substantiating their fears that Russia is not willing to negotiate with the Polish government in London under British-American mediation.

The only ray of hope apparently was the fact the Russians did not say flatly they would not resume diplomatic relations, but it seemed likely government would have to be reshuffled to be acceptable to Moscow—a move which would cause bitter controversy in the Polish cabinet.

The Soviet statement, replying to the Polish note of Friday which asked British-American help in bringing Poland and Russia together, referred to the diplomatic break as caused by the Poles acceptance of Goebbels' charges and declared the graves were filled "by German occupationists."

Earlier last week the Soviet government offered to negotiate the border problem on the basis of the line drawn in 1919 after the first Great War by an Allied commission headed by Viscount Curzon, British Foreign Secretary. By this suggestion, Russia would retain most of the contested territory, but at the same time Moscow urged that Poland expand westward, taking certain German territory.

Statement Issued

"In the Polish declaration the question of the recognition of the Curzon Line as a Soviet frontier is entirely evaded and ignored, which can only be interpreted as a rejection of the Curzon Line," said the Moscow statement distributed today by the news agency Tass. London still is Marjan Kukiel, war minister, who signed a communique April 16, 1943, declaring 15,000 Polish officers and soldiers were missing after the Russian occupation and asking a Red Cross investigation of the German propaganda charges.

Expanded Russo-American Relations Expected After War

Toronto, Jan. 17 — (CP) — Expanded and advantageous peacetime relations between the United States and Russia were foreseen by Ray Atherton, United States Ambassador to Canada, in a speech here today.

The Moscow conference of foreign ministers, in its declaration for a general international organization open to all peace-loving states on the principle of sovereign equality, gave expression to the "fundamental idea which guides the American government in all its discussions of international relations."

Mr. Atherton spoke at a luncheon meeting of the Canadian Club. It was the first of several speeches he is scheduled to make in a brief swing round Ontario during which he will visit various war industries. Other speeches will be made at Hamilton, tomorrow; London, Wednesday and Niagara Falls, Thursday.

"During our Civil War when the whole question of the existence of the federal union hung in the balance Russia proved to be our best friend among the great powers," he said.

"Our arrangements with Russia over Alaska were mutually satisfactory. The national interests of each country neither impinge upon nor do they conflict with those of the other.

"With such a background, speaking as an American, I am convinced that the present Russo-American military collaboration will be the forerunner of greatly expanded mutually advantageous peacetime relations which will make easier the task of organizing and maintaining the world peace that so concerns us all."

Drive Wedge Five Miles Deep on Nine Mile Front in 3 Days

CLOSE TO ROVNO

London, Jan. 17 (CP) — The Russians have launched a powerful new offensive in the north, cutting the Novosoklinki-Dno railway south of Lake Ilmen, while in another area the three-week sweep that carried Nikolai F. Vatutin's 1st. Ukraine army 55 miles inside pre-war Poland resulted in the death of 100,000 Germans, Moscow announced today.

The Soviet communique said the Russians in the north had driven a wedge nine miles wide and five miles deep into the German lines in three days. A total of 40 localities was taken in this new drive 70 miles east of the Latvian border in an area which is a main link in the Nazi effort to climb to siege lines near Leningrad much farther south.

German propagandists reflected alarm over the new development. Any large-scale Russian success there might cause Finland to quit the war.

The 100,000 casualties, nearly 5,000 daily, occurred on just one of the five major fronts. In addition to inflicting them, Vatutin's troops destroyed 2,204 German tanks and 1,174 guns and captured 7,000 Germans in the period between December 24 and January 13. Huge quantities of supplies also were captured.

The communique also disclosed that Soviet troops were less than 19 miles from Rowne (Rovno) a big rail and highway junction in Poland. were 55 miles inside the former Polish frontier in a drive toward Kovel from Sarny and were about 47 miles from the old border in a parallel drive through the swamps of lower White Russia toward Pinsk.

DEATH TOLL IN SAN JUAN QUAKE MAY REACH 1,600

Survivor Says Tremor Struck Mighty Blow Cutting City at Roots as if by Scythe

AID QUICKLY MOBILIZED

Buenos Aires, Jan. 17 — (AP) — A survivor of the disastrous earthquake which wiped out the picturesque Andean city of San Juan during the weekend, killing and injuring thousands, said today the tremor struck one mighty blow, "cutting the city at the roots as if by a scythe."

The survivor, Moises Rudman, said the quake came without warning and in an instant plunged the city of 30,000 into total darkness. Hundreds of survivors huddled in the city square and open spaces, he added, while others sought to extricate the dying and the injured whose screams were heard in the dark.

Troops and other rescue workers were digging additional bodies from the ruins of the dead city today as the nation mobilized aid for the survivors of Argentina's worst earthquake in 83 years. By official count 500 bodies have been recovered so far, but estimates on the total number of dead mounted to between 1,400 and 1,600.

Calls Cabinet Meeting

(President Gen. Pedo Ramirez of Argentina has called an emergency cabinet meeting today to consider additional measures for relief and reconstruction of the city, the Buenos Aires radio said in a broadcast heard by U. S. government monitors. Ramirez will lead a party of officials to make a personal inspection of the city, the broadcast added.)

Authorities said 90 per cent of the buildings in San Juan, which was jolted by four shocks Saturday night and Sunday morning, were destroyed and none of those left standing was habitable. The quake crumbled modern, steel-reinforced structures, such as the city hall and other government buildings, as well as the twin-spired 18th century cathedral and other older buildings.

Injured Tax Hospitals

The injured — one estimate placed the number as high as 13,000—taxed the hospitals of Mendozan 75 miles south of San Juan, and authorities ordered school buildings converted into temporary hospitals. Physicians and nurses worked without rest amid the debris of the stricken city, administering to the injured. Additional doctors and nurses, and blood plasma, medicine, food and clothing, were being rushed by train, plane and truck.

SOFIA STILL SEAT OF GOV'T

New York, Jan. 17 — (AP) — The Hungarian radio said today it had been announced "officially that Sofia continues to be the seat of the Bulgarian government."

The German-language broadcast, recorded by United States government monitors, declared that "this disposes of all rumors alleging movement of the government to one or another provincial town, which was exposed as untrue."

A German broadcast last Friday said the Bulgarian government had ordered immediate total evacuation of the city's 300,000 inhabitants as a result of devastating Allied air raids.

RUMOR MEETING HELD TO FIND TERMS OF PEACE

British Officials Know Nothing of Pravda Story, Surprise Expressed

'UNTRUE' SAYS HALIFAX

Moscow, Jan. 17 (AP)—Pravda published a Cairo report today that two "English officials" had conferred secretly with German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop to find terms for a "separate peace" with Germany, and added:-

"It is understood the meeting did not remain without results."

The 10-line dispatch, published at the top of Pravda's foreign news page under the heading, "rumors from Cairo", said the meeting "had the aim of finding out the conditions of a separate peace with the Germans."

It took place "in one of the seacoast cities of the Pyrenees Peninsula"—apparently Spain or Portugal —according to the Commnist party newspaper's report.

The text of the dispatch:-

"Cairo, Jan. 12 (By Special Correspondent of Pravda)—According to information from reliable Greek and Yugoslav sources a secret meeting took place recently in one of the seacoast cities of the Pyrenees Peninsula between two English officials and Von Ribbentrop.

"The meeting had the aim of finding out the conditions of a separate peace with the Germans. It is understood the meeting did not remain without results."

The original Soviet-British agreement on joint war-time action against Germany and their later 20-year Alliance both provide that neither side would make a separate peace.

Pravda's dispatch stirred intense interest and surprise among the Russian public but met with incredulity in Allied quarters.

There were two interesting points about the dispatch:-

1. Although it appeared in the organ of the communist party it was not official and did not even bear the weight of a dispatch of the official news agency, Tass, but was labelled plainly as from special Balkan sources.

The newspaper itself labelled the story as among "rumors."

2. The mere fact of publication of the story was of considerable importance at a time when the United Nations appeared to have been indissolubly joined after the Moscow and Teheran conferences.

British reaction to the Pravda story was to reiterate the repeated British declaration that no peace would be negotiated with the Germans without full accord of all the Allies, including the Russians and Americans.

A British spokesman was inclined to regard the story lightly, raising the question that if it originated in Cairo, why was it not circulated by British and American news agencies as well as Pravda. He expressed doubt that any such report passed the Cairo censorship.

London, Jan. 17 —(CP)— British official quarters said today that they knew nothing of the Pravda' story of reported peace talks with German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and declined further authoritative comment.

It was learned unofficially, however, that Britons here are as mystified by the story and its publication as were British officials in Moscow.

It was felt that the report may have originated from rumors circulating several weeks ago that anti-Nazi Germans in Portugal were seeking to negotiate with Britain.

Washington, Jan. 17—(AP)—Lord Halifax, the British Ambassador, declared today "There is no truth" to the report published in Pravda, Communist Party in Moscow, that two English officials had conferred secretly with German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop on terms of a separate peace.

'Central' Hears Flames Crackling In Nearby Village, Sends Firemen

Niagara Falls, Ont., Jan. 17.—(CP)—An alert telephone operator who heard the crackle of flames in her earphones and summoned firemen was praised today for preventing more serious damage to the Braas Bros. Packing and Cold Storage plant in nearby Stamford Centre, which suffered fire loss estimated at $10,000 yesterday.

Mrs. Lena Reece, night operator, heard the flames after the blaze had eaten through supports of a wall telephone, causing the receiver to fall from the hook. She notified authorities here and directed them to the scene.

Troops Near Steep Banks of Rapido R.; Batter Gustav Line

Forces Storm And Take Mt. Trocchio Last High Ground Before Cassino

KLAGENFURT HIT

By WES GALLAGHER.
Associated Press War Correspondent

Algiers, Jan. 17—(AP)—Attacking along a 30-mile front, American and French troops of Lt.-Gen. Mark Clark's 5th Army reached the steep banks of the Rapido River which runs through Cassino, and have begun battering assaults on the Gustav defence line, main barricade to Rome, Allied headquarters announced today.

The exact penetration where American troops finally pushed up to the Rapido, which runs almost due north and south at Cassino, was not announced. Previously, however, infantrymen had stormed and captured Mount Trocchio, the last high ground before Cassino, whose peak is but two miles from the town, and it was possible that they had thrust on down the slopes to Cassino itself.

The French led by Gen. Alphonse Juin also smashed through precipitous hills and mountains in the Apennines to reach the upper Rapido, having previously captured the village of Cardito and another of the many Mount Croces which dot the Italian terrain.

Close to Cassino

At Cardito and Mount Croce, the French were nine to 10 miles north of Cassino and only slightly east. Lower down the line where they had reached to within two miles of the mountain village of Sant' Elia they were but five miles from Cassino.

The Rapido's high banks have been converted by the Germans into one of the main features of their Gustav line. It has been studded with guns, weapon pits, dugouts and traps, as have the hills and rocky ledges behind it.

Snow and rain squalls swept the mountain areas of Italy and on Lt.-Gen. Sir Oliver Leese' 8th Army front action was limited to a push along the Adriatic coast for a short distance by the Canadian 1st Division and a brush between the Germans and an Indian patrol at San Eusanio, four miles inland. There was some artillery activity.

Messerschmitt Factory Hit

The Mediterranean air war flared with increasing violence as heavy bombers hit the German Messerschmitt factory at Klagenfurt, Austria, 75 miles northeast of Trieste and 150 miles southwest of Vienna.

Airmen in this theatre, thus joining with British-based Allied Air Forces in the campaign to knock the German air force flat, shot their way through a dozen rocket-firing fighters to get at their objective and left the factory sheds and railway siding a bomb-scrambled mess.

Fighter escorts and bomber gunners got four of the enemy fighters.

After peering through the smoke and flame that covered the plant, one pilot said "There will be ample spare parts all over the town of Klagenfurt because I am sure we scattered the factory and its contents."

A German broadcast said damage was caused, but claimed that 18 Allied planes were shot down in this and other actions in the Mediterranean theatre.

Subsidiary Plant

The Klagenfurt works is a subsidiary of the Messerschmitt plant at Wiener Neustadt, outside Vienna, which has been attacked from this area.

Another group of bombers dumped loads of bombs on the airdrome at Villaorba, 70 miles to the southwest in Italy, while still others smashed at Osoppo airdrome in northern Italy and Zara harbor in Yugoslavia to slice down German air strength and interrupt their efforts in the Balkans. At Zara 140 hits were scored in the target area.

Medium bombers attacked rail installations at Orte and Terni, north of Rome, while light bombers hit communications centres at Atina and Formia in advance of the 5th Army battle line.

Fighter bombers hit two merchant vessels off the Yugoslav coast and attacked gun positions near the Arielli river on the 8th Army front.

Eighteen enemy aircraft were destroyed in yesterday's operations. Five Allied craft are missing.

Nine Killed, 30 Injured in Train Wreck in England

London, Jan. 17—(CP)—A toll of nine dead and 30 injured, including three American airmen killed and nine other U. S. soldiers injured, was counted today in the crash of two London-bound trains in the suburban station of Ilford.

Both trains were crowded with hundreds of troops on leave, including a number of Canadian soldiers, none of whom was hurt. Names of injured Americans were not immediately released.

Most of the casualties were in the rear coach of a train from Yarmouth, hit by the Norwich express and catapulted atop the Norwich locomotive. Three coaches of the Norwich train were telescoped and at least two coaches of the Yarmouth train were wrecked.

The ninth victim, Father George Pressanges, fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, died this morning.

It was Britain's worst train wreck in two years. Many of the coaches were wooden.

"All the seats in one coach were tangled up with victims pinned underneath the wreckage," a Police Constable said. "Some of the passengers were trapped under buffers of the following coach which crashed through. We had to jack the buffers up to get the people out."

Among the dead was Maj. Frank F. Heilgers, 51, conservative member of Parliament for Bury St. Edmonds since 1931.

Canadian, American and British soldiers aided railwaymen and civil defence squads in removing the dead and injured from the wreckage.

Death Recalls Strange Story

Holyhead, Wales, Jan. 17—(CP)—Death here of Capt. Lionel J. Manning recalled a strange story of the First Great War involving his son, Lieut. Victor Manning, who was reported to have been killed and buried in France.

Eight years later Capt. Manning and his wife received a letter from a prisoner in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., jail, signed "Victor Manning" and saying he had been imprisoned for forging a cheque. The writer said he had been suffering from loss of memory and appealed for funds to get him out of jail.

A handwriting expert was convinced the writing in the letter and Lieut. Manning's writing were the same and Canadian detectives could not shake the man's story he was Lieut. Manning. To make sure, however, the parents sent another son to Canada whom the prisoner could not identify. The Mannings refused the request for money.

It was learned later the man was a native of the Holyhead district and in a subsequent letter to the Mannings he said he was with Lieut. Manning when he was killed and the spirit of the dead lieutenant must have entered his body.

FRIENDSHIP GROUP HOLDS MUSICAL QUIZ

The meeting of the Friendship Group of Bridge Street United Church opened with a sing-song led by Miss Muriel Semple with Miss Velma Vanderwater presiding at the piano. After the singing of a number of the old and familiar hymns and songs the group was favoured by two guitar solos "Shall We Gather at the River" and "The Old Rugged Cross" by talented Johnny Loewen, now stationed at No. 8 Manning Depot, Trenton. Mr. Alec Gordon accompanied him at the piano. A musical quiz followed. A dainty and inviting lunch was served by the young ladies of the Invictae Mission Circle. The meeting closed with the singing of "Abide With Me". A cordial invitation is extended to all young people away from home especially those in uniform to join with us in these meetings held at the close of the regular church service.

RESIDENTS WARNED NOT TO CROSS ICE

Following a woman breaking through the ice and sinking to her knees in the icy water, police today issued a warning to persons, particularly employees of a local defence plant, who have been in the habit recently of walking across the ice of the Moira River south of the C.P.R. bridge. Apparently the ice in this particular part of the river is thin in places as the result of the current underneath with result that it breaks through unexpectedly. The woman who broke through the ice was not injured in any way and was pulled to safety by nearby persons.

FATHER INFORMED SON WOUNDED IN EYE

Extent of injury suffered by Trooper Everett Woods of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment during recent fighting in Sicily has been ascertained by his father, Mr. W. J. Woods of Chatterton, as being a penetrating wound in the right eye. Trooper Woods was reported as wounded during the Italian campaign just prior to the Christmas holiday and was later listed as seriously ill as the result of his wound. An airmail letter received last week by Mr. Woods from a hospital attendant indicated the extent of his son's injury and although assuring that everything possible was being done, it was not sure the sight of the eye could be saved.

$50 DAMAGE CAUSED BY SMALL BLAZE

Damage amounting to approximately $50 was caused to the residence of Mr. Reg. Wardle, Meyers Street, on Sunday, when fire catching from a false chimney hole burned into a small cupboard requiring assistance from members of the fire department to extinguish. Upon the arrival of the department the small blaze was quickly brought under control, saving the residence from any extensive damage.

On Saturday two alarms were answered, one to James Street for a chimney fire at which no damage was caused, and the other to Cannifton Road to extinguish a grass fire.

MANY SKATERS ENJOY RECREATION ON BAY

Favored with perfect weather, sports lovers of the city and district made splendid use over the weekend of the wide expanses of ice on bay and rivers to get in considerable skating. Again the bay was dotted with skaters in the vicinity of the Government Dock, while many of the more enthusiastic were seen farther afield. The Moira River above Cannifton was also a gathering place for skaters with parties being seen north as far as Foxboro. Iceboating was in vogue on the bay in the Trenton district, it was learned.

BREAD TRUCK SKIDS INTO HYDRO POLE

A bread truck skidded backwards down Murney Street hill on Saturday colliding with a Hydro pole and breaking it off at the base, police revealed today. The bread truck was driven by James R. Grange, of Napanee, and was proceeding southerly on Murney St., when the vehicle came to the Catherine Street intersection, Mr. Grange brought his truck to a stop but the vehicle commenced skidding backwards down the Murney Street hill until it struck the pole. The street was covered with ice resulting in the accident. Utilities Commission employees were notified of the accident and the pole replaced.

CARS DAMAGED IN COLLISION

Driving out of a concession road one mile north of Holloway on the Madoc gravel an automobile driven by Clayton Prest, Holloway P.O., proceeded directly into the path of another motor car, driven by Orville Holden, 95 Station St., Belleville. Considerable property damage resulted when Mr. Holden's car skidded on the icy pavement and was in collision with the Prest vehicle.

Provincial Constable R. M. O'Brien investigated and reported Prest had driven out of the concession road directly in front of Holden's car and giving the latter no chance to avoid collision. Holden was proceeding on the through thoroughfare. A front wheel on the Prest car was damaged, while damage estimated at $200 resulted to the front and side of Mr. Holden's vehicle, Constable O'Brien estimated.

TRUCK ALREADY WHEN ROBBERS APPEAR

It's nice for robbers to walk into a place of business and find a truck already loaded with loot to drive away with. That's nearly the picture that happened in Kingston over the weekend when robbers broke and entered the Kingston Scrap Iron premises and stole a truck laden with valued scrap metal. Also missing were a number of motor vehicle batteries. The truck in an adjoining part of the premises, was gassed and loaded, which was no doubt appreciated by the robbers. District police were provided with a description of the vehicle early Sunday, it was learned here.

BANCROFT MAN FAILED TO RE-REGISTER

Federal police apprehended Hurson Card, Bancroft, on a charge of failing to re-register upon being a person eligible for military call, contrary to the Selective Service Act. Card was apprehended over the weekend by Constable M. A. McNairn of the R.C.M.P. stationed at Belleville. He was later admitted to bail to appear in County police court in Belleville on Thursday.

FENDER, FRONT DOOR DAMAGED IN IMPACT

Property damage resulted when two automobiles were in collision in front of the Hotel Quinte on East Bridge Street early Saturday evening. Sam Pappas, 158 George Street, told police he was proceeding westerly on Bridge Street when another automobile, driven by Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne of Picton, emerged from the north curb, where the point of impact occurred. Damage estimated at $70 resulted to the fender and front door of Mr. Pappas' car while the damage to Rev. Mr. Swayne's vehicle was practically negligible, police reported.

Five H. & P. E. Regiment Men Listed Wounded

Names of five Belleville and Belleville district boys are contained in the 408th Canadian Army casualty list released for publication today. All are listed as wounded, with one remaining on duty.

Only one Belleville boy, Pte. Edwin George Hopkins, son of Mrs. Annie Hopkins, 28 Bettes Street, is named in the list, while two are from Bancroft, one from Picton and the other from the immediate Belleville district. Pte. Hopkins is a member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and is married, his wife residing in Surrey, England.

The two Bancroft boys named were Pte. Floyd Foster Walker, son of Mr. Charlie Walker, and Acting Lance Sergeant Norman C. Mooney, son of Mr. James Mooney of Bancroft. Pte. Walker has a wife overseas, while Pte. Mooney is only slightly wounded and according to the casualty list is remaining on duty.

The Picton boy listed as wounded is Pte. Francis Herbert Franklin, whose wife resides in the Prince Edward county centre, while the other Belleville district soldier wounded is Acting Lance Sergeant Gordon S. Yearwood, son of Mrs. Mary Nobes, R.R. 5 Belleville. All the above wounded are members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

Sergeant Leo Corr Reported Missing

After being on operations for only a very brief period, Sgt. Leo Corr, 25, son of Mrs. J Brown, 212 1-2 Coleman Street, is reported as missing following aerial operations with the R.C.A.F. overseas, according to word received by his mother. An air gunner, Sgt. Corr arrived overseas last November.

Born in Belleville, son of the late Mr. Joseph Corr and Mrs. Brown, Sgt. Corr attended Belleville schools and prior to his enlistment in the R.C.A.F., was a foreman in a defence plant at Penetanguishene. His wife and five months' old child reside in that centre.

Member of Christ Church in Belleville, Sgt. Corr will be remembered as a choir member there before he went to Penetanguishene, a few years ago. After taking training as an air gunner he graduated from the R.C.A.F. training at Mont Joli, Quebec, on October, 15th.

Airman Found Sleeping in Hall

Maybe he wanted to make sure he was in ample time for early morning church service.

At any rate when the sexton entered Christ Church Parish Hall Sunday morning he was greeted with a rather unusual sight. Sleeping soundly and comfortably on four chairs was an airman. Without disturbing the airman the sexton notified police authorities and P. C. Taylor hastened to the scene.

Before awakening the airman, the officer and sexton examined the Parish Hall and adjoining Christ Church but found everything in order. The only damage had been to a sidedoor latch, which the airman had forced open. Upon awakening the airman police learned he was LAC. Donald A. Reeker, K. T. S. stationed at Trenton. Police suspected he was merely "sleeping it off', but at any rate he was taken to the police station, where Reeker agreed to make restitution in the matter of the damaged bolt-lock.

After forcing entrance Reeker proceeded through the Parish Hall onto the auditorium stage, where he arranged four chairs which he used for a bed and was slumbering peacefully and comfortably when the church sexton made his early Sunday morning discovery. Nothing was disturbed or damaged, except the lock-bolt.

Police Recover All Cars Stolen Last Year Annual Report States

Chief Probert Reports 827 Cases Were Heard in Police Court

FEES TOTAL $8,201

Every motor vehicle reported stolen in the city of Belleville during the year 1943 was subsequently recovered, according to the annual police report submitted to the Board of Police Commissioners by Chief Constable R. W. Probert over the weekend.

In addition to the recovery of the twenty-five motor vehicles reported stolen and recovered, the Belleville Police Department also was instrumental in the recovery of three other motor cars reported stolen by other Ontario police authorities. Actually in Belleville statistics show only two motor cars reported stolen in this city for the past two decades have not been recovered, one of which was of little value.

Court cases in the Belleville police court for 1943 showed an increase of 71 over the previous year when 827 cases were heard before the local tribunal.

Only one fatal motor accident occurred on Belleville streets in 1943, that being the case of a pedestrian being struck on Coleman St. as the party was crossing the thoroughfare. Other sudden deaths reported included accidental shooting of a juvenile, one drowning and a suicide.

The members of the Police Commission to whom the annual Chief Constable's report was tendered and received with much satisfaction include His Honor C. A. Judge Cameron, Magistrate J. L. Lloyd and Mayor H. W. Rollins.

Chief Probert's Report.

The annual report of Chief Probert for 1943 reads as follows:—

The Chairman,
Board of Police Commissioners,
Belleville, Ont.

Dear Sir:

I respectfully submit, for the information of the Board of Police Commissioners, my report for the year 1943, including the criminal and other statistics for that period.

There were 827 cases before the court, an increase of 71 over last year. They consisted of 746 males and 81 females.

During the year there were 90 motor vehicle accidents investigated and reported to the Department of Highways. These accidents resulted in 1 fatality and 61 injured, whereas in the year 1942 there were 2 fatalities and 40 injured.

Twenty-five motor vehicles were reported stolen, all of which were recovered. Three stolen motor cars were recovered for other police departments.

There were 153 bicycles reported to the Department as stolen, 129 being recovered and returned to their owners.

106 doors and windows were found to be insecure by the officers on night duty. In each case owners were notified and the premises made secure.

849 dog tags were issued during the year and 320 dogs were destroyed by Thomas Thorn, dog catcher.

The City Fire Department received 267 calls and police attendance was given where required.

There were six sudden deaths reported to the Department: one from drowning, one accidental shooting, one suicide and three from natural causes.

The total amount of fines and fees collected amounted to $8,201.20 all of which was handed over to the Police Magistrate for distribution.

I wish to express my appreciation to Lieut. Col. B. C. Donnan, K.C., Crown Attorney, and his assistant, Mr. S. G. Robertson, for their assistance and guidance in all matters pertaining to law enforcement.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Press and the general public for their co-operation and assistance to the police during the past year, also the Ontario Provincial Police, the Royal Mounted Police and all municipal and other police departments for their co-operation given the Department during the past year.

To the members of the Department, to the City Council and to the City Staff in general I desire to extend my thanks for their splendid co-operation.

In conclusion I wish to take this opportunity of thanking your Honorable Board for the valuable assistance received.

I have the honor to be,
Your obedient servant,
R. W. Probert,
Chief Constable.

POST OFFICE DEP'T. ECONOMIZES ON PAPER

Following the principles of many other government offices, the post office department has now entered the nation-wide paper conservation campaign and is using "economy" envelopes for inter-office communications and other bulletins. The "economy" envelopes are made from salvaged paper forms and comply with the slogan to "conserve paper supplies and help the war effort."

Througout Canada people are being urged to save all paper possible as theis salvaged material is being used to a large extent to manufacture the innumerable types of cartons for the shipment of essential war materials, and for many other uses.

Obituary

TPR. MORLEY SPENCELEY
(Uxbridge)

Memorial Service was held in Uxbridge United Church on Sunday, January 9th., for Tpr. Morley Spenceley, who was killed in action in Italy on December 16th., 1943.

Tpr. Spenceley was the first boy to sign up from Uxbridge, doing so with the Ontario Tank Corps taking his training at Camp Borden and the first casualty from his home town.

Going overseas with the first division, he spent some time in England before seeing action in the Sicilian Campaign.

MRS. MARY JANE WHEELER

Mrs. Mary Jane Wheeler, widow of John Wheeler, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. M. Foster, 65 Octavia Street, on Sunday, Jan. 17th., after a short illness.

The late Mrs. Wheeler had reached an advanced age, being in her 90th year, and it is worthy of note that of her family of eleven children, five sons and six daughters, all are living. Mrs. Wheeler was born at Plainfield and prior to her marriage she was Mary Jane Hines, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hines. For the past two years she made her home in Belleville and prior to that time she lived at Campbellford and Cordova. In the communities where she lived she was well respected.

Surviving her are five sons, Anson Wheeler of St. Augustine, Florida; George Wheeler of Napanee; Frederick Wheeler of Blue Ridge, Alberta; Phillip Wheeler, Bourks, Ontario, and Noah Wheeler of Bourks, Ontario; six daughters, Mrs. Annie J. Grills, Tennessee; Mrs. M. Foster, Belleville; Mrs. Ida Oliver, Saskatoon; Mrs. Charles Wood, Lanark; Mrs. Joseph Deshane, Marlbank, and Mrs. William Kenney, Trenton. Her husband died in August 1929.

2 Airmen Charged With Car Theft

Two airmen from the Mountain View School of Gunnery and Bombing were lodged in the county jail here Monday charged with the theft of a motor car. The pair, AC2. John Neufeld, 18, and James Fowler, also 18, were found sleeping in a 1940 Plymouth sedan in Toronto, on Sunday, after the automobile had been reported stolen at Belleville on Saturday.

William H. Montgomery, Ameliasburgh farmer, reported his motor car had been stolen off Front St., Saturday noon hour. It was a 1940 model Plymouth sedan bearing licence plate number 7-L-444. Mr. Montgomery admitted to police he had left the keys of the vehicle in the ignition, while he was absent across the street. "I was only gone for the matter of seconds", assured the car owner. A description of the vehicle was broadcast throughout Eastern Ontario but no sign of the stolen car was reported until Sunday, when Toronto police revealed they had apprehended two airmen in possession of a motor car they could not produce ownership papers for.

Later it was disclosed that while on patrol Toronto police observed two airmen sleeping in a motor car parked on a vacant lot in east Toronto. Awakening the pair and upon questioning the Toronto authorities learned the vehicle had been taken from Belleville. Later on Sunday it was returned, along with the airmen, by P. C. Wright and a flight-sergeant from Mountain View. The airmen were held on charges of car theft and will appear in city police court Tuesday.

Active Y.M.C.A. Officer Retires

After 40 years of service with the Y.M.C.A., Dr. A. J. Brace resigns today as World Service Secretary of the National Council.

Now 67, Dr. Brace first became interested in the Y.M.C.A. when at 24 he was wounded and captured by the Boers. At the end of the Boer war he returned to the University of Toronto, studied theology and was ordained by the Methodist Church.

His first "Y" work was done in New Westminster, B.C., from 1904 to 1906 while minister of 6th Ave. Church. The five years after that were spent as general secretary in Victoria where he was largely responsible for the building of the Y.M.C.A. building now in use.

China was Dr. Brace's next post and one that he held for 25 years. During the last war he helped the British government recruit 100,000 Chinese to dig ditches and lay wire in France and with the rank of captain helped supervise the work.

He is a personal friend of both Generalissimo and Madame Chiang Kai-Shek and remembers well the day when a note written by Madame Chiang reached his desk asking if she might use the "Y" building in Cheng-tu as headquarters for her New Life movement. He sat down with her and helped draft the first plans.

For making six trips into Tibet, Dr. Brace was given a fellowship by the Royal Geographic Society. His translation of Chinese proverbs has enjoyed wide circulation. Leg injuries received first in the Boer War, then aggravated while mountain climbing forced his return to Canada seven years ago. Since then as world service secretary, he has travelled extensively in Canada and the United States.

Dr. Brace is a close friend of the local secretary, J. E. Shortt. In his visits to Belleville, Dr. Brace has addressed the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs on different occasions as well as filling local pulpits in regular church services. He will be well remembered by many citizens of Belleville.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Disconcerting but not necessarily of great significance is the grapevine rumor published by the communist party newspaper Pravda in Moscow to the effect that two English officials have been discussing a separate peace with Nazi Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop "in one of the sea coastal cities of the Pyrenees peninsula" and that this "meeting did not remain without results."

The only point of importance is why Pravda should publish such a rumor. Both the British and American governments have given their bond that they will not make a separate peace.

Of course, Russian state department couldn't accept responsibility, but Pravda couldn't print such a dispatch without sanction.

Could it be that this is an indirect rebuke to the Anglo-American Allies for their reportedly favorable reception of the Polish reply to Moscow's offer to negotiate the territorial dispute on the basis of the Curzon boundary? The Soviet government has interpreted the Polish answer as a repudiation of its offer, and has declined to negotiate with the Polish government in London on the grounds that diplomatic relations have been interrupted.

Nobody outside Moscow knows the solution to the puzzle.

Allied "home-front" diplomacy sustained one sharp setback over the weekend but at the same time appears to have achieved a striking success in another direction.

The set-back is in connection with the bitter Russo-Polish territorial dispute. The Poles on Friday replying to the Soviet offer to negotiate on the basis of the Curzon Line— that is, approximately the same border established by the Red Army of occupation in 1939—asked for Anglo-American mediation.

Moscow's reply is that the Poles have ignored the Curzon Line offer and the Soviet declares that it cannot negotiate officially with the Polish government in London, in view of the fact that diplomatic relations have been broken.

That seems to leave the imbroglio about where it was —bad but not much worse. Observers clean some hope from the fact that the Muscovites don't say they wouldn't negotiate with a reconstituted Polish government. There are some members of the present Polish government for whom the Russians have a particular dislike. It may be that the opening of negotiations will depend on the elimination of these cabinet officials.

Major Conference With de Gaulle.

As an offset to this unhappy Russo-Polish development there is encouragement for the belief that a major victory may have been achieved as a result of the unheralded conference in French Morocco between Prime Minister Churchill and Gen. de Gaulle, leader of the fighting French.

We are officially informed that these two personages reached agreement on the part the French are to play in the coming invasion of Western Europe. Further, they discussed the vastly-important matter of the establishment of a provisional French Government after the invasion, and reviewed the principal questions in Franco-British relations—and they heve represented some hot spots.

Does this mean that the barbed-wire relations between de Gaulle and the Anglo-American allies finally are to be adjusted? It is to be hoped that it does, for this friction has represented a serious weakness in the allied armor.

PRAISES NAVAL

He expressed the greatest satisfaction with the lieutenants assigned him for the job of smashing into Hitler's fortress. He stressed to a press conference that his is to be an Allied commander of Allied operations, with questions of national prestige subordinated to military efficiency.

On Road to Recovery

He said he was highly pleased to be able to confer en route with both Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt. The Prime Minister, he added, was looking much better and apparently was on the road to recovery when he saw him.

The Allied air fleet's pounding of Germany, the navy's defeat of the submarines and its transport of men and supplies, and the organization of vast stores of supplies and equipment in the United Kingdom all drew praise as essential preliminaries to his job.

Eisenhower's arrival was announced yesterday by the newly-established "Supreme Headquarters of the Allied Expeditionary Force." which disclosed he had conferred with Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt en route to Britain from the Mediterranean, where he recently has been in command.

The bulletin — first to be issued from his new headquarters here — was followed by a United States War Department announcement in Washington that Gen. Eisenhower had spent "a few days" in Washington where he had conferred with President Roosevelt and Gen. Geo. C. Marshall, United States Army Chief of Staff.

Eisenhower said farewell to his Mediterranean troops Jan. 2 after predicting an Allied victory over Germany in 1944.

Staff Virtually Completed

His arrival in Britain virtually completed the army of top-notch Allied military men being assembled here to lead the invasion. Among those already here are:—

Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder, Deputy Supreme Commander; Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, Commander of British Ground Forces; Air Chief Marshal Trafford L. Leigh-Mallory, Allied Air Commander; Lt.-Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, Commander of the U. S. Strategic Air Forces; Gen. Sir Harold Edmund Franklin, Commander in Chief of the British Home Forces; Lt.-Gen. Van Strydonck De Burkel, Commander in Chief of the Belgian Army; Maj.-Gen. H. J. Phaff, Commander of Dutch Forces; Gen. Wilhelm Hansteen, Commander of Norwegian Forces; Gen. Serge J. Ingr, Commander in Chief of the Czechoslovakian Army, and Gen. Kazimierz Sosnkowski, Commander of Polish Forces in Britain.

REPORTS

"Before the assault on Ortona was launched by the Canadians I had a good look at the front from the roof of a house on a ridge overlooking the valley and hillside occupied by the enemy," said Mr. Clark.

"Two hours before dawn the next morning our barrage opened up. Terrific is the only word that fits it. Our men knew that the opposition would be tough and hard, as a crack German parachute division was opposite.

"Enemy resistance was tough, hard and vicious, but the Canadians were tougher and harder, just as vicious and more determined. The fighting in Ortona was from house to house, room to room. It was as grim as war can be and Ortona will be a proud name in the battle honors of many Canadian regiments.

"While much has been written and said about the part Canadian airmen are playing in the daylight raiding of Europe and the merciless bombing of Berlin and other targets in Germany by night, I sometimes wonder if the people of Canada appreciate the full sense of our participation.

"It is far beyond the comprehension of people so removed from contact with the war theatres."

In the Mediterranean theatre, Mr. Clark said he talked to Douglas Amaron, William Stewart and Maurice Desjardins of The Canadian Press; William Wilson of British United Press; Sholto Watt of The Montreal Star; Wallace Reyburn of the Montreal Standard; Maj. Bert Wemp of the Toronto Telegram, Gregory Clark (his brother) of the Toronto Star; Ralph Allen of the Toronto Globe and Mail, Dick Sanburn of the Southam newspapers and J.A.M. Cook of the Sifton newspapers.

He also saw Matthew Halton and Marcel Ouimet of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

While in London, Mr. Clark saw, among other Canadian correspondents, Ross Munro of The Canadian Press.

Have Plenty of Trouble

"They have had plenty of trouble in getting the news of Canadian army operations back to the people of Canada," he said. "But it is well known that the role of a war correspondent in any theatre is dangerous and tough.

"In my opinion the people of Canada got as thorough and clear-cut a report of the Canadian army in its fighting through Sicily and Italy as any country has yet enjoyed since the war began. The people of Canada should take off their hats to the Canadian correspondents.

"The Public Relations Unit in the Canadian army was called upon to provide services for war correspondents under incredibly difficult circumstances. From the lessons learned the hard way it is clear to me that war correspondents from now on can expect keen and intelligent help from our Public Relations officers in the field."

The Canadian Press news, the weekly published by The Canadian Press in London for the troops overseas is highly valued and 6,000 copies are being flown to Italy. Because of demand from the troops the number printed was recently increased by 20,000, which makes a total of about 52,000 copies being distributed among the three services.

Arrangements have also been made for improvement in quality and more rapid transmission of still and motion pictures from the front back to Canada.

To Issue 'Fool Proof' Gasoline Coupons

Toronto, Jan. 17 (CP)—In an effort to halt an increasing flow of illicit gasoline coupons the Oil Controller's offices will issue new "fool-proof" coupons April 1, it was learned here today.

The coupons, or paper specially manufactured for the department, will be colored according to the motorist's category and drivers will be required to write their vehicle's number across each coupon before the service station operator is permitted to sell gasoline.

The book will be bound in such a fashion that it is believed it will be impossible for any person to present a detached coupon.

WEASEL NOT KILLED

Great Falls, Mont., Jan. 17—(AP)—A weasel who lived in the store downstairs kept pestering 81-year-old Mrs. Ella J. Rhone in her apartment over the store. He'd race across her bed and take a bite at her. If something wasn't done she'd lose her mind, she said. Traps and poison failed. A sanitary inspector sealed the building and gave the place a dose of poison gas. The gas killed a mouse and several spiders but apparently no weasel.

New Books, Cash Donations Asked For Book Fund

The National War Service Commission, Ottawa, has sent out an appeal to the women's organizations in Canadian cities and towns to lend their assistance in a concentrated drive to collect 350,000 books to be supplied to the armed forces, especially to equip the libraries aboard Canadian naval vessels. The local I.O.D.E., St. Julien Chapter, are giving their support to this drive and are asking the fullest co-operation from the citizens of Belleville in this work. There is no specified quota to be met from the city, but the chapter members urge that as many modern books be donated as possible. In addition to the one-third of a million books called for by the commission, cash to the amount of $100,000 is also asked. This amount will purchase new books at a cheaper rate than books might be bought by the ordinary civilian and, consequently, more may be obtained for the amount than through the collection method.

If there are any recent books which have been read by everyone in the family lying around in your home, the I.O.D.E. Chapter request that they be given to the Book Fund. Damaged books are not wanted as the books collected and purchased will be put into libraries aboard ships and in army camps overseas and at home, and defaced or damaged books would not enhance the shelves, nor would they last sufficiently long to be of any real worth. If there is only one book which can be spared, the request for it is kindly solicited. Information may be obtained from Mrs. E. J. Neate, 30 Catharine St., or by telephoning 1475-M.

Car Ditched to Avoid Hitting Pedestrian

Suddenly applying the brakes of his motor car to avoid striking a pedestrian, who emerged in front of a bus, a motor car driven by Victor Williams, 25 Russell Ave., Eastview, Ont., rolled over several times into the ditch along Highway No. 2 opposite the Marysville Church early Monday morning. The driver escaped serious injury while property damage estimated at over $100 resulted to the car.

Mr. Williams was proceeding westerly along the highway when he came upon a westbound bus that had stopped to permit passengers to alight. One of the passengers suddenly emerged from in front of the parked bus and was about to cross the highway. In order to avoid striking the pedestrian Mr. Williams was forced to swerve his car sharply to the left, causing it to roll over into the south ditch. Traffic Officer Harry Caldwell investigated.

THREE LOSE LIVES IN FIRE AT HULL

Mother and Two Children Dead, Father Injured as He Dives Through the Window

Hull, Que., Jan. 17 (CP) — A mother and two children died and a father suffered injuries when an early morning fire of undetermined origin destroyed a small two-storey wood and tin house on east-side Garneau Street.

The dead: Mrs. Joseph McKinstry, 32; Roland McKinstry, ten months; Isabelle McKinstry, eight years.

McKinstry was given hospital treatment for cuts on the head and face, received when he jumped through a window. Later he returned to the scene of the fire to elarn that his family had perished.

Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Dussault and their 13-year-old daughter, Jannine, occupants of the house's other apartment, escaped after hearing McKinstry's cries of 'fire.'

The fire started in the basement near the furnace and raced through the house within a few minutes giving all but Mc. McKinstry no time to leap from their beds and escape.

McKinstry said he was awakened by Isabelle's screams. "I noticed the house was in flames and I dove head-first through a window and tried to get help. That's all I can remember."

TRIBUTE TO GEN. HERTZBERG.

New Delhi, Jan 17. (CP-Reuters) —Maj.-Gen. H. E. Roome, engineer-in-chief in India, paying tribute Sunday to the late Maj.-Gen. Charles S. L. Hertzberg, C.B., M.C., V.D., of Toronto, said "the importance of his work can scarcely be computed".

Gen. Hertzberg died of smallpox January 10, exactly three months after his arrival here. He was loaned last October by the Canadian Government to the War Department of the government of India as Inspector of Research and development in rapid reconstruction of airfields with a view to further development of a new process which he and a team of his engineers had introduced, in tribute to him the development will be known as the "Hertzberg Process", Roome said.

ARCHDEACON SCOTT WEAKER

Quebec, Jan. 17 —(CP)— Archdeacon Frederick George Scott, 82, famous padre of the Great War who has been in hospital here since Dec. 24 suffering a lung congestion, took a turn for the worse yesterday and according to hospital authorities, is considerably weaker.

The Royal Bank of Canada Annual Meeting

Morris W. Wilson, President, says any degree of political freedom impossible under wholly planned economy. Challenges socialists to show how public would benefit by state monopoly of banking.

Sydney G. Dobson, Vice President and General Manager, reports bank business at unprecedented levels. Assets reach new peak of over $1,500,000,000.

The threat to the personal liberty of all Canadians, inherent in the plans of the socialists for the nationalization of Canadian industry, was emphasized by Morris W. Wilson, President of The Royal Bank of Canada, at the bank's Annual Meeting.

Mr. Wilson reviewed the tremendous role Canada had played in this mightiest war of all time and the manner in which workmen and enterprises alike had co-operated in it. "Despite this fact," he said, "we are being told by all the publicity methods revolutionary partisans can devise, that in order to win the peace we must change our entire economic system and launch out into new and untried paths, under new and inexperienced leaders. The theorists and visionaries who preach these doctrines of an economic revolution may be thoroughly honest and sincere. But the fact remains that the principles they advocate can only lead, as a final and inevitable result, to a completely regimented economy, and on this point I cannot do better than quote the Editor of the London Economist, a well-known writer of liberal views:

". . . A wholly planned economy "is incompatible with any degree "of political freedom. The possi-"bility of a man's earning his liv-"ing in his own way, without let "or hindrance, is the essential con-"dition of there being any free-"dom of discussion, any freedom to "oppose. If more than a fraction "of the electorate come to depend "for their livelihood upon the tem-"porary masters of the mechanism "of the State—that is, upon the po-"liticians—then democracy is at an "end."

"I am more convinced than ever that the menace of socialistic teaching is one which closely affects everyone in Canada in both his business and private life.

"These advocates of a new order have an astounding scheme, which will result in nothing less than complete regimentation of Canada. As you know, one of their principal objectives, and the first plank in their platform, is to nationalize the banks.

SOCIALIST MENACE

"Naturally, we are interested in preserving our business, in which so many shareholders have invested, and to which so many depositors have entrusted their savings. But even more as citizens than as businessmen, we deplore the rise of this creed, because we firmly believe that implementation of the socialist plan would ruin this generation and set Canada back centuries.

"It is as a citizen as well as a banker that I put before you some further considerations to which I hope you will give your earnest thought.

"The course of the socialist party in Canada has been charted for us in several books which make clear that nothing short of complete socialization of the means of production and finance will satisfy the party. That means domination of every phase of economic life, including agriculture, labor and capital. Therefore, because we all fall into one or other of the classes, it means domination of every individual.

"What would the socialists achieve by nationalization of the banks? Their book on social planning says that they will form one board of directors for the national bank monopoly instead of the ten boards which now operate the competitive chartered banks.

"Socialistic literature suggests that access to the books of the bank and a consequent rupture of the confidential relationship that now exists between bank and depositor, would be of inestimable value in determining taxation policies. But would this appeal to the depositor?

"Furthermore, as we are organized today, a prospective borrower may go from one bank to another if he fails to convince the first banker of his probity, ability and prospects; under the socialistic system, unless the prospective borrower could convince the state bank of the soundness of the project for which he sought to borrow money, and also that the transaction to be financed was in harmony with socialistic party objectives, he would be turned down and would have no other bank to look to for a loan. Do you think that such a system would assure the borrower of as fair treatment as he now receives?

"I believe the answer to these two questions, affecting depositors and borrowers, is a positive 'No.' On the contrary, history and experience lead us to expect that such a government monopoly of banking would lead to favouritism of party adherents. At the same time, we should witness a spread of that sterility of ideas and enterprise which tends to accompany every human activity that finds itself in a position of unchallengeable power."

PRIVATE BANKING BEST

Mr. Wilson suggested that it was not simply due to chance that banking the world over had continued in private hands, but that the people and the Governments had considered it advisable from every point of view that banking should be free of political and partisan influences. He reminded his audience that Canadian banks were already effectively controlled by the Bank of Canada and that further intervention by the Government in the banking business would, in his belief, be superfluous and would not be welcomed by the majority who deal with the banks.

Mr. Wilson again urged business to speak up on its own behalf. "Business will have only itself to blame if, through inaction, it vacates or fails to occupy fields of activity into which it later finds that public opinion has forced the Government to enter."

Mr. Wilson saw no reason for approaching the post-war era with any defeatist attitude and declared that the same energy, initiative and selflessness which had developed in the war years, could be used for constructive purposes after the peace.

In all plans for the rehabilitation of devastated countries the United States and Canada would be looked to as leaders, he said.

POST-WAR REHABILITATION

"I personally believe that large outright gifts of food, raw materials, finished goods and machinery to backward and devastated countries will in the long run, and even from the most selfish point of view, not only contribute most to human welfare, but both in the short and long run be in the best interests of those nations which can afford to make the gifts.

"If this is too much to expect of human beings in their present stage of development, the alternative must be loans on a very large scale on long and easy terms, or probably, a combination of both loans and gifts."

GENERAL MANAGER'S ADDRESS

Sydney G. Dobson, Vice President and General Manager, in reviewing the bank's Balance Sheet said that the volume of business passing through the bank's books had been unprecedented during the past year. Total assets now exceeded $1,500,000,000, an all - time high in the history of the bank.

He reviewed at length the part played by the banks in assisting the country's war financing.

"There appears to be a misconception in the minds of some people that the banks purchase a substantial portion of the Government public issues and increase their earnings in this manner. This is not the case. During 1943 two Victory Loans were issued, realizing $2,692,000,000. The 4th. Victory Loan floated in May last was purchased by 2,669,000 subscribers and the 5th. Victory Loan in October, by over 3,000,000. In neither loan did the banks buy bonds for their own account. While there is naturally some change in the holdings of the original subscribers, relatively only an unimportant amount found its way into the banks.

"In common with the other banks, we have done everything possible to make these Victory Loans a success. Managers have encouraged customers to subscribe or to increase their subscriptions. All depositors considered capable of subscribing for an amount of $50 or more have been written to and advertisements have been inserted in the press urging depositors to subscribe to the full extent of their ability."

EARNINGS MODEST

Despite the tremendous increase in the business of the bank, earnings were modest, said Mr. Dobson. "I think that any fair-minded person will agree that the $2,100,000 paid to shareholders last year was a very modest amount to be paid to the proprietors of the bank, when we consider the size of the organization and the tremendous amount of business it is necessary to handle in order to earn that amount. Any other type of business working with assets of one and a half billion dollars would have been able to earn for shareholders a considerably larger return. If we consider this yield in relation to our two main earning assets, loans and investments, we find that the dividend paid to our shareholders was less than 1/5th of one cent on the dollar on the total of these two items, a very trifling handling charge, to say the least. I have never heard the claim made that Canadian banks are not efficiently run, therefore the answer must be that the profit in banking is small.

Mr. Dobson reported that the progress made by the bank's South American branches had been particularly gratifying and that its foreign branches were in a position to be of practical aid in promoting post-war trade.

The General Manager remarked on the efficient manner in which the bank's staff had dealt with tremendously increased business and provided new wartime services despite enlistments, and paid tribute to the enthusiasm and ability of the many young women who have joined the bank since the war began.

2,123 ENLISTMENTS

"The voluntary response of our staff to our country's call has been magnificent," said Mr. Dobson, "and there are now 2,123 men in the armed forces. Of this number 2,009 were employed in Canada, which is equivalent to 69% of our Canadian staff of military age at the outbreak of the war.

"To these men the bank pays a portion of the difference between their bank salary and service pay. They retain their membership in the Pension Fund Society, and the bank pays their group insurance premiums. We shall welcome them when the time comes for them to return to their duties in the bank.

"Unhappily the number of casualties has doubled since I last reported to you; 67 of our young men have now given their lives in the cause. Their names, which we hold in honour, appear in the printed records of this meeting, and we extend our heartfelt sympathy to their families."

Maj.-Gen. Vokes Now Commanding Canadian Division

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent

With the Canadians in Italy, Jan. 17 — (CP Cable) — Maj.-Gen. Chris Vokes, officially disclosed to be commanding a Canadian division in Italy, told correspondents recently that Canadian troops had fought successfully despite the difficult conditions of the cold weather campaign faced by the Canadian 1st Division.

The 39-year-old Vokes, Canada's youngest general, said the Germans had been fighting a rearguard action with heavy fire-power but the Canadians kept them back-tracking despite the strength of their positions.

Canadian equipment had stood up well and Canadian-built transport was still in good condition, he said.

Asked if Canadian weapons stacked up with German arms, particularly rapid-fire light machine-guns, the General replied: "The proof of the pudding is in the eating — we have pushed them back."

Vokes said the Germans had enjoyed some advantages of long-range artillery in the last stages of one advance but their positions had been successfully engaged on one occasion by heavy anti-aircraft guns employed as long-range artillery.

Vokes, who commanded the western infantry brigade in Sicily, described the Italian fighting as somewhat like the hill warfare of the Leonforte and Aderno advance in Sicily.

EXPRESSES THANKS TO GIRAUD

New York, Jan. 17—(AP)— Lt.-Gen. Mark W. Clark has sent congratulations to Gen. Henri Giraud on the performance of French troops in Italy against resolute German resistance "despite unfavorable weather and extremely difficult terrain," said radio France of Algiers last night in a recorded broadcast.

Pte. George Paranuik of Camp Borden spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Paranuik.

Pte. Thomas Brawley of Toronto, spent the weekend at his home here.

POLICE BLOTTER

While awaiting incoming freight at the Belleville C.N.R. station over the weekend Clifford Hineman, Picton operator of the Canadian National freight delivery truck, lost a large tarpaulin, that covered his truck. Mr. Hineman parked his truck on C.N.R. property here and reported to police the tarpaulin must have been stolen while he was awaiting the arrival of freight for the Picton run.

Twice on Sunday police found seven-year-old Thomas Smith wandering about the streets after his parents had reported the lad missing. On both occasions seven-year-old Tommy was returned to his home at 22 Water Street little the less concerned about his actions.

Several persons were apprehended for various forms of infractions of the L.C.A. over the weekend and all paid fines rather than appear in court.

HELP THE COAL DEALER
TO Help you

Consult your dealer regarding your needs:
Your dealer has many pressing problems. Let him know how much fuel you will need to last until May 1, in addition to the amount you have in your bin. He can then organize his deliveries so that you will receive your share, of fuel as it may become available.

Have your bins ready for the delivery man:
He is a busy man these days. Do everything possible to speed up his job. If you are getting both soft and hard coal separately, have the necessary spaces ready and cleared for each.

Clear all approaches to your bins:
Be sure that driveway, walk and outside steps are cleared of snow, and sanded if necessary; also clear walk and driveway. Use nearest windows. Keep inside steps cleared and free of boxes, pails, etc.

Accept whatever kind of usable fuel the dealer can supply:
Some types of coal are scarce and you can't afford to insist on specific grades or sizes as you would in normal times. Don't take a chance. Any kind of coal is preferable to none.

Take delivery when dealer can make it:
Your dealer is working with limited delivery facilities which must be used continuously throughout the winter, if every householder is to receive his share of available supplies. Don't wait, therefore, until you are almost out of fuel before permitting your dealer to replenish your bin. Let him make delivery when he can.

Save one ton in five

Get your copy of "Thirty-three Ways to Save Coal" from your dealer immediately.

Dealers are confronted with problems of both labour and supply. By co-operating in these ways with your coal dealer, you will help make things easier for yourself.

Comprehensive Police Report

Chief Constables' annual reports are always interesting for the light they throw on conditions in municipalities. The statement of Chief Constable R. W. Probert of Belleville for the year 1943 which has just been made public is one that will be eminently satisfactory to the citizens. In war time there are many calls on police, there is a larger population than in normal times. But the year 1943 passed without very unusual events.

There was an increase of 71 in the total number of cases coming before the court. There were 90 motor vehicle accidents investigated in which there were 61 persons injured and one fatality. In the previous year there had been 2 fatalities while the number of injured totalled 40.

The department has a good record in the recovery of stolen articles. 35 cars were reported stolen and all were recovered. So effective is police pursuit of stolen motor vehicles and so great is the spirit of co-operation of the police forces that the thieves find it difficult to get away with their loot and they are captured or forced to abandon the cars. Bicycles are more difficult to trace though the percentage of recovery here last year was excellent, 129 out of 153 reported as stolen being recovered and returned to their owners.

The dog population according to the sale of registration tags was 849 last year while 320 dogs were destroyed by the dog catcher. There were eleven charges of breach of the dog bylaw.

Under the Highway Traffic Act there were 47 cases before the court on charges of careless driving, 5 of defective brakes, 15 of driving at excessive speed and 4 of leaving the scene of accidents. Under the city bylaw there were 142 charges of breach of the rules.

Last year there were 281 charges of intoxication under the Liquor Control Act, 6 cases of illegal purchase of liquor, 1 case of purchase by an interdicted person and 6 of purchase by minors.

Five cases were heard of breach of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board's regulations, 4 charges of breach of the Defence of Canada Regulations, 17 charges of breach of the Militia Act, 2 of the Public Health Act, 2 under the School Attendance Act and 1 under the Vicious Dogs Act among others.

Last year there were 17 charges of breaking and entering, this year there were 7. There were more cases of common assault, 14, as against 8 last year and 15 on the charge of assault causing actual bodily harm as against 1 last year. The number of persons charged with driving while intoxicated was 8 this year, while last year it was 15. The number of theft cases lowered from 41 to 32 this year. There were however 30 persons charged as vagrants as against 19 the year previous.

The age of those appearing in court actions is always interesting. Last year 29 of these were under 16 years, 90 from 16 to 20 years, 272 from 21 to 30 years, 195 from 31 to 40 years, 131 from 40 to 50 years and 110 over 50.

These facts which are taken from the complete statement of the Chief Constable indicate that the members of the Police Department have been a busy and faithful body in the discharge of their duties, and that they keep conditions as the citizens would have them kept.

Other matters that call police attention include such events as attendance where necessary in the case of fires, giving shelter to transients, who numbered 361 last year, the duty of seeing that premises are locked, and many other duties.

Mr. Churchill Fully Recovered

Prime Minister Churchill is quite recovered after his attack from pneumonia. He has been staying in Morocco for a short time recuperating and the news that he is fully restored was announced Sunday. The British leader is one who can deal with matters of great importance at the same time as he has been recuperating for some dags ago he met General de Gaulle, representing the Free French and had important talks with him.

It is good news to the United Nations that Britain's stouthearted Prime Minister is quite himself again.

150 Tons Bombs a Minute

The Royal Air Force, along with Dominion of Canada bombers, let the German city of Brunswick have it to the tune of one hundred and fifty tons of bombs each minute for 23 minutes. It struck at everything associated with the manufacture of Messerschmitt planes.

The rapidity of the attack and the density of the rain of bombs set up a new record for history. Never have the forces of destruction from the air rained so relentlessly and with such fury as for the 23 minutes at Brunswick.

This is one of the deadly blows the Allied air forces are striking at the German Luftwaffe on which it appears Hitler was pinning hopes when the Allied land invasion opens. Reports say the German city was practically wiped out by the British airmen.

French Victory Over Huns

The French troops fighting against the Germans alongside the British and Americans on the Cassino front in Italy have dealt their first major blow at Germany and counted a great victory in the capture of the key town of Acquafondata. The French advanced five miles from their position of three days before.

The presence of French troops in Italy will have its results on the French mainland. The French force now operating in Italy is a symbol of the spirit of Frenchmen looking to the day when their land will be liberated from the oppression of the Germans.

Fumes of Coal Gas

Tragedies and narrow escapes from asphyxiation from the fumes of coal gas have been reported recently in Ontario cities. How deadly these gases are is only too well known and it is well that everyone should take the greatest care in the operation of furnaces and stoves and the burning of fuel. Most people know the method of operation of their heating equipment but a little oversight may result in a tragedy or near-tragedy, while lack of familiarity with the heating unit may be just as disastrous.

"Monty's" Mother Talks

Lady Montgomery, mother of Gen. Bernard Montgomery, commander of the British Eighth Army which has won historic renown in North Africa and now in Italy, favors large families. "I believe in large families," she said at a meeting in Londonderry, Northern Ireland, when she handed over a check to a war fund. "I am one of a family of 10, and I have nine children. I often hear young women saying that when they marry they are going to have only one child. I am very much ashamed of them, because they are missing a great blessing. There is nothing in the world so beautiful as little children. I am glad to bring up boys and girls to serve the Empire. I have five boys abroad serving the Empire."

How the Dutch Tell the Nazis

(From Overseas News Agency)

In Holland they are saying it with proverbs. Shop windows carry signs like these:

"Who sows the wind will reap the whirlwind." Or: "Everything will come out all right." Or: "When the need is greatest, relief is near."

A Dutch Nazi newspaper is quoted by the Office of War Information as having complained at the lively trade in proverbs.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

(Copyright, 1944, Edgar A. Guest)

WOULD YOU DO IT?

If you knew by walking faster or by running part the way
You could save a neighbor's youngster from some dangerous bit of play,
And that death might overtake him if you failed to turn aside,
Would you do it, or be sorry when you heard the boy had died?

Let's suppose, for just a minute, that your neighbor's son is ill,
And to spare that home from sadness you possess the needed skill,
Though your day of toil has ended, would you work a little more,
Till the lad is out of danger, or, indifferent, pass his door?

If you had in your possession what your neighbor might require
To save his child from drowning or from death by gas or fire,
Would you drop the selfish purpose you were eager to pursue
In that time of desperation to do all that you could do?

Well, we're in that plight this minute! We are neighbors, you and I,
Of those boys in freedom's service, fighting land and sea and sky,
And we ever shall regret it if we've thoughtlessly behaved
And because of our indifference dies one boy we could have saved.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

January 17th, 1924

Woodley's Fur Store was robbed last night and between $15,000 and $20,000 worth of furs were taken. The break-in was discovered by Police Constable William Evans and he immediately notified police headquarters. It was about one o'clock a.m. when Mr. George Woodley and his sons, Russell and Harold, were notified of the robbery and they went immediately to the store and they saw at once that the best of their fine stock of furs and fur coats were missing. The store room and repair shop were also ransacked and only the inexpensive furs were left. The show window was not touched; however a fur coat valued at $400 and which was on a form near the window was taken. The rear door of McKeown's Drug Store was found forced open and it is thought the robbers made a mistake in the door leading to the fur store. It is certain that the large amount of stolen goods could not have been taken away without using a car or truck and it is thought that the laneway from Pinnacle Street was used. Entrance to the store was made through the rear doors leading to the repair shop. Tools taken from a truck owned by the Stafford Hardware Company were used to do the job of forcing an entrance. The truck was stored in an open shed about twenty feet from the rear of the building. There are many stories being told of suspicious looking characters being about town yesterday.

There was a good crowd at the rink last night to witness the hockey match between Napanee and Belleville, which resulted in a score of 4 to 3 in favor of Belleville. On the local team were some of the old stars who a few years ago cut a wide swath in junior hockey and it looked like old times to see Adams, Hough and Allen doing stunts with the puck and "bodying" men into the fence. The following composed the teams: Belleville, Williamson, Pitney, Adams, Wright, Horner, Allen and Hough. Napanee, Stacey, Garrett, Wager, Lake, Trimble, Dafoe and Williams. Referee, Jim Sutherland of Kingston.

Doubtless you have heard the expression, "That certainly stumps me!" The origin of this slang may lie in the great fields of stumps abounding in the time of Canada's pioneers. "To stump" means "to baffle" .. and the settlers were often at their wits' end trying to solve the problem of how to get rid of their tree stumps. Unlike other trees, which deteriorated after a few years and could easily be yanked from the ground by oxen, the pine stumps lasted indefinitely, preserved by the pitch in the wood. Often digging was resorted to, but blasting was the quickest means of destruction. The stumping machine was also popular. This was composed of a screw fastened to a frame-work placed over the stump, around which a chain was arranged. Oxen were hitched to a pole attached to the screw. As the creatures trotted around the machine the stump was elevated as by magic.

• •

Where flourishing towns and cities now stand was once primeval forest. It was most discouraging to the settler to take possession of his terrain and find it so cluttered up with trees that there was ro place to build a house, let alone plant a garden! First of all, giant timbers were felled to produce logs for a cabin. A good part of the next autumn and winter was spent in clearing out underbrush and cutting down more trees. Some of the pieces were chopped and thrown into piles which were then set on fire. The rest was divided into logging lengths. Then, come summer, news went around that a logging bee would be held. On the appointed day the thickets resounded to the shouts of busy men. Urging on their ox-teams, the helpers dragged the logs into a clearing and reduced them to cinders. Limbs and branches were also collected and burned to ashes. As evening drew nigh the exhausted workers heard the welcome sound of a bell—the summons to the feast that always climaxed a "frolic". Sometimes a farmer hastened the clearing of his land by sending trees crashing down and letting them lie there decaying. Again he would tear off a strip of bark around each tree. This prevented the sap from returning to the roots for the winter, and the tree would, in consequence, die .. to fall in a few years' time.

WAR-BABY PRESIDENTS

It is a remarkable fact that no person born during a major war in which the United States has been engaged has ever become President.

The nearest approach to a war-baby President of the United States was Martin Van Buren, who was born December 5, 1782, which was after the provisional treaty of peace ending the Revolution was concluded at Paris November 30, 1782, but before the final peace treaty was signed in 1783.

Presidents have been born in every month of the year except May and June.

November is the lucky birth month for Presidents in respect to numbers. Five Presidents—Polk, Taylor, Pierce, Garfield and Harding—were born in November.

March, April and October were the birth months of four Presidents each.

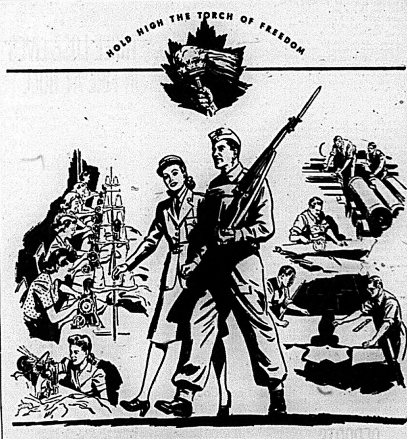
Washington, Feb. 22, 1732; John Adams, Oct. 30, 1735; Jefferson, April 13, 1743; Madison, March 16, 1751; Monroe, April 28, 1758; Jackson, March 155, 1767; John Quincy Adams, July 11, 1767; William H. Harrison, Feb. 9, 1773; Van Buren, Dec. 5, 1782; Taylor, Nov. 24, 1784; Tyler, March 29, 1790; Buchanan, April 23, 1791; Polk, November 2, 1795; and Fillmore, Jan. 7, 1800.

(Fillmore was the last President born in the 18th century; Pierce was the first born in the 19th century.)

Pierce, Nov. 23, 1804; Johnson, Dec. 29, 1808; Lincoln, Feb. 22, 1809; Grant, April 27, 1822; Hayes, Oct. 4, 1822; Arthur, Oct. 5, 1830; Garfield, Nov. 19, 1831; Benjamin Harrison, Aug. 20, 1833; Cleveland, March 18, 1837; McKinley, Jan. 29, 1843; Wilson, Dec. 28, 1856; Taft, Sept. 15, 1857; Theodore Roosevelt, Oct. 27, 1858; Harding, Nov. 2, 1865; Coolidge, July 4, 1872; Hoover, Aug. 10, 1874; and Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jan. 30, 1882.

Only twice has the same year produced two Presidents. John Quincy Adams and his immediate successor, Andrew Jackson, were born in 1767, and Ulysses S. Grant and his immediate successor, Rutherford B. Hayes, were born in 1822.



HOLD HIGH THE TORCH OF FREEDOM

WHEN CLOTHES BECOME Uniforms

As the "survival war" develops, uniforms take the place of clothes. Not only armed services but civilian services require identification by uniforms, so the great garment industry is converted to war purposes.

In the great war drama an army of workers, chiefly women, are engaged in this important task of transforming peace-time "individualists" into uniformed members of war-time organizations.

Thousands of Canadian women, toiling to turn out uniforms for others to wear, are contributing beneficially to the total war effort. They are a valuable part of the great, united team of the United Nations.

Mr., Mrs. Pappas Christening Hosts In George St. Home

The spacious and lovely home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Pappas, George Street, was opened to many relatives, friends and city residents on Sunday evening, it being the occasion of the christening of Nicholas Randall, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Randall. Rev. Basil Dmeroutis, of Ottawa, officiated at the christening, Billie Pappas, son of the host being the godfather.

The most interesting ceremony of the Greek Orthodox Church was witnessed by many residents, representing a cross section of the civic, religious and social life of the city, besides many guests from outside points, which included St. Catharines, Kingston, Peterborough, Hamilton and Trenton. Rev. Dr. James Semple, of Bridge St. United Church, was an interested spectator to a beautiful ceremony. At the conclusion of the christening, the guests hastened to congratulate the parents, the godfather and the host and hostess after which a social hour was spent.

A most delightful buffet luncheon was served by the hosts of the evening and then came the celebration of the christening with many enjoying the Greek folk dances set to native music, while downstairs the younger set enjoyed the more popular dances of the time to music supplied by records of all the famous dance bands. Guests on leaving at the midnight hour thanked sincerely the host and hostess for a most pleasant and interesting evening.

Women's Activities

CENTENARY Y.P.U.

The weekly meeting of Centenary Y.P.U. was held on Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Westover with a good attendance. The program was in charge of the Citizenship convener. Fred Edmondson opened the meeting and there was a discussion on "Scenes Along the Road to Jericho." It was decided that one cannot be interested in the welfare of all humanity without being kind to each individual. Business discussion was led by the President, Doug Harder.

KINGSTON ROAD W.A.

On Wednesday evening, the regular meeting of the Kingston Road Women's Association was held at the home of Mrs. Wilfred LaRue, Herchimer Avenue. Many of the members, their husbands and friends were present.

The business meeting was in charge of the President, Mrs. C. MacDonald. Prayer was offered by Mrs. Farnsworth. Plans were made for carrying on the Sunshine and Cloudy Day Groups with Mrs. Laughlin and Mrs. Wilson as leaders. Mrs. Logan was appointed to look after the birthday box for this year. It was decided that each member bring a Valentine card to the February meeting at Mrs. Farnsworth's.

In recognition of their many years of faithful service, the President, Mrs. C. MacDonald and the Secretary, Mrs. E. Gazley, were each presented with a glass salad bowl and plate. The Treasurer, Miss Annie Logan, was given a fountain pen. They were all taken completely by surprise but each in her own capable manner, thanked the members for the lovely gift.

A quiz contest conducted by Mrs. LaRue proved very instructive as well as entertaining. Much merriment was caused by a musical contest which was in charge of Mrs. Farnsworth. A pumpkin pie was given to the best group of singers and a tiny one was awarded to the unsuccessful ones.

Miss Thelma Shaw favored with several quitar selections.

The losing side, the Sunshine Group, served a lunch as well as arranging the program for the winners, the Cloudy Group.

A sing song was heartily enjoyed and a vote of thanks was tendered Mr. and Mrs. La Rue for their kind hospitality and also to the Sunshine Group for the very enjoyable evening's entertainment.

ST. THOMAS W. A.

The members of the W. A. of St. Thomas filled the spacious rooms of Mrs. W. Pomfret, St. Agnes Manor, on Wedneday afternoon of last week, on the occasion of their annual meeting.

The President welcomed the Rector, members and guests and called upon the officers to give the report of the work of the various departments during the year of 1943.

It was most gratifing to hear that all obligations had been met and that there had been an increase in givings in all departments over the previous year.

The Treasurer's total receipts for the year were $445.66 with 92. having been given to the Dom. Pledge Fund and 108.15 thank-offering presented at the annual.

As in other years the Extra Cent A Day Fund of 35.46 and the Little Helpers Fund (34.67) were the largest in the diocese. The Dorcas Sec. stated that a complete outfit had been sent to Elkhorn Residential School and 2 bales of new and used clothing were sent to the West.

The Red Cross Sec. reported a goodly number of articles made but more sewers are needed.

Rev. Mr. Payne took the chair and read the report of the nominating committee which was as follows:-

The rector in addressing the meeting congratulated the members on their work and gave a broad outline of the Church's task and the individual member's responsibility to it.

A hearty vote of thanks was given to the hostess.

The benediction was pronounced and a social half hour was spent.

AVONDALE NEIGHBORS' AID

The January meeting of the Avondale Neighbors' Aid was held at the home of Mrs. Leonard Reid with twenty-five ladies in attendance. The new president, Mrs. Harry Elvidge, opened the meeting. Reports were read, business discussed and programs for the coming months arranged. Mrs. Reid served lunch assisted by Mrs. Ling and Mrs. Champaign. A vote of thanks to the hostess was proposed by Mrs. Kingston.

SHANNONVILLE W.M.S.

The monthly meeting or the W.M.S. of Shannonville United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Stanley MacDonald on January 6th with 14 members answering the roll call. The president, Mrs. Frank Doxtator, opened the meeting and Mrs. (Rev.) Lougheed offered prayer. A New Year's hymn was sung and a brief business period followed. A letter of thanks was read from Mrs. F. MacFarlane for the card she had received during her illness and also Mrs. (Rev.) Lougheed expressed thanks for cards she had received. Mrs. Doxtator gave a reading entitled, "A Christmas Message." Mrs. Arthur Houston, group leader, then took charge. The devotional leaflet was given by Mrs. Houston and the program was followed as outlined in the missionary monthly. Readings were given by Mrs. C. Keirl, Mrs. A. Houston and Mrs Saul MacFarlane.

The hostess served sandwiches and tea and a social time was enjoyed together.

SHANNONVILLE W.A.

The W.A. of Shannonville United Church held a pot luck dinner quilting and election of officers at the home of Mrs. Fred Melborne on Jan. 13 when the ladies worked on a quilt The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Claude Clarke.

Mrs Claude Clarke read the Scripture. Mrs. Sam Elliott read the lesson thought and offered prayer. Rev. Mr Lougheed conducted the election of officers: President, Mrs. Claude Clarke: 1st Vice President, Mrs. Sam Elliott; 2nd Vice President, Mrs. K. Vivian; 3rd Vice President, Mrs. Stanley MacDonald; Treasurer, Miss Sara Stickney; Secretary and Press Reporter, Mrs. Clarence Mastin; Card Fund, Mrs. Stanley MacDonald; Sending Cards to the Sick and Birthdays, Mrs. Lougheed; Miss Sara Stickney, Mrs. Sam Elliott, Parsonage Committee; Mrs. Harvey Shetler, Pianist; Group Leaders, Mrs. E. Vivian, Mrs. Orval Stratton, Mrs. Robt. McFarlane, Mrs. Charlie Keirl. Mrs. Clarke took over the business. It was decided to charge $3 for quilting fancy quilts and $2 for quilting an ordinary quilt. It was moved that $10 be sent to the British War Victims' Fund, $10 to the Russian Fund. The collection from the dinner was $7. The meeting was closed with the W.A. Benediction.

CHATTERTON W.I.

The January meeting of the Chatterton Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. E. B. Finkle. The president being absent, Mrs. B. Bleeker took charge. Plans were made for a social evening. Mrs. Bleeker, war convener, distributed sewing to be done. Mrs. Gerald Irvine gave a paper on current events. A poem entitled "Home", was read by Mrs. G. Frederick. A piano solo was given by Miss Lugo Prest. A poem was read by Mrs. A. Reid and Mrs. B. Mitts gave a reading. Mrs. E. B. Finkle gave a splendid talk on "Home Economics" and Mrs. Bleeker led a discussion on foods and the vitamins they contain. Miss Lugo Prest gave a demonstration on the work the Girls' Club had done. Mrs. Finkle served a 25c lunch, the proceeds to be sent to the Milk for Britain Fund.

Good Companion Club Of Tabernacle Church

On Friday night, a newly organized association of the Tabernacle United Church, the Good Companion Club, met in the Parish Hall with the President, Mr. G. Wright, in the chair. Following a worship service, an address was delivered to the assemblage by Flying officer Tippett on the subject of "Rehabilitation of Men and Women in the Armed Services." A round of folk dancing was enjoyed, with Mrs. G. Wright acting as pianist. After a short talk by the Rev. Dr. A. J. W. Myers, refreshments, in charge of Mrs. Louis Andrews, were served. Recreation was conducted by Miss Mary Lockhart and the sing-song by Mr. Reg. Wardle. Approximately twenty young people were in attendance for the occasion.

Promptly Helps Relieve Coughing Spasms, Muscular Soreness or Tightness, Congestion and Irritation in Bronchial Tubes

That's why they turn to the time-tested home remedy for relieving miseries of children's colds—Vicks VapoRub. Experience has taught them what to expect when they rub VapoRub on throat, chest and back at bedtime.

Almost at once—in 3 minutes or less—the penetrating-stimulating action of VapoRub (explained above) starts bringing relief.

For hours this grand double-action keeps on working. Invites restful, refreshing, strengthening sleep. And often by morning most of the misery of the cold is gone.

Now when anyone in your family—child or grown-up—catches a cold, do what most modern mothers do, and use dependable VICKS VAPORUB

GOOD MANNERS

WHAT TO DO WITH GRADUATION PHOTOS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I have had my graduation photographs taken, and expect to receive them soon. But I have no idea what kind of messages I should write on them. Would you please give me some suggestions? Particularly for these: boy friends, girl friends, uncles and aunts, and neighbors?

2. My father, who died recently, had selected the proof he liked best and I am having a colored miniature made of this. I loved my father very dearly, and I would like to write something on this colored miniature directing it to his memory. Would this be improper?

—N. R.

1. Don't you think you might be taking it too much for granted (as I judge you are) that you SHOULD write messages on and autograph all your graduation photographs? Wouldn't it perhaps be better, especially in most cases, to wait for your friends and neighbors to suggest your autographing your photographs for them? Believe it or not, and as contradictory as it may seem, many people regard an unautographed photograph as more personal than an autographed one. Why? Well, (1) naturally they don't need the name written on the photograph to know whose photograph it is; and (2) they prefer to supply the message themselves, that is, instead of always looking at the same message to "think of" different messages at different times. Certainly this leaves more scope for the receiver's imagination.

However, there are just as many people (perhaps more) who have a special enthusiasm for autographed photographs, are delighted to have a message written in the cherished handwriting to the friend.

Choose most carefully your message to be written on the photographs you give your boy friends.. they must stand the acid test of being exhibited to the wide, wide world. The simplest of messages, always in good taste, is "To Tom, from Nancy." That may mean much or little.. but only to the two people most concerned!

Next choice is the pleasant and not-too-intimate word "Greetings" .. 'Cordial Greetings" .. "Friendly Greetings" .. "Friendliest Greetings." Good companions, these words, for the photographs given to not especially close friends. Save the precious words "Love", "Devotion", "Affection" and the like for the relationships to which they fittingly belong, sister, brother, aunts and uncles, perhaps your dearest girl friend.

2. I think this would be a beautiful memorial tribute to your father, and your loving words, written just for him, will I know be another strong bond of "dear and blessed remembrance," of abiding love.

SERVICEMAN'S WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

"My sergeant and I, when he has his next furlough, are to be married at the parsonage of my church. Only the members of our families will be present at the ceremony, but directly after the ceremony, my mother and father are giving a reception and dinner in a private suite of a hotel for our families and several close friends of ours' Now, Mrs. Beeckman, I have, like most girls, always dreamed of wearing a white wedding dress and veil, and this is just what "my sergeant" wants me to wear. But my mother and sister very much doubt the propriety of this, insisting that a parsonage wedding is too informal for the bride to be dressed formally. What is your advice?

— NANCY.

My advice, Nancy, is for you to wear the white wedding dress and veil that you and "your sergeant" want you to wear. I'm "all out" for having your dreams come true! And the particular point of propriety is that you'll be appropriately dressed for the reception and dinner after the ceremony.

Mother Takes Son's Fiancee to Camp: Delighted with Hospitality

Dear Miss Fairfax:

So many girls wonder if it would be all right to visit their sweethearts at army posts. Let me say this. I visited at two different posts, taking under my wing a son's fiancee on each occasion. We had a delightful time. Officers' wives were so hospitable, I've come to the conclusion after these two personal experiences that when it's possible, it's better for a girl to visit her sweetheart accompanied by an older woman.

(Mrs.) B. M. D.

I agree with you thoroughly when it's possible and the extra expense can be afforded, it's better for a girl to go to an army post accompanied by an older woman. But there are innumerable cases when the expense cannot be afforded and it's a question in my mind whether a girl should forego what might be a last goodbye to a man going overseas, because that now practically forgotten woman, the chaperon, is not available.

Hundreds of girls have gone to army camps to be married before their men have gone overseas. My advice, and I can't repeat it too often, is never start out on these expeditions unless you have enough money for emergencies.

Wedding Ring is Worn Under the Engagement Ring

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have just received an engagement ring from my boy friend, and we hope to be married soon, Mother and I have been arguing as to whether the wedding ring should be worn over or under the engagement ring. Will you please tell us which is correct?

M. J. G.

The wedding ring must not be put above the engagement ring. On her wedding day, a bride either leaves her engagement ring at home when she goes to church for her wedding, or she wears it on her right hand. Afterward she wears it above her wedding ring.

The Marry-Go-Round

TAKE IT FROM EVE.

Although thousands of wives are working in defence plants, says the Cynic, we haven't yet reached the point where you see advertisements of big bargains in kitchen aprons for men.

"Wolf" is a misnomer for the modern Casanova. He is much more like a butterfly — he can never be pinned down until he's dead.

"Debunking" our historic idols is so popular nowadays that pretty soon some smart "debunker" will offer you some eloquent "proof" that King Solomon was, at heart, a bachelor, Hitler really a pacifist and Don Juan a one-woman-man.

Nothing makes a husband more indignant than to be "forgiven", like a penitent sinner, when he thought he was successfully posing in the role of martyred saint.

The average man must have been born with the soul of a juggler, to judge from his practise of trying to keep two or more love affairs perfectly balanced at the same time.

War, communism and labor are all burning questions but "Have a drink?" still continues to be the most interesting question to a man and "Will you marry me?" the most absorbing and important one to a girl.

Wedding-rings are being worn tighter and more conspicuously now, than they have been in years. Yet, only a short time ago, advanced young women were refusing to wear "that badge of slavery." What a difference war makes in supply and demand!

It's a great life! Try to make a good impression and people don't remember you; make a fool of yourself and they never forget!

Troubles never come singly — at least, they don't seem like "troubles" until you've been married to them for a while.

Tabernacle Ch. Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Board Management of the Tabernacle United Church School was held on evening of January 13, at the home of Mrs. C. A. Mott, Forin Street. The devotional exercises were conducted by Dr. Myers. All departments of the school submitted encouraging reports. The Treasurer reported that all bills were paid with a balance on hand. Pituitary Extract Used for Relief of Migraine Headache

Migraine headache is a painful, disabling disorder. Authorities do not agree as to what causes it, nor do they agree as to what may relieve it.

Migraine headache frequently is accompanied by sickness to the stomach and vomiting. Often, preceding an attack, the sufferer has flashes of light before his eyes, and feels numbness and tingling in the face and arms.

There are some authorities who believe that migraine is due to allergy or oversensitivity to some food or substance with which the person comes in contact. Others think that a vitamin deficiency may play a part. It has been thought, that trouble with certain of the glands of internal secretion may lead to this disturbance. Often the attacks are so severe that it is necessary for the patient to go to bed in a darkened room in order to obtain even moderate relief.

The treatment of migraine has been carried out in various ways. It is always a good idea to have a thorough physical examination, so that any trouble with the teeth, tonsils, sinuses, or any infections in the body may be discovered and removed. The eyesight should be carefully checked and, if necessary, glasses should be worn. But these measures do not, as a rule, clear up the condition and the attacks often continue with the same frequency and severity.

Treatment of a number of migraine patients with injections of large doses of vitamin B-1 or thiamin, resulted in improvement in a large number of cases. This treatment would seem to be well worth trying.

Another treatment which has been employed more recently is the use of an extract made from the front part of the pituitary gland, which is located at the base of the brain. Doctor Nevil Leyton, of England, reports on one patient whom he treated with this preparation. This patient, thirty-seven years of age, had had migraine for almost twenty years. The headaches were usually on the left side. He suffered from extreme sickness to the stomach, but had no vomiting during the attack. The patient was very irritable and nervous. Injections of the gland extract were given twice a week for six weeks, and then were given but once a week. Shortly after the first treatment the patient's condition began to improve. He became less irritable and, during the period of treatment, suffered only one headache attack.

A number of other patients have been treated with this preparation. Beneficial results have been reported in the majority of cases. This treatment is one which is not difficult to carry out, and has no dangers.

Since migraine can be such a troublesome and painful disorder, the use of the glandular preparation would appear to be well worth trying.

Fashion Flashes

IT LOOKS like more glitter on short-skirted date dresses for the Spring evenings. Black crepe makes a pretty frock shirred through the midriff to define the waist. A big sequined flower at the shoulder has a long green sequin stalk that follows the shirring down through the torso.

DOUBLE DUTY clothes are going stronger than ever. Right for day or with evening things come Spring is a topper of lemon yellow woolen with a lining of tufted gray satin.

NOW AND AGAIN there comes along a dress that walks out of the shop on sight. Such a frock is an early Spring number, a one-piece frock of navy sheer with polka dot gilet and polka dot insets for twin side-front kick pleats. Panel front with big shiny buttons along vertical slashes.

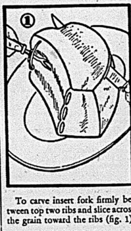
How to Carve a Rib Roast

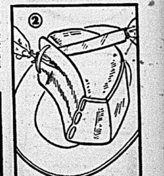
Proper carving is an important part of food conservation

When you buy a standing rib roast have the butcher separate the backbone from the ribs. In this way you can remove the backbone completely in the kitchen after roasting. Then place the roast on the platter, bones to your left and small cut surface uppermost.



To carve insert fork firmly between top two ribs and slice across the grain toward the ribs (fig. 1).

Thin slices ⅛ to ⅛ of an inch thick give best flavour and help the meat go further.



As each slice is carved, release by cutting close along the rib with the sharp tip of your knife (fig. 2).

TIPS FOR CARVERS

1. Be sure your knife is sharp.
2. It is correct to stand when carving.
3. Always cut across the grain. (Steaks are the only exception).
4. Carve enough to serve all the company before transferring meat to plates.

GENERALS TURN TABLES ON KISTS WITH 5-1 WIN

Oshawa Strengthens Hold on Leadership of Group by Victory

ST. MIKES BEATEN

By the Canadian Press

Turning the tables on Galt Kists with a 5-1 victory Saturday night at Galt, Oshawa Generals registered their 13th success of the Junior O. H. A. season and strengthened their leadership in Group 1 with a four-point advantage over Toronto St. Mikes in second position. Chenier scored two of the Oshawa goals while Bill Ezinicki, with one tally, earned star rating on his night's performance for the visitors.

Brantford Lions, trailing in Group 2, literally took a fall out of the St. Catharines Falcons on Brantford ice, winning a rough tilt 7-2. There were 19 penalties during the fray, including four by Paul Waldner, late of the Buffalo Bisons, who was making the first appearance with the Lions. The Falcons have threatened to protest his participation in the Junior match. Evensmen and Turner each scored twice for Brantford while P. Long accounted for both Falcon counters. In losing their fixtures, Galt and St. Catharines remained deadlocked for leader in Group 2 with 22 points for each.

In Saturday afternoon's doubleheader at Toronto, Hamilton Whizzers surprised St. Mikes with a 4-1 setback while Stratford Kroehlers trimmed Toronto Marlboros 2-1 for Stratford's fifth victory of the campaign.

U.S. Golf Association Raises Suspension of Babe Didrikson

By The Canadian Press

The United States Golf Association relented Saturday in the case of Babe Didrickson, former Olympic track star, by raising the suspension against her for professionalism, imposed in 1933 after she had been featured in moneyed sports following her outstanding performances in the 1932 Olympiad at Los Angeles. Action was taken at the annual meeting of the Association in New York, the business of which was routine because of the abandonment of championship tournaments for the duration.

Miss Didrikson, wife of wrestler George Zaharias, was not kept out of competition because of the ruling, however. In 1940 she won the Women's Western Open at Milwaukee and, in 1942, was the victor in the match play for women at San Francisco.

The minimum purse for overnight races at the spring meeting of the Ontario Jockey Club has been raised to $1,000, compared with the minimum of $800 for Woodbine events last year, it was announced last night by secretary Palmer Wright. The value of the King's Plate was recently raised from $8,000 to $10,000.

With a four-under-par 66 for the Harding links, Byron Nelson of Toledo, O., Sunday increased his lead in the $10,000 San Francisco Victory Open Golf Tournament to a five-stroke margin over his rival, Harold (Jug) McSpaden, who carded his third 70 in the competition. Nelson's 54-hole total was 206, which gave him a distinct advantage for the final round today.

President A. J. Greene of the National Boxing Association announced at Washington yesterday Phil Terranova, featherweight titleholder, and Sammy Angott, lightweight champion, would have to defend their honors within a month or their championships would be declared vacant.

Following the withdrawal of Air Force and Army teams, the Pacific Coast Senior Hockey League decided, at a meeting in Vancouver yesterday, to throw out all games to date and start a fresh schedule tonight with four clubs including Esquimalt Navy. The latter will not proceed into Allan Cup playdowns.

Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League and Boston Bruins of the N.H.L. will play an exhibition game at Hershey Jan. 26 when admission will be the purchase of a U.S. Fourth War Bond plus a service charge, the proceeds from which are to be donated to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

William Hoppe won the Chicago phase of his cross-country three cushion billiards match with Welker Cochran Saturday night by taking the 17th and final block, 51 to 46, in 46 innings. The victory gave him a margin of 850 to 46 for the sessions here and an over-all score of 1,250 to Cochran's 1,188. The non-title match began in Kansas City, will continue Monday in Detroit and conclude in New York.

Pitcher Bob Chipman of the Brooklyn Dodgers and previously with Montreal Royals took his army medical examination last week and reported yesterday to President Branch Rickey he expected to be in military uniform before the end of January.

Matchmaker Jake Mintz of Pittsburgh announced Saturday Fritzie Zivic had fractured a bone on his left hand against Jake La Motta at Detroit Friday night and it was reported the injury might finish the ringster's career.

The United States Law Tennis Association, at its annual meeting in New York Saturday, decided to conduct all national tournaments next summer, with dates and locations to be arranged although the doubles tourney was tentatively set for Aug. 29-30. Holcombe Ward was re-elected president of an eighth term.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLES EDWARDS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Jan. 17 (CP)—Commenting on the case of George Grigor and Whitey Farrant of the Toronto Mercantile Hockey League, who were paid $10 each for playing a game in Toronto with Chicago Black Hawks, Alan (Brantford Expositor) Rose wrote: "It must cost all of $100 to transport and feed a player on a trip to Toronto and return, to say nothing of the player's salary. We may yet see the day when the Chihawks arrive in Toronto for a game with nobody but the manager and trainer off the train."

Rose was jesting but his comment may provide a ray of hope in a dreary world for Manager Jack Adams of Detroit Red Wings. Already two Wings veterans, Mud Bruneteau and Normie Smith, are restricted to home games because of their war jobs.

January Quarterbacking:

Vince (Winnipeg Tribune) Leah quotes Ralph Adams, Toronto, head linesman in the Dominion football final last fall, as stating in a letter that Winnipeg would have won if it had exploited a two-man end run featuring Garnie Smith, the former Vancouver halfback.

Art Ross' apparent breach of the N.H.L. gag law in blasting Frank Selke after Bill Cowley was hurt in a game with Toronto drew this comment from Doug Vaughan of the Windsor Star: "Ross should be made to pay that $1,000 fine—the money turned over to some war charity and then the rule tossed into the ash can where it belongs." This corner agrees the rule belongs in the ash can but is willing to wager in moderation that the gag rule will never be invoked against either player or official. It has already been broken several times without penalty.

Incidentally:

Jim Handy has published his annual hockey guide for 1944 but it will not be offered for sale in Canada this time because of taxes and distribution difficulties.....One of the greatest curling feats of the year was the eight-ender scored by G. Fitzpatrick's Orillia rink against Bert Hal of Kitchener in the Midland bonspiel last week. The eight-end is the perfect score, equivalent of baseball's no-hit, no run game, golf's hole-in-one, the 13 spades in bridge. This time it was scored against one of Canada's greatest skips, a former Macdonald's Brier champion. Even so Hall beat Fitzatrick 14-10.

What's Doing in Sport

Miami—(AP)—The two-heat Palm Beach handicap at Hialeah Park Saturday, divided because of heavy entries, resulted in wins by long shots, the favorites disliking the sloppy track. One winner, Four Freedoms, paid $15.40 for $2 and the second outsider, Old Grad, gave its backers $52.40 per $2.

Philadelphia — (AP) — General Manager Herb Pennock Saturday mailed 1944 contracts to 30 players of the Philadelphia Phillies and announced he did not expect any salary squabbles. In the squad are Schoolboy Rowe and Babe Phelps who have the reputation of turning down the first offers each year.

Miami Beach—(AP)—Owner John D. Hertz announced yesterday he would send Count Fleet to the post as a four-year-old despite the injury sustained by the 1943 five-time in the Belmont Stakes last summer. The Count will be retired to stud in 1945, Hertz said.

Montreal —(CP)— Sgt. Gerard Cote, noted Valleyfield marathoner, was in a class by himself Sunday in registering his fourth victory in the annual 10-mile snow-shoe race of the Laurier Club, leading a field of 24 from start to finish.

Hamilton—(CP)— Widely known as a soccer player for many years, Joseph Campbell Newton, 56, died at his home here Saturday. He was born in Scotland and was decorated while serving with the 19th battalion, C. E. F., in the First Great War.

21 SHOTS USED TO KILL 300-POUND WILD BOAR

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 15 — (AP) — Twenty-one shots from a rifle yesterday ended the career of a 300-lb. wild boar which has been annoying West Albany farmers for three years. Employees of a slaughtering plant killed the boar. Its carcass was sent to a salvage plant.

Detroit Wings Sweep Weekend Doubleheader From Toronto By 6 to 4 and 4 to 1 Counts

Adam Brown Secures Two Goals in Each of the Contests

BRUINS SPLIT

By ALLAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Unless Detroit Red Wings can prove that Adam Brown's views do not necessarily represent those of the management, Toronto Maple Leafs will have specific cause for reprisal next time the two teams meet. In seven games against Toronto this season, four of them Detroit victories, the slender sniper from Ottawa has scored eight goals—80 per cent of his production against all National Hockey League clubs.

During the weekend Brown collected two goals in each game as Red Wings mauled Leafs 6-4 in Toronto Saturday and 4-1 on home ice Sunday.

The double triumph hoisted the refurbished Red Wings within three points of the third-place Boston Bruins, who muffed a chance for a share of a higher bracket with Leafs by losing 8-6 Sunday to New York Rangers, whom they had beaten 7-5 Saturday in the first instalment of the double bill. Chicago Black Hawks, held to a 1-1 tie by the league-leading Montreal Canadiens at Chicago Sunday, slipped two games behind Detroit.

Fido Purpur gave Chicago a 1-0 advantage in the first period, but utch Bouchard's clever second-period shot from 25 feet gave Canadiens a division of spoils which left them 13 points ahead of Leafs.

Jackson Scores Three

Three goals by Art Jackson and two by Herb Cain gave Boston its 7-5 victory at home against Rangers. They led again 5-2 at the end of the first period in the Sunday struggle, but Rangers scored three goals in the middle period and three more in the third against one for Boston to end their losing streak at seven games. Bryan Hextall and Johnny Mahaffy each scored twice which eGrnand Gauthier counted the deciding goal.

Red Wings, in their two meetings against Leafs, scored three times in one minute and nine seconds of the third period to erase a 4-2 deficit Saturday and tallied three without reply in the last period of Sunday's contest. Murray Armstrong, recently discharged from the Canadian army, pressed Brown for scoring honors with two goals Saturday and one Sunday. Jackie Hamilton collected two goals for Leafs, both on Saturday. Detroit has won four and tied one of its last five games.

A cumulative total of 71,345 paid admissions watched the five weekend games, creating an average of 14,269 per game which probably is a league record. Largest individual attendance—18,150 paid—watched the Sunday game at Chicago.

HERSHEY BEARS, BARONS REMAIN TIED FOR LEAD

Both Clubs Win Their Weekend Games Over Stiff Opposition

HORNETS BEAT REDS

By The Canadian Press

Hershey Bears and Cleveland Barons won their weekend encounters to remain tied for first position in the American Hockey League. Each team now has 19 victories and five draws chalked up for its season's efforts.

Sparked by their French-Canadian ace, Gaston Gauthier, the Bears defeated Bisons 4-1 Saturday night while Barons whipped Indianapolis Capitals 7-4.

In the other AHL games Pittsburgh Hornets thrashed Providence Reds 6-2 Saturday and last night Bisons defeated Hornets 4-2 while Capitals laced Reds 4-1.

Gauthier scored three counters for Bears in their game against Bisons and teamed up with Capt. Wally Kilrea for the other. Fred Thurier scored for Bisons in the 1st period.

Cleveland's centre Les Cunningham and Lou Trudel were the top point-getters in their game against Capitals. Cunningham scored two goals and assisted in three others while Trudel bagged two more counters and got two assists.

Other Cleveland marksmen were Adolph, Sprout and Hergesheimer. Indianapolis goal-getters were Morrison, with two, Smith and Sorrel.

In the Pittsburgh-Providence encounter Tony Hemmerling rang up a goal and three assists while Jamie Jamieson scored two goals for Hornets. Tom Forgie, Lloyd Roubell and Bob Gracie bagged the other counters. Johnny Gagnon and Roly Forget scored Reds' two counters.

Last night Bisons came from behind with three goals in the third period to whip the Hornets. The first period was scoreless, but Fred Thurier put Buffalo in the lead in the second. But less than a minute later Roubell tied the count.

Roger Leger, Larry Thibeault and Thurier added third period counters which gave Buffalo their decisive victory.

Carl (Winky) Smith scored two goals to lead the Caps to their 4-1 victory over Reds. Alex Ritson and Bill Thompson accounted for the other two. Yank Boyd bagged Reds' lone tally.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

A man who spent the holidays in Florida, went to the local village barber shop for a shave. The barber was suffering from a hangover and let the razor slip several times and after each slip, he would paste a piece of small paper over the cut, to stop the bleeding. When he had finally finished, the man gave him a dollar. The barber started to make the change, but was stopped by his customer with the remark: "Keep the change. It is worth a dollar to be shaved by such a gifted man. Why, you are a barber, a butcher and a paper-hanger!"

Group Standing

The standing of group No. 2 of the O.H.A. as of today reads:

	W.	L.	F.	A.	Pts.
Belleville	2	1	15	9	4
Trenton	2	1	18	18	4
Stirling	1	1	2	4	2
R.C.A.F.	0	2	7	11	0

Games this week: Tonight, Trenton at Stirling; Tuesday, Belleville at R.C.A.F.

Two Games Scheduled

It's a lean week for the junior group pucksters with but two games scheduled. Tonight Trenton invade the Stirling Arena for the first Trenton-Combine meeting of the year, while Wednesday night Coach Toots Holway's Belleville kids are slated to open the season for the R.C.A.F. Flyers at the Trenton open air rink, for another first meeting.

Trenton and Belleville are leading the parade with two wins and a loss each, with Stirling playing .500 hockey by virtue of a win and a loss, while the "Flyers" have failed to get into the win column in two starts. However, Flt. Lt. "Buff" Horton's kids showed they are improving under Mike Dziura's tutoring as they scored seven goals against Trenton. "Don't sell that Air Force collection short. I watched them the other night and the young Flyers know what this hockey business is all about and they will make it tough for all concerned before the end," predicted Police Chief Wm. Bain, of Trenton, over the weekend.

Starts Off Well

The old bug-bear of "new uniforms bring defeat," was knocked for the proverbial loop Friday night when "Toots" Holway's kids blanked the "Combines" 4-0. Actually both squads looked natty in their new jerseys and there is no use denying the fact uniforms make a vast difference in the entire set-up of the game. A much larger crowd than opening night saw the juniors in action and judging from the favorable comments there'll be increased numbers again next week when the Flyers invade the Market St. ice palace.

The bouquets went to Goalie Dick Fitzpatrick last Friday, with Al Gordon, Holway's new find from No. 5 I.T.S. picking up three points in his first appearance. Another local player who is looking better each time out is Doug Day. The "Combines" were anything but happy when the whitewash brush was applied and in their dressing room after the game they vowed vengeance and revenge when Belleville journeys to Stirling on January 31st. Now if the Belleville fans would support, and follow the locals like the Combines' faithfuls, well there would be quite a few Belleville supporters in Stirling for the return game.

A Misunderstanding

Out around the Stirling-Marmora district the fans seem to be in a state of perturbation these days and it's all over a hockey program that is given away during local O.H.A. games. For some unknown reason the good people backing the Combines seem to think the program was printed at The Ontario Intelligencer. There is absolutely no truth to this rumor, as a matter of fact the program wasn't printed in Belleville, nor in Eastern Ontario as a matter of fact. The trouble all started over some advertising solicited by the printer in the Marmora-Stirling area. After all the publishers of the program would no doubt welcome the opportunity to publish a similar program for the Combines under contract agreement. However, we want it made clear The Ontario Intelligencer DID NOT print the program in question.

Tonight's Round-up

The sports program in Belleville tonight includes the opening of the Bay of Quinte senior R.C.A.F. service hockey league at the Hume Arena. . . . In the inaugural the Trenton Main Station sextette meets the strengthened No. 6 Repair Depot squad headed by Flt.-Sergt. Dickens. . . . The other two teams in the loop, Deseronto "Mohawks" and Mountain View "Bombers" swing into action Thursday night. . . . Monday and Thursday nights are "service hockey nights at the Hume Arena." . . . Ladies' basketball continues with a doubleheader at the Y. M. C. A. tonight when Belleville Sargent and Alemite, the teams to win their opening games, meet at eight to be followed by a game between the Mountain View lassies and Reliance girls. That's also tonight.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
(Associated Press Sport Writer.)

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—Some Pacific Coast football followers think Andy Kerr may have started a "trend" with his offensive manoeuvres for the East-West game... With only 10 days of coaching, and Dr. George Hauser taught the East team to run plays from the "T" or shift it into the single or double wing or Notre Dame box formations...Of course, Kerr was working with All-Star material, but he may have proved that there can be a lot more variety in football attack than most coaches seem to think... On the other hand, Howie Odell tried a T-single wing combination at Yale last fall and it didn't prove a thing.

Monday Matinee.

Off his performance on a smooth armory floor Saturday, it looks as if Bill Hulse wouldn't have much trouble adjusting his stride to indoor running this winter. Not only was his 4:23.4 mile plenty fast under the conditions, but he did the first and last quarters in 62.5 and 66.1 — which is reallly stepping...Frank Sinkwich back in Georgia for a visit, claimed he was faster last season that he ever was in college. There were bigger guys chasing him too...Rudy York, who made 155 hits in 155 games last season, needs only one more blow for a lifetime Major League total of 1,000.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 278

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Know how the other half lives and breathes aces and kings for slams. At the time contract bridge was born, I invented the first wholesale ace-showing convention known to man or beast.

Soon after, in his first (1931) Blue Book, Culbertson implied that an artificial ace-shower was unnecessary. So, I demonstrated mine in a practice game with him.

That was in 1932. Six months later, he woke up in the middle of the night dreaming the four no-trump convention. It appeared in his 1933 book and made ace-showing universally popular.

But ace information alone is not enough for safe slam bidding. The showing of kings is needed, too. And The Kibitzer's Convention for showing aces and kings together is the ideal method.

To show kings, Culbertson invented Asking Bids. So complicated were they, droves of bridge players started giving up the game for rummy and mah jong. Asking Bids had to be abandoned.

The Kibitzer's is easier and superior to Culbertson's. Similar to mine, although not as safe, is the newer and justly popular Blackwood Convention.

The Blackwood shows aces at the level of five and kings at the level of six. The Kibitzer's shows kings at the level of five when that hand has only one ace.

Try it on this pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH
♠ A K 6 3 2
♥ 7 5 3
♦ A 5
♣ A K Q
NORTH
♠ 9 8 7 5 4
♥ A K 2
♦ K Q
♣ 5 4 2

When south bids four no-trump, the Blackwood reply by north is five diamonds to show one ace. South then bids five no-trump and north says six hearts to show two kings.

When south bids four no-trump, The Kibitzer's reply by north is five spades to show an ace and two kings. After learning about kings, if south decided not to go to slam, he could still stop at five.

Take your choice.

AT THE BELLE

"Sonja Henie in "Wintertime"

20th Century-Fox has outdone itself!

In "Wintertime," the new Sonja Henie triumph now on the Belle Theatre screen, the studio that has produced most of the screen's outstanding musical hits—including the recent "Hello, Frisco, Hello" and "Coney Island"—has surpassed all of its previous achievements. It's safe to say there'll be only one "Wintertime" this year!

In addition to the incomparable Sonja who, for the first time, dances as well as skates, the film features Jack Oakie, Cesar Romero, Carole Landis, S. Z. Sakall and Cornel Wilde—with the matchless melodies of Woody Herman and his "band that plays the blues" to top it off.

Set against the splendor of Canada, the unusual story has an enterprising young hotel owner—Wilde—trying through the aid of his overly optimistic partner—Oakie—to bring a wealthy Norwegian and his attractive niece to enhance the reputation of his resort.

And that starts things moving—but fast! Sonja, as the comely niece, falls for the youngster and agrees to do her best to help advance the hotel's good name. Romero is out to "wolf" Sonja, while Carole Landis is after Cesar! Oakie, for his part, is after—and gets—laughs by the score!

Sonja has several opportunities to execute some new and excitingly different routines for which she is justly famous. For consummate artistry and effortless ease of execution, there has never been anything on ice that can touch Sonja, as she proves anew in "Wintertime." Her troupe is superbly trained, and the whole blends together like the colors in a masterpiece, a tribute to Producer William LeBaron.

Woody Herman and his band achieve new heights in their handling of the musical numbers in the film, of which there are many. Especially written for the picture by tunesmiths Leo Robin and Nacio Herb Brown, these include "I Like It Here," "Dancing in the Dawn," "Later Tonight," "I'm All A-Twitter Over You" and "We Always Get Our Girl." "Drums and Dreams" is a red hot specialty, and the title tune is a sure bet for the hit parade.

"Training Table", in Color

The added special attraction on same program is "Training Table," a multiple-reel film produced in beautiful technicolor, reveals food for fitness, what the men in the R. C. A. F. eat to be fit is good for the health of all Canadians. Here for the first time—is the story of the scientific diet of the R. C. A. F. The Canadian Paramount News and a colorfun cartoon "Superman Rides Again" complete the program.

AT THE CAPITOL

"One Thrilling Night"

Local theatregoers are in for one of the comedy treats of the year, it is announced, when Monogram's hilarious farce, 'One Thrilling Night' is now showing at the Capitol Theatre.

John Beal and Wanda McKay play the leading roles, and are seen as a guileless young pair of newly weds from a small town in Connecticut, who have time for a one-night honeymoon in New York City before he must report to the army for induction. No sooner have they begun preparations for retiring than they are startled to find an apparently dead man in their hotel room. They run down the hall to summon the acutely dumb house detective, but by the time he can return with them the body has disappeared.

Thus begins a series of exciting and uproariously funny adventures which continue throughout the night, and afford them no more privacy than if they were camped in the middle of Broadway. They find that their room has become the focal point of a constantly changing gang war, and neither house detective nor police force seem to be able to do much about it. Instead it is said, the complications mount in hilarity to the climax.

Warren Hymer is the derbied house detective, and other important roles are played by Tom Neal, Barbara Pepper and J. Farrell MacDonald.

"Action in the North Atlantic"

"Action in the North Atlantic", Warner Bros.' story of the heroic deeds of the men of our Merchant Marine, is the Capitol Theatre's added attraction. Humphrey Bogart, Raymond Massey and Alan Hale are starred in the film, which was directed by Lloyd Bacon, Julie Bishop, Dane Clark, Ruth Gordon and Sam Levene head the supporting cast.

The Canadian Universal News completes the big new program.

Italian Objective To Capture Rome Says Gen. Wilson

Algiers, Jan. 17 — (AP) — Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson announced today his policy as Mediterranean Commander-in-Chief would be to strike at the Germans with maximum force wherever the opportunity offers.

The object of present operations in Italy is to capture Rome, Wilson told correspondents in his first appearance at Allied headquarters in Algiers as the new commander.

But the Mediterranean front extends from the Maritza river in the Balkans to the Pyrenees and attacks might be made anywhere along it, including southern France, Gen. Wilson said.

The Maritza river rises in the centre of Bulgaria and forms part of the boundary of Bulgaria and Turkey. The Pyrenees form the French-Spanish frontier.

2 Burmese Villages Occupied by Allies

New Delhi, Jan. 17—(CP)—Allied forces have occupied two more villages in Western Burma west of the Mayu mountain range in a slow advance through the jungle, Allied headquarters announced today.

A communique said some units had penetrated three miles south and southeast of captured Maungdaw, 55 miles northwest of Akyab.

After the Allied forces entered the two villages, the Japanese counter-attacked several times, the bulletin said, but all attacks were repulsed.

YO-YO DRIVES NATIVES OF SOLOMONS HALF CRAZY

Los Angeles, Jan. 15 — (AP) — Marine Pte. Bill Graff, Jr., 22, writes home that he has become "the wizard of the Solomons." His father included a yo-yo in Bill's Christmas package, and the marine reports these results: "I've got the natives half crazy trying to figure out what makes the yo-yo work. My skill and all, they think I am on the supernatural side — and who am I to tell 'em different!"

SENIOR SERVICES HOCKEY LEAGUE IN WEST CLOSES

Loop Suspended After the Recent Ruling from Army Headquarters

SMART JUNIOR SQUADS

Winnipeg, Jan. 17 —(CP)— The Winnipeg Senior Services Hockey League came to an end Jan. 10 when the Canadian Army adopted a ruling, similar to the one announced last month by the R. C. A. F. prohibiting soldier teams from participating in leagues whose champions enter either Allan Cup or Memorial Cup playdowns.

When the Senior Services League had finished its abbreviated schedule, Army was in possession of first place, three points head of H. M. C. S. Chippawa and R. C. A. F. bombers.

Meanwhile the two Winnipeg junior circuits continue to provide an exciting brand of hockey.

In the south division set-up Winnipeg Monarchs boast a four point margin over St. James Canadians. The Monarchs have six victories, the Canucks four. Winnipeg Rangers, defending Dominion Junior champions, have yet to enter the victory column.

Eskies Defeated Once.

In the north division Winnipeg Esquires continue as top-dogs. The Eskies have registered 17 points since the season was ushered in, eight wins and a tie. And have been defeated only once—by Canadian Ukrainian Athletic Club, which follows them with six triumphs and a draw.

St. Boniface Athletics, 1943 champions, are five points behind the Ukrainians with four wins and Winnipeg Air Cadets, badly hit by the recent R. C. A. F. puck ruling, trail the pack without a win in nine starts.

Port Arthur West Ends lead the Thunder Bay Junior League and loom as a choice threat to the title won last Spring by the now defunct Fort William Hurricane-Rangers. The Westies have four straight triumphs for eight points. Port Arthur H. M. C. S. Griffon follows in the standings with two victories while Port Arthur Flyers and Fort William Columbus Club each have yet to produce a winning effort.

Churchill Meets DeGaulle In French Morocco

Algiers, Jan. 17 — (AP) — Agreement upon some French participation in new assaults upon Europe have been reached by Prime Minister Churchill and Gen. Charles de Gaulle at a "most cordial" conference at Marrakech, Morocco, it was announced over the weekend.

The British Premier, fully recovered from pneumonia, agreed with the French Committee of National Liberation head on the necessity for a close relationship between France and Britain, but was reported to have reserved for the Allied military command any decision on supplying arms to anti-Nazis within France.

The Allied high command policy has followed the advice of Gen. Henri Giraud, Commander-in-Chief of French forces, to send arms to trained French soldiers rather than to the underground. DeGaulle in a recent speech before the French Assembly said the Allies had not sent enough help to French patriots despite "long and dolorous negotiations."

An official French announcement of the meeting said the two leaders reviewed "the principal questions interesting to Franco-British relations as well as the different aspects for co-operation for a common victory."

U. S. Marines Capture Hill And Dominate Region

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Jan. 17 (AP)—United States Marines, in what some of them termed the bloodiest battle for the southwest Pacific, have captured Hill 660 to dominate the Borgen Bay area of western New Britain, it was officially reported today.

Australians kept pace by sweeping on through Sio, on New Guinea's northeast coast and advancing three miles farther, clearing more of the coast preparatory, perhaps, for a big Allied push against Madang, farther northwest.

"Direct hits and damaging near-misses," said a communique, were scored on a Japanese cruiser, a destroyer and seven cargo ships in the harbor. Returning pilots said the destroyers and one merchant ship were possibly sunk.

The attack was the first blow to be delivered against Rabaul shipping from the new Bougainville island airfields, in the Solomons, only 250 miles from the enemy base.

One pilot said he saw "the whole stern" blown off a cargo ship of 8,000 to 10,000 tons.

Turn Three Men Over To Provincial Police

Ottawa, Jan. 17 —(CP)— Three men arrested by Ottawa Police Saturday have been turned over to Ontario Provincial Police at L'orignal, Ont., where they will be charged in connection with a break-in at a Plantagenet, Ont., general store last Monday, when goods valued at $2,000 were stolen.

The men are Maurice Gagnon, 32, of Ottawa; Naphthalis Gouin, 22, of Hull, Que., and Lucien Rousseau, 25, no fixed address. Detective Sgt. Leonard Green of Ottawa City Police said goods valued at approximately $600 have been recovered. Plantagenet is 40 miles east of Ottawa.

General Bradley To Command U.S. Forces in Invasion

London, Jan. 17—(CP)—Lt.-Gen. Omar N. Bradley, who took over as the commander of the American Second Army Corps in Tunisia, succeeding Lt.-Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., is the Senior commander of American ground forces in the United Kingdom, it was disclosed today.

Gen. Bradley was one of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's chief lieutenants in the Mediterranean theatre.

It was not definitely indicated, however, whether Bradley would become commander of all American ground forces in the coming western invasion of Europe. Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery has been designated commander of British ground invasion forces.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself in his private chair and I was doing my homework and feeling against it, saying, Hay pop, this is a pretty hard of a problem, do you want to see if you can do it?

Well no, I cant say that I feel any such ambition stirring in my breast pop said. How long have you been working on it? he said, and I said, Five minutes at least.

Measured in terms of aternity, 5 minutes is only a drop in a bottomless bucket, pop said. Measured in terms of a butterfly's life it is quite a considerable little stretch of time, and measured in terms of the life of a human bean it seems a more important part of an hour the older one grows, but since you haven't grown very old yet, I think you can very well spare another 5 minutes on the problem under discussion. I can also think of other reasons why you ought to work out your own problems. In the first place it will give you a feeling of self reliance which may prove to be quite a useful sensation, and in the 2nd place it will be a practical lesson in the power of mind over mechanics and will give you confidence to face this industrial age of ours, he said.

Sure, pop, but God, I mean gosh, if you do it for me it will prove that people never forget their arifmetic no matter how old they live to be, and that will prove I'll probably never forget mine either, and that'll be a swell satisfaction to feel, I said, and pop said, For one thing I dont happen to be anywhere near old enough to prove any such point, and for another thing I do happen to be old enough to see what's going on even while the wool is being pulled over my eyes. Now do that problem and do it correctly, too, he said.

Which I did in about 5 more minutes, making me feel better instead of worse.

CHAPTER 4

"Do you think if you listened closely you could get it through your head that this is necessary? We must do this job!"

"I can't stand and I won't stand, and you can just get me a wheel chair.

Farrish turned to his men. "A heroine, what? Well boys, fold up the tools. No time to rush another model here. There'll be one more payday Saturday." He stood a moment looking down at the model, who crouched, holding her ankle in both hands.

"You get me a wheel chair—I'm going to sue for damages, too," said Marie.

"Pack up, boys!" scowled Farrish.

Then Darnley heard herself speaking. She was hardly aware that she was doing so. Something had moved her lips and raised her voice and with astonishment she heard herself call, "Mr. Farrish!"

He turned a blank face toward her.

"Mr. Farrish, I can do it. I'm a model. I can pose for that picture."

He narrowed his eyes and peered across at her. The men ceased dismantling the lights and waited. "Amble around here where I can get a look at you," Farrish said sharply.

She ran around the end of the slip and stood before him. He scowled down at her. She noticed his eyes; they were brown and troubled. He was a rather homely person, but there was something about his face that you would remember next day.

"What do you think, Brown?" he asked of his cameraman.

"Better than nobody, anyhow," said Brown.

This did not seem to impress Farrish. But he was the sort of person who did not show whether he was impressed or not. "Any sailor'll do when a cyclone comes," he said. "Waltz over there and we will give it the old try."

Two of his men carried Marie and deposited her twenty feet away.

Farrish said to Darnley: "Grab that bag and do your stuff."

She picked up the bag and assumed a pose. Lights glared, cameras clicked. She was moved about thus and so. Her chin was tilted and depressed; the hang of her dress was altered; the set of her fingers on the handle of the bag was changed. Farrish kept correcting her expression:

"Your breakfast didn't disagree with you. It's a beautiful world. You're going to meet the boyfriend Look like you liked it! Put some 'It' into it!"

In twenty minutes Farrish and his helpers had done all they could do.

"That's that, boys," he said, and they commenced to pack. "Hey, Sammie, run and get a wheel chair for the Duchess."

It was there that Darnley made for herself an enemy.

The volunteer model had been staring at Marie's ankles. Both were slim and trim. There was no sign of swelling. Farrish looked at them, too. His eyes narowed. "Oh, well," he said, "get her a wheel chair. We'll go through the motions."

Marie, lips a narrow line, looked at Darnley, and her eyes were bright and vindicative. "I'll be seeing you," she said waspishly.

"Eh? What? Oh, sure." His mind obviously was occupied. "Get this stuff back to the shop," he said to his men. "Rush those proofs, I want to get them to Brooks' by ten"

"Well," said Darnley, "I've got to get some breakfast."

"Breakfast?" Farrish blinked.

The wheel chair trundled up and Marie was placed in it. "You have not heard the last of this," she said sharply.

"Oh, yes, breakfast. Breakfast. What in thunder's your name?"

"Darnley Carfax," she said.

"You certainly did pop up," he said. "Breakfast. Come along."

He strode off and she followed him, trailed by her porter. Presently they were seated at the counter in the lunch room.

Suddenly Farrish turned on her. "Her ankle wasn't swelled," he said.

"No sign of it," agreed Darnley.

"It could be one of those things," said Farrish. "It could be. Um . . Twenty-five bucks for posing and maybe a couple of case notes for faking an ankle?"

"Why would she do that?" asked Darnley. "I saw her slip. And if she twisted that ankle, then I'm crazy."

"That point," he said, "has been decided. I'm way beyond it."

For moments they ate in silence; then he dropped his spoon and turned on her. "You certainly did come out of a hat," he said. He stared at her. "You ought to photograph. Can't tell. Well, I'll be seeing you." He got up and started away.

"Do I pay for the breakfast?" she asked.

He snorted, seized the checks and strode to the cashier. "What did you say your name is?"

"Darnley Carfax."

"Come along to the office and I'll pay you," he said. "Um . . . What's your rate?"

"I haven't made up my mind," she said.

He jerked his head sideways and glared at her. "Holdup, eh? We'll fifty bucks is the top, because that's all I've got."

"I don't think there'll be a holdup," she said. "The bill will come in the usual way."

"From whom?"

"Wolfgang Model Agency."

"Oh," he said, obviously relieved. "You're one of Wolfgang's stable."

"I will be," she said.

She tried to keep abreast of him. He thrust open the door, and just outside the restaurant he encountered a man somewhat older than himself, one who wore one of those little moustaches and who was undeniably handsome. He was as tall as Farrish but broader of shoulder.

"Morning, Farrish," he said.

"Morning, Gorse."

Gorse grinned crookedly. "How'd the picture-taking come out this morning?" he asked, with a jeer in his voice.

"Beautiful! Lovely! Just — like that" And, with the word that, Farrish struck Gorse on the exact point of the chin, so that Gorse sprawled to the stone floor and seemed to lose interest in events. Farrish stood over him, scowling.

Darnley Carfax, in a state of understandable excitement, took a taxicab to the little hotel which Grandpa Carfax had mentioned. She was shown to a small room where she unpacked her bag and took a bath. She emerged presently, put on a little gown that she deemed suitable, descended to the street and took another taxi—careless today of expense—to the uptown building in which was located Peter Orrick's studio.

She sent up her name and was permitted to enter the elevator. Orrick himself opened his door. He extended his hand, but immediately she was conscious of something restrained in his manner and of something watchful in his eye.

However, he managed a carefully reined cordiality. "Come in. This comes under the head of a surprise. When did you burst upon New York?"

"This morning," she said, looking around at the untidiness of her first studio; at the north light, the canvases stacked along the wall, the big easel with work upon it, and the stand covered with cups and dishes and paint rags.

"Sit and tell all," he said with specious jocosity meant to hide inner apprehension. "I yearn for the story of your life since I left Colby."

"It is brief," she said. "I found I could afford to come to New York. Grandpa Carfax was willing. So here I am—to try it."

No mention of The Metropolis Magazine cover! Orrick did not know whether she was glad or offended. "After all these years," he said, "New York gets a break."

She was fully conscious of the change in his manner, but could not account for it. Perhaps he was very busy and her coming this morning was an unwelcome interruption.

How could she realize that he was afraid she would presume upon the circumstances of their acquaintance? How, above all, could she know that he had, that very morning, received a letter from his Aunt Orrick giving him a general outline of conditions back in Darnley's home town and not sparing criticisms of his conduct? The letter told him that Darnley's posing had, in effect, made a fallen woman of her, and rather pointedly warned him to look out for trouble. In effect, the letter told him that he had undone Darnley. His aunt's mind, working as it would have worked had she been in Darnley's position, her letter did more than hint that Darnley probably would hold him responsible and demand unpleasantly that he assume responsibilities. Consequently, guiltless as he was, he was experiencing a gone feeling in the pit of his stomach and was anticipating the worst.

"What I really came to see you for so quickly," said Darnley, "was to ask more about the Wolfgang Model Agency and what I should do about it."

Peter Orrick was not interested in model agencies. He wanted to know where he stood and what perils to avert. So, clumsily, as most men behave when in a predicament with a woman, he decided to take the bull by the horns. "Like our cover?" he asked with an air of casualness.

"I simply doted on it," she said.

He waited, but she did not enlarge. "Did your Grandpa Carfax like it?" he asked.

"I think," she said, "he sleeps with it under his pillow."

"And, naturally, the town was proud of you?"

"The town," she said, "was quite surprised."

So was Peter Orrick. He was bewildered, nonplussed. He did not know where to go from there.

As for Darnley, she intended never to mention the bitter things that had happened back home, because she was afraid Orrick would be disturbed by them and perhaps accuse himself.

Orrick did not know her well enough to comprehend the sturdiness that lay beneath her beauty or the lessons she has assimilated unconsciously from Grandpa Carfax—lessons in what the world might call sportsmanship, but which Grandpa Carfax did not call by that name; lessons in decent pride and in self-reliance and in a meticulous self-respect.

His Aunt Orrick's letter had been mailed before the stormy scene in the church, so Peter did not know about that. Had he known, his state of mind would have been much more apprehensive than it was.

"I've had a job already," she said. "Do you think maybe I was born lucky?"

"A job? Posing?"

"With a streamlined train," she said. "It was for a man named Farrish, who knocks people down and has very bad manners." She told him about it. "I was quite nonchalant. I told him I was working for the Wolfgang Model Agency. I thought that might help."

Orrick commenced to feel less uneasy. He could not have told why.

Before Darnley could reply, the bell rang and Peter, excusing himself, went to the door. It was a special delivery letter.

"May I?" he asked and tore open the envelope. The letter was from his Aunt Orrick, who had been so avid to convey the news to him that she had been prodigal of a dime for special delivery. He read the letter, learned the miserable story of Darnley's pillorying from the pulpit; learned that Darnley had been practically run out of her native village; and his heart sank. Inwardly he raged at such narrowness; yet, for all that, he could not help worrying.

But Darnley had not mentioned it! What did that mean? Was she saving it up for some adroit use? His experience with girls about New York was that some of them were prone to make use of any advantage. He decided that his wise course would be to let her make the first move.

"Of course," said Darnley, "I want to become a model as soon as I can, because money doesn't last forever. Oh, I've plenty for a while—say a year. And to buy the sort of clothes I have to have. I want to talk to you about that. What clothes ought a model have?"

So she was amply supplied with money! If she had meant to become a financial charge upon him she would not have mentioned that. For fifteen minutes they talked clothes—what she should have in her wardrobe and where to buy them. He explained that a large part of the dresses and wraps and hats worn by models in pictures were supplied by artists or photographers or by their clients.

"And a successful model gets her dresses at a price. If," he said, "she is very beautiful and gets around, the dress shops will outfit her practically free for the advertisement. Some of the girls get a rake-off for recommending modistes."

"What I really wanted to ask your advice about," she said, "is where to live. I don't know how to start looking."

"I'm hanged if I know," said Peter. "Some of the girls could give you a line. There's no hurry for a day or two, is there?"

Then the door burst open. It exploded open. Darnley's first impression was of an enormous nose. Then she saw that the nose was only one feature of an enormous face with an enormous ear on each side of it. Below this fantastic visage was a tremendous body, broad, suggesting the strength of a wrestler and the weight of an elephant. It was an alarming behemoth of a man.

"Food," the intruder bellowed.

"Scram," replied Peter.

The behemoth noticed Darnley and stared at her. "I don't know you," he said, "but I want to. You can come, too. You're a new one. I know all the old ones. Where do they come from, Pete? And they are all hungry. You're hungry, aren't you, beautiful?"

"We're talking business," said Peter.

"I'll help you. It's my forte. Grab your hat before I perish in this famine. We'll go to Thirty-Ninth."

"We might as well give in, Darnley," said Peter. "Miss Carfax, this midget is Adrian De Groot."

"Oh!" exclaimed Darnley. "I had no idea it was so late. I—"

"Will eat," said De Groot. "Don't set a record. Don't be the first girl in New York to refuse a free meal."

She looked to Peter for a suggestion.

"Give in," he said. "He always gets his way or annoys you to death."

She wanted to give in; she wanted to see Thirty-Nine, for even so far away as her home town she had heard and read of it—currently the most famous eating place in Manhattan.

"Are you an artist too, Mr. De Groot?" she asked.

"What is an artist? Heaven knows. A radio comedian is often called an artist. Likewise, a trapeze performer. A chef is an artist. According to De Quincy, a murderer may be an artist." He halted and stared at her. "Do you mean you don't know who I am?"

"I'm sorry," confessed Darnley.

"I," said De Groot, "am a historian and philosopher."

"Which means," explained Peter, "he earns his living by writing a column in the papers under the pen name of Mister Manhattan."

"Oh" exclaimed Darnley.

"In which," said De Groot, "I am both historian and philosopher."

"And snooper, too," added Peter.

"If," said De Groot, "you bring to the light of day hitherto unknown details of Caesar's affair with Cleopatra, or what Marie Antoinette did the night she didn't appear at the opera, you are a scholar. If you print the inside story of the Cooper divorce, or why Freddie Peters left for Europe between two days, you are a snooper. Well, it pays better."

"Miss Carfax," said Peter experimentally, "is the original of my last Metropolis cover."

"I knew her face was familiar," said De Groot, "but," he turned upon her rather terrifyingly, "do you know anything? Are you intelligent?"

"I do and I am," she said.

He gaped, then moved to the door and jerked it open. Darnley and Peter followed him.

"I'm sorry if this annoys you," Darnley whispered to Peter. "I wouldn't even have come to your studio, because, after all, I hardly know you. But I did need to ask a few questions of somebody."

"And," he asked almost involuntarily, "you don't want to tear my ears off?"

"Why should she want to tear your ears off?" demanded De Groot. "Now, if it was my ears—there's a souvenir for a lady."

"It was just a way of saying," said Peter, "that Miss Carfax is an incredible young woman."

"They all are," grinned De Groot, "during the preliminary stages. Nothing wears off a girl quicker than incredibility. The better you know them the less incredible they grow, until they bore you and you go looking for another incredible one."

"He sounds," said Darnley, "like an old maid discussing babies. Did he ever have a girl?"

Dr. Thomas H. Hogg Represents Canada On Allied Board

Toronto, Jan. 17. (CP) — Dr. Thomas H. Hogg, chairman and chief engineer of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, has been named to represent Canada on the Public Utilities Committee formed by the combined product'n and resources board to survey the utility needs of Allied Nations and plan procurement of equipment for liberated countries. Official announcement of the appointment was made today from the Toronto offices of the Hydro-Electric Commission.

J. A. Krug, director of the office of War Utilities, will represent the United States and act as chairman of the committee. The member for Great Britain is Sir Henry Self, deputy United Kingdom representative on the Production and Resources Board.

U. S. Hopes to See Polish-Russian Relations Restored

Washington, Jan. 17 — (AP) — The United States government has advised the Soviet government of its willingness to work for restoration of good relations between Russia and Poland, State Secretary Cordell Hull disclosed today, and is hopeful that such relations may be resumed.

Hull disclosed at a press conference that a dispatch to that effect had been sent to Moscow.

His disclosure followed directly on an authoritative report from Moscow protesting against the Polish dispute over prewar polish territory on which the Red Army now is fighting.

London — (CP) — J.W.S. Brancker, 33, has been appointed traffic director of British Overseas Airways Corporation. He succeeds Denis Handover, who resigned.

Copenhagen Police Interned by Huns, Stations Occupied

Stockholm, Jan. 17. (AP)—The Free Danish Press Service said today German military and police had interned the entire police force of Copenhagen and had occupied all police stations.

Danish sources here said they believed a new wave of sabotage against the Nazi invaders had led to the action which had been long expected.

Nazi occupation authorities have accused Danish police of not cooperating with them in the past in combatting the numerous outbreaks of sabotage.

Cheese and Butter Production in Ont. Lower in December

Toronto, Jan. 17 (CP)—Ontario butter production dropped in December but an increase is anticipated this month following the advance of the butterfat subsidy from eight to 10 cents a pound Jan. 1, it is said in a report issued today by the Dairy Branch of the Department of Agriculture. The increase is expected to be greatest in western Ontario. The production of cheese was also lower.

Creamery butter manufactured in Ontario during December amounted to 3,686,000 pounds, or 17.1 per cent less than in December 1942, when the output totalled 4,446,000 pounds. The total production of butter for the entire year of 1943 now totals 82,408,000 pounds, or 1.9 per cent more than in the preceding year when production amounted to 80,867,000 pounds.

Cheese production shows a slight reduction from the level of a year ago. The December output for Ontario is reported at 2,369,000 pounds, as against 2,563,000 pounds in December 1942, a decrease of 7.6 per cent. For the twelve months the accumulated make is 103,849,000 pounds as compared with 126,537,000 pounds in 1942, or a decline of 17.9 per cent.

15 Per cent Less Milk

The quantity of milk required for the production of creamery butter and factory cheese during December is estimated at 112,813,000 pounds. This is 15.0 per cent less than the 132,791,000 pounds of milk used for the production of these two products during December 1942. For the entire year the quantity of milk used for the manufacture of creamery butter and factory cheese totals 3,092,288,000 pounds as against 3,310,307,000 pounds in 1942, or a decrease of 6.6 per cent.

Stocks of creamery butter at January 1st, in both warehouses in the City of Toronto and dairy factories throughout the province were much higher than at the same date a year earlier. Stocks held by warehouses in the City of Toronto at January 1st, 1944, were reported at 4,915,000 pounds as compared with 1,493,000 pounds at January 1st, 1943, and dairy factories throughout the province reported their holdings of creamery butter at 3,712,000 pounds as against 1,803,000 pounds.

Stocks of Cheddar cheese held in cheese factories throughout the province were less than a year ago, amounting to 983,000 pounds at January 1st 1944, as against 1,455 lbs. at January 1st, 1943. Stocks of this commodity in warehouses in the City of Toronto were also less than a year ago, amounting to 2,393,000 as against 5,014,000 pounds.

Commercial sales of fluid milk in Ontario during November, totalled 32,895,000 quarts having a sales value of $3,412,500. This represents a considerable increase in quantity over November 1942, when sales amounted to 28,368,000 quarts with a sales value of $3,405,100. Fluid cream sales were somewhat higher than a year ago. In November 875,000 quarts of cream were sold valued at $419,200 as against 849,000 quarts in November 1942 valued at $426,600.

The truck price in Toronto area of churning cream butterfat 1st grade is 35 cents per pound, with delivery to creamery by patron one cent per pound more, while express cream is 38 cents per pound f.o.b. shipping point A Dominion subsidy of 10 cents per pound is added to the above quotations.

FIRE EXTINGUISHED

Trenton, (Special)—What might have been a serious fire was quickly brought under control by Trenton firemen, Sunday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. H. Stacey, 213 Byron Street.

Though the water pressure is low at that particular part of the town the fact that the fire was early discovered proved a saving feature and with only a light stream the blaze was extinguished.

It is thought to have started, probably from defective wiring, as it was first noticed in a summer kitchen at the rear of the house. The damage was only slight to partitions and contents of kitchen.

Two New Fleet Destroyers Also Given Dominion

These Will be in Addition to New Medium Cruisers Announced Friday

LATEST DESIGN

Ottawa, Jan. 17. (CP)—An announcement from Navy Minister Macdonald today disclosed that Canada is getting two new fleet destroyers as well as two new medium cruisers from Britain. Mr. Macdonald had announced the gift of the two cruisers at a press conference last Friday.

A naval release said the gift of the four ships to Canada might be described as "reverse mutual aid". On Friday the minister emphasized, however, that the cruisers were "straight gifts" with "no strings attached".

Arrangements for the transfer of the ships to the Canadian Navy were initiated at Quebec conference discussions, the release said.

"They will come under Canada's exclusive control in the same way that large numbers of fighting ships, notably corvettes, minesweepers and frigates built in Canada, have been transferred to the United Kingdom and now are units of the Royal Navy", the release added.

"In both cases, the ships are made available, without regard to financial considerations, to the service where it is believed they can contribute most effectively to the common war effort of the United Nations.

"The addition of these four ships, of the latest design and modern armament and equipment, to the Royal Canadian Navy will contribute greatly to its strength and balance, and will enable it to play a still greater part in the defeat of our enemies. It provides a striking example of the close co-operation and mutual assistance which have characterized the relations of the two navies from the moment of the outbreak of the war".

3 FOUND DEAD IN AUTOMOBILE

Lexington, Mass., Jan. 17 —(AP) —The bodies of two brothers and a girl companion were found early today in an automobile on an isolated road off the Concord Turnpike by police who investigated the story of another girl who stumbled into her home last night with frostbitten legs.

The dead were: James Keefe, 24; his brother, John, 17, and Ruth Place, 16, all of Waltham. Lexington police found the bodies while investigating the story of Grace Saunders, 18, of Cambridge, who was taken to a hospital in a serious condition.

Police Sergeant John O'Brien quoted Miss Saunders as saying she had met the Place girl on Thursday and that they went riding with the Keefe brothers. The car ran out of gasoline on a lonely road and all four remained in the automobile until Miss Saunders got out yesterday and made her way to the main highway. She "thumbed" a ride to Cambridge and then took a bus home. She said she had not eaten since Thursday.

Autopsies will be performed to determine the cause of death.

Police believe the heater in the car expended the oxygen before the gasoline tank ran dry and the trio possibly died of carbon monoxide fumes. The Saunders girl survived they believe, because she was sitting beside a window that was open "just a crack."

Training Planes Collide and Two Airmen Killed

Dundalk, Ont., Jan. 17 —(CP)— Two airmen were killed today when two R. C. A. F. training planes collided in mid-air over the farm of David Reddick, one-quarter mile south of Proton station. Proton is six miles northwest of Dundalk.

Eyewitnesses saw parts fly from both planes when they struck and they landed about one-quarter of a mile apart and about one mile from where they struck. Both planes caught fire.

The pilot was removed from one plane by Walter Acheson, on whose farm it came down, and Ed. Stinson. Quite a number helped remove the pilot of the other plane. As far as was known here, there was just one man in each plane.

One plane seemed to come up under the other and their wings touched, said an eyewitness. One went into a spiral dive and the other seemed able to right itself. Both were believed from No. 6 S. F. T. S. at Dunnville.

Next-of-kin have been informed and the names will be released shortly.

MONTREAL LIVESTOCK

Montreal, Jan. 17. (CP)—Receipts: cattle 1,000; calves 850; sheep and lambs 1,400; hogs 1,300.

Medium steers $10.75 to $11.75. Common cows $6.25 to $7.25.

Veal calves $15 to $16 for good to choice, common lights down to $12. Grass calves mostly $8.25 to $9.00.

Bulk of the lamb supply were bucks, ungraded at $10 to $10.50. Sheep $3 to $6.50. Hogs $17.15, for B-1 dressed. Sows $12 dressed.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Jan 17 (CP)—Mining groups firmed narrowly in the early session of the Toronto stock exchange today. Mines posted small index gains at noon, industrials were narrowly lower and the western oils held even in the average with Saturday's final prices. Volume continued quite heavy at 530,000 shares for the first three hours.

Paper and steel issues were stronger. Massey-Harris Pfd. was in demand at a gain of 1-2 to 21 and Consolidated Paper traded actively on a gain of 1-4 to 6 5-8. Burlington Steel, Canada Wire A and English Electric advanced.

Preston and Kirkland Lake traded actively at higher prices and moderate weakness was shown by other golds including Upper Canada, Malartic Gold Fields, MacLeod-Cockshutt and Pamour. Ventures and Waite-Amulet weakened 15 to 20 cents.

Mid-continent sold off about 4 cents and prices were higher for Home Oil and Dalhousie.

WALL STREET

New York, Jan. 17 —(AP)— A few Rails and Specialties managed to keep the advance going in today's stock market although many leaders faltered under light profit cashing. Mild irregularity ruled near the fourth hour.

Canadian issues were weak, with Canadian Pacific, Dome Mines, Hiram Walker and Lake Shore all off fractions. McIntyre was unchanged and Distillers Seagram up a fraction.

Modest gains were scored for Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Farnsworth Television (at a new 1943-44 peak), Anaconda, Sperry and International Nickel.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Jan. 17 —(CP)— Cattle trade was fairly active at firm prices up to mid-session on the livestock market here today. Calves, hogs, sheep and lambs were steady.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: Cattle 1,900, calves 300, hogs 1,000, sheep and lambs 800. Unsold from Saturday were 200 head of cattle.

Prices in the trade included:

Cattle: Weighty steers $11-$13, butcher steers and heifers $10.50-$11.85, butcher cows $7-$9, a few bulls $7.50-$9, fed yearlings $12-$13.50.

Calves: $15-$16 for choice with other vealers downward to $9.50 and grass calves $7.50-$8.

Lambs: $13.50 good ewes and wethers, bucks $1 discount, culls $6-$8.

Sheep: Slow $3-$6.

Hogs: $17.15 dressedweight, sows $13 dressed.

HOGS

Toronto, Jan. 17 (CP)—Dressedweight were off 10 cents at Chatham, dressedweight up 5 cents at Hamilton and prices unchanged at other bacon hog markets reporting early today.

Dressedweight: Chatham $16.40 plus transportation, Hamilton $17.15 delivered, Hull $16.95 delivered, London and Stratford $17 delivered.

BAY OF BISCAY BATTLE VICTORS

Captain H. T. W. Grant, left, of the British cruiser Enterprise is greeted by Capt. C. P. Clarke aboard the H.M.S. Glasgow. They have good reason to smile, for their ships sank three Nazi destroyers in the Bay of Biscay, put eight others to flight and sank a freighter.

What Is Happening In The Bombed Towns of Germany

The following article by a special correspondent with exceptional knowledge of the state of Germany's bombed towns, describes something of what happens when 1,500 tons of bombs hit a town. He says that Britain's experience of bombing, bad as it was, in no way compares with the havoc caused by British bombing in Germany, for even the attack on Coventry was "primitive" compared to the effects of the technique now in force.

(From the London Sunday Express.)

What actually happens when Bomber Command has got in a 1,500-ton attack on a large industrial German town?

Everyone knows the obvious results, as the reconnaissance camera shows them—the great cloud of smoke and then, when the air is clear again, the miles of roofless or ruined buildings.

Viewed from such a height the scene merely suggests a dead city, but in fact we know that it must be a scene of frenzied activity, like that of an anthill which has been kicked open.

Our own experience in the blitz of 1940-41 gives only a little help towards imagining the situation over there in Germany.

Damage in Germany is enormously greater, and at the same time there is the difference that we had in England during the blitz a large Army not fighting -but training for war, and a great deal of labor not yet fully drawn into war industry.

After the big blitz in England, big as raids were counted then, the Army was often called in for the work of demolition, bomb disposal, policing, rescue work, and so forth.

It was easy then to lay hands on a few thousand soldiers to cope with 100 acres of devastation. We may be sure that the Germans do not find it easy to get the soldiers they need to handle several square miles of ruins.

Germany never got a single British city under. Not only did morale never crack, but industrial production got back to normal again, in Coventry and the other blitzed cities, in a very few weeks.

In one month of the blitz period the effect of bombing on war production was about equal to the effect of two or three days' holiday on a whole month's production.

It is certain that if we were bombing cities no more accurately or heavily than the Luftwaffe in 1940-41, then Bomber Command's work would be only a thorn in the enemy's side.

It is certain that it is far more than a thorn, otherwise Germany would not, at the height of the overwhelming Russian offensive, have recently withdrawn fighter squadrons from the Russian front to protect German cities.

The order of battle of the Luftwaffe, leaving German armies on all fronts without adequate air support or cover, is enough in itself to prove that the effect of destroying several square miles is not to be judged by the effect of damaging one or two hundred acres.

What experience of concentrated bombing we have had in this country—it was not much, because a German air raid was often scattered over some 50 square miles—all goes to show that if the Germans had achieved greater concentration, without increasing the weight of attack, the effect of the blitz would have been several times as great.

It was concentration rather than weight of attack which made Coventry an object lesson, though a primitive one, in bombing.

There is good reason to belive that the loss of man-hours per ton of bombs dropped is at least half a dozen times as great in a 1,500-ton attack on Germany as it was in the most effective of German air raids on England.

By contrast with the German raids scattered over 50 square miles we are not satisifed nowadays unless by far the greater proportion of the attack is concentrated right on the target. Pathfinder tactics have made this possible.

The disproportion between blitzes on Britain and mass air raids on Germany is too great for accurate comparison. But a German official report on the state of a German day after a great raid might run like this:—

"Owing to this destruction of water-mains and the exhaustion of static water in all parts of the town, the situation was still critical three days after the attack, and several fires were still out of control. Much hosing and fire equipment were destroyed, and skilled workers were needed for repairs.

"There were heavy casualties among the personnel of the fire brigade, which is now much under establishment. Reinforcements from other areas were on this occasion quite inadequate. Billeting was impossible within the town, and all arrangements for feeding the reinforcements broke down—demolition, rescue work, etc., is therefore proceeding very slowly.

"Several main sewers and several thousand branch sewers were breached. More than 500 water mains have been fractured; a small proportion of factory mains have been repaired, but there is no prospect of domestic supply until debris can be cleared and the valves reached by work parties.

"Because of contamination by sewers and gas, all water for domestic consumption must be boiled. As the result of 900 fractures and major damage in the town gas works the gas supply is entirely disorganized; most domestic consumers are unable to boil water and hot meals cannot be provided.

"Telephone communications failed throughout the area. One line to the outside world became available after five days, but was quite inadequate for administrative purposes. Despatch riders were used for all but the most urgent communications, but because of dislocation of road traffic, etc., it was later decided to set up local headquarters outside the town area. This led to a severe fall in public morale, and the suggestion spread that a second air attack would soon be made because the headquarters staff had evacuated to a safe area.

"Twelve hundred retail shops being out of commission, food distribution was gravely hampered. Disorganization of supplies affected the food position more seriously than actual destruction of stores, though this also was serious.

"In this connection the importance of hot meals for sustaining morale cannot be too strongly stressed. Experience here was that the official distribution of spirits was a wholly inadequate substitute.

"Industrial activity fell to less than 10 per cent of the previous figure on the morning after the attack. The expected rise of 1.5 per cent per day has not materialized.

"Damage to utilities, 80 per cent absenteeism due mostly to destruction of dwelling-houses and other indirect effects, are probably responsible for at least 75 per cent. loss of output. No calculation of the future rate of recovery can be attempted now without further information about possible reinforcements in the future.

"Lowered morale mostly takes the form of apathy; the population appears dazed and stunned. But serious incidents have also been reported, and police reports describe much anti-party sentiment. At present 110,000 are sleeping outside the town, mostly in the open. Morale was lowered by the fact that the surrounding countryside was not thickly populated and outside billeting was therefore extremely limited.

"Conditions here cannot be compared to those in the Ruhr where extensive billeting was sometimes possible. The visit of a high-ranking party representative, for purposes of invigorating town morale, regretfully cannot be recommended".

And so on, probably for some few pages, in the cold language of officials. There are some 30 large town in Germany in which this must happen. It has already happened in many of these.

We really do not know, and can hardly imagine, what life in Germany can now be like.

Curfew Extended In City of Florence

New York, Jan. 15 — (AP) — The Nazi military command in the northern Italian city of Florence has issued an order extending the curfew and banning the use of bicycles after dark because "outrages" were committed last night "against German offices and German houses," the Nazi-controlled Italian radio said today in a broadcast recorded by United States government monitors.

The "outrages" against the German-occupied buildings in Florence were not explained.

Says Britain, Russia and U. S. Consider Post-War Censorship in Germany

London, Jan. 15 — (CP) — The Daily Telegraph said today that Moscow, London and Washington are considering imposing censorship on the German press after the Reich has been defeated. Such a step, the newspaper said, would be necessary if the spread of Nazi doctrines in a liberated Germany is to be prevented.

55 SPENT NIGHT IN JAIL

Poplar Bluff, Mo., Jan. 15 (AP) — Fifty-five Butler County farmers, vowing not to post bond as a protest against what their attorney called "an oppressive charge," were lodged in jail last night on an indictment accusing them of inciting to riot in connection with the alleged ejection of four Negro families from an all-white rural district.

Blood Transfusion

By Byron Brooke, F.R.C.S.

(B.B.C. Press Service)

LONDON (by Mail) — Do you know that blood transfusion had been performed on man nearly three centuries ago? In 1616 William Harvey, a physician from my own hospital, told that world that blood circulated round the blood and from that moment man's interest was aroused in transfusion—an interest which has in no way abated today. Pepys, in his diary, records one of these early experiments and says:

"A poor and debauched man, that the college have hired for twenty shillings is to have some blood of a sheep let into his body and it is to be done on Saturday next. They purpose to let in about twelve ounces which they compute is what will be let in in a minute's time by a watch."

• •

The experiment was successful in that the patient lived to tell the tale—in Latin one week later to Pepys who came to the conclusion that he was "a little cracked in the head." That was in 1667 and in those days practically nothing was known about the blood. Galen, about whom you heard recently, ascribed extraordinary powers to the blood. For one thing, he thought it contained the spirit. Burton, who lived nearly four hundred years ago, in his "Anatomy of Melancholy," says:

"Spirit is a most subtle vapour, which is expressed from the blood and the instrument of the soul, a common tie or medium between the body and soul."

Think of the exciting possibilities of this theory. How would a man behave when the spirit of a sheep runs in his veins? Pepys watched the blood of one dog being transfused into another. The experiment was successful, and he comments in his diary:

"This did give occasion to many pretty wishes, as of the blood of a Quaker to be let into an Archbishop, and such like."

• •

But the spirit of scientific inquiry, which had been dead for so many centuries was beginning to affect medicine even at this time. By the middle of the last century scientific research, as we know it, was being born. As a result, at the beginning of this century the blood's chief functions were known, and the medieval view that it contained the spirit was not one of them. It is interesting to reflect upon the reaction which the racial doctrine of the Nazis has produced in Germany at the present time. The ordinary man in that country has been taught that his "superiority" over other races is due to something in his blood. German airmen shot down in the Battle of Britain were known to refuse blood transfusions in English hospitals on the grounds that the blood might not be racially "pure."

• •

Fortunately in the year 1900 we had no racial qualms and, were eager to develop the technique of blood transfusion. But at that time it was only a hazardous experimental procedure. To give the blood of animals was useless and dangerous; anything "foreign" as we call it, to the human body is destroyed when introduced into the blood system. Naturally, transfusion of blood from one human to another was tried, but this was found on different occasions either to be very unsuccessful or very successful—in fact "kill or cure." As nobody could predict which effect would take place, blood transfusion could hardly be considered a useful method of treatment. But in 1900 Lansteiner, working in Vienna, began to solve the mystery. He separated the red cells of the blood from the fluid part, the serum. He then tried mixing the red cells of one individual with the serum of others. As you know the red cells of one person aren't always compatible with the serum of others.

• •

Well, in this way Landsteiner established three blood groups, and a fourth was soon recognized. You have probably had your blood grouped at some time and maybe you watched the process. A drop of serum from each of two known groups was placed on a white tile and a drop of your blood added to them. Either your blood clumped in one drop, or the other, or neither—or both—and there you are, you must have fallen into one of four groups. This clumping which is called "agglutination," accounts for the incompatibility.

Blood groups being inherited characteristics like the colour of one's eyes, are of interest to the student of racial characteristics. In 1928 Landsteiner discovered two further groups, which, though they had no bearing on agglutination, have helped courts of law in deciding paternity cases.

• •

Very recently there has been added a further development, the discovery of the Rhesus factor, as it is called. Rhesus is a type of monkey — just the ordinary little monkey which sits on a barrel-organ. If the red cells of Rhesus are repeatedly injected into the veins of a guinea-pig, the serum of the guinea-pig will eventually react by clumping the red cells of the monkey. And what's more, this serum will also agglutinate the red cells of eighty-five per cent of human beings, because eighty-five per cent of human beings have what's called an agglutinogen in their red cells—and this is the Rhesus factor—and these people are therefore known as Rhesus Positive.

In certain circumstances, that is when a Rhesus Positive man marries a Rhesus Negative woman, their children may be Rhesus Positive. If they are Rhesus Positive, and their mother in Rhesus Negative, does it matter?

• •

It may do. For the Rhesus Negative mother with the Rhesus Positive child in her womb develops agglutinins in her own serum that will react with the red cells of the Rhesus Positive child. And the trouble is that these agglutinins do pass across the placenta, or after birth, into the child's serum and bring about this very reaction, with the net result that many of the child's red cells are destroyed and the child born jaundiced.

Of course you realize that, as there are only fifteen per cent of the population who are Rhesus Negative, and only a proportion of these are women, of whom only some get married, this jaundice of the new born child is quite a rare disease.

That's the very latest development, which our ever increasing knowledge of blood groups has brought us.

MRS. DOUGLAS MacARTHUR CHRISTENS DESTROYER

Somewhere in Australia, Jan. 15 —(AP)—Mrs. Douglas MacArthur, wife of the Allied Southwest Pacific commander, today christened the new Australian destroyer "Bataan" in ceremonies at a New South Wales shipyard. The launching was attended by high ranking officers of American, Australian and British ground and naval forces. The destroyer was named for Bataan Peninsula in the Philippines where MacArthur-led American troops fought a bitter delaying action against the Japanese.

Millions of tons OF NICKEL ORE... BUT NO MARKETS

IN 1919 the future looked black for the Canadian Nickel industry. Because of the demand for tough Nickel Steel for battleships and ordnance, its markets had expanded during the first world war. Now these war markets were gone. A few months later Canada's Nickel plants had to close down, the mines ceased to operate.

Steps were taken to transform this war industry into a great thriving peacetime industry. Scientists were set to work developing new Nickel alloys. Engineers were sent out to seek new uses for Canadian Nickel in the automotive, chemical, electrical, radio and numerous other industries. Step by step new world markets were built up. Within ten years the production of Nickel in Canada had far surpassed the previous peak of wartime production.

Today Canada's Nickel has again been diverted to war purposes. But now this industry looks forward with confidence to the return of peace. Plans are ready to develop and expand old and new peacetime markets so that the Nickel industry may continue, through its own enterprise, to make substantial contribution to Canada's economic welfare.

CHURCHILL CHEERED BY COMMONS ON RETURN

Prime Minister Appears Slightly Tired But Happy

Churchill Tells House He Expects to Make Statement on War in Near Future

ANSWERS QUESTIONS

By ROGER GREENE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 18. (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill returned to London unexpectedly today after convalescing from an attack of pneumonia in the Middle East and told a cheering House of Commons he expected to make a statement on the war in the near future.

The Prime Minister, who looked slightly tired but happy, asked the House that he be given "some latitude" about the actual date for discussing the war, thereby indicating he planned a careful summary of events in prelude to western invasion of Europe.

As for himself, when asked by a member what steps he was taking to relieve himself of some of his official duties to conserve his health, Mr. Churchill replied amid laughter:—

"I am obliged to you for your solicitude, but I have no changes to propose at present in my routine".

Churchill Draws Laughter.

Mr. Churchill again drew laughter when he demurred at Cmdr. Oliver Locker-Lampson's proposal that we go off and drink this toast: 'Death to all dictators and long life to all liberators'."

"It is very early in the morning", Mr. Churchill chuckled.

As the questioning proceeded, Sir Herbert William asked if Mr. Churchill were aware of any "false optimism" voiced in a recent speech in which Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery indicated the probable early capture of Rome.

"I don't know about false optimism", Churchill replied. "There has been a lot of bad weather".

After leaving the House of Commons, Mr. Churchill drove to Buckingham Palace to lunch with the King, and discuss developments since they had last met.

One of Mr. Churchill's first visitors is expected to be Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander for western invasion. The Prime Minister has been in close touch with events during his convalescence, but he is reported anxious to have the latest developments as the "zero hour" approaches.

Went Immediately to House

The Prime Minister, back in Britain for the first time since his epochal conferences with President Roosevelt and Premier Stalin in Teheran, reached London about 10 a.m. (5 a.m. E. D. T.) after a journey from North Africa, and went immediately to the House of Commons, which reassembled after its holiday recess.

Churchill looked the picture of health as he stepped from his train into the floodlighted station.

His arrival, terminating his longest wartime absence from the country, was kept semi-private and was devoid of fanfare. Few Britons, indeed, were aware that the Prime Minister's recovery was sufficiently advanced to permit his leaving the warm climate of North Africa to return to Britain.

He appeared in high spirits and smiled broadly as the small crowd at the station greeted him with a burst of cheering.

It was noted, however, that he was not smoking his usual long black cigar.

Churchill was wearing his "trinity house" uniform of black pea jacket with yachting cap set at a jaunty angle.

Cheered in House

A great cheer went up as he entered the House of Commons, members of both sides rising to give vent to their enthusiasm as the Prime Minister took his seat on the front bench beside deputy Prime Minister Clement Attlee.

Ten weeks had elapsed since Churchill left Britain to meet President Roosevelt and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek at Cairo, from where he and the President went on to Teheran to meet Stalin and map the final plans for the downfall of Germany.

The first announcement of his illness came Dec. 16, when Attlee gravely informed the House of Commons the Prime Minister had developed a patch of pneumonia on his left lung.

Illness of Leader Had Occurred at Carthage Near Tunis On 11th of Dec.

HIS CONVALESCENCE

London, Jan 18. (CP-Reuters)—It was disclosed officially today that Prime Minister Churchill's illness occurred at Carthage near Tunis and that after 16 days there he was able to fly to Marrakesh, Morocco, where he convalesced.

At the time he became ill of pneumonia it was merely stated that he was "in the Middle East", giving rise to a general speculation that he was in Cairo at the time.

Now, however, it is revealed that the Prime Minister arrived at Carthage from Cairo, on Dec. 11.

He was taken ill and only on Dec. 27 was he sufficiently recovered to make a journey by air. On that day he flew over the Atlas Mountains to Marrakesh, south of Casablanca, on the invitation of the commander-in-chief, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Convalescence at Marrakesh.

At Marrakesh, a villa with a beautiful garden kept by United States authorities for the use of distinguished guests, was placed at his disposal. It was the same at which he stayed with President Roosevelt after the Casablanca Conference of February, 1943.

Lord Beaverbrook, Lord Privy Seal, stayed with Mr. Churchill throughout his visit. Gen. Eisenhower, Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery, former commander of the 8th Army in Italy and now commander of British Armies preparing for the western invasion, were other guests.

Gen. Charles de Gaulle, chairman of the French Committee of National Liberation, lunched with the Prime Minister one day and spent the afternoon with him.

Men "With Funny Pants and Dirty Faces Best Outfit" With 5th Army

By FOSTER BARCLAY
Canadian Press War Correspondent

With the 5th Army in Italy, Jan. 18—(CP Cable)—A group of men "with funny pants and dirty faces" has been acclaimed the "best outfit" in the 5th Army.

They are highly-trained fighters from Canada and the United States who operate as a special task force for which the German foot-sloggers have developed a more than healthy respect.

These men "with funny pants and dirty faces"—a name the Germans have bestowed upon them because of their unique get-up—combined the best qualities of paratrooper, a commando, an infantryman and a guerilla. They are killers equally at home with a rifle or a knife, and they haven't failed in any assignment yet given them.

The battles this combined force has fought have been bloody and fierce. They are credited with slashing a 10-mile wedge into one sector of the German line. In all their engagements, they have enhanced their reputation as fearless mountain fighters.

A pair of Kitchener, Ont., youths who are deadly with Tommy-gun, rifle and dagger are among the unit's ace fighters. They are Fred Molson and Vet Veitenheimer who together have slain more than a dozen Nazis and wounded many others who later died on the battlefield.

The need for secrecy has been drilled so deeply into these fighters it is almost impossible to get them to describe their experiences on this front. It took a lot of wheedling to get this information from a group of Canadians bivouacked on the side of a hill close to a German anti-aircraft position.

I was the first Canadian war correspondent to visit them, and they were surprised to learn the news that they had come to grips with the enemy had been published.

All wanted to know what other soldiers thought about them and when I told them everyone agreed they were tops, big grins split bearded, dirty faces.

"We don't get time to shave in these parts," apologized Pte. M. J. Overall of Niagara Falls, Ont.

"GOOD OFFICES" OF U.S. MAY HELP TO SOLVE PROBLEM

Russia's Reaction To Offer Is Awaited In London As a Possible Solution

CAIRO RUMOR DENIED

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, Jan. 18 — (AP) — Russia's reaction to the United States' offer to help close the diplomatic breach between Moscow and the Polish government in London was awaited here today as a possible solution to the most difficult problem which the leading United Nations have yet faced.

The problem: How to get two members back on speaking terms.

Despite Russia's evident determination to play a lone hand in settling her border problems to the East, there was some optimism here that the reply to State Secretary Cordell Hull's offer, announced yesterday, would be favorable.

This was based on the fact that the American offer extends only to the question of diplomatic relations and presumed no intervention in the settlement of Poland's territorial dispute with Russia. On this point alone Moscow may be willing to accept the "good offices" of a third Nation.

Can't Explain Publication

One of the puzzling factors in the whole situation which American officials were at complete loss to explain was the publication by Pravda yesterday of a "Cairo report" that two British officials had conferred secretly with German Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop on feelers for a separate peace.

The report was emphatically denied here by Lord Halifax, British ambassador to the United States, and by the British Foreign Office in London.

One possible explanation of the story, tied in with the Polish affair, was that the Russians were displeased with continued British efforts to seek a solution of a dispute which Moscow considers to be a domestic issue and used this means of obliquely expressing its resentment.

Omission of any reference in Hull's announcement to the territorial problems is considered here to be in line with established American policy that the first aim of international relations now is friendly co-operation leading eventually to formation of a world security organization.

Strive to Keep Lid On Amount For Mustering-out Pay

Washington, Jan. 18—(AP)— The United States House of Representatives faced a new hold-the-line fight today with its military committee spearheading a drive to keep a $300 ceiling on mustering-out pay for discharged service men and women.

On the outcome of the issue, expected to be settled by tonight, depends not only how much war veterans shall receive to tide them over between their discharge and their return to private jobs, but also the amount of bonus or adjusted compensation they will get under legislation almost certain to come as soon as the war ends.

Chairman Andrew J. May (Dem., Ky.) of the military committee said he would resist efforts of a bi-Partisan group to boost the amount of mustering-out pay to as much as $700.

"The $300 we recommended will cost about $3,600,000,000 and is five times as much as was given upon discharge after the last war." he said.

This compares with an estimated $5,500,000,000 which a senate bill would cost with payments running from $200 to $500 depending on length of service and a minimum of $50,000,000,000 which representative Hamilton Fish (Rep., N. Y.) said would be billed to the taxpayers in veterans' legislation growing out of the Second Great War before congress disposes of that subject.

All 9 Infantry Units Of Canadian 1st Div. In Italy Are Identified

Algiers, Jan. 18 (CP)—All nine infantry regiments of the Canadian 1st Division now have been formally identified by Allied headquarters here as serving in Italy.

The nine, part of the British 8th Army which crossed the Messina Straits on Sept. 3 to begin the drive up Italy, are:

Royal Canadian Regiment, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, 48th Highlanders of Canada;

Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, Seaforth Highlanders of Canada, Loyal Edmonton Regiment;

Royal 22nd. Regiment, Carleton and York Regiment, West Nova Scotia Regiment.

Allied headquarters has also announced that the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards, a reconnaissance battalion, and the Three Rivers tank regiment are fighting in Italy.

All of these regiments fought in Sicily last summer.

In the Sicilian campaign, identification of the Canadian infantry units taking part in the Canadian drive from the Pachino beaches to the slopes of Mount Etna came more quickly.

The Canadians landed in Sicily July 10 and on July 31 publication was authorized of a dispatch written by Ross Munro, Canadian War Correspondent, naming the nine battalions.

Other Canadian units which fought in Sicily but have so far not been named as being in Italy are the Saskatoon Light Infantry, a support battalion, the Calgary Tank Regiment and the Ontario Tank Regiment.

TITO REPORTED TO BE WOUNDED BY CAIRO RADIO

Communique Says Heavy Losses Inflicted on German Motorized Forces

LAND ON BRAC IS.

London, Jan. 18—(CP)—A rumor that Marshal Tito of the Yugoslav partisans has been wounded in Montenegran fighting was broadcast today by the Cairo radio. There was no confirmation in the partisan communique, broadcast earlier by the free Yugoslav station.

The communique said partisans have inflicted heavy losses on German motorized forces trying to drive through Western Bosnia into the town of Glamoc, 55 miles southwest of Banja Luka. But it acknowledged strong forces of German marines have landed on the island of Brac, south of the Dalmatian port of Split.

Brac commands what may be the "invasion corridor" for the Allies from the Adriatic into Central Bosnia.

The communique of Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio also reported the Germans were attempting to break through Partisan defence lines in Lika province, some 75 miles to the north.

Violent Fighting Reported

Violent fighting was said to be taking place at Mrkonjicgrad, south of Banja Luka, where for three days Nazi motorized columns have been driving toward Glamoc.

There were sharp clashes in Montenegro and in one battle units of the Partisan 4th Division routed an enemy detachment, killing 189 Nazis and wounding 170 more. Three field guns, 1,000 shells and stocks of war gear were captured.

Patriot forces were said to be operating within 25 miles of Zagreb, capital of Croatia, while other columns defeated a German force near Kocevje, 30 miles northeast of Fiume.

Budapest dispatches, which reported the Partisan march on Zagreb, said also that the Puppet Chief of State, Dr. Ante Pavelic, had declared a state of emergency in the city and that 3,000 persons had been arrested while trying to flee to Tito's forces.

Explains Why Men Are Discharged

Ottawa, Jan. 18 —(CP)—Defence Headquarters announced in a statement of policy Monday night that no man up to overseas medical standards for operational duties is being discharged from the Canadian army.

The statement said that only in "very exceptional cases" would fit men be discharged, and then only when it had been determined that they can make a better contribution to the war effort in a civilian capacity.

(M. J. Coldwell, National Leader of the C.C.F. recently criticized the Defence Department over the number of officers and men which, he said, now were being discharged and while Monday night's statement did not refer to Mr. Coldwell's criticism, it was understood it was issued in reply to it.)

Residents Evacuated and Death Toll Mounts as 900 Bodies Recovered

U. S. SENDS AID

Buenos Aires, Jan. 18 (AP)—Argentina observed a national day of mourning today for the thousands killed and injured in the devastating earthquake which levelled the Andean city of San Juan during the weekend.

As the death toll mounted—900 bodies have been dug out of the ruins so far and hundreds more are known to be dead—estimates of the damage including part of the wine crop, reached as high as 400,000,000 pesos ($100,000,000).

The ruined city has been entirely evacuated, and only soldiers and rescue squads still remain, digging among the debris. President Gen. Pedro Ramirez is expected to arrive in San Juan today to assume personal direction of rescue and relief work.

The actual number of injured—which has been estimated as high as 13,000—still is uncertain.

Contributions Pour in Public and private contributions are continuing to pour in and are expected to reach 40,000,000 pesos. The British Embassy donated 50 tons of packaged food which was about to be shipped overseas to British prisoners of war in Germany. Two German organizations donated 28,000 pesos.

Expressing Secretary of State Cordell Hull's condolences, U.S. Ambassador Norman Armour transmitted to the Argentine government an offer of the American Red Cross to send aid.

Rescuers removing debris near the altar of Concepcion Church, where two weddings were being celebrated when the earthquake struck the city Saturday night, discovered a priest and a bridal couple alive and only slightly injured. Others in the wedding party perished.

In another part of the church six persons were saved yesterday afternoon and 43 bodies recovered.

RUSSIANS CLOSING IN ON ROVNO, KEY SUPPLY CENTRE

Fall of City Would Threaten German Hold on Southern Part of Russia

ADVANCE IN NORTH

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, Jan. 18 (AP)—Troops of Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's 1st Ukrainian army were reported closing in today on Rovno, Key German communications centre 110 miles south of Pinsk, another main objective of Vatutin's forces on northern edge of the frozen pripet marshes.

Fall of Rovno, junction of the Beridhev-Warsaw and Sarny-Lwow railways, inevitably would imperil the German grip on a vast area of southern and southwestern Russia, already threatened by Vatutin's left wing driving toward the Rumanian frontier.

Vatutin's centre, based on Iovograd Volynski, 50 miles east of Rovno, was driving on the rail jub from the east, northeast and north, constituting a triple threat which made its early capture a possibility. One column moving in from the northeast already has occupied Tuchin, 13 miles away, and is steadily beating down savage enemy resistance, a Russian communique said.

Soviet engineers were called upon to provide equipment for the crossing of the Horny River, which flows westward through Tuchin's outskirts, and which has not frozen sufficiently for transport on the ice. Beyond the river there was a formidable four-mile-wide swamp barrier extending to the village of Goringrad, strongpoint of Rovno's outer defence system 10 miles to the north, which also has to be negotiated by Vatutin's forces.

The five-day-old Russian offensive on the Leningrad front, meanwhile, continued to roll forward with the occupation of five additional localities north and northeast of Novosokolniki, a rail junction on the line conecting Velikie-Luki and Riga, the old Latvian capital. At one point the Russians were 70 miles from the Latvian border. Towns captured yesterday, the Russian war bulletin said, include Kurova, seven miles northeast of Novosokolniki; Kiselevichi, 10 miles to the north, Alkhimovo, 12 miles on the northeast, and Sloboda, 15 miles to the north.

The Russians reported killing 2,300 Germans yesterday, 1,200 of them in the reduction of the five German strongpoints. The Germans said the 250-mile front south of Leningrad was aflame and 250,000 Russians were attacking.

More Than 100 British War Brides Reach Canada

(By The Canadian Press)

More British war brides of Canadian servicemen, on their way to new homes in a new country, arrived in Canada recently with a small group of returning Canadian troops and some British air trainees.

The British wives, numbering more than 100 and many with babies, were part of the steady stream of servicemen's wives that have been reaching the Dominion in past months as passage is secured for them. Many thousands more still await their chance to cross to their new, adopted country.

Most of the Canadians returning in the latest group were category men invalided back from Britain, and others returning to take brief special courses or train as officers. Also included were a small number who had seen action on the various battlefronts, either in Africa, Sicily or Italy.

For some of the men it was their first chance home in more than four years, while others returned after only a few months overseas.

British youths on their way to train for air crew or ground duties at Commonwealth Air Training Plan schools in Canada made up a large part of the arrivals who are on their way to all parts of Canada today.

Canadian Division Assisted by Tanks Goes Into Action

Attack Opened In Ean Tommaso Area About Mile Inland From Adriatic

CROSS RAPIDO RIVER

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press War Correspondent

Algiers, Jan. 18 (AP)—French troops have occupied Sant' Elia, three miles northeast of Cassino on the Anglo-American-French 5th Army's front in western Italy, Allied headquarters announced today, while at the other end of the front stretching across Italy Canadians of the British 8th Army have launched a new attack.

The Canadian 1st division troops supported by tanks opened their attack in the Ean Tomasso area about a mile inland from the Adriatic coast. Despite stiff opposition from Germans holding high ground, they made some gains which included a foothold across a stream flowing into the sea.

At last reports the fighting was continuing with satisfactory results. The weather was cold and clear in the coastal area but there were high winds and snow inland.

On the 5th Army front, where the Allies are closing in on the strongpoint of Cassino, guardian for the Germans of the main highway to Rome, an American patrol crossed the Rapido river north of Cassino and probed the German "Gustav line" positions.

Nazis Strongly Entrenched

The patrol found the Germans entrenched in fortified positions 300 yards beyond the western bank of the Rapido, and withdrew across the river after a skirmish.

French forces advanced 1,000 yards to seize Sant' Elia and also captured the hamlet of Valvori two miles farther northeast as the Allied arc tightened on Cassino. Patrols were active elsewhere on the 5th Army front, and the Allies continued consolidating recent gains.

The Germans meanwhile quickly put last-minute touches on their new line which from Cassino to Sant' Elia runs along the west side of the Rapido, in places considerably back from the river's bank, on the slopes of Mount Castellone.

Weather was fine but somewhat cloudy on the 5th Army front.

Rail Communications Hit

In the air, heavy bombers again blasted rail communications between Florence and Some yesterday, pounding objectives at Prato, Pontassieve and Arezzo.

Medium bombers also attacked the rail yards at Chiaravalle, Viterbo and Orte. The docks at Anzio and the Palo rail yards were also bombed.

Fighting bombers lashed German positions in the battle area, while other planes crossed the Adriatic to bomb Sibenik harbor. A vessel was exploded in the harbor.

No Allied aircraft were lost.

Good Results Obtained

Early reports indicated good results were achieved on all three targets—Orezzo, Pontassieve, and Prato. Photographs showed six direct hits on the Arezzo yards which are now believed to have been rendered inoperative.

The bombers and their escorts made the round trip without meeting enemy planes, and the general German inactivity on the ground and in the air puzzled some crewmen.

"We went all the way across Italy without seeing any fighters or flak to speak of," one pilot said. "Something is fishy."

Restrictions on Sale of Beer Lead To Excessive Drinking Says LCB Head

Toronto, Jan. 18 (CP).—Restrictions on the amount of beer available for sale in Ontario have encouraged excessive drinking and have "forcibly reversed" a growing trend toward moderation, A. St. Clair Gordon, chairman of the Liquor Control Board of Ontario, said today.

In an address prepared for delivery before the annual convention of the Ontario hotels association, Mr. Gordon said reduction in hours of sale of beer in beverage rooms and diversion of beer gallonage from hotels to sale for home consumption "was necessary for the protection of the hotel industry."

"There are operators and owners of hotels who do not agree. I re-emphasize that the hotel owner who in this present situation puts immediate war profits on beer sale first, is a hotel owner who is openly inviting the public to seek his elimination.

"The changed regulations affecting hotels, which the Board recently put into effect, are measures intended to fight the wave of increasing drunkenness which a beer shortage and a widespread public disbelief in such a shortage have created.

"This action was wholeheartedly supported and clearly understood by a relatively large number of hotels. The Board's action was obeyed without protest by others. But there were hotels which by their methods of operation contributed to the dangers and seriousness of the situation. It was unmistakably clear to anyone who cared to make an unprejudiced examination that the hotel industry in Ontario was in real jeopardy."

The people of Ontario "will not countenance" a continuation of excessive drunkenness and "if the trend goes beyond a certain point the public will demand the wiping out of the places where these conditions exist."

Some hotelmen had suggested that the only "real solution" for the problem was sufficient beer, said Mr. Gordon, adding that this was not entirely true now "because damage has already been done and it will now require time as well as changed conditions to repair this damage."

As to the future "we hope of course that things will get better but we also feel fairly positive that before they do they will get worse."

Restrictions on sale of beer in hotels and to home consumers resulted from restrictions imposed by the federal government on supplies. However, despite restrictions in hotel gallonage, the amount available for sale in hotels from Nov. 1, 1943, to Oct. 31, 1944, will be about 17,250,000 gallons, slightly more than the gallonage sold in Ontario hotels in the 12 months ending March 31, 1940.

Surveys of Canadian opinion showed that only about one quarter of the public believed that the beer shortage was due to shortages of manpower and ingredients. Mr. Gordon said he believed the proportion was smaller in Ontario and still smaller among war workers.

Changes in drinking habits resulted and 'you saw men who had hitherto been moderate drinkers taking six and seven times their normal amounts". There were "squatters' who stayed in hotels as long as there was anything to drink and "hurry-drinkers who seemed to have given up drinking for the duration in favor of gulping".

It was a "curious fact", said Mr. Gordon, that with plans being advanced to meet post-war and other problems "there is no rush" to offer solutions for the beer problem.

"I have decided that the public is too smart to volunteer answers to this question. It has an underlying hunch that there simply is no solution—certainly no quick or easy solution as things stand today".

KNIGHTS EXEMPLIFY FIRST DEGREE TO LARGE CLASS

A special meeting of the Knights of Columbus was held on Sunday evening and was especially well attended. The purpose of the meeting was for the exemplification of the First Degree. A large class of candidates received the First Degree. The exemplification of the Major Degree will be held in Peterborough on Sunday, January 23rd.

Grand Knight George O'Brien was conferring officer, assisted by Deputy Grand Knight K. T. Scanlon, Morris Callaghan as Chancellor, John Boyle as Warden. Reverend Monsignor J. F. Nicholson introduced the guest speaker, Rev. H. Murphy, S.F.M., who had recently returned from China. He gave a very interesting talk on the conditions in China. He also congratulated the officers, who conferred the Degrees. Brother Keith Carroll replied to Rev. H. Murphy. Rev. Monsignor J. F. Nicholson congratulated the officers on the very fine class of candidates. Past-State Deputy A. B. Collins replied to Monsignor and also congratulated the officers. District Deputy George Lee congratulated the officers and candidates. Rev. G. Mulligan, Chaplain, Mountain View Air Station, also congratulated the officers and candidates. Lecturer Thomas Mascaro announced a stag party and social evening in the near future. The meeting was closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

LIGHT SNOWFALL SINCE DECEMBER

Official figures released by the Water Purification Plant in the city reveals that there has been only 7/10 of an inch of snow so far this winter. One year ago today there was 19 inches of snow on the level, and there had been 21½ inches fall during the winter to date. To say "19 inches of snow on the level" sounds as though the reader was being asked to believe it. Most Belleville residents will remember January 17th., 1943, and will know that it was on the level, and is on the level . . . complicated, eh?

YOUTHS CHARGED WITH THEFT OF MOTORCAR

Charged with the theft of a motor car belonging to William Montgomery of Ameliasburg township, an airman and a civilian appeared before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in police court here today and were remanded in custody for one week at the request of Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C. They answered to the names of 18-year-old John Neufeld, of the Mountain View R.C.A.F. station and James Fowler, 16, who had been released from the Air Force over the weekend. The accused were arrested in Toronto while sleeping in a motor car belonging to Mr. Montgomery, which was reported stolen here last Saturday.

"I was under the impression both of these men were airmen," enquired His Worship when Fowler appeared in civilian clothes. "They were, but since Fowler has been released from the Air Force when his proper age was disclosed. He's just 16 past," revealed Mr. Donnan.

"The reason we are asking for a remand is to seek further information regarding the past of these two lads," said Mr. Donnan. FO. A. C. Bowles of the Mountain View R.C.A.F. base, was present acting as observing officer in the case. The two were held without bail.

GEORGE ELLARBY LEGION SECRETARY

In the report of the result of the annual election of officers of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Legion, Post 99, published last week the names of two officers were inadvertently not included. They were Sam Johnson, sergeant-at-arms and George Ellarby, Legion secretary.

RESIDENT FOUND LYING ON LAWN

Found lying on the private lawn at 328 Bleecker Avenue, and in a semi-conscious condition, Lorne McPhaden, of Thurlow Township, was rushed to the Belleville General Hospital Monday evening. Subsequent medical examinations revealed the man was physically ill and had collapsed on the street. Residents on Bleecker Avenue saw the man in his trouble and notified police. He was removed to hospital by ambulance. Mr. McPhaden is an employee of the Stephens-Adamson manufacturing plant and had apparently suffered a weak spell. He remained in the hospital today, police were told.

SPRINGER SPANIEL IN CITY POUND

Found wandering at large and without a city dog licence tag to indicate ownership, a valuable brown and white Springer Spaniel dog was picked up by Thos. Thorne, dog pound custodian, today. The animal was wearing a new collar, but had no dog tag licence attached. The dog was found in the vicinity of the gasoline tanks on South Church St.

BOARD WANTS COUNTY A RESTRICTED AREA

A recommendation that the Belleville Fair Board bring pressure to bear upon authorities for early establishment of Hastings County as a restricted area with regard for tuberculosis tested cattle was heard at the annual meeting from 2nd Vice President, W. D. Reid. Adjoining counties have been restricted areas for a considerable time and Mr. Reid held that Hastings' farmers were losing out on valuable markets through this county lagging in this measure. He claimed that following the war there would be a wonderful market in Great Britain and other European countries for fully-tested dairy and beef types of cattle and this market would be lost to Hastings' farmers.

BRITISH MONEY IN U. S.

The British government has poured more than $1,500,000,000 into the American aircraft industry, and spent more than $173,000,000,000 directly in capital assistance to American corporations making aircraft, tanks and guns.

Obituary

MISS MARY GRIFFIN

Miss Mary Griffin, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Griffin, passed away last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Anderson, 209 John Street, after an illness of many months duration. Born in the township of Tyendinaga, Miss Griffin came to Belleville as a young girl and for some time past made her home with her sister, Mrs. F. S. Anderson. A brother, Daniel Griffin, of Bradford, Penn., also survives. While active Miss Griffin was an ardent worker in all branches in connection with St. Michael's Church of which she was a devout member. She was a member of the Sacred Heart Society, the Altar Society, the Catholic Women's League and St. Michael's Benevolent Society. Miss Griffin had many friends in the city and sincere sympathy is extended to her sister Mrs. Anderson, and her brother, Mr. Griffin.

The funeral arrangements will be noted in the notice appearing in this issue.

MRS. HANNAH PRIDMORE

Mrs. Hannah Pridmore, widow of John Thomas Pridmore, died at her home, 29 West Bridge Street, on Monday, January 17. She was in failing health for some time.

The late Mrs. Pridmore, who was in her 72nd year, was born in Manchester, England, and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Fallows. For some time she lived in Windsor and for the past thirteen years she made her home in Belleville. In religion she was a member of the Salvation Army and was well esteemed.

Surviving her are one daughter, Mrs. Russell E. Smith, Belleville, and one son, Mr. Raphael Pridmore, Rossmore; one sister, Mrs. Claude Chapman, Amhertsburg, Ontario.

The funeral announcement is made in this issue.

LATE MRS. EUNICE OLIVER
(Wooler)

The funeral of Mrs. Eunice Oliver, who died at the home of her son-in-law, Mr. Frank Dorland, of Pleasant Valley, Brighton township and near Codrington, on Tuesday, Jan. 11, 1944, after a short illness, took place at the residence on Wednesday. Rev. W. T. R. Delve, of Wooler United Church conducted the service and also the service at McPhail's cemetery.

The late Mrs. Oliver was the widow of Mr. Wm. Oliver, of Campbellford and resided there until his passing a number of years ago. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Fralick of 3rd Con. Brighton township, where she was born 91 years ago. Mrs. Oliver was married first to Mr. Samuel McColl, of Wooler and to that union five children were born, of whom three survive; one son, Mr. L. C. McColl, Wooler, two daughters, Mrs. Frank Dorland, Pleasant Valley and Mrs. Free, who is a patient at Kingston Hospital. Mrs. Will Gould and another daughter, Bertha, predeceased her years previous.

In religion she was a member of the United Church and was well esteemed.

Others surviving are three sisters, Mrs. Jessie Fox, Frankford, Mrs. Emma Morgan, Brighton and Mrs. Lillie Morgan, Morganston. A number of grandchildren, great grandchildren and two great great grandchildren also survive.

LATE WILLIAM SPENCE CLARKE

The funeral of William Spence Clarke took place Monday afternoon from his late residence, Trent Road. The service in the home and at Belleville Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. Dr. Bert Howard.

The bearers were Messrs. Howard Clarke, Roy Cronk, Edward T. Cherry, Ernest Ford, Harry W. Ackerman and Dr. Mason J. Clarke.

LATE MRS. ETHEL PEARL GREEN

Monday afternoon the funeral of Mrs. Ethel Pearl Green, wife of Mr. Isaiah Green, took place from her late residence, 3 Strachan Street. A short service in the home was conducted by the Rev. G. G. Wright Rector of Christ Church, after which the body was conveyed to Trinity Anglican Church, Mohawk Reserve, Deseronto, where service was conducted by the Rev. Rural Dean Herbert Pringle, who also said the committal prayers at the Reserve Cemetery.

The bearers were Messrs. Walter Aselstine, Raymond Aselstine, Carl Lewis, Austin Brant, Norman Dawkins and Eugene Bunnett.

MRS. MELISSA JONES
(Roslin)

Tweed, Jan. 18 —(Special)— On Sunday, January 16th., Mrs. Melissa Jones, wife of Mr. George H. Jones, died at her home in Roslin after an illness of ten days' duration.

The late Mrs. Jones was born seventy-four years ago in Huntingdon Township and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Emerson. At one time she lived in the Napanee district and for the past thirty-six years she resided at Roslin. In religion she was a member of the United Church at Thomasburg and took an active part in church work, being a member of the Women's Missionary Society and the Women's Auxiliary. In the community she was highly esteemed.

Surviving her are her husband, Mr. George H. Jones; one daughter, Mrs. Stanley Webb, Tweed; two sons, Mr. E. W. Jones, Tweed and Mr. Archie Jones, Thomasburg; one brother, Mr. John Emerson, Moira; two sisters, Mrs. Lucy Fox, Roslin, and Mrs. Robert McGee, Madoc.

The funeral announcement is made in this issue.

Father H. J. Murphy, Missionary, Who Spent 7 Years in China Tells Gripping Story to Sodality

Crossed Himalayas in Plane When Forced to Leave by Japanese Invasion

ATROCITIES IN LISHUI

The Society of the Children of Mary of St. Michael's Church was honored in having at its meeting Monday night as guest speaker, the Rev. Father H. J. Murphy, recently returned from China, where he had performed the duties of a missionary for a period of seven years. In a most interesting and highly informative account, Father Murphy told the assemblage of his experiences while in China up until the time of the Japanese invasion when he was forced to leave the country.

"In 1936, I was sent to China by way of Vancouver and the Pacific Ocean," he said. "In the town of Lishui, in the Province of Chekiang we had our missionary headquarters. At that time, there were sixteen priests and five Sisters, followed by several more in a short time. Some of the Sisters were nurses and others were teachers. Each priest was assigned to a certain section, where he had his headquarters and which was surrounded by little places inhabited by Chinese."

Between Two Armies

In 1937, when Japan decided to attack China, the Chinese retreated, as the Japanese moved in. As a result, Father Murphy and his compatriots found themselves wedged in between these two armies in a kind of "no man's land." "Then there began a constant bombing of the district," he continued. During these terrible raids the Sisters who were from Ontario and who for the most part, were young, stood the ordeal courageously. But as time went on, the nerves of the priests and Sisters began to grow worse and weaken.

When General Doolittle bombed Tokyo with land bombers, the Japanese had the mistaken idea that they had come from China and began to bomb the territory unmercifully because of it.

It was then that the missionaries decided to close the mission and withdraw. The Sisters were forced to escape in a truck over a distance of 2,200 miles, which lasted over a period of two and one half months. During that time there occurred many accidents and one sister died because of the trials which had to be endured. It was a game of hide-and-go-seek with the Japanese being the pursuers. The truck had to get through the Japanese lines and the provinces, which for the most part, were occupied by the Japs.

Crossed Himalayas in Plane

As for Father Murphy, he escaped by airplane over the Himalaya Mountains, landed in Calcutta, then by train to Bombay, thence to Cape Town by boat, to Trinidad and up the east coast to America to home. In order to cross the Himalayas, the airplane in which Father Murphy was riding had to travel at a height of 20,000 feet. Arriving in India, he said, "I found the people to be very miserable, even more so than in China."

When the missionaries had left Lishui, the Japs slaughtered all the citizens, numbering 40,000, after they had tortured them cruelly. "Five days before I had left," Father Murphy said, "the place was wiped out by bombs."

Speaking of the Chinese form of writing, Father Murphy said that where there are 26 letters in English alphabet, the Chinese have 10,000, with every single word being a different letter.

At the conclusion of the address, Miss Margaret Donoghue, chairman of the Mission Society, presented to Father Murphy, on behalf of the Children of Mary, a gift in appreciation of the excellent story of his adventures while a missionary in China. Monsignor J. F. Nicholson, who introduced the guest speaker to the sodality, spoke a few words in high praise of him. The duties of chairman were carried out by Miss Gertrude Lynch, 1st Vice-President of the Children of Mary, in the absence of the President, Miss Nellie Dorian.

Naval and Air Force Officers Laud Protective Garments Made in City

Addresses and Presentation of Merit Badges Mark Deacon Bros.' "Open House"

HUNDREDS VISIT PLANT

"Made in Belleville" will be a label long remembered by thousands of naval, army and air force men as well the name of the manufacturer of the winter and protective garments worn by these service personnel. Deacon Brothers Limited, with exceptional discernment and ingenuity, have designed war-time garments which are being worn in all branches of the fighting forces and are meeting the requirements of conditions heretofore unknown to man. They have met the requirements of their government and county at war in such a comprehensive way, that today, service men sail the seas in every sort of weather, and fly the airlanes in comparative comfort. Such was the praise given to the Deacon Brothers, associates and workers, yesterday by Lieut.-Cmdr. E. R. Kernohan, R.C.N.V.R., H.M.C.S. "Cataraqui", Kingston, in his address to the guests and employees of the Belleville plant at their "Open House".

Garments Praised.

Lieut.-Cmdr. Kernohan related a number of experiences of his own personal knowledge and compared a number of them with his present occupation, stating that he knew from actual contact just what was being done for his branch of the services by the Deacon Brothers Limited. The garment this naval officer referred to especially was the Royal Canadian Naval weather-protective suit which is used on North Atlantic convoy service and the Murmansk run which is manufactured in the Belleville plant and was designed here in the designing room of the Deacon Brothers Limited. Lieut.-Cmdr. Kernohan said that the Navy owed a great deal more than they could ever repay to such individuals, and to such loyal workers as those of the Deacon Brothers Limited.

Hundreds Visit Plant.

The "Open House" program followed the plan laid down in the schedules prepared by the company. The guests were permitted to move freely through the plant and inspect the actual work in progress at will. The plant was laid out in "Stations" which were clearly explained in the printed schedule. Several hundreds of local citizens, representatives of the Armed Forces, newspapermen, journalists, and a group of pupils of the Ontario School for the Deaf, attended the program and learned at first hand how these war garments are made. Employees answered questions as to their particular work and gave special demonstrations when required. The fifteen models clothed in the garments made by the company were on display in the general office which was designated as "Station One". Every type of protective garment and weather-protective suit was on exhibition on these models and created considerable interest.

Workers Thanked.

Mr. Fred S. Deacon addressed the guests and workers, welcoming the former to the program and thanking the latter for their loyalty. He said that "We have by no means completed our job because these responsibilities will go on as long as our fighting services are in the field." He directed attention to the various flying suits and other garments they had seen, to the only electrically-heated suit produced in Canada for the R.C.A.F., and said that there were many more recent developments that the government had asked them to work on but not to disclose for intelligence and security reasons. He said that it was the prayer and earnest hope of all that this year would be the final year of the war and that with the experience and skill, and the loyalty of the workers of Deacon Brothers, it was the plan of the management that this skill shall be turned to the production of clothing for work and for play, clothing with the same scientific development as that now being produced for war.

"V" Flag Presented.

His Worship Mayor Rollins next addressed the audience of guests and employees and presented the company with the Three-Star "V" Flag for their subscription to the Fifth Victory Loan which went over the top by passing the stipulated amount necessary to merit the flag. Group Captain G. Edward Hall, A.F.C., of Air Force Headquarters, was introduced by Mr. Deacon. Group Captain Hall has been in charge, under the Director of Medical Services, (air), of the research and development which has been conducted by the National Research Council, the Associated Committee on Aviation Medical Research Council, and is recognized by all the United Nations as outstanding in his work along with his associates.

At the conclusion of his speech, which was most complimentary to the workers and the management of Deacon Brothers Limited, Group Captain Hall presented merit badges to about eighteen of the oldest employees of the firm and complimented each one on his or her work. Each employee of the company received one of these badges during the day which they might well be proud to wear.

Must Have Adequate Protection

Group Captan Hall pointed out that without adequate clothing, clothing which met every one of the rigid requirements of scientific development, the various members of a bomber crew could not perform their duties with sufficient freedom of movement and comfort, and that the destructive qualities of the aircraft would be almost a complete loss.

Deacon Brothers Limited will celebrate their second anniversary in their present modern location on Friday, January 21st. The modernization of their equipment and building was necessitated by the urgent requirements of the armed services which had to be met without delay. Today Deacon Brothers stand unique in that they have been supplying a major portion of the clothing needed for extreme climatic conditions and hazardous types of flying and sea warfare, and it is for this reason that the local company has received the recognition given on Monday by the National Research Council through their representative, Group Captain Hall.

Wife of Wounded Officer Given Details of Action

Details of the action in which her husband, Lieut. Frank Clarke, 25, of the 11th Canadian Tank Regiment was wounded during the battle of the Moro River in Italy have been received by Mrs. Clarke, 28 Sinclair Street, from the regimental commanding officer, Major Douglas McIndoe. Lieut. Clarke received a head wound on December 16th., during the brilliant river crossing.

Writing to Mrs. Clarke, Major McIndoe praised the work of her husband for his part in assisting to effect the river crossing. "We were searching for a weak spot in the enemy defences", he said ,"and one patrol breaking through partly knocked out four German tanks and seized control of a vital bridge permitting our troops to pour through".

"A few days later his troop went to the aid of our tanks, which were short of supplies and while attempting to rescue the tanks amid heavy artillery and mortar fire was wounded by a shot from a German sniper".

Formerly with the Argyll Light Infantry in Belleville, Lieut. Clarke went overseas in December, 1942, after taking an officer's training course at Brockville and Camp Borden. Prior to going to the Italian war theatre, Lieut. Clarke had been stationed in North Africa with a reinforcement unit.

POLICE COURT

Pays Fine of $37 As Result of Crash

As a sequel to a recent two-car motor crash at the intersection of Coleman and West Bridge Sts., George Lobb, of Milford, paid fines and costs amounting to $37.80 in city police court before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd here today.

Lobb was convicted of driving a motor car without first having a licence on which he was fined $10 and costs, while on a second count of careless driving a conviction was registered and the same fine assessed. A third charge of dangerous driving was withdrawn by Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C.

Deputy-Chief Harman testified that a motor car driven by Lobb had made a felt hand turn off the lower bridge into Coleman St., resulting in an accident implicating another automobile driven by E. Sills, Foxboro. "Lobb had a temporary beginner's driving licence that was issued last July for a 30-day period only," Deputy-Chief Harman said.

Two local girls appeared on charges pertaining to loose morals and were held in custody for investigation. "They refused to report for medical observation when so instructed," pointed out Mr. Donnan, as he asked for detention.

A lone inebriate paid ten dollars and costs prior to the opening of court and therefore did not have to appear before the Bench.

I.O.D.E. Entertain Men in Uniform At 'Open House'

Members of the St. Julien Chapter of the I.O.D.E., under the direction of Mrs. Emily Neate were in charge of the arrangements for entertainment of men and women of the services at the regular Sunday "At Home" and Open House at the Y.M.C.A.

The music room, reading room, games room and other activities provided plenty of entertainment throughout the afternoon and at five o'clock afternoon tea was served, being provided and planned by members of the St. Julien Chapter. This hour was thoroughly enjoyed under home-like conditions and with home-like provisions being served.

In the evening an after church entertainment was presented in the gymnasium. The program opened with a sing song under the direction of Mrs. Ralph Plumpton with Bill Navin at the piano. LAC. Norm Riley followed with the presentation of a Kay Kayser School of Music program. He was assisted in this feature by Miss Phyllis Clapp. The successful contestants were Tom Newberry, Toronto, from I.T.S., LAW. Pat Blanck, (W.D.), from Montreal. Other contestants were Harold Marston, I.T.S., of Waverley, N.Y., Don Riddell, of Mountain View, from Montreal, Jack Furlong, R.C.O.C., Kingston, from Galt, Ont., Gordon Houston, 6 R. D., from Toronto, LAC. George Nash, R.A.F., from Kent, England and Corp. Jean Shorey, C.W.A.C., of Belleville, now posted at Brockville.

Solo numbers were rendered by Corp. Ada Simpson, (W.D.), from Mountain View, accompanied by Sergt. McConachie, C.P.O., Mountain View.

At 9.15 the audience took up the singing of familiar hymns and the Rev. J. A. Dilts, minister of Holloway Street United Church, brought the evening to a close with a brief, entertaining spiritual message.

New Shoe Sole Made of Plastic Boon to Forces

Ottawa, Jan. 18—(CP)—Past battles may have been lost because a fighting man lost his footing or became weary, but that won't happen in this war if the National Research Council can help it.

Council officials today described the development of a new shoe sole material made with plastics now in use by the forces.

They added this explanatory note:-

"Leather is slippery, on a smooth surface. Rubber on the other hand has too high a co-efficient of friction, and the resultant constant braking action in walking is definitely tiring. This plastic laminate shows properties intermediate between the two, which is a very desirable feature."

Dr. Wilfred Gallay, of the council's chemistry division, undertook studies of substitutes for leather in footwear.

Dr. Gallay said that synthetic materials for shoe soleing had to be of an elastic type such as rubber or thermoplastics or elastomers.

In experiments, the use of thermoplastics with a woven fabric filler finally was decided on, and in 1942 a soleing material was produced which later was incorporated into the standard Canadian Army boot.

IN MEMORIAM

SCRIMSHAW—In loving memory of Gertrude Scrimshaw who passed away Tuesday Jan. 18, 1941.

What would we give her hand to clasp,
Her patient face to see,
To hear her voice, to see her smile,
As in the days that used to be,
But some sweet day we'll meet again,
Beyond the toil and strife,
And clasp each other's hand once more,
In Heaven that happy life.

—Sadly missed by M. W. Scrimshaw and family.

City Council Votes to Flood Vacant Lots When Education Board Refuses School Lots

Members Disappointed at Attitude of Board With Respect to Matter

LENGTHY SESSION

Members of the City Council were disappointed at the attitude of the Board of Education in refusing to allow the council to flood the school properties for skating purposes, when they convened for their regular session on Monday night. The session just closed before the deadline of eleven o'clock and all members were present with the exception of Ald. Newton W. Wilbur, who was detained on business.

A letter was received from Mr. Kells, administrator for the Public Schools stating that the Board could not see their way clear to have the rinks located on school property or the West Belleville Playgrounds. Ald. Clapp, who was appointed chairman of this committee said he was very much disappointed, but that it was too late to do anything this year but that something should be done before next fall so that an early start could be made. Ald. Allin also expressed the same sentiment and wondered if the Board understood the objective of the Council. It was clearly stated that the supervision would be with the Y.M.C.A. and that the Board would not be responsible. "How are we going to get hockey players for the future if the children are not allowed to learn the rudiments of the game and where better can it be learned than on the open air rinks under competent coaching?" asked the Alderman.

May Flood Vacant Lots.

Ald. Follwell stated "surely the Board is interested in child welfare and the objective of the council should be clearly stated to the Board. "Probably there has been a misunderstanding", said the Alderman. "I think we should flood some vacant lots in the city". Ald. Clapp stated that if that was the wish of the council his committee would survey the city and pick out a few lots for flooding. The council agreed to that suggestion and Ald. Woodley, chairman of Fire, stated the firemen would give hearty co-operation, which met with the approval of the council.

A notice of motion was submitted by Ald. Follwell: "Whereas the sewage disposal plant would be operated in conjunction with the water utility and whereas the expected method of paying for the plant would be on the regular monthly water bill the Mayor to ask the Utilities Commission to provide $1,500 to pay for the survey made by Mr. William Storrie, the said survey to be available to the Post-War Planning Commission or any other interested city commission or department". This will be voted on at the next regular meeting.

Report of Delegation.

The report of the Regional Planning delegation, which visited Toronto reported to the council and the members of the delegation, Aldermen Woodley, McDougall, Armstrong, and Mayor Rollins all spoke. Ald. McDougall summarized the whole interview and gave a most comprehensive report the other members speaking on the same subjects. The report was as follows:

The interview with Hon. Geo. Dunbar developed the following points:

1.—The Provincial Government has no funds available for Post-War Planning.

2.—The revenues of the Ontario Government are frozen by Ottawa for the duration of the war and six months after, so that the only funds forthcoming must come from the Federal Government.

3.—Ottawa has not as yet indicated to the Ontario Government that there will be any funds forthcoming.

4.—If financial assistance comes from Ottawa it will be spread over the various municipalities who have plans available.

5.—The Ontario Government has no Post War Plans patterned for Municipalities and each Municipality will have to make its own decisions in this regard.

6.—Such works as Sewage Disposal Plants are most necessary and should be considered as Post War Plans.

7.—Municipalities should prepare their plans as early as possible and send them to the Dept. of Municipal Affairs so that they may in turn be presented to the Federal Government at Ottawa.

8.—The matter of development of the Belleville harbor is solely a Federal project and as such cannot receive any direct assistance from the Province.

9.—It is definitely expected that some relief from school taxation will be passed at the next session of the Ontario Government. However the problem is so vast that it cannot be fully dealt with at this time. It would not be wise to anticipate any tax reductions for 1944.

The conversations with Hon. Geo. Doucett resulted in the following points being developed:

1.—That No. 2 Highway would probably be built close to Belleville although it would not likely pass through the busy traffic arteries.

2.—That the Provincial Government would send an engineer at once to pass on the Esplanade entrance to No. 2 Highway on Bridge Street.

3.—That the Ontario Government favoured paying the costs of their highways through municipalities but they then reserved the right to ownership and the collection of taxes for signs, etc.

4.—If the former Provincial Government had made any definite committments to Belleville relative to maintenance of roads that the present Government would see that they were observed.

5.—That the present Minister of Highways, Mr. Doucett, had sent an engineer to Belleville to look into flood control on the Moira River. He reported that it should not be a costly project but this would depend on where the dams were built and the resultant cost of compensating owners of flooded land.

6.—There was no report available for Belleville on this survey as it was only rough and not completed in detail.

The thanks of the Council to the delegation was expressed by Ald. Follwell.

Committee Named.

A committee of Aldermen Harvey, Wilbur, McDougall and Trudeau was appointed to investigate the application of J. S. Wood for the erection of a sign on the west side of North Front Street. Ald. Hyde opened the discussion on the question by stating: "Why do we want to delay this thing. This man has come into the city to do business and he can't do business if there is no indication where he is located. He has been a good citizen and I think this council should assist him". Ald. Harvey thought there was no reason why the sign should not be placed providing the sign will compare with the locality. Ald. Butler stated he believed the new committee would not be biased and the Mayor said that the committee was composed of new members of the council and would judge the situation on its merits. Mr. Wood, who was present stated that this was the third committee that had been formed and all the others had reported favorably but that the council had turned the application down and probably this committee's recommendation would meet the same fate. Ald. Allin thought the committee was the fairest way to decide the issue and it was not legally composed until after being approved by Council. He stated he did not think there would be any opposition if a good sign was put up. The committee will investigate and report.

Caretaker Granted Increase.

The caretaker of the City Hall was granted a $5 monthly raise after objection had been raised by some members of the council. Ald. Clapp was against the action claiming if one was to be given a raise all should have it. Ald. Harvey said he was surprised at the Alderman who is an employer of labor. "He is getting small recompense for the time he puts in and I think he is poorly paid and I will support the recommendation. Ald Butler as chairman of Market and City Property, stated the caretaker was an excellent workman and was inclined to favor the motion. Ald. Trudeau asked if the Council had the right to raise his salary without application to the Wartime and Prices Trade Board and he was informed that the increase could be granted. It was shown that the caretaker received $110 for the City Hall, $10 for looking after the clock, $25 for taking care of the police station and $10 as a war bonus. The increase was granted.

Ald. Objects to Bill.

Ald. Harvey objected to a bill of $65 rendered for expenses in connection with the Regional Planning delegation to Toronto. Ald. McDougall informed the members that he did not charge in his expenses on the bill rendered and the bill was paid. The application of Gerald Vance to purchase a lot on Wallbridge Road, was referred to the property committee. An addition to the city warehouse, the cost not to exceed $1,000 was accepted. A committee of Aldermen Woodley, Clapp and Trudeau, was appointed to investigate the purchase of a car or truck for the Fire Department and report back to Council. The $25 sent by the Township of Sidney in gratitude for the help given by Fire Department in the recent fire in Wallbridge Town Hall, was returned to the men of the department. Mayor Rollins, Aldermen Chamberlain, McDougall and Butler were a committee formed to investigate the feasibility of pensioning civic employees and report back to the Council.

Public Works to Remove Snow.

Another committee of Aldermen Butler, Hyde and Chamberlain was formed to investigate the situation with regards to civic lavatories. The subscription to the Municipal World will be renewed. A history of Belleville will be given to the Belleville Club for use of the members and their visitors. An agreement will be signed with the National Defence to remove the snow from around the Armouries at a cost of $100, the agreement to close on April 30th., 1944. The Assessor was nominated to attend a meeting in Peterborough on January 14th., last, which he attended. The Treasurer was ordered to report in writing to the chairman of Finance, which in turn will be given to the Council "A" whenever, a note is issued under the "Borrowing By-Law" he is to give date and the amount of the note and "B" whenever any note is redeemed he is to indicate definitely which note it is. The comptroller of Revenue was added to the personnel of the Sinking Fund committee. The same property committee that acted last year will continue this year and which includes the Chairman of Finance and the City Comptroller.

Council Takes Action.

Fearing that the Ontario School for the Deaf will be removed from the city, the council passed a recommendation "That the Department of Education of Ontario be respectfully petitioned by council not to entertain any thought of removing the operation of the Ontario School for the Deaf from this city and that a copy of this recommendation be sent to R. D. Arnott, M.P.P., Roscoe Robson, M.P.P., and Hon. George A. Drew, Minister of Education for the Province. The Chairman of Printing and Stationery was ordered to obtain 200 honor scrolls. Mayor Rollins and Ald. Hyde were appointed to the Hospital Board, Aldermen McDougall and Follwell to the Children's Aid Society Board, Mayor Rollins to the Fair Board, Aldermen Harvey and Chamberlain to the Band Committee, and Ald. Trudeau to the V.O.N. committee. Ald. Armstrong and Ald. Harvey were named as a committee to investigate the application for parking space by the Quinte News. The Institute for the Blind asked for a grant of $100 and this was referred to the committee on estimates. The Belleville Fire Department received honorable mention in Fire Prevention Week for cities under a certain population, by the Fire Marshal's Department. Aldermen Clapp and Trudeau were appointed to a committee to investigate the letter of the City Engineer in which repairs for the sweeper were requested.

Inquiries Made.

Under the heading of inquiries Ald. Follwell asked about the paper left flying about after the passing of the garbage lifter. Ald. Armstrong explained that the dump was being loaded too full with the result that some paper was left. This condition has been remedied said the Alderman. Ald. Butler asked when the stumps left after the dead trees were cut on the East Hill, were going to be removed. It was shown that it cost as much to remove the stumps as it did to cut down the dead trees. It is possible the roots may be treated with a liquid, that will cause them to decay. Ald. Woodley wanted to know when the dead trees were going to be cut on the West Hill. Ald Allin thought a blinker or checkerboard should be placed near Garage Supply to show the slight curve in the street. It will be investigated. Ald. Clapp thanked the residents for the wonderful response in saving waste paper. Four and one-half tons were collected on Monday off the East Hill, the Chairman of the Salvage Committee told the council. This is in excess of any amount taken out of a district in any one day. Under the heading of motions it was moved that Fred Clapper be re-imbursed by the city to the extent of $5 for work done on a lot that was taken back by the city.

Provincial Subsidy Received.

Ald. H. J. Clarke announced to the members that the Provincial subsidy of one mill had been received by the Treasurer and amounts to nearly $10,000. Dr. Jack Marshall, chairman of the local Board of Health, submitted his annual report to the Council, as did Mr. Harry Belsey, who is the inspector. These reports are herewith given:

January 8, 1944

Your Worship The Mayor,
And Members of the Council
Of the City of Belleville,

Gentlemen,—

For the past year it has been my privilege to serve the citizens of Belleville through you as chairman of the local Board of Health.

During the year 1943 the Board of Health held eleven regular meetings and three special meetings (there being no meeting in August). At these meetings the accounts of the Board were checked and passed for payment and all general business pertaining to the Board of Health dealt with.

The Board of Education co-operated with the Board of Health during the Poliomyelitis epidemic in the district last Fall by releasing the school nurse and Mr. Kells from their regular duties to enable a complete supervision of all school children. The Board of Health supplied an extra nurse for this period and in so doing a close check was kept on all students absent from St. Michael's Academy, the four Public Schools, and the Collegiate. In all only one case of Infantile Paralysis developed and that in a pre-school age child. Your Board at this time wish to thank the doctors, nurses and school teachers for their careful observation of all children during this period. Also we wish to thank the members of the Kiwanis Club who donated their cars to transport the school nurse to visit students absent from school.

May I suggest that the Council for 1944 obtain information regarding a complete Public Health set-up for the city of Belleville. At present the V.O.N. is doing a great deal of the work that would come under such a system. However, the time is not far distant when the city will have to adopt such a plan and it would expedite matters with figures at hand.

Attached hereto is the report of the Inspector for the Board of Health for 1943.

Respectfully submitted,
JACK A. MARSHALL
Chairman of the local Board of Health of the City of Belleville.

Dr. G. S. Cronk
Medical Officer of Health
Belleville, Ont.

Dear Sir,—

I beg to submit my report for the year 1943.

Contagious Diseases reported to me were as follows:

Chicken Pox	7
Measles	98
Poliomyelitis	1
Scarlet Fever	1
Total	107

Ice.

Samples taken before the commencement of cutting were forwarded to the Laboratory and reported to be good.

Water.

All samples taken from the Municipal supply were reported to be in Class A.

Dairies and Milk Samples.

There are seven dairies supplying pasteurized milk and cream, also chocolate drinks to the Citizens of Belleville.

There are approximately 9,730 quarts of milk consumed per day in the city and adjoining R.C.A.F. Stations.

Samples have been taken each month and forwarded to Dr. McKay at the Bacteriological Laboratory, Belleville General Hospital for the analysis.

Reports were good with few exceptions in these cases the offenders were notified and repeat samples were taken within a few days and found to be satisfactory.

In March, June and September, Mr. O. V. Ball of the Engineering Division of the Provincial Department of Health came to Belleville and made an inspection of premises and machinery. The dairies were generally found to be in a satisfactory condition, but where changes were necessary to be done information and suggestions were given to Mr. Ball.

I accompanied Mr. Ball on each occasion. There was one person supplying cream in the city which did not conform to regulations. This person is now out of business.

Tourist Camp.

I inspected the camp during the season and found it clean and in good order under the supervision of Mr. Wm. Styles.

Victoria Park.

Owing to the high water and flooding of the park, the swimming pool was not in operation this season and the park was closed.

Bacteriological Samples from glassware were taken from all lunch counters, restaurants, beverage rooms and hotel kitchens. These were taken to the laboratory for analysis by Dr. McKay.

Restaurants and Hotels.

Kitchens and washrooms were inspected at regular intervals and found to be in satisfactory condition with few exceptions, these were instructed regarding the Health Regulations and upon repeat visits conditions were found to be remedied.

Washrooms at Service Stations.

These were inspected at various intervals. All were found to be clean and sanitary. Theatres have been inspected at regular intervals and Health regulations are being carried out. Laundries were inspected there were two which had to be cleaned up. Inspections were also made at the Graham's Cold Storage and the Evaporator plant at Pinnacle Street. These were satisfactory.

Lanes in the business section and rear of premises were inspected each month, also the river bank which is being kept in good shape since no dumping signs were placed along the banks.

The disposal and keeping of garbage has been under better control although there were a few instances where harsh measures had to be taken. An inspection was also made at a place where mink are being kept, of this you have a report.

Complaints numbering 140 have been investigated. These were mostly of a minor nature and were amicably settled.

In conclusion, I wish to thank all those who have co-operated with me in carrying out my duties, especially the Medical Officer of Health, Members of the Board, the City Engineer and other officials of the City of Belleville.

Respectfully submitted,
H. BELSEY
Inspector.

There being no further business the council adjourned at eleven o'clock.

NO POLITICAL AMBITIONS

Seattle, Jan. 17—(AP)—Col. Charles H. Morhouse, personal physician to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, said last night MacArthur "would far rather set foot in Manila than in the White House. I can tell you that General MacArthur's greatest ambition is to go back to the Philippines in a victory parade; he has no political ambitions."

Efforts of 'Fag Fund' Appreciated By Men Overseas

So appreciative are the recipients of Canadian cigarettes serving overseas that only last week F/Sergt. R. F. Stephenson sent a cablegram to the Kinsmen Fag Fund thanking them for a recent carton of Canadian fags. Each week thousands of cigarettes are sent to all parts of the world for Belleville boys serving in this globular war and judging from the scores of replies received there is nothing quite so appreciated by our fighting men as a good Canadian cigarette.

Actually one dollar sends 300 cigarette to a Belleville boy regardless as to where he is stationed. The Belleville Kinsmen "Fag Fund" is a recognized war charity under the War Charities Act of Canada.

Those who were sent 300 cigarettes from the Kinsmen "Fag Fund" this week are:

MEN WITH FUNNY

running a hand over the bristles. "After a patrol with heavy packs through the mountains, we just want to sleep and rest up for the next skirmish with the Germans."

Men grouped in front of a pup tent laughed as someone recalled an action involving Cpl. Tommy Scott of Niagara Falls, Ont. He went after a German sniper who had killed a lot of Canadians and shot him with a bazooka, an American anti-tank gun.

"That surprised the Germans and they wondered where we got artillery," grinned Sgt. Kenneth Chapman of Amherst, N. S., who was with Sgts. B. G. Carson of Montreal, Kenneth Lavery of Brockville, Ont., William Stubbs of Mooretown, Ont., George Robinson of Ottawa and Pte. Gerard LeFleche of Sturgeon Falls, Ont.

Battle casualties so far are light considering the number of engagements against fierce opposition. The force specializes in close-combat fighting, prying the Germans from positions delaying advancing Allied infantry and beyond the reach of effective artillery fire. The unit has taken more than 200 prisoners and it is believed no Canadian or American of this force was fallen into enemy hands.

The men wear the same uniform—for security reasons it cannot be described—and an American officer who said they are "the best unit in the 5th Army" asserted that the spirit among the men is unsurpassable.

Capt. John Shaw of Moose Jaw, Sask., 25-year-old former football player with Moose Jaw Millers, explained that when the force was initially formed there were some hard feelings over difference in pay and Lieut. V. C. Jackson of Winnipeg and Grimsby, Ont., interjected that "we seldom think about those things nowadays."

'I wish you could see the way the boys work together in those hills rooting out Germans and you'd see what I mean," he said.

Like pay, punishment is also under separate law. An occasion occurs where an American has to apply Canadian rules with a Canadian officer finds himself applying American regulations to an apprehended soldier.

"The lads understand and accept it as something which cannot be avoided in such a unique force," said Capt. Walter Wilson of Prince Albert, Sask.

Vocational Training Should Be Part of Regular Curriculum Says Norman Smith of B.C.I.

Two years' training in vocational studies should be part of the regular curriculum for every Ontario High School student, according to the opinion of Mr. Norman Smith, vocational director of the Belleville Collegiate, who was the guest speaker at the regular weekly Rotary luncheon at the Hotel Quinte on Monday.

Giving a brief outline of the work in the vocational department of the Collegiate, Mr. Smith intimated that the ultimate aim of such studies was not only to teach a student what to do but how to live with emphasis being placed upon dependability. "At Belleville Collegiate we are trying to build a better Belleville, which means a better Canada," he said.

Apart from the general knowledge that trade fundamentals were taught in Vocational School, there has been a general misconception of the aims of such courses. Designed originally to give the average boy a chance equal to that of the boy whose parents could afford to send him to university, the speaker intimated vocational classes today had advanced far beyond these initial principles. Lack of finance should be no bar to the furtherance of education in Canada, according to Mr. Smith. He advocated an enlargement of vocational school popularity to the extent that all high school pupils should take two years of such training.

Illustration Given

Practical illustration of what aptitude tests mean in the way of directing a student to a vocation toward which he is naturally inclined was given at the meeting through the attendance of a student from the Collegiate who had shown remarkable advance in his studies. When first starting his training he had attained marks of only 37 per cent., while in late tests he had received 91 per cent.

"And these marks were all earned," stated Mr. Smith. "They were not given to him." The student was Clifford Neil, member of the machine shop class at the school.

The work schedule of the various courses in the vocational classes were briefed by the speaker, who indicated the various studies in motor mechanics, machine shop practice, welding, woodworking and pattern making, drafting and dressmaking and domestic science classes for girls. Examples of workmanship turned out by vocational students were shown to Rotarians, some intricate pieces of equipment having been turned out by girls and women. Special tribute to the way women have adapted themselves to mechanics and into industry was paid by the speaker.

"We, of course, have to admit that there are far fewer women who are good mechanics, but where women show a liking for this work and apply themselves, they are not only good, they are excellent."

The vocational classes expressly for the girls, dressmaking was taught in both day and night classes, while in domestic science courses, girls were taught the nutritional value of various foods. They learned about cooking, budgeting, interior decorating and the art of being charming hostesses.

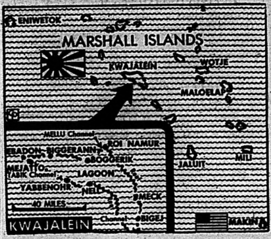
Academic Training Not Neglected

Although in vocational classes the emphasis may be placed on vocational training, the academic training of such students is not neglected. They have their regular academic periods, while they also engage in sport. Since the institution of war emergency classes in Belleville, approximately 1,500 students have passed through the school. At the present time there are about 300 students taking night school courses.

W. S. Turner, principal of Belleville Collegiate, introduced the guest speaker, with Rotarian appreciation being expressed by another school principal, Mr. W. Morrison, of the Ontario School for the Deaf. Clare Morgan occupied the president's chair in the absence of Jack Deacon, while "Sandy" Burrows and Leo Riggs acted in their usual roles.

The only matter of business brought up at the meeting centred around a brief discussion of the formation of a joint civic and service club committee to meet all trains on which soldiers from the overseas war theatre would be returning. The matter was left for the War Services Committee to decide upon.

HIT JAPANESE SUPPLY LINE



Continued U.S. attacks on Kwjalein Island, most important Jap base west of Truk, is considered not only a "softening" operation against this Marshall Island group key-spot, but also an important new thrust by the Allies against the Jap supply line. Admiral Nimitz has reported that within a few days U. S. navy Liberators have sunk several cargo ships, damaged others, hammered airfields and shore installations. The map shows the scene of these activities and a close up of Kwapalein.

OVERCOME BY SMOKE

Toronto, Jan. 17—(CP)—Two firemen were overcome by smoke early today in a fire which caused $4,000 damage in a storage room on the upper floors of the King Edward Hotel on King Street in downtown Toronto. One hundred and twenty five guests occupying upper storey rooms were forced to leave their rooms.

Windsor, England — (CP) — Leopold Cleave, 77-year-old Royal tapissier at Windsor Castle for 30 years until his retirement in 1936, died at his home.

Edinburgh — (CP) — Two young Scottish sisters were fined $25 each recently because they would not comply with a Ministry of Labor order directing them to take up work in England.

Books for Service Folk

A large amount of reading material is needed for the Canadian armed forces abroad and in Canada—350,000 books is the number the National War Service Commission seeks through the I.O.D.E. across Canada. St. Julien Chapter will collect here as many books as are given and also as much in donations as is collected to buy new books, for new books are needed as well as used ones and these can be secured at a lower figure from the publishers than the price at which individuals can buy them. In fact the Commission wants $100,000 in cash donations in Canada.

The local appeal issued on Monday calls for books that are not damaged. Since there is no definite quota asked of Belleville and district, the people of this section will be able to prove their interest by freely donating books and making contributions.

Books are one of the necessities of an age which has found the bounds of knowledge expanding more and more and human interest growing with the widening of these bounds. So the task upon which the I.O.D.E. in Canada is ready to give its labor is one that deserves the support of all the people. Old books in good condition are plentiful and will serve a useful purpose in the library of a ship, in camps in far lands, or in Canada, wherever the servicemen or servicewomen of Canada are found.

The gifts in books and donations of the people of these parts can serve well in stocking the shelves of libraries in camps and on ships for those far away from their usual surroundings, a lending library or home. The interests of the service folk are wide for they are the ideal cross-section of humanity. Young, full of courage and enterprise, and engaged in the greatest service they can perform—in helping to redeem a world from the threat of the devastating nihilism of the German Nazis. People at home can help fight Germany by giving some of their books and by their money gifts for books for reading fortifies the mind, gives it the relaxation and the inspiration in life. They help to pass lonely hours for those who are on lonely missions in Canada or abroad; in hospitals, on the ocean, or in the camp.

Long-Range Forecasting

Will long-distance forecasting of weather be likely to come? Will it be possible in the future to foretell quite long in advance such a winter as this has been with a fair amount of scientific accuracy?

No one was thinking so very much of what this winter would be like. At least no one is known to have forecast that this would be, for the first part of the winter at least, marked by an absence of snow and comparatively mild weather. If anyone says it could have been forecast, all that person needs to do will be to predict what the rest of this winter will be like.

But seriously, it is held by some scientists that there will come a day when it will be reasonable to expect forecasting a considerable time ahead. Perhaps not as long in advance as the almanacks do their predicting but some time in advance, at least enough to influence the activities of people and serve a useful purpose.

The average person will not look too soon for such an age or a time when the weather will have no secrets from the scientist. They will rather think that day far off no doubt for the weather has a way of upsetting calculations, though there are average phenomena which farmers pay respect to as unfailing signs of weather, such as the red sunset meaning a clear morrow, and the red dawn as heralding rain and many other signs with which the weatherwise are familiar.

Yet there is a certain pleasure in the variability of weather and even its uncertainty that an exact science could not give, though exact long-distance forecasts would assuredly lend themselves to use by persons laying plans weeks ahead. In the realm of aviation the weather signs and records are of the greatest importance. It has proven so in war time and civil aviation after the war will depend as it does today on reports of weather conditions, though these are of course restricted today because it is desirable to keep such facts from the enemy when necessary.

The war and the present method of gathering knowledge of weather conditions within the country or continent have given the greatest fillip to the collecting of the exact prevailing conditions. Knowledge is steadily increasing concerning air currents and the ways of what have been considered the whimsicalities of weather will be better understood. Greater knowledge of these facts will come as time passes. With aviation no doubt observation will become worldwide and knowledge of nature in respect to weather will be more fully understood. That if it comes will prove of benefit in many ways.

At present one has Old Probs to depend upon and he is quite accurate and one's own knowledge of weather by the signs which agriculturists know. That does fairly well as a guide but aviation is today using most definite scientific knowledge with good results.

Meanwhile people will go on enjoying this unusual weather knowing that it is phenomenal and that it comes very rarely and that this winter of 1943-44 for some reason in nature has been destined to become one long to be remembered.

Eight-Day City

The Russian embassy in Washington publishes a fascinating story out of the black days when Soviet industry was being transplanted from the invaded west to the safety of the Ural Mountains, relates The Minneapolis Star-Journal.

Ten thousand workers were unloaded at an unnamed area where one of the moved factories was to be set up. One Fedor Issayev was in charge of the work. At evening he summoned the workers of many nationalities—Ukrainians, Russians, Tartars, Byelorussians, Tajiks, Uzbeks—into a field and made a speech along this line:

"I've no accommodations for you, friends. We can't build houses. We have neither the time nor the materials. But you've got to put roofs over your heads. I give you ten days to do it in. After all, such things are done at the front in a few hours.

The next day surveyors laid out a plot, electricians put up searchlights for night work, freight trains unloaded some timber, excavators and shovels. In eight days the Russians had a city built underground, with the roofs of the houses above the ground and sloping to the surface. There were barber shops, laundries, bath houses, dining rooms, a polyclinic and a club. Each worker had space for a bed and a chair.

Bomber of 1918

(Leeds Yorkshire Post)

In these days of Lancasters or Liberators almost around every other cloud, it is a startling contrast to read of the flimsy crates in which intrepid pilots flew against the enemy during the last war—the FE2B for instance.

The FE2B was a two-seater pusher fighter, but assumed the role of night bomber later, for good reasons. It was horribly vulnerable from the rear; my sketch shows how the field of fire in that quarter is blanked off by the engine, airscrew, struts and wires. It was capable of the magnificent speed of 75 m.p.h.

A pilot of an FE2B would bring the nose of the 'plane up sharply to allow the gunner to fire over the tail. One observer, standing up to fire backwards, was shot in the head and fell over the side, but the pilot grabbed his coat as he fell and pulled him back into the 'plane.

True politeness is perfect ease and freedom. It simply consists in treating others just as you love to be treated yourself.—Chesterfield.

JUST FOLKS

HUNTERS' WIVES

'Twould seem that outdoor men must keep
Their love of trophies hidden deep
And never show a moose's head
Until long after they are wed;
And never show the feathered fowl,
The quail, the partridge and the owl,
Or mounted fish on panels stained,
Until their honeymoon has waned,
Or never would such men have wives
To comfort, cheer and share their lives.

Behold them cluttering up the place
With long dead relics of the chase;
A moose head fearful in the hall;
A sail fish on the libr'y wall;
A goose in imitated flight,
Its dingy plumage far from white;
And, Oh! must horrors never cease?
Dead ducks above the mantel piece,
Which wives must daily dusting go,
Like keepers of a wax works show.

Well, never was a man but what
Had whims his good wife wished he'd not,
And never was a man so good
But what she'd change him if she could.
Oh, staunch is woman, aye and brave!
Unto the man she loves a slave,
In spite of all his silly ways,
Devoted unto him she stays;
In spite of all the things he brings
For her to dust, to him she clings!

The War Today—
Russo-Polish Territorial Dispute And Its Significance

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The fresh crisis in the Russo-Polish dispute is a sharp reminder that Britain and the United States are rapidly approaching the point where they've got to make up their minds—if indeed they haven't already done so—how far they want to go in trying to force their ideas and ideals on their Russian ally in the matter of the several territorial arguments in which Moscow is involved.

In reaching our decisions we have to bear well in mind two highly-important things:-

1. Anglo-American ideas and ideals don't necessarily coincide with those of Russia in all respects. What's wrong to us may seem right to the Soviet—and who's arbiter of that?

Moscow is sternly realistic—a characteristic which stood out in the recent conferences of the big three. It wasn't without reason that Lenin gave his disciple the name of Stalin, which means "steel man."

2. The consensus of Allied leaders is that not only the winning of this war but the maintenance of peace afterwards depends on the continuation of close co-operation among the big three. Any rupture of this combination would be the prelude to another world conflict.

Any mediation of the Russo-Polish dispute must follow resumption of diplomatic relations between Moscow and the Polish government in London.

If and when diplomatic relations are resumed, there will come the effort to reconcile the divergent claims. Should the Poles agree to Russian absorption of the zone in question, and recompense themselves by annexing German territory as is suggested by Moscow, then all will be well. But supposing both sides stand pat?

The answer obviously is that Russia will take back this territory. Russia will pursue this course because the Poles are incapable of preventing it.

That brings us up to our main point. What Nation, or combination of Nations, is going to try to compel the Soviet to withdraw the Red Army from the disputed area and abandon its program?

Any effort to solve these problems in such a manner undoubtedly means another war.

If amity can be restored, there may be a chance that Poland and Russia can work out the thing between them—as their own business. That, of course, is the ideal solution.

London — (CP) — London still has more than 600 "first-line" and 400 "second-line" rest [illegible] can accommodate 135,000 people at a moment's notice if heavy raids recur.

Canadian Scene A Century Ago

By J. L. G.

Probably every settler's wife hated the sight of a needle after a few years of doing all the family sewing. Homespuns were heavy to work with; needles and thread were clumsy in the hand. What a sigh of relief must have gone up from every household when the sewing machine was invented and put on the market! The Howe machine, patented in 1846, was the acknowledged parent of all the forms later introduced. It was not until 1850 that machines began to be manufactured. Like similar machines they had a curved, eye-pointed needle operated by a vibrating arm and going through the cloth. A shuttle carrying the thread passed through the loop made by the needle. . . . Howe's life was a constant struggle, amid the trials of poverty, to gain recognition for his invention. He died at the age of 48, soon after fortune had turned a smiling face upon him.

In pioneer days time marched on less quickly than it does today, but speedily enough to call for the help of watches and clocks. Just about one hundred years ago, the question arose, why couldn't time pieces be made by machinery. In 1876, at the Centennial Exhibition in the U.S.A., watch movements thus fashioned astonished the world. Thereafter every part could be the duplicate of its fellow and uniformity in time-keeping was established.

After improvements in Watt's steam engine were made, the manufacture of iron was greatly extended. Powerful air blasts were obtained by the use of such engines which superseded the blowers worked by man or horse. But the benefits of the art of metallurgy were not generally felt in Canada during the first part of the 19th century. Metals of all kinds were scarce. Even nails were hard to get—and costly. One hundred and twenty sold for around £1, approximately $5, in the fifth decade of the century.

WEDDINGS

VANSLYKE—HERRINGTON

The marriage was solemnized in Bridge Street United Church parsonage by the Rev. Dr. James Semple when Ida Irene Herrington of Madoc, became the bride of Wilbert Gordon Vanslyke, of Warkworth.

Witnesses for the occasion were Miss Jean Gurneaux, Foxboro and Mr. Ross Vanslyke, Trenton.

The bridal couple will take up residence in Belleville.

CHAMILLIARD—DOOLITTLE

A pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Beecher Doolittle Monday, Jan. 17, when their youngest daughter, Marjorie Helen, Reg.N., became the bride of LAC. E. Cliff Chamilliard, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Chamilliard, of Armstrong, Ont.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. O. Eastman, of Victoria Ave. Baptist Church in the presence of immediate relatives and friends.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attired in white silk jersey and corsage of Talisman roses. The young couple were unattended.

After the ceremony, a buffet luncheon was served, following which the newlyweds left on a wedding trip to western points.

Salem United Church Holds Annual Meeting

Stirling—The annual congregational meeting of Salem United Church was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mumby. The minister, Rev. O. E. Wagar, conducted a brief devotional period and reviewed the main events of the past year.

The report of the Young People was given by Ivan Sarles, which showed a substantial balance after the usual gift to the missions.

Mr. Wm. Johnston, who has completed twenty-six years as superintendent, reported on the attendance and work of the Sunday School.

Mr. Charles Mumby, the church treasurer, who has completed twenty-five years of office, reported a favorable balance of over $90.

In the general business period all the old officers were re-elected. A motion was passed recommending that the parsonage board instal hydro in the parsonage as soon as war restrictions permit.

A motion of appreciation was heartily passed to the organist and assistant organist for the services rendered during the year and to Mr. and Mrs. Mumby for the use of their home for the meeting.

A fine spirit of fellowship prevailed and optimism for the future. A social hour was spent and lunch was served.

Women's Activities

COLLEGE HILL WOMEN'S GROUP

The January meeting of College Hill Women's Group was held at the home of Mrs. W. Dix, 77 College St., on January 12. The President conducted a brief devotional period. Reports were received from secretary and treasurer. Discussion followed as to ways and means of raising funds for carrying on the work. One layette and five articles of clothing were completed for the Red Shield. This completed the business part and a social time was spent in which lunch was served.

UNIONDALE

On January 10th, the ladies of Uniondale Institute served lunches and coffee at E. Hough's sale and realized the sum of $93.75. This will be used for Red Cross and other branches of war work.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

Getting the Patient to Enter the Mental Hospital.

When in my teens I happened to hear a woman screaming from a closed carriage and jumping on my bicycle I caught up with and looked into the carriage. I saw two men forcibly holding down a woman and trying to prevent her screams. One of the men leaned toward the window and ordered me away but I was so worried about the screaming woman I continued to follow the carriage hoping to meet a policeman and report it. When the carriage turned into the "asylum for crazy people" I returned home somewhat crestfallen because I thought the asylum was where the screaming woman should have been taken.

Fortunately in the great majority of cases this taking patients forcibly into mental institutions is unnecessary but unfortunately there are still patients "forcibly" placed in institutions.

In the Journal of the Iowa State Medical Society Dr. Frank E. Coburn states that the first impulse of the relatives and the physician of the markedly psychotic (odd behavior) patient is to get him into an institution for care and treatment as soon as possible, and often, unfortunately, "by hook or crook". Sometimes the methods used to get the patient to hospital may so interfere with the patient's attitude toward the institution that he will not respond to the usual mental hospital treatment for weeks.

What should be the attitude of the family and the family physician toward the mental patient?

First.—It is important that the patient be treated with as complete frankness and honesty as possible under all the circumstances. He should not be brought to the hospital on some pretense. He should be told that he is suffering from a nervous or even mental ailment for which he must go to hospital.

Second. — Preparatory medical treatment which consists of quieting the patient mentally and physically by having him take of his own free will a quieting drug such as phenobarbital or sodium amytal (dilantin sodium). To prevent drowsiness, in cases free of heart disease, benzedrine sulfate may be given. During hot weather the patient is given table salt in solution and small pieces of ice at frequent intervals.

Part of the "escort" taking the patient to the institution should be "a sympathetic, intelligent friend" who will help the patient to co-operate. Forcing the patient to enter against his will or by "hook or crook" gets him off to a poor start in his treatment at that institution.

The Marry-Go-Round

The Best-Dressed Woman

Men look their best and most attractive in uniforms. Every woman knows that. There is something dashing and significant about a uniform that lends charm to the plainest man and added glamour to the glamorous.

But I wonder if women realize that a woman, too, looks smartest, most interesting and most effective in a uniform. She always has—even 'way back in the days of World War 1! Or before that, when practically the only uniform was the uniform of a nurse.

This proves my point, that the best-dressed woman is the well tailored woman, not the one in the fluffiest clothes and the most expensive jewels. The best-dressed woman is the smooth slick little article in a C.W.A.C.'s, W.A.A.F.'s or nurse's uniform.

I wonder how long women will be allowed to retain their uniforms, after this war is over; and if they will ever go back to some of the absurd fashions they followed in the days before the era of the tailored-woman. Have we learned our lesson or will we get frilly and "fussy" again?

A masculine writer once remarked that "men look much better when 'dressed up' than women do."

Of course they do! When a man dresses up, he dresses UP! He carefully covers all his unsightly features—his knee-cap, his Adam's apple, his elbows and his shoulder blades. When he sets out to "wear clothes" he wears clothes. Nothing could be purer or more kissable looking than a man in a uniform—or even in civilian evening clothes, just after a shave and a shower.

But when a woman sets out "to wear clothes," she starts taking them off. When she "dresses up," she undresses. She frankly and bravely uncovers her vertebrae, her elbows, her clavicle, her shoulder blades and as much of the rest of her as fashion permits at the moment.

She has heard of the "female form divine," and it would never occur to her that a sharp elbow, a four-ply neck, rococo legs or a clavicle like a pair of epaulettes could ever detract from its glamorous divinity.

Only a young and luscious artist's model could look her best in the old revealing style of evening gown. Any woman over 45 who bares her back, arms and neck under the cruel relentless lights of the night club or ballroom, might as well carry her birth certificate along. She is dated.

I don't think the smart tailored maid will be in a hurry to give up her trim, clean-cut, well-groomed look. And she will hate to part with her military bearing and her trig uniform.

Perhaps it is true, as a popular writer once said, that "God's greatest gift to women is economic independence, and the next greatest is rouge." But the third greatest is tailored clothes — especially uniforms.

Advice to the Lovelorn

"Some-Day" Marriages Often Drift 'Til Youth is Gone

Curious how letters to a column often follow the same pattern on a given day. "Some-day" marriages seem to be in the majority today. Here are a few extracts:

"The man to whom I'm engaged seems willing to let this arrangement drift along for another five years, at which time I will be past thirty. We became engaged shortly after I graduated from high school. We weren't married at the time because he couldn't afford it, owing to family obligations. The engagement has drifted along until now I'm twenty-five. But although there isn't a single obstacle in our path, he wishes to continue being engaged. Decidedly I'm tired of this arrangement. (Signed) Miss S."

Another case of deferred wedding bells for still another reason.

"It's a parents' complex with my fiance, Miss Fairfax, and I'm just about fed up with it. When I first became engaged to Bill, our marriage was deferred because he had younger brothers and sisters to help educate. But now they've grown up and married. Still he hangs on saying he can't leave his mother and father, though his father remains in active business, owns a comfortable home and his mother is young enough to keep house well. It seems that he's deserting his obligation to me, rather than to his parents. (Signed) Miss D. D."

Here's another complication: "Two years ago I became engaged to a widower. His wife had been dead a year and he had three children. A distant cousin of his was looking after them and keeping house for him. At first I thought she was a family connection, acting as a housekeeper. Since then I've had my doubts as to their relationship. He seems dominated, not to say afraid of this person. My suspicions were aroused by her manner toward me when I called him on the phone. (Signed) Miss J. L. C."

Perhaps none of these men realize that they're actually blighting the lives of women who have given up some of the best years of their lives to loving them.

This kind of an indefinite arrangement always works out badly for a woman. In the old days girls couldn't very well help themselves. Circumstances obliged them to remain under the paternal roof until a husband claimed them. But such times have, happily passed. And why women put up with such dilatory suitors who, as often as not, marry younger and fresher women after these interminable engagements, is difficult to understand.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Don't Use Red Ink

Is it considered poor taste to use red ink when writing a special letter? I cannot see why it should be, but a friend of mine, who has really fine manners, insists it is. write him, better give him the why?

B. L.

Your friend is right, it is not good taste to use red (or green or purple or brilliant blue) ink when writing a letter. Black or dark blue are considered the proper shade for ink.

Why isn't a gaily colored ink considered "proper?" Well, authorities agree that they don't look so well as the conservative black or dark blue, just as authorities agree that letters written in pencil don't look so well as letters written in ink! We do or we don't abide by certain rules or suggestions, the big or little signposts that direct and guide us to the goal of what is considered good taste. If we do conform to these findings, it makes things easier all around, for others and for ourselves. Then we don't do things that seem as bizarre as your using red ink seems to your friend, whose choice obviously conforms with good taste. However, I can't help wondering about your asking this question, for I have rarely received a letter written in such fine form, with such full-of-personality handwriting and written with perfect equipment, white, double-sheeted letter-paper and dark blue ink!

Let Him Take the Initiative

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My mother and I have discussed this question and we have decided that the answer would be much better if a third and disinterested person were told of the problem. I'm a fourteen-year-old girl, but I look much older. Last week I met a sailor, through some friends of my mother, and I like him a lot (and his sister told me he liked me too). While we were together, he asked me what I thought of him, and I told him I'd write him a letter and tell him. Now my mother trusts me and she says she can rely on my not writing him anything foolish. But she does insist that it is not proper for the girl to write first. May we please have your opinion about this?

W. N.

Mother is right. You'll be both right and sensible if you let this young man take the initiative in writing. Even if you are eager to write him ,better give him the chance you should give him, to show you how eager he is to write you. And I do hope you're not going to be so foolish as to write him what you think of him. You probably won't believe it, but you really can't know him very well on such short acquaintance, and it's pretty silly to write him such a personal letter. And what if he's as impulsive as you were and shows your letter gloatingly to his buddies? It's been known to happen! There are lots of delightful and not-too-personal things you can write him about, and then he'll realize you're a young lady of sure taste.

BOY KEPT SECRET WELL

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 17 (AP) — Ten-year-old John Wilm kept his secret of three days, but X-ray photographers forced him to tell the truth—that he was shot last Wednesday during a "commando raid" in an alley near his home.

When John failed to recover from what he told his parents were cuts suffered in a fall, a physician made the examination and found a bullet lodged near his spine. Police said the bullet was fired accidentally from one of four pistols young Wilm and three playmates had taken from an unoccupied house.

Manchester, England — (CP) — Sentences totalling over 19 years imprisonment and fines totalling $42,200 were imposed on seven men and three women involved in black market deals.

The Experts Say

(By The Canadian Press)

Lettuce Heads: Here's a tip for conservation conscious housewives. Nutrition Services suggest that the next time you get a head of lettuce you keep those outer leaves, even if they are a bit tired looking. Cut them off, wash them wrap them up while still damp and place them in a cool place. They'll perk up. Then the next time you have cabbage for dinner shred those dark green health-important leaves in with the cabbage. They're full of precious vitamins and minerals so be sure to cook them quickly and in very little water. Or when spinach is available try cooking the lettuce leaves unshredded along with it.

No Second Helping: When the Canadian housewife uses one egg instead of two, serves bacon only as a special treat and spreads her cheese sparingly, she's making a telling contribution to the Allied cause. As the last long hard push looms, food in ever increasing quantities is a prime requisite, the Prices Board says. Through careful cooking practices, she can play a big part in helping Canada to meet her 1944 export quota of 150,000,000 pounds of cheese; 67 per cent of all bacon and pork products and 9,000 tons of egg powder. Incidentally, the 9,000 tons is equal to 63,000,000 dozen eggs.

Seashore Chowder: —The Fisheries Department recommends this recipe for a delicious seashore chowder with fish as its main ingredient. Cod or haddock are perhaps best for use in this chowder:

1 1-2 pounds of fish, fillets or whole fish sliced; 3 cups 1 inch diced raw potatoes; 1 large or 2 medium-sized onions, finely sliced; boiling water or fish stock to cover vegetables; 2 cups milk; 2 tablespoons butter; salt and pepper to taste; slice of salt, fat pork or bacon (optional); soda biscuit.

If a whole fish is used, remove the eyes and gills, clean and cover the head, skin and trimmings with cold water for making stock. Bring to a boil, or simmer, and strain. Cook the potatoes and onion in this stock or in the boiling water, until almost done. Add the fish, cut in pieces, and continue cooking until the fish is done. Add the milk and butter, flaking the fish through the vegetables. Do not allow to boil until after the milk has been added. Serve with soda biscuit broken in large pieces on top. More milk is sometimes necessary to prevent too watery an appearance. One slice of fat pork diced and tried out in the bottom of the kettle and the onion cooked in it for five minuts improves the flavor of the chowder. This serves six.

Fashion Flashes

THE HALF SHELL seems to go for millinery as well as for oysters. A pretty new hat, suggested for wear with brown or black is an exact half shell, fashioned of pink satin, with all-over tucking and a rippled brim.

There's no end to the novelty and variety of the blouse. Along comes a blouse of checked red, white and blue gingham, but it is embroidered all over in sequins in scroll effect. For evening of course.

Good ideas for wardrobe expansion are part of the conservative program. For instance, a simple black jersey or crepe sheath can be turned into another frock by the addition of a tunic scarf and a headdress both of black net over which lavender violets are scattered.

It's lilac time already for several stores are featuring lilac shades for late winter and early spring. Lilac all-wool shetland is used for a smart little topper with novelty stitched slot pockets high peaked revers, shoulder and sleeve with welt seaming. Deep violet plastic buttons and satin lining.

There's refreshment in the new printed frocks, which are prettier than ever. Scrawly florals and ribbon festoons in red, green and white is the print used for a gray silk crepe frock made with deep, scooped out neckline and full bishop sleeves.

First prize for flattery goes to the feather hat of the aigrette type. A charming evening hat is of black lace on which is mounted a sunburst halo of black heron feathers.

Arthritis of the Spine

Arthritis of the spine is a severe disturbance that may cause the spine to become rigid. The disease usually occurs in persons past middle age. The type of disorder that is most often seen in younger persons is known as Marie-Strumpell disease. This is a condition in which there is inflammation of the joints of the spine and in which the spine becomes rigid or fixed. It develops rapidly, and may affect the hips and chest, as well as the spine. The disease starts with pains in the back and limbs. Pain in the lower part of the spine soon develops and the bend in this section is lost.

A different type of arthritis may occur in persons between thirty and forty years of age. These persons also have stiffness and pain in the lower part of the back, particularly over the sacroiliac joints, which connect the lowest part of the spine with the hips. The middle spine, chiefly, is affected. This disorder does not progress as rapidly as the Marie-Strumpell disease.

It is, usually, not difficult to make a diagnosis of these conditions. The X-ray is valuable from this standpoint.

In treating arthritis of the spine rest in the early stages, preferably on a bed with a hard mattress, is important. If a deformity of the spine is beginning to develop, a plaster cast may be necessary. As the acute symptoms of pain and tenderness begin to clear up, a plaster jacket, reaching from the upper part of the spine to below the hips, may be adjusted. Later on a brace may be substituted.

The patient's diet, according to Dr. Charles W. Buckley, of England, must contain plenty of milk and other sources of vitamins and calcium. He also suggests that cod-liver oil is of much value. Exposure to plenty of sunshine and treatment with ultraviolet ray lamps may be helpful.

Infra-red ray treatments, since they supply heat, may give relief from pain. Breathing exercises may be used with benefit, because they help to keep the joints between the spine and the ribs from becoming fixed and immovable. Special exercises also may benefit the patient's general condition. X-ray treatments have been found helpful in some cases.

It has been found that drugs are of no special value for relief of pain. Large doses of vitamin D have been used, and it is thought that these have given help in some cases.

BOSTON BRUINS CAN TIE LEAFS BY WINNING

No One Takes Seriously Threat of Ross Against Toronto Team

SOME WON'T PLAY

By The Canadian Press

The oddest angle of tonight's "grudge" battle between Toronto Maple Leafs and Boston Bruins in Boston is that none of the principals seems to take Art Ross seriously on his threat of three-for-one reprisals against Leafs. Except possibly Art Ross himself.

Certainly, the Boston manager appeared serious enough when he told sports editor Andy Lytle of the Toronto Daily Star that Bill Cowley's shoulder injury had been suffered as the result of a "savage and deliberate" attack by Leafs in a game at Toronto Jan. 8. If Ross changed his mind after Cowley publicly declared the injury was "my own fault," he failed to issue a retraction.

In addition to promising that Boston would "get" three Toronto players for Cowley next time Leafs played in Boston, Ross also said manager Franke Selke of Leafs was responsible for the Cowley incident. Coach Happy Day, said Ross, "was not smart enough to have figured it out."

That kind of talk ordinarily would be enough to cause bloodshed, but Day and Selke have been busily debunking any thought of strife. And most of the writers figure the game will turn into a Boston tea party.

Apart from the feud angle, there is plenty of incentive for Boston. The Bruins, outscored 36-30 in breaking even in six games against Leafs this season, can move into a second-place tie with Toronto by winning tonight.

RELIANCE A.C. LASSIES WIN OVER SARGENTS

Victory Puts Winners in a Tie for Second Place With Alemite

COATHUP STARS

Reliance A.C. lassies hung a 33 to 12 reverse on the Belleville Sargent gals to chalk up their first win in the Belleville Ladies' Basketball League at the Y.M.C.A. last evening. The win elevated Reliance into a tie for second place with the Bell-Sargents, while the idle Alemite gals retained first place in the city loop, and at the same time dropped a 27 to 20 decision to the Mountain View (W.D.) "Flyerettes" in an exhibition game that rounded out a dual bill of the cage pastime.

Paced by Kay Coathup, who scored 23 of the victors 33 points, Coach "Spike" Pryke's Reliance led 19 to 6 at the halfway mark and continued to feed the ball to Miss Coathup, who added ten points to her scoring in the second half after ringing 13 in the first stanza. Betty Hastie and Al Gilbert counted the remaining baskets for the winners. E. Allison scored seven of the Lockmakers' even dozen points.

The Reliance quintette set up a strong defence in their own zone allowing Bell-Sargent but five baskets as the result of some timely defensive measures. Next Monday night Alemite meet the Sargents while Deacons clash with Reliance.

The box score:

Sargents:	G.	F.	Pts.
R. Gariepy	1	0	2
E. Allison	3	1	7
G. Fox	1	0	2
V. Fox	0	1	1

Second Game Exhibition

In the second game, an exhibition match between the group-leading Alemite girls and the Mountain View "Flyerettes", of the R.C.A.F. the latter quintette came from behind to win 27 to 20. The halfway score stood at eight-all.

Dat Ronsky led the local Alemites on the attack with ten points, while Miss Mundinger and Miss Wilson proved the more prolific scoring threats for the Flyerettes with ten and nine points respectively.

The lineups:

Mountain View: Mundinger 10, Jampson 2, Walker 6, Wilson 9, Dawson, Bain and Swain.

Alemite A.C.: Rowbotham, Salisbury 2, Ronsky 10, Gilbert 2, Mansfield 5, Scott 1, Meens, Vincent and Simchism.

President of Minor Leagues Strong for Private Ownership

By the Canadian Press

President W. G. Bremham of the association of Minor Baseball Leagues last night came out strongly for private ownership of clubs in preference to the chain-store system in issuing a statement on the post-war program for minor circuits to be dealt with at a joint meeting of a special committee of baseball organizations to be held in New York Feb. 5. Braham urged a curb on the farm system which should be permitted only when it has been determined that local ownership of a club lacks experience or financial means.

Bramham urged the formation of compact minor circuits and asserted full consideration should be given population shifts in the reviving of suspended leagues. He warned owners of idle teams to put their plants in order for quick resumption of play and the immediate re-employment of players discharged from the Armed Forces in the event of a sudden conclusion of the war.

Tom Burlington of Cleveland Barons and Wally Kilrea of Hershey Bears continued on even terms for another week in the scoring tables of the American Hockey League with 45 points apiece for circuit scoring leadership. Louis Trudel of Cleveland jumped to third place with 43 through earning seven points in the week's fixtures.

Willie Hoppe, world's three-cushion billiards champion, defeated Welker Cochran, the former champion, in both locks of their 2,150-point non-title match here yesterday, taking the opener 50 to 42 in 51 innings and the nightcap 50 to 22 in 42. Hoppe thus grabbed a lead of 100 to 64 in the Detroit phase of their match.

Matchmaker Johnny Attell of New Haven, Conn., yesterday tossed challenges right and left in behalf of his protege, Julie Kogon. The defies were aimed at Sammy Angott, N. B. A. lightweight champion, Lulu Constantino, Tippy Larkin and Ike Williams.

Eighty-one-year-old Col. Matt J. Winn, director of the Kentucky Derby, yesterday was elected President of the Empire Racing Association at Yonkers, N. Y. Winn will direct the empire program this year in addition to the racing at Laurel, Md., Churchill Downs, Ky., and Lincoln Fields, near Chicago.

Because of his broken hand, injured in the bout with Jake Lamotta at Detroit last Friday, Fritzie Zivic's induction into the army was deferred yesterday at Pittsburgh for at least 30 days although he passed his final physical examination.

Chief Umpire Bill Klem of the National League expressed confidence in baseball this year, declaring at Miami Beach yesterday the fans would have plenty to shout about when the old players "come back and the young ones move up," the name players would not be missed, he said.

Henry Armstrong, veteran of the prize ring, yesterday declared he had discovered a "finished boxer in 13-year-old Keith Nuttall of Salt Lake City, son of an old-time fighter. "Sammy" said the 90-pound boy had a "perfect left," Keith has 16 straight knockouts to his credit in amateur bouts.

Only civilian hockey teams are left in the running for Allan Cup and Memorial Cup competition this year as a result of yesterday's announcement that Navy teams and players could not participate in interprovincial players. The Navy announcement came more than a week after Army and Air Force players were told that they could only play in local garrison or defence leagues and in exhibition games.

Unlike Army and Air Force players, the Navy men are not banned from any league in which competition leads to the Alan or Memorial Cup playoffs. A Navy spokesman said that a Navy hockey player could play in league and provincial playdowns but not in interprovincial playdowns.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLIE EDWARDS

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, Jan. 18 — (CP) — Edmonton basketball fans don't throw in with this column's assertion that Pat Bay Gremlins probably will keep the National Senior hoop title in Vancouver another year. C. M. Hollingsworth, president of the Edmonton (International) Men's Basketball League, writes to say it would not startle Edmontonians if one of their clubs, possibly the U. S. Engineers, takes the title from Pat Bay.

The fact is that Edmonton, for many years the home of the world's greatest women's basketball team, the Commercial Grads, now has some of the best men's basketball in the country. United States servicemen and R.C.A.F. personnel posted to Edmonton gave the city a wealth of cage talent. Seven of the 11 clubs in Hollingsworth's league are Americans. The U. S. Engineers went thru the first half of the schedule without defeat and Hollingsworth says either that club, Edmonton Yanks or Calgary Currie Barracks would give "the stiffest opposition ever encountered from this province in Dominion playdown competition."

More power to them say we! Alberta has never won a Dominion senior men's basketball crown. A victory this year would be a great boost to the game there.

Oh Happy Day!

Clarence (Happy) Day of Toronto Leafs was cagy when asked how present N.H.L. play compares with the game in Hap's hey-day a decade ago. "When we used to put on a ganging play the fans went wild," said Day. "Now it's almost a continual ganging play." The inference is that familiarity has bred contempt.

Incidentally:

Theo Dubois, who went from Winnipeg to win the North American sculling championship, has been in the Canadian Army three months. He's a sapper with the Engineers at Chilliwack, B.C. ... Jack Patterson, sports editor of the Vancouver Sun, is Navy-bound with columnist Alf Cottrell taking over the Sun's sport reins ... Red Carr, 26-year-old rookie from Winnipeg via Nanaimo, B.C., and way points, has been given his outright release by Toronto Leafs. He failed to measure up to N.H.L. standards and will do his hockey playing for Staffords in the Toronto Metropolitan League.

How Awful!

BYRON NELSON WINS

By RUSS NEWLAND

Associated Press Sport Writer

San Francisco, Jan. 18 — (AP) — Byron Nelson, often described as the best golfer in the country, was back in the winner's circle today with $2,400 worth of war bonds in his pocket and the title of 1944 champion of the San Francisco victory open tournament.

The Toledo, O., crackshot, former National Open and Professional Golfers' Association Kingpin, knocked out a 13 under par 275 to win the 72-hole tournament which concluded yesterday.

TRENTON STATION, REPAIR DEPOT PLAY 1-1 DRAW

Service Hockey League Opens With Large Crowd of Civilians on Hand

GOOD CONTEST

Showing promise of developing into a strong senior hockey loop, the No. 6 Repair Depot battled Padre Mika's strong Trenton "main station" sextette to a one-all draw in the opening game of the Bay of Quinte R.C.A.F. service hockey league at the Hume Arena Monday night. A fair crowd of civilian fans and Air Force personnel stamped their approval on the brand of hockey introduced by the district service league, which continues, at the Hume Arena Thursday night, when the Mountain View "Bombers" meet the Deseronto "Mohawks."

To add pleasure to the evening's entertainment of fast, unadulterated hockey the Trenton R.C.A.F. band was on hand to entertain the patrons between periods with sprightly tunes.

Trenton opened the scoring midwas through the initial period when Bagnell, former Oshawa puck star of former years, took Dart's pass at the blue line and beat Strang, in the Repair lads' nets, with a hard drive into the upper corner of the twine. The equalizer came early in the second period when Kelly was serving a penalty for the "Flyers" and the Repair Depot lads moved to the attack. During a five-man attack on the Trenton net Goddue rifled the rubber past Ralph Benson, former Marlboro goalie, in the Trenton nets, Laundreault and McInnes getting assists as the puck was being passed around inside the Trenton defence zone a la the hot potato. Both teams muffed golden opportunities to sink what would have been the winning goal in the last stanza, Mike Dziura, former New Haven wing star, twice missing the open net on splendid combination plays for Trenton.

Benson Rose to Heights

Benson, in the Trenton net, repeatedly rose to sensational heights to out-guess and beat the flying "repair lads" at his goal-mouth, while Coach Padre Mika's front line of Dziura, Voss and Tessier looked like the best combination used by the "main station" team. Hunt, former Toronto senior, Howes, Goddue and McInnes played strong hockey for F/S Dickens' Repair Depot team. There was no overtime period played, Gord Derry, former Belleville junior defenceman, lined up with the No. 6 squad.

The line-ups — Trenton "Main Station" — goal, Benson; defence, Fitzpatrick and Bagnell; centre, Voss; wings, Tessier and Dziura; alternates, Wismer, Dart, Taylor, Curie, Frigan and Kelly. No. 6 Repair Depot: goal, Strang; defence, Derry and Feldman; centre, Hunt; wings, Dixon and Howes; alternates, Broomfield, Laundreault, Pfoff, Stewart, McInnes and Goddue.

Referees — "Toots" Holway and "Speedy" St. Louis of Belleville.

SUMMARY

1st Period:—
Trenton—Bagnell (Dart) 15.55
Penalties—Feldman.
2nd Period:—
No. 6 Repair Depot — Goddue (Landreault, McInnes) 9.11
Penalties—Kelly (2).
3rd Period:—
No score.
Penalties—Fitzpatrick.

What's Doing in Sport

New York — (AP) — According to Gene Sarazen, preparations have been made for another Ryder Cup challenge team golf match at Detroit next summer, even though a number of the official Ryder team members are in the services and will not be available. The annual series has raised more than $100,000 for war charities, last years tourney contributing $36,000.

Sacramento, Calif. — (AP) — President Clarence Rowland of the Los Angeles baseball club last night was elected president of the Pacific Coast League for a 10-year term at an annual salary of $12,500. He was manager of the Chicago White Sox in 1917 when they defeated New York Giants in the world series.

Little Rock, Ark. — (AP) — Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, veteran twirler of the Philadelphia Phillies, yesterday passed his physical test and has been assigned for enlistment to the U.S. Navy. Rowe, 32, is married and the father of two children.

Boston — (AP) — The Massachusetts Boxing Commission yesterday found Tippy Larkin, Garfield, N. J., lightweight, physically unfit for his scheduled 10-round bout here Friday night with Izzy Jennazzo of Birmingham, Ala., and the fight was postponed. Larkin was injured in his fight with Bobby Ruffin at New York last Friday which resulted in a draw.

St. Johns, Que. — (CP) — A coroner's jury last night found Pte. Johnny Greco, former lightweight boxing contender, criminally responsible for the death of Pte. Romeo Dagenais of Montreal whose body was found on a highway close to the Farnham training camp early Sunday, Greco allegedly drove the car said to have hit Dagenais.

(Juveniles practice.)

Now that the junior hockey picture is pretty well established in Belleville, Bill Dennis announced the first Juvenile hockey workout will be held at the Hume Arena Wednesday evening commencing at seven.

'Players eligible for juvenile hockey must be 17 years and under on Jan. 1st of the playing year. Any boy who becomes 18 years of age after Jan. 1st is eligible, but if they were 18 prior to Jan. 1st, then they're taboo," explained Bill.

There should be a galaxy of juvenile hockey material in Belleville maybe enough for a couple of good teams. At any rate the present plans are to operate one juvenile team. Efforts to procure a couple of exhibition games with clubs from the surrounding district are being made, so as to interest the kids. In the meantime the first Juvenile practice will be held tomorrow night when it is expected the ice will be cluttered with aspiring material.

(Stirling moves up.)

Coming from behind with a two-goal splurge in the final period the Stirling - Marmora "Combines" moved into a tie for second place in the local junior O.H.A. group standing by beating Trenton 5 to 4 on their home ice last night. Now the Combines are on even footing with the Belleville kids, who are scheduled to play at the Trenton Air Station tonight, while the loss dropped Trenton into third position.

PO. Stan Jackson's Trenton kids dominated the play in the first two periods, leading 3 to 1 and 3 to 2 respectively. However, the Combines scored one late in the second and kept the Trenton kids off the scoring sheet in the last 40 minutes, as they notched two more to win in the last period. Coach Ralph Neal's Combines have the happy faculty of doing the most damage to the opposition in the third period, which was also seen when they beat the Air Force 2-0.

The fans around the Combines' district are really supporting their favorites, something like 771 paid admissions saw last night's game.

(Flyers please fans.)

Last night saw the opening of the Quinte R.C.A.F. service hockey loop at the Hume Arena when the Trenton "Main Station" and No 6 Repair Depot battled to a sixty-minute one-all draw in as fast and thrilling game of the winter pastime as one could ask for. A goodly sprinkling of civilian fans, who actually outnumbered the men in uniform, stamped their approval on the brand of wide-open hockey dished up by the Flyers' loop. The league should go far in replacing intermediate hockey for the patrons' in the Belleville area.

Some well known players were on the job and the boys don't spare the horses in a wide-open fast-skating style of hockey. Trenton had Ralph Benson, former Marlboro goalie, Bagnell from Oshawa and Fitzpatrick a former M. & O. loop player on defence. Mike Dziura, a pro. in his own right, Voss from the Montreal Royals and several other new faces. On the Repair Depot lineup were Hunt, a Toronto senior, Howes from Orillia, McInnes and Stewart from the Flin Flon "Bombers" and Strang from Ottawa, to mention a few. With such players available the Air Force league is bound to come into its own eventually.

(Have more players now.)

While manpower is admitted to be the game's biggest problem for the 1944 season by William Harridge president of the American League, in previewing the prospects, he revealed his circuit has more players available now than it did when preparing for the 1918 season, in the second year of World War I.

A check of the rosters disclosed the American League clubs had 250 players under contract for 1918, ten less than they have on their reserve lists for the 1944 season. Approximately 190 are in the armed forces.

"We know that scores of players, many of them stars, will join the armed forces between now and opening day in April," said Harridge, "but our league owners are confident that, despite these anticipated departures, their clubs will be able to field teams and again do a good job of providing entertainment and relaxation."

(Crowds increase.)

A much larger gallery welcomed the weekly Monday night girls' cage games at the "Y" last night when Reliance trimmed Bell-Sargent in the only league game played 33 to 12, while a thrilling exhibition game was seen between the Alemite lassies and the girls of the (W.D.) R.C.A.F. stationed at Mountain View. Here the "Flyerettes" won 27 to 20 sending Belleville high-hoop game fans home satisfied that girls' basketball will eventually become every bit as popular as girls' softball.

Incidentally in the league tussle it was a combination of a strong defence and too much Kay Coathup for Bell-Sargent, as Kay counted 23 of the Reliance total score.

Bill Cowley Still in Front In Scoring Race

Montreal, Jan. 18 — (CP)—More than a week of enforced idleness is behind Bill Cowley, Boston Bruins' centre ace, and he's still at the top of the National Hockey League scoring race, although with a drastically-reduced margin.

The official statistics released today, second weekly listing since Cowley was injured at Toronto, shows him leading with 52 points, two up on teammate Herbie Cain and three up on Lorne Carr of Toronto Maple Leafs.

Elmer Lach of Canadiens is next, six points out of third place and trailed by a point by Bill Mosienko of Chicago. Doug Bentley of the Hawks and Gus Bodnar of Leafs hold down sixth place together with 40 points each.

Cowley is still ahead in the assist column too, his 33 paying passes giving him a margin of two over Lach and three over Buddy O'Connor of Canadiens. Cain leads in goals with 28, while Carr has 21 and Mosienko, Gerry Heffernan of Canadiens and Mud Bruneteau of Detroit are tied with 20 each.

Penalty leaders? It's Mike McMahon of Canadiens by a minute, with 50 minutes in majors and minors, compared with 49 for Harold Jackson of Detroit.

LESSON NO. 279

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Hand it to a bridge player who plays the eyes off the cards. He has the courage of a bugler. He never gives up. At least, not until he has exhausted every manoeuver.

An unfavorable division of cards may be against him. His own cards may be too evenly distributed. In any case, he always has some plan that may give him a chance.

You are declarer in the south at a six spade contract. West starts with an opening lead of the heart ten. You must plan some way of taking the 12 tricks you need for a small slam.

Dummy king of hearts wins the first trick. A round of trumps is won by your south spade king. When west fails to follow suit, you discover that east has a cinch spade trick.

It looks as if you must lose a trick on the third round of hearts, too. That and the trump trick will kill your contract. But you must not give up. At least, not yet.

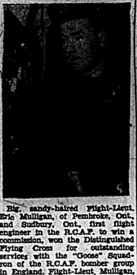
On the first trick in hearts, east dropped the jack. East may have had that jack alone or with only one more heart. If so, there is an easy way of making your contract.

To prepare for it, you must first strip your hand and dummy of all other side suits. So, after winning another trump round with the south spade ace, take two diamonds and three clubs.

Now, take the second heart round with dummy ace. When east drops the queen, lead a trump. East wins and must lead a club or diamond. Trump in south and sluff a dummy heart. That does it.

Always carry a saw. A foe may be out on a limb.

WON COMMISSION



Big, sandy-haired Flight-Lieut. Eric Mulligan, of Pembroke, Ont., and Sudbury, Ont., first flight engineer in the R.C.A.F. to win a commission, won the Distinguished Flying Cross for outstanding services with the "Goose" Squadron of the R.C.A.F. bomber group in England. Flight-Lieut. Mulligan, who is known as the grand-daddy of all R.C.A.F. flight engineers, is shown here at the engineer's panel of the Lancaster bomber in which he flies. Twenty-three years old, he reached his present rank only 40 days after becoming a sergeant.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Lost Horizon"

"Lost Horizon", Frank Capra's most ambitious Columbia production starring Ronald Colman opens next at the McCarthy Theatre.

In Book form "Lost Horizon" wove such a spell a round hitherto charmproof sophisticates that they went out of their way to hymn the praises of James Hilton's fantastic story of mystic and forbidden Tibet. As a photoplay, deservedly applauded from coast to coast in its triumphant roadshow tour, just concluded, "Lost Horizon" emerges as two or three of the "best" films of the year rolled into one.

Scenically and photographically it is a triumph. The contrast between the ancient East and the modern West is striking but never incongruous. The impact of accidental upon Oriental has the force of Kipling brought up to date and played against the stark background of an airplane, disaster a Chinese revolution and a breath-taking snowslide.

It is in these snow scenes that the picture attains its greatest photographic beauty. The wide expanses of snow-covered mountain sides, the wind whipping the snow through torturous mountain passes, the awesome sweep of the avalanche that wipes out an entire party of porters; these are shots that must be seen for they cannot be given their true worth in the printed word.

The lush beauty and the quiet serenity of the hidden valley of Shangri-la, with its unbelievably beautiful white lamasery, afford marked photographic contrast to the awesome snowscapes at the beginning and end of the picture. It is here that the little band kidnapped from revolution-torn Bakul find romance and high adventure.

The characterization is excellent throughout. Ronald Colman, one of suavest and most likeable leading men, is the ideal choice for Robert Conway, the empire-builder who longs for peace of spirit.

John Howard is equally effective as his impetuous brother. Just the right spicing of comedy is provided by Edward Everett Horton as the absent-minded paleantologist and Thomas Mitchell as the deposed utilities tycoon who is a fugitive from justice. Jane Wyatt brings beauty and romance to Shangr-la as Sondra and Margo and Isabel Jewell fulfill admirably the roles assigned to them. Sam Jaffe as the two hundred-year-old High Lama has what is probably of the longest and most difficult speeches ever recorded on a sound track. His appearance in the picture in brief but on his shoulders rest the responsibility of bringing credibility to fantasy. That he succeeds is the highest praise one can pay to him. H. B. Warner too, as the High Lama's assistant, brings another gem of characterization to the picture.

AT THE CAPITOL

"One Thrilling Night"

It has been a long time since a local screen has shown a funnier comedy than "One Thrilling Night," the gay Monogram farce which opened at the Capitol Theatre last night. The audience rocked with laughter as they followed the hectic adventures of an unsophisticated young couple on a 12-hour honeymoon.

John Beal and Wanda McKay are the bride and groom, and it would be harder to imagine more suitable selections for their roles. As they become increasingly bewildered by the situations which confront them, they are delightful. And the usually villainous Warren Hymer, playing a rich comedy part as a house detective in a New York hotel, completes a trio of very effective funmakers. Others who contribute importantly to the general good time are Tom Neal, Barbara Pepper and J. Farrell MacDonald.

"Action in the North Atlantic"

Vigorous, forceful and inspired, "Action in the North Atlantic," which opened at the Capitol Theatre yesterday as the added hit, tells the timely and glorious saga of the men of the United States Merchant Marine. Thanks to the Warner Bros., they are no longer the "unsung heroes" of the war, and never have Hollywood's Kleig lights shone on a group of men more deserving of recognition and praise.

These are the men who make it possible to "hit the enemy wherever he can be found" by delivering the needed oil, munitions and supplies through sub-infested seas. The story deserves and receives a strong cast headed by Humphrey Bogart, Raymond Massey, Allan Hale, Julie Bishop and Ruth Gordon.

The Canadian Universal News completes the big double program.

AT THE BELLE

Sonja Henie in "Wintertime"

Sonja Henie, queen of the ice, is the star of "Wintertime", 20th Century-Fox's spectacular musical, which is now closing at the Belle theatre. Featuring seven songs by Leo Robin and Nacio Herb Brown, Woody Herman's orchestra provides the musical accompaniment.

Sonja is aided in her revelry and rhythm on ice by Jack Oakie, Carole Landis and Cesar Romero. In addition to her matchless performances on skates, Sonja turns her grace and charm to the dance floor.

Victor Herbert's "Naughty Marietta"

Can you hum "I'm Falling in Love With Someone?"

Can you whistle "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life?"

Of course you can—all the world can. That's how universally famous is Victor Herbert's music in "Naughty Marietta."

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has done something startling in blending the surge and thunder of great drama with the haunting music of "Naughty Marietta." You have had great adventure pictures before—but here is the world's finest musical adventure drama. It's "Naughty Marietta" coming next to the Belle theatre.

W. S. VanDyke, who directed "Trader Horn," "The Thin Man," and many other great thrill pictures, directed it. Jeanette MacDonald, greatest of singing screen stars, and Nelson Eddy, great American baritone whom you've often heard on the air, are hero and heroine.

It's a dramatic romance of Creole days, with hundreds of people, great sets, gorgeous costumes, battles and thrills, beautiful love moments, and the wonderful music is a part of the drama itself.

There's a great supporting cast, with Frank Morgan at his funniest, Elsa Lanchester, Douglas Dumbrille, popular Hollywood player born in Hamilton, Ont., Joe Cawthorne, Akim Tamroff, Greta Myer and many more famous names. Some of the scenes show lines of people a mile long.

You'll thrill, you'll revel at this remarkable picture, the world's greatest adventure musical with the imperishable melodies of Victor Herbert. It is a treat every member of the family will enjoy.

HEAVES AXE TO KILL FOX

Markdale, Ont., Jan. 17—(CP)—A fox failed to reckon with Stanley Harvey's axemanship in Vandeleur district woods the other day and lost its hide—which, incidentally, netted Harvey $15. The farmer saw the fox about 20 yards away as he was chopping wood. The fox saw the farmer and turned tail to make off, but was felled by a single blow of the axe Harvey heaved at it.

GROWS HIS OWN

Brantford, Jan. 17—(CP)—Henry Russ has his own way of overcoming any wartime shortages in oranges, lemons, figs and limes—he grows his own. Set out two years ago, cuttings of the plants yielded during the last year one lemon (a giant, nine inches long and three and one-half inches wide), 19 oranges and four figs. The lime bush is bearing its second crop now, indoors.

3,465,881 Lbs. Cheese Produced In P. E. Last Year

Picton, Jan. 18—A total of 3,465,881 pounds of cheese was manufactured in Prince Edward County last year, according to official figures released yesterday. Though this is a decrease of 651,709 pounds compared to last year, it is a smaller reduction than in any other Central Ontario district. This is equal to 38,510 ninety-pound cheese.

Hastings County led Central Ontario districts with 8,689,382 pounds cheese during the year, a reduction of 1,903,020 pounds compared to 1942.

Ontario production last year was 103,849,000 pounds, a decrease of 18.9 per cent over 1942.

Butter production in Prince Edward last year amounted to 198,934 pounds compared to 122,601 pounds in the previous year. Production last month was 13,374 pounds.

Shortage of help has resulted in a decrease in the number of cattle being kept. Exports to the United States are made at regular intervals, high prices being offered.

Missing After Raid

Believed to have taken part in the raid on Brunswick Friday night, Pilot Officer C. Corey Spencer is officially reported missing, according to word received yesterday by his mother, Mrs. Charles Spencer, here, yesterday. He was listed as missing on Saturday.

Enlisting at Toronto on Dec. 10, 1941, Pilot Officer Spencer graduated as a navigator at Malton on Sept. 11, 1942. He went overseas the following month and was a member of the Goose Squadron, which had many forays over enemy territory to its credit.

Last November, while returning from a raid, the Lancaster Bomber of which Spencer was a member of the crew, failed to get back safely from France due to lack of gasoline. The pilot made a landing on the North Sea, where the plane sank in a few seconds. The crew of eight managed to get aboard a dinghy, where they drifted for two hours until near shore. They were not able to land as they feared land mines. A coast guard cutter finally picked them up and the whole town turned out to welcome them. While in hospital, he learned of his promotion to the rank of pilot officer.

An only son, PO. Spencer, 22, was born and educated here. He was a graduate of Picton Collegiate and Vocational Institute, and starred in field sports.

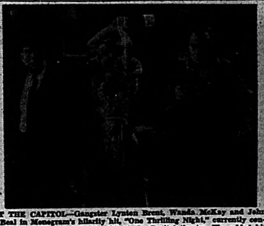
Pte. Cecil Goodman Wounded

Pte. Cecil Goodman has been wounded in action in Italy, according to official word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Goodman, here. He was serving with Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in Italy, and was also in the Sicilian campaign. He enlisted in Picton and went overseas in 1939.

Pte. Goodman is one of three brothers serving overseas. Flying Officer Gilbert Goodman is with the R. C. A. F., and Gunner J. W. Goodman is with the Royal Canadian Regiment.

ONE WAS MOTHER

Toronto, Jan. 17 —(CP)— First sight of his mother in 17 years, first news of her since Italy entered the war in 1940, came to Luigi Romanelli, 35-year-old Toronto cement contractor and new Canadian by radio photo. The picture showed two Canadian soldiers helping two elderly Italian women through rubble in a bombed Italian village. One was his mother.



AT THE CAPITOL—Gangster Lynten Brent, Wanda McKay and John Beal in Menegram's hilarity hit, "One Thrilling Night," currently convulsing audiences with laughter at the Capitol theatre. The added hit "Action In The North Atlantic" stars Humphrey Bogart.

TORONTO NAVY DEFEATS MAJORS

Winning Counter Scored in Last Minute of the Contest

By the Canadian Press

Toronto Navy was credited with its 13th victory of the season Monday night after working a last-minute winning goal to defeat Hamilton Majors 3-2 at Toronto in the condensed and final version of the Senior Ontario Hockey Association group. Normie Mann and Livingstone made the play which resulted in the winning shot by Art Thomson and the result kept the visitors three points behind the league-leading St. Catharines Saints.

A few seconds before the close of the first period Navy went into the lead when Livingstone scored on a pass from Hugh Barlow but Doug Runions put Major in front with two successive counters in the second frame. In 6:45 of the third stanza, Mann tied up the tilt with Barlow on the helping end to make the count 2-all. After 12 minutes of snappy play, the Sailors found the opening for the play-off goal.

Navy holds bottom position in the three-team loop.

Little Benny's Note Book

We were eating breakfast and ma started to shake her head to herself, saying to pop, Really, William, I mean really of all the gassly unreal movies I ever saw, that picture last night was the ultimate straw. It had about as much plausible relation to real life as any impossible man from Mars, she said.

Oh I dont know, I considered it quite natural and lifelike, pop said, and ma said, William Potts for land sakes do you mean to say you consider it representative of real life to see a woman courting and wooing and pursuing a man the length and breadth of an entire picture?

Certainly, pop said. Women have been doing it ever since the invention of family life, and generally getting away with it, too, he said, and ma said, Well of all the unheard of things to hear at my own breakfast table.

And she quick got up and went and sat on pop's lap, pop saying, Hay, what goes on here, you nearly had my paper in my coffee and my coffee in my lap.

How can you give a second thought to such mere incidentals when you've got a wonderful wooing courting woman on your lap? ma said.

And she started to pull the ends of his mustash, saying, Tweet tweet, what a cute little mustash, I wonder why I never noticed it before, I could pull it by the hour, tweet tweet.

Yee gods, Nora will be in here any moment, do you want her to demand another raise? pop said, and ma said, I want to pull your ears too, they're so soft and yet shell-like, tweak tweak.

Okay, for Peet sake I surrender, pop said. Any man worthy of the name would resent being chased and courted and tweak tweaked, even in a picture, he said.

Well that's better for land sakes, ma said, and she got off and went back to her grapefruit diet and Nora came in with the scramble eggs just in time to miss it.

CHAPTER 5

"Thousands," mocked De Groot. "Women are afraid to be alone with me."

They alighted from the taxi at Thirty-Nine and climbed the stairs to the dining room. Everybody seemed eager to be noticed by De Groot, who waded thru' the crowd in the lobby like a buffalo wallowing through a morass. A table was found for them against the wall, Darnley between the two men. Then De Groot commenced in a sipping voice, to point out celebrities to her, adding comments upon their character or habits or companions with an amazing freedom.

Darnley's eyes grew big. For the first time in her life she was sitting in the same room with men and women whose names she read in magazines or newspapers, with individuals whose pictures had made their faces familiar. Naturally, she loved it.

"Oh," she said to Peter, "I never thought anything like this would happen to me. All these famous people."

"Don't be so unsophisticated," growled De Groot. "Mostly they're crumbs . . . And there comes the biggest crumb of the lot." He jerked his head toward a young man who entered the room and stood looking about him. Darnley recognized him, and frowned.

He saw De Groot, and moved toward their table. "Hello, Orrick. How are you, De Groot? How's the scandal crop?"

"The name's Gorse," murmured De Groot as if to himself. "Lacey Gorse. I must make a note that I don't like that name."

Gorse said, apparently without taking offense, "Who is the lovely stranger?"

The columnist sneered, "You notice that I'm performing no introductions."

"If she's with you," said Gorse softly, his eyes narrowing, "introductions are probably unnecessary."

Darnley was suddenly bitterly embarrassed and furiously angry. But she neither moved nor spoke.

"Whence," asked De Gorse placidly, "the discoloration of your chin?"

"Taxicab door bumped it."

"That's a new one. I'll remember it," De Gorse remarked.

Gorse stared down at Darnley. "Haven't I seen you before?" he asked.

"Only briefly," Darnley said sweetly. "Just between the time Mr. Farrish hit you and you hit the floor."

"Now I know she's incredible!" explained De Groot loudly. A pause ensued.

"So Farrish pasted you?" asked the famous paragrapher in a conversational tone. "I needed something to head the column with. Um. . . . Something like this, say: 'Why did Clyde Farrish, young exponent of art for advertisers, sock Lacey Gorse, the —' How shall I describe you, Gorse?"

"If you print that!" Gorse rasped.

"If I print it — what?" asked Adrian, beaming widely. "Now run away and tie a knot in your kerchief, Lacey, old dilettante. Um . . . That's how I'll end my paragraph, 'Lacey Gorse, the old dilettante'."

Gorse stared without blinking at Darnley. "I never forget anyone who does me a favor," he declared, and moved away quickly.

"He made chills run up my back," Darnley said. "He spoke as if he hated me."

"He does," mused De Groot. "Ha! 'Why did Clyde Farrish, the well-known taxicab door, swing against the chin of —?'"

"Shut up and order," said Peter Orrick.

"Love's own gift to the camera world. He's an art photographer. He pictures garbage cans through screens, and does contortions to get weird camera angles—"

"And," said Orrick dryly, "he peels and eats little girls. If you ever get summoned as a model to his studio, put a set of brass knuckles in your bag."

"I won't need brass knuckles," said Darnley.

"Another young woman who knows how to take care of herself," observed De Groot. "They build special hospital wards for them. Another model, are you? Left the old home town to live the lurid life of the studios."

"She left town," said Peter Orrick, "because the villagers chased her out after I had painted her picture in a bathing suit for fun and sold it to the Metropolis for money."

"And now," said De Groot in an odd voice, "she's dropped in to hold you responsible for her shame-shattered life?"

"The answer is no," said Orrick. "Until now she didn't know that I knew she had been flayed from a pulpit. She neglected to mention it. Briefly, Miss Carfax is a square shooter."

Darnley arose swiftly to her feet, and her face was flushed. "That's why you were so queer when I came in! You thought I had come to trade on that. You thought I was going to be a nuisance about it! And so did you — you hippopotamus!" she burst out fiercely at De Groot. "I'm so ashamed I came to your studio. Well, you can bet the next ten years of your life I never come again. And thanks for the lunch."

She pushed away from the table and almost ran from the crowded room. Diners stared after her and then directed their eyes toward the table she had just left. Peter Orrick was red to the ears. De Groot smiled as he remarked, "Blast me, Pete, if I don't do my bit to make her famous!"

* * *

With the aid of a telephone directory, Darnley found the Wolfgang Model Agency. In the outer room waited a handsome but rather effeminate young man and two slender, blond girls obviously models. Darnley diffidently gave her name at the reception desk and asked to see Mr. Wolfgang.

"Are you Miss Carfax?" asked the receptionist. "You'd better rush right in. Where have you been? The old man's been snatching out hunks of hair."

Darnley concealed her astonishment as she passed thru' the door into the private office, a room whose walls were quite covered with photographs of girls who had passed through Wolfgang's hands to fame or notoriety. There were girls who had taken this road to Hollywood, the Follies, to society marriages, to participation in gangster murders, to success upon the dramatic stage.

It seemed that none of Wolfgang's protegees bogged down into placid, uneventful lives. To a scientist, a sociologist, that room would have been a rich field for the study of beauty—to each of the scores of girls whose faces looked down upon you, beauty had done something sensational.

Beauty had set them apart, had prevented them from living normal, natural lives. Adrian De Groot, writing a column about that room, had once referred to it as Wolfgang's Poison Garden, and the name had clung.

Wolfgang took a gloomy delight in it and in its name. He would nod his Liszt-like name. "In dis room iss a moo-seum of beauty. Is there goot love, sin, chealousy, noble sacrifice, devil's meanness, gold-digging, alt'fulness — all that is fine und all that is evil. All from beauty comes, yah. Gott help und guide the girl mit beauty!"

Into this room Darnley stepped for the first time, not knowing that it was the ambition of every model in New York to have her photograph hung in that gallery. Behind a littered desk sat a little man with cherry cheeks and silver hair that concealed his ears. He appraised her swiftly.

"A new one," he said softly. "Comes to Papa Wolfgang, iss it? What name?"

"Darnley Carfar, Mr. Wolfgang."

"So-oo!" He drew out the word ominously. "The one who says she works for Wolfgang w'en she does not for Wolfgang work at all! Iss crust! Iss cheek! W'ere all the day haf you been, eh?"

"I thought, Mr. Wolfgang, that if I came to you with a job it might make it easier to get on your list."

"You do this job. You say you are one of Wolfgang's girls. If you do not say it, you get all the fee. If you say it, then Wolfgang takes his commission. Wass that so smart?"

"I thought so," said Darnley.

Wolfgang nodded three separate times. "Maybe," he murmured. "Maybe. We will see."

"I also posed for Mr. Orrick's Metropolis cover," said Darnley. "But that was just for fun—and to find out."

"Ah, that iss it. I theenk I see you before." He pounded the desk suddenly. "You will not pose again for the figure. It iss nodt goot business. Do you hear?"

"Yes, sir."

"You vill in all t'ings be guide' by Wolfgang?"

"Yes, sir."

"Of course you vill not. You vill make fools of yourself in your own way." He stared at her gravely. "In your face iss a story," he said. "Iss it goot story; iss it bad story, I do not see." Suddenly he snapped at her, "Vere all day do you hide?"

"I was seeing an acquaintance to get some information."

"Yah. Vell, I got information. It iss me you ask. This Clyde Farrish he telephone,—he bellow, he moan. He want right off for you to pose. You vill go there queeck."

"Then you will accept me?" she asked.

"Ve vill make to try you out. Yes."

"And put me in your book?"

"No. Nodt in the book, no. You do the pose, I do the theenk. Leaf your address at the desk. Also you will get a telephone."

"I must find a place to live," Darnley told him. "I don't know how to go about it."

"First you go to this chob," said Wolfgang. "Tomorrow in the morning you vill come here and then ve shall see."

The girl at the desk told Darnley how to reach Farrish's place of business and in twenty minutes she was ascending in the elevator to his floor. She was excited. Before she had got settled in the city two jobs had come her way! The skies were rosy. Two jobs and a luncheon at Thirty-Nine!

She opened the door and stepped directly into a large studio loft, cluttered with spotlights on standards, with floodlights, with a helter-skelter of cameras, properties, dressing booths, pieces of scenery.

"Mr. Farrish," she said to a man who was connecting two pieces of cable. He jerked his head toward the opposite corner, and she picked her way to a sort of compartment where Farrish, with his coat off and his hair every which way, was directing the placing of a number of articles in what purported to be a small kitchen. He scowled at her.

"Time you got here," he snapped. "If you're going to be a model you've got to get some idea of time."

She made no reply.

"You'll find a dress and apron in the dressing room," he said. "Get into them."

She found a simple little house dress and a kitchen apron, slipped into them and returned to the set. And there she discovered about work. It seemed to her that for hours she was placed, moved, twisted. She was compelled to stand while lights were moved, raised, lowered. The glare was not pleasant on the eyes, nor was the heat generated inconsiderable.

Clyde Farrish looked at his watch hours later. "Seven-thirty," he growled. "Send down for coffee and sandwiches. We'll have to keep going, Miss—er—er"

"Carfax," said Darnley.

The sandwiches came and coffee in paper containers. They sat around wherever they could find a clear spot, Farrish, his cameramen, electricians, everybody, while Farrish grumbled, "Those lugs always want everything in fifteen minutes and they don't use it for fifteen weeks. Always bellowing for good work, artistic stuff and never give you a chance to deliver what you can do."

There was no glamour about this, only perspiration and weariness and irritation.

"If you'd come when you should," Farrish said, "we'd be done now."

"You weren't ready for me when I came," she remarked with spirit.

"Always blame it on the model," he said, with his mouth full of sandwich. "That's what you're paid for." He snorted. "I suppose, along with all the rest of the cuties, you're all set to be picked for the Golden Blend Girl!"

"Who's she?" asked Darnley.

"Golden Blend cigarettes. Going to pick a model to use in all their advertising for a year. The Golden Blend Girl. Going to make her a kind of trade-mark."

"I never heard of it," said Darnley.

"You will. Thousand-dollar first prize. The gal that lands it will be the most sought-after model in America. Coin and publicity. Don't know which models like best."

"Then I think I'd better be it," said Darnley demurely, but Farrish made no comment. Instead he directed, "Back to the mines," and they went to work again.

Darnley's feet ached, her legs were weary, her head was going around dizzily. At ten o'clock Farrish dropped into a chair. "That's that," he said. Suddenly he seemed to become aware of her.

"You've been decent about this, Miss—er— Carfax. It's been a tough session and you haven't let out a yip. That entitles you to a man's size steak. We'll go to Charlie's."

It was not an invitation. It was casual—but Darnley was hungry. She dressed quickly and Farrish shoved her toward the elevator. He did not call a taxicab, but started up Lexington Avenue on foot. Presently they walked into Charlie's. It was a large room and noisy. Dishes rattled, voices clattered.

"Sit," said Farrish, and then, in a voice loud enough to make itself audible: "Beer! You want beer?"

"I hate beer," said Darnley. "What I want is a glass of milk."

"Awk!" He sighed, rested his forehead on his hands, took a five-dollar bill out of his pocket, and laid it on the table. "That's yours," he said, "if you listen to me moan for thirty minutes."

"I'm waiting for the moan," she said.

"It comes with the steak. Two steaks, Charlie, and so forth! The moan is that I'm getting to the end of my string. And I'm telling you because it doesn't matter a hang if you peddle it."

Then the tired Farrish went into his moan with, "I've hung on until my hands are calloused. Things got a little better a year or so, and then the bottom dropped out again. If advertisers don't advertise, I don't take pictures. When you get work you have to cut prices till there's no money in it. I've tried to keep my staff together, because they're good eggs. They've taken cuts, but I haven't had to let anybody out, and I don't want to. Maybe Dad's right and I just am not a business man."

"What is a business man?" she asked.

"Anybody who doesn't go into bankruptcy." He was silent as the waiter put platters of sizzling steak before them. "My real troubles started when I got in a jam and the banks wouldn't kick in, so I did a fool thing. I borrowed from the last yokel in the world I should have borrowed from. In desperation. And that note is due in just fifty-four days and he'll clamp down on me. I'll go plop! And Dad will have the laugh on me."

"Is that important—your dad's laugh?"

"I'd rather make him laugh on the other side of his face than to be elected president," said Farrish.

He seemed very boyish and not at all the head of a business concern that he appeared during working hours. His distress was juvenile and appealing.

"Couldn't your father lend you the money?" she asked.

"He could," Farrish said shortly.

"Won't the man you borrowed from give you more time?"

"What? Gorse!"

"Do you mean Old Dilettante Gorse?" she asked. "The one with bad manners?"

"Who called him that?" inquired Farrish.

"Mr. De Groot," she said.

He stared at her and grunted; then looked up as a strikingly handsome man came through the archway. He nodded to Farrish and came over. "Read Mister Manhattan in tomorrow morning's paper?" he asked.

"No."

"It'll interest you."

"Miss Carfax, this handsome piece of moveable scenery is Henry Garden, horse fancier, dog fancier, girl fancier. He also knocks little white balls around a polo pasture. What's this about Manhattan?"

Garden tossed a paper on the table, and stared with quickened interest at Darnley. "I fancy you'll both be interested in the column," he said.

Farrish spread the paper and looked down at the page. Then he read aloud: "Lacey Gorse, sometimes called the Old Dilettante, claims it was a slammed taxicab door. But eyewitnesses claim it was the knuckles of another, and possibly rival, commercial photographer. Could it be Clyde Farrish? And why?"

"When," asked Farrish, "did you see De Groot?"

"I lunched with him," answered Darnley.

"You certainly get places quick," remarked Farrish.

"Read on," said Garden; "the rest also is entertaining."

Darnley craned her neck to read over her companion's shoulder, and color slowly suffused her cheeks. There, ably written, was the story of the Metropolis cover, the tale of Darnley Carfax and her home village. A masterly description of the scene in church. Darnley could not perceive its merits, but it was a story of the sort called tear-jerker.

"The beast!" she exclaimed.

"Now, I," said Garden, "would judge it to be sound publicity. Of course you're going in for the Golden Blend contest?"

"I—I'm humiliated," began the indignant Darnley.

"That kind of humiliation," said Garden, "is worth about a dollar a letter in this town." He smiled amiably. "It's having its effect on me. Would you go to dinner and dancing with me one evening soon? It's selfish, I want to be one of the first to be seen with a new celebrity."

"Nonsense!" declared Darnley. "I feel—I feel as if everybody was staring at me."

"Isn't that what you want?" asked Farrish.

"Not for such a reason. Oh, it's spoiled everything! I want to hide. Please take me home, Mr. Farrish."

"May I ask you where home is?" inquired Garden.

"Well—uh, I haven't one yet."

"When you have," he said suavely, "I'll find it. Good night, Miss Carfax and don't forget the name. Garden."

Darnley stared after his exquisitely tailored back. "Do I like him?" she asked.

"Lots do," said Farrish sourly. "Well, you certainly fixed everything up swell with Gorse."

"After you struck him," she said tartly, "it didn't need any more fixing." She rose. "You moaned very nicely," she said. "I am terribly sympathetic."

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from J. S. McKeown or any LDA or other drug store and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost. If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money.

Stirling-Marmora Combines Beat Trenton Juniors

Winners Put on Rally in Third Period to Overcome Two-Goal Lead

SCORE IS 5-4

Stirling, Jan. 18 (Special) — The Stirling - Marmora "Combines" rallied strongly in the last half to carry off a well-earned 5 to 4 victory over the Trenton kids in a junior O.H.A. fixture played here Monday night. A capacity crowd of over 750 fans crowded the Stirling rink to encourage their favorites and were treated to the best game of the season.

Early in the initial stanza Trenton took the lead, when Lemorre scored on a pass from Maxwell and later made it 2-0, when Maxwell set another for Hamilton. Coach Stan Jackson's sextette were carrying the play at this stage and had the Combines pretty well backed into their own defensive zone, when Johnston made it 3-0 for Trenton on a pass from Filion. Towards the end of the period the Bastedo boys, Bert and Doug combined to tally for the Combines as the period ended 3-1 for Trenton.

From the face-off Doug Bastedo stole the rubber passed to brother Bert and the score moved to 3-2 for Trenton. But Hamilton broke away and slipped to Maxwell and again Trenton enjoyed a two-goal margin. However, from here in it was all Combines. Cousins scored from Leonard to make the score 4 to 3 with Trenton leading at the end of the second.

Tremble of Marmora scored both goals for the Combines in the last period, getting the equalizer from Goodchild and the winning counter on a pass from Cousins. The win elevated the Combines into a tie for second place with the Belleville kids.

The lineups:

Stirling-Marmora "Combines" — Goal, McInroy; defence, McIntosh and Utman; centre, D. Bastedo; wings, Patterson and B. Bastedo; subs, Whitehead, Leonard, Lavender, Cousins, Goodchild and Tremble.

Trenton Juniors—Goal, Harvey; defence, Stojan and Filion; centre, Taylor; wings, Scott and Maxwell; subs, Haggerty, Shoniker, Jones, Lemorre, Hamilton, Brown, Johnson and Campbell.

Referee; Bill Shannon of Marmora.

J. A. Broad Graduates As Air Navigator; Awarded Commission

Among the navigators who graduated at No. 4 A.O.S. at London, Ont., on Jan. 14th., was J. A. (Alex) Broad, son of Mr and Mrs. Wm. Broad of Bancroft, formerly of Belleville. At this ceremony Alex was given his wings, also his commission as Pilot Officer, and he was also presented with the proficiency award for passing first in his class. An older brother, Lieut. Clifford Broad is serving with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in Italy. Another brother PO. Leslie Broad, was killed in a flying accident at Trenton Airport in April 1941.

PO. Broad has been posted to the Ferry Command where he will report for duty after a two weeks' furlough at his home.

Robin Feeds At Abbey Dawn

Kingston — A harbinger of spring, in the form of a robin, was seen at Abbey Dawn yesterday by Wallace Havelock Robb.

Mr. Robb told The Whig-Standard the robin was hovering around the back door of his home yesterday morning when a flock of bluejays arrived for their usual morning meal. The bluejays were most excited when they spotted the robin and did not seem to know what to make of the stranger in their midst.

Despite the fact that January is half gone and Kingston is still in the position of enjoying an "open winter," the appearance of the robin yesterday morning is bearing out the forecast of old-timers that a mild, open winter will be followed by an early spring this year.

Belleville Plant of Imperial Oil Wins Trophy in First Year Of Competition for East Ontario

Ranking first place in Eastern Ontario in general plant cleanliness and accident free operation during 1943, the Belleville storage and distribution plant of the Imperial Oil Limited, through its resident manager, Mr. A. D. "Mac" McLean, has been presented with the beautiful silver trophy, which goes with the honor.

Presentation of the trophy to Mr. McLean was made last week at the Quinte Hotel during a tribute dinner party at which employees of the local plant and company officials attended. The Eastern Ontario district ranges from Owen Sound on the west to the Quebec boundary on the east. The contest was instituted in the Eastern division for the first time last year, with tribute to the Belleville plant in winning it in the first year being paid by Mr. R. H. (Harry) Mackie, district manager. Thirteen guests enjoyed a bountiful venison dinner with "Mac" McLean as host.

"It is indeed a tribute to the cooperation shown by the employees in you winning the award in the first year," stated Mr. Mackie. "This was possible only through employees working "with" the resident manager. We, as representatives of Imperial Oil truly appreciate your endeavor."

Eddie Piggott, M. of C.

Master of ceremonies for the evening was Mr. E. "Eddie" Piggott, service station sales promotion manager, who indicated that all employees were potential salesmen. The continued success of the company was dependent upon the individual and this would be particularly true in the post-war period, when sales competition would be exceptionally keen.

With twenty years association with the company to his credit, including his seven years in Belleville, Mr. McLean reiterated Mr. Mackie's note of appreciation to employees for the co-operation shown in the contest. Expressing thanks to officials for the award, Mr. McLean emphasized, that it was only through the co-operation shown by the staff that it was possible for the award to come to Belleville. The contest has made employees definitely cleanliness and safety conscious, he stated.

As a further token of appreciation for the co-operation shown by the employees of the local plant, all in attendance at the meeting were presented with a Waterman's pencil, the gift of the company.

A. D. "Mac" McLean, Resident Manager, who was host at banquet.

Members in Attendance

In addition to the above-mentioned officials, those attending the tribute dinner were Richard Downey, agent; Everett Jeffrey, plant man; Fred Noakes, Harold Thompson and Carl O'Hara, tank truck drivers; Walter Atkinson, mechanic; and George McDonald and Milton Dulmage, farm trade commission agents, the latter from Picton.

A point of interest at the meeting aside from the presentation of the safety award, was the intimation that shortly Mr. Fred Noakes would be presented with a service pin signifying 30 years with the company. Also it was learned Walter Atkinson would soon be leaving the firm to establish his own business in Stouffville.

Two moving pictures relating to the necessity of food as a war essential, and the part which mechanised machinery is playing in helping to produce food, were screened by company officials to conclude the evening's program.

Belleville Fair Enjoyed Greatest Financial Success in Past Season

Annual Meeting Discloses $987 Surplus—Total Receipts Were $11,581

E. SANDERCOCK, PRES.

Associated in a directorate capacity with the Belleville Fair Board for a number of years, Mr. Elmer Sandercock, superintendent of Hastings county old people's home, was elected president of the Belleville Agricultural Society at their annual meeting and election of officers held at the city hall on Monday afternoon. Stepping up from the position of 1st vice president, he succeeds Benjamin Bleecker as president.

Ex-Mayor Glencoe E. Thompson was elected as the 1st vice president of the Society, while W. D. Reid was again returned as the 2nd vice president. Fred Chamberlain was again appointed as treasurer, and Erle Denyes as secretary.

Board of Directors.

Appointed to the Board of Directors were: Ben Bleecker, Chas. Babcock, James Barber, Arthur Burke, Fred Denyes, James Garbutt, Keith Onderdonk, W. D. Reid, George Reid, Fred Rutherford, Harry Smith, Elmer Sandercock, Chas. Symons, Glen Thompson, J. J. Trudeau, Ernest Tummon and Thos. Walker.

Junior directors appointed were William Nightingale, R. Wallbridge, Keith Garbutt, Lorne Jarrell, F. Tummon and Ronald Longwell.

The best financial success in the history of the Belleville Fair was claimed by President Bleecker in his brief chairman's address at the outset of the meeting. He expressed his appreciation for the co-operation received by the fair board from the various municipalities and maintained that only through this measure of co-operation was the financial success made possible.

Praise Military Demonstration.

He referred briefly to the military demonstration which was one of the feature attractions at the fair, and expressed his personal thanks to Lieut.-Col. B. C. Donnan for his part in planning the demonstration. J. A. Carrol, superintendent of Ontario fairs, had visited the fair and had spoken favorably of the exhibition. The women's work department, war work and the junior section were held to be three essentials for a successful fair.

The President's statement that 1943 was the best financial success in the history of the Belleville Fair Board, was substantiated by Treasurer Fred Chamberlain, whose financial report showed operating receipts for the year to be $10,871. Total receipts from all sources were $11,581.

Receipts from gate admission totalled $4,756 with an additional $1,148 from the grandstand. Strip tickets realized another $202. The midway netted $1,678 and space rental $280, while race entry fees and score cards, netted $245. Provincial and municipal grants totalled $1,846.

Expenses For Year.

Against the above receipts were expenditures of $2,968 for prizes, a total of $1,829 for fair attractions of which $1,500 went to Garden Brothers for their grandstand performances; $1,224 for racing prizes and other expenses; $494 for wages; $450 for rent, and $650 for salaries. Cash on hand on December 31st, 1943, totalled $1,427, while the operating statement showed a current surplus of $987.

A heavy expenditure during the year was the placement of a new roof on the cattle shed, this with other maintenance costing a total of $880.

The current balance sheet indicated total assets as $2,227, while the capital balance sheet indicated assets amounting to $8,767, of which $7,348 was represented in buildings and another $1,416 in equipment. G. S. Dawkins and Cecil Fralick, audited the accounts.

Committee chairman of the various fair departments gave brief reports relating the work of their sections, while Mr. George H. Stokes, M.P., for Hastings South, indicated the willingness of the members of the Board of Directors to work as instrumental in the financial success of the exhibition.

Asks Grandstand Changes

In open discussion on fair improvement possibilities, Mr. Fred Chamberlain indicated that changes might be made at the grandstand which would realize the fair management more in admissions. He cited figures of grandstand receipts as against the attraction expenditure and intimated that something should be done.

Substantiating Mr. Chamberlain's suggestion that something should be done regarding the grandstand, Mr. Chas. Symons stated there was a "bad leak around the grandstand." He advocated that the bleachers be cut in two, the western half then to be erected adjoining the east end of the grandstand. This, he claimed, would not cost too much and would result in considerable added revenue from grandstand admissions.

J. Miller Carl considered that as Hastings County was a predominantly dairy county, there should be some place at the fair for dairy exhibits. "After all," he said, "dairying is a major industry in Hastings and fair-goers are wondering why there are no cheese or butter exhibits at the fair. The later date of the fair now makes such exhibits possible."

In reply, Secretary Erle Denyes intimated possibly the fact that the British Empire Dairy Show is held annually in Belleville had something to do with there being no dairy exhibits at Belleville Fair.

"It seems a shame that the dairy show is held in Belleville," replied Mr. Carl, "there is never any attendance at the exhibition."

Suggests Bacon Hog Exhibit

Lynn Fair gave a brief report of the junior work, indicating there had been splendid interest, there being a good show and a splendid banquet. Mr. W. E. Tummon suggested a dressed bacon hog exhibit to help educate district farmers as to the type of hogs which are required for export. This could be held on one day of the fair with experts to explain the different cuts and the reason for judging placement.

Captain J. Watson moved that as the fair board had shown a surplus, 25 per cent. of this should be turned over to charity as had been announced in the press at the time of the fair. This feeling was seconded by Mr. Chas. Symons who intimated the fair board should not go back on its obligations. The motion to give 25 per cent. of the surplus to charity carried almost unanimously.

Ben Bleecker Honored

Of special interest during the afternoon proceedings was the voting of the fair board of a long service diploma to last year's president, Mr. Ben Bleecker. This diploma is made possible through the Ontario Fairs Association and may be awarded by fair boards to personnel who have given unselfish and efficient service to the society during the year.

Dates for the 1944 Belleville Fair were left in abeyance pending communication with Conklin Brothers to ascertain what dates he would have available for the Belleville show. However, earlier dates than have been the custom during the past two years were generally favored by the directorate. Brief addresses by the newly elected officials concluded the meeting.

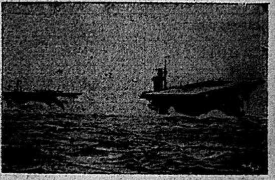
JEEP GOES ASHORE AT CAPE GLOUCESTER

A jeep from a U. S. coast-guard manned LST (landing ship tanks) is pushed ashore through the surf at Cape Gloucester, New Britain, by coast-guardsmen and marines. Coast-guard and navy manned LST's participated in the invasion.

AMERICAN BUILT CARRIERS IN SERVICE FOR THE BRITISH NAVY

A split second after the landing-on, the flight deck crew has this Grumman "Wildcat" in hand. In 30 seconds the deck of this American-built carrier, in use by the British navy, is ready to receive the next arrival. The year of 1943 saw the British navy make increasing use of U. S.-built escort carriers, particularly in the relentless war against U-boats.

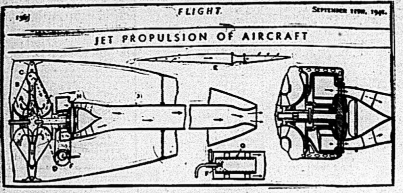


Two escort carriers, Avenger, left, and Biter, right, U. S.-built and in use for the British navy, are pictured as they press through stormy weather. The escort carriers work with destroyers or sloops in protecting Atlantic convoys, and although they form part of the protecting networks they operate largely independently. Fleet air arm pilots operated from no less than four of these carriers to cover the initial landing of the Allied Fifth Army at Salerno.

GUNS AND GOO DON'T

One of the problems facing gunners of the Allied Fifth Army in Italy is that of keeping the semi-liquid soil of sunny Italy out of the mechanism of their weapons. For guns just won't perk if they are clogged with the good earth. Here a gun crew of an army engineer unit is trying to clean the gun.

HOW JET PROPULSION ENGINE WORKS



The principles behind the much-written-about jet-propelled engine now being developed by the Allies for super-speed, high-flying propellerless planes is shown in this drawing of the Whittle propulsion plant which appeared in "Flight," a British aviation magazine, in 1941. Embodying these ideas, American scientists have made improvements which are now being tested in planes built in the U. S. to train personnel in jet-propulsion flying. The engine functions by scooping air into the plane's fuselage, where it is picked up by a high-speed compressor, heated by the addition of kerosene or another fuel in a combustion chamber, and ejected from a jet. The result is to project the plane forward.

Standing in the Queue

By George Blake

(B.B.C. Press Service)

LONDON (by mail) — A young woman said an odd thing to me the other day. She was one of those cheerful girls in bottle-green tunics and slacks who are now working as conductresses on the City of Glasgow's transport system. I was coming down from the top deck to get off the bus when we passed a shop, outside of which stood a long queue of women, waiting patiently to buy I know not what. The little conductress then smiled to me and said—very wistfully; as if she was missing something agreeable—"I never get the chance of standing in a queue." She really seemed to feel that one of the major experiences of the war was passing her by.

It's a fact, agreed on by all social observers here, that our women do rather like standing in queues. It's a break from the monotony of housework. It brings the girls together and lets them chatter for a bit about their menfolk on service and the subtle values of rationing by points. They swop recipes; and I dare say a little feline gossip passes on these occasions. The big fact, however, is that queueing is not a social burden nowadays. There's not nearly so much of it as there was in the last war, and the delays are not nearly so tedious. So far as most foodstuffs are concerned Lord Woolton's rationing system has washed out the need for queueing altogether.

• •

My own observation, in fact, is that queueing for essential goods is limited to two sorts of shop. There's very little queueing in the smaller towns; absolutely none in the country places. Only in the big places you see an occasional gathering outside the baker's shop and another outside the fish shop.

Now, so far as the baker is concerned, it's never a queue for bread. There's lashings of bread, and you can get it when you want. It's always for the little extras — the tea bread, or even the cakes, the baker produces out of the hat from time to time. The girls get to know when these extras are likely to be on tap; and so, chattering blithely, they queue up and hope that the limited supplies of goodies won't be exhausted before they get to the counter.

• •

But fish is quite another matter. That is, fresh fish. We're never really very short of salted or kippered fish. But for the most obvious of reasons, our supplies of fresh fish do tend to be short now and again, and the woman of the house has to be pretty quick off the mark to get to the shop before the day's quota is gone.

The marvel to me is that we get any fish at all. Just think of it. There's not a bit of the British coast that isn't within fairly easy range of German aeroplanes. In fact, when Jerry was on top in the air, it was a favourite sport of his to cruise around and shoot up every little fishing boat he came across. He's not on top now by a very long chalk, but he is still snooping about, especially on the east coast and over the North Sea, and still the fishing goes on. German bombers and German mines can't keep our fishing fleets in harbor, and though the fisherman nowadays gets big money for his work, I take my hat off to him.

• •

With us there are really two sorts of fishing—inshore fishing and deep-sea fishing. The inshore man works in a steam drifter or a motor vessel of anything from thirty to eighty feet long. His crew may be anything from five to eight men; and as often as not it's a family affair — fathers, sons, uncles and nephews all working together and pooling the cash. These are the boys who bring us in our large supplies of herring and a good deal of what we call white fish—cod, haddock and so on. They never go very far from the shore, and they are not often longer than twenty-four hours away from their bases; but the fact is that they do go out into mighty dangerous waters and take precisely the same risks as the Royal Navy and the Merchant Navy. Indeed, it's a grim but significant little thing that, when our Ministry of War Transport publishes a casualty list arising out of losses at sea, it always refers to both the Merchant Navy "and fishing fleets."

• •

However, when we come to the real long-distance, deep-sea fisherman we are dealing with a truly remarkable specimen of humanity. These lads go out in trawlers or what are called great liners — really sizeable ships, with powerful steam engines and each with a crew of from ten to a dozen men. Ships of this sort may in some cases stay at sea for three or four weeks at a time. They go far afield, Jerry or no Jerry, sometimes to very distant waters. They're out after cod, haddock, plaice, halibut, and they are usually so far and so long away from their bases that they have to store their catches in ice. It's a tough enough form of seafaring in time of peace; in war it must be a form of blue murder. But they go through with it, and not a few German planes have failed to return to their bases after running across one of these little ships, with a cook in good form behind an Oerliken gun. Just the other day, we had halibut for a meal in our house; and if you know anything about the ways of fish, you know that halibut doesn't come to the British market except across many miles of very cold water. But there it was on our table—a very strange symbol of human courage and endurance.

• •

The comparative scarcity of fish, however, is mainly due to quite another cause, although one arising out of the war. The fact is that, in this island country, the fishing fleets have always been behind the regular Navy with big reserves of both ships and skilled seamen. Whenever war breaks out scores—I dare say, hundreds—of the little ships are immediately called out on active service, working as minesweepers, drifters or fleet auxiliaries of one kind or another. In pretty well every one of the smaller ships of the Royal Navy today you'll find a ex-fisherman somewhere. He's usually the Bosun's mate or at least a Leading Seaman; and for the special work of these little ships—moving about narrow waters, tumbling about in heavy coastal seas, tying up in confined anchorages—the fisherman has an aptitude that is not so easily developed in a big man-of-war. He isn't a specialist in gunnery or anything like that, but he is a great natural seaman—the man who knows exactly how to handle ropes and hawsers, how to splice and mend, and how to do all the rough deck work of a small ship bucketting about in a seaway.

He is a very remarkable man indeed, the British fisherman — the salt of the earth; and some of us have dared to think occasionally that the nation as a whole is apt, in times of peace, to neglect him and his interests, and to overlook his national importance as a figure in national defence. But he is also not always an easy man to deal with. He's like the miner and all other men who jobs often, even daily, bring them face to face with death. It's a queer and characteristic thing of British fishermen that very few of them can swim; that very few of them would ever dream of learning to swim. This is at once a bit of fatalism and a bit of practical seamanship. These men take the view that, if they are going over the side, then it has been so ordained and the agony had better not be prolonged. But they also maintain that, if a man has the ability to swim behind him, he is less apt to be careful and sure-footed about the decks of his boat than he ought to be. It's also an interesting truth of the Scottish fisherman, at least, that his native districts, like all mining districts, are periodically swept by waves of religious revivalism.

• •

I'd like to take you to one small fishing town on the north-eastern coast of Scotland I happen to know rather well. It's a picturesque little place, tucked away at the head of a natural harbour, which is just a cleft in a long range of high cliffs. There are just about eight—or, shall we say—twelve streets intersecting each other at dead right angles. All the houses are the same, cottages of one storey with slate roofs. They're all the same in the neat white curtains at the windows, in the stone steps, scoured white, at every front door, and even in the fat seagulls that sit on the ridge of every roof. It's a place apart, for the nearest main road is five miles away. It hardly seems to belong to the real Scotland at all.

If you could come there with me about nine o'clock on a summer morning you would see a strange thing. You would see a woman appear at every front door, almost simultaneously, with a broom in her hand. You would see her sweep down her own front steps. You would then see her sweep the pavement or sidewalk along the length facing her house. You might think it would stop when she had got the dust into the gutter; but not so. Those women carry on with their sweeping until practically all the dust of the small town has been neatly arranged in a ridge, bang in the middle of the roadway.

• •

When I first saw this curious performance it struck me, rightly or wrongly, as being immensely significant. It was not merely that it was strange and picturesque; it seemed to express of curiously strong integrity among those women of the fisherfolk. At the least, it told me that these are people quite different from the mass of people in more populous regions; and that this oddity of social behaviour is the mark of a race with special and rather fine standards of its own.

And so it is, of course. The fisherfolk are not of the earth at all. They belong to the sea, which is inscrutable. Their life is all battle—against storm, and the vagaries of wind and tide, and the queer ways of dumb fish and, nowadays, the Heinkel swooping out of low cloud. I feel that only a special sort of people could do the job at all. Psalm one hundred and seven (often misquoted) is pretty good on the subject: "They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters; these see the works of the Lord, and His wonders in the deep."

• •

I wondered what would happen if you whispered that in the ear of a hot and bothered woman, standing in the queue before a fish shop in any British city today. Without warning, of course. I think she might feel like hitting you with her shopping basket. It's just the old story. The preoccupied human mind very rarely gets behind its own obsessions to the romance of tragedy that is somewhere in the story of everything apparently commonplace. But I think I would back the ordinary woman shopping in Britain today to understand very kindly what the fisherman is doing for her; if you had time to explain and she had time to listen. She is herself learning patience, and she is on the whole a wonderfully gay and gallant person as she juggles with the points standing outside the fish shop and thinks at least three days ahead about the details of her household budget.

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

With the R.C.A.F. Somewhere in England, Jan. 18 — (CP) — FO. Ted Ratcliffe of (375 Alfred St.) Kingston, Ont., says the Germans are greatly mistaken if they think the aerial rockets they are using over Berlin have the desired effect of confusing and frightening British bomber crews. He's been over Berlin five times so he should know.

"This latest invention on the part of the Jerry defences is to make the boys believe they are being shot down in flames all over the target," said Ratcliffe, navigator for Wing Cmdr. Bill Swetman of Kapuskasing, Ont. "They're a pretty feeble attempt because they don't fool anyone but the sprog crews on their first trip."

"Just when you are on your straight-and-level bombing run and looking for the aiming point, there is a tremendous flash and a muffled report not far from your aircraft," he explained. "There hanging in the sky is a red and purple blob of fire with heavy oily smoke coming from it — just as if a bomber had been hit by flak and was on fire. Small pieces of flame and fragments drop from it, representing pieces of burning aircraft and it gradually turns to a dull red like a giant roman candle."

What started out to be simply a flight across the Atlantic for Sqdn. Ldr. R. B. Curry, Assistant Director, Personnel Selection, Air Force Headquarters, Ottawa, turned out to be a record-breaking trip for a Liberator of the R.A.F. Transport Command. The aircraft left Montreal at two o'clock one afternoon and landed at a British airport at 1.35 A.M. — 11 hours and 35 minutes later, 21 minutes better than the previous mark for the 3,100-mile flight.

Flt. Lt. Joe Morton, 26-year-old pilot from Quill Lake, Sask., who was recently awarded the D.F.C., has seen a good deal of this war from the pilot's seat in medium and heavy bombers and now is instructing at a conversion unit in the R. C. A. F. Bomber Group where he is helping young pilots over the hump from two to four-engined aircraft. He has two brothers in the forces, one with a Canadian tank unit and the other with the air force in Canada.

The inseparable Corporals Merrifield, 23-year-old Sam and 22-year-old Glen, are the "old men" at the City of Vancouver Squadron. Only one other ground crew member, Flt. Sgt. Thomas Cranston, 22, of Midland, Ont., can claim longer service with the squadron than the two Wolseley, Sask., boys.

Sam and Glen, both six-footers, probably are the only tradesmen in the airforce known as "wireless operators-mechanics." They remustered from operators to mechanics and now are categorized in both trades. Their father, W. J. Merrifield, is a munitions worker in Ottawa.

NAZI CALLOUSNESS

London — (CP) — Madame Francaise Rosay, an escapee from France, told in a BBC broadcast how a deputation of mothers waited on a German officer in Marseilles asking for means to nourish their children and themselves. "Nothing to eat?" he queried. "Kill yourselves; the problem will be solved."

WHEAT CROP DOWN

Canberra — (CP) — Australia's wheat crop this season will be only 89,000,000 bushels, compared with the average of 156,000,000 over the past eight years, according to a preliminary estimate by the Australian Wheat Board. The nation's record crop was 210,000,000 bushels in the first year of the war.

HARDY FIGHTERS

New Delhi — (CP) — Soldiers of the Chin Hills Battalion, operating on the Burma front against the Japs, live on 45 pounds of rice, 15 pounds of peas and a half-pound of salt a month, and often patrol 14 hours a day in torrential rain.

HELP FROM CANADA

London — (CP) — The Canadian Junior Red Cross has sent a shipload of vitamin tablets to Britain to help combat an increasing number of cases of coeliac, a disease which makes it impossible for children to assimilate the fats in their diet.

TOOK DIFFERENT VIEW

Bristol, England — (CP)—When a resolution that school instruction should include the achievements and ideals of the Soviet people was termed 'mischievous and invidious.' Bristol city council decided instead on an amendment to encourage the teaching of the history and ideals of the Allies.

WAR ON LOCUSTS

Nairobi — (CP) — The anti-locust campaign of 1943 in Kenya was an outstanding success. The three anti-locust campaigns launched this year proved that the locust can be defeated; so this winter will see a battle throughout the Middle East.

NO DISCRIMINATION

London (CP) — To correct an impression that there is discrimination against Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve officers, Lord Bruntisfield, parliamentary secretary to the Admiralty, stated that at least 11 men of the R.N.V.R. have reached the rank of captain. Fifty-six have become commanders.

WAR WORKERS BUSY

Bombay (CP) — In the second year of the war 40,000,000 garments were made in India for the army, almost equal to the entire production of the last war. Today the figure is 10,000,000 garments a month.

WROTE WITH QUILL PEN

Amersham, England (CP) — An author who wrote each of his books with a new quill pen, Mark Channing died in this Buckinghamshire town, aged 64. He was at work on "The White Bird," a book of comparative religion, at his death. Some of his other books are "King Cobra," "Indian Mosaic" and "Indian Village."

MAKES UNIQUE CLAIM

Uitenhage, South Africa — (CP) —Mrs. Hester Hughes celebrated her 100th birthday recently. She claims to be the only first generation descendant of the 1820 British settlers to become a centenarian.

WELL, MADAM, A LOT OF THE RAW MATERIAL IS IMPORTED...
...CANADIAN MILLS' FIRST JOB IS TO CLOTHE OUR ARMED FORCES
...AND SKILLED LABOUR HAS GONE TO MAKE MUNITIONS OF WAR
...BUT THERE STILL IS PLENTY OF CLOTHING TO GO 'ROUND IF NO ONE BUYS MORE THAN THEY NEED, AND THANKS TO THE PRICE CEILING, THE COST IS REASONABLE
YES, ISN'T IT? I GUESS WE'VE A LOT TO BE THANKFUL FOR

THERE IS ENOUGH FOR EVERYONE

The Wartime Prices and Trade Board not only maintains the price ceiling, but also sees that a sufficient supply of the actual essentials of life is available for civilians. To do this it has frequently financed the purchase of goods, thus insuring supplies and avoiding the need of rationing. If nobody buys more than they need, everyone will still have enough. RED DRIVE CALCULATED TO END LENINGRAD SIEGE

Two Army Groups Develop Assault On Large Scale

Berlin Acknowledges Reverses on Both Fronts With Attacks Continuing

BITTER FIGHTING

Moscow, Jan. 19—(AP) — Red Army forces on the Leningrad and Volkhov fronts in Northern Russia sprang forward today in a new offensive calculated to end the German siege of Leningrad, second city of the Soviet Union.

Two neighboring army groups, it was disclosed, launched simultaneous assaults several days ago to break through strong German defence lines and now are developing their drives on a large scale. (Previous German broadcasts indicated the new Russian attacks began last Friday.)

Russian troops on the Leningrad front began their push south of the suburban town of Oranienbaum 20 miles west of the city adjoining Peterhof, known as the Versailles of Russia and the former home of the Czars. The town lies on the shores of the Baltic just south of the island naval base of Kronstadt and has been in Russian hands since the siege began 17 months ago.

At the same time Red Army forces on the Volkhov front attacked north of Novogorod, 100 miles southeast of Leningrad between Lake Ilmen and the Baltic.

Planned Jointly

The twin operations appeared to have been planned jointly to break the German semi-circle around Leningrad, under constant threat of enemy bombardment.

The blockade of Leningrad was broken a year ago by a Red Army thrust through the fortress town of Schlesselburg, which opened a narrow corridor to the east. The Germans, however, dug in close to the western and southern sides of the city, constructing an elaborate system of fortifications.

(Berlin broadcasts acknowledged reverses on both fronts and said the Russians were continuing their attacks with waves of tanks and strong infantry forces.)

The Germans in North Russia were already sorely harassed by another Soviet drive north of Novosokolniki toward the rear of their positions south of Leningrad.

Capture 40 Towns

A Russian war bulletin said that these troops, part of Gen. Ivan Bagramian's 1st Baltic army, yesterday captured 40 more towns in their slow but steady advance, including the railway station of Shubina, five miles north of Novosokolniki, which is still held by the Germans. Strong enemy counter-attacks were thrown back with heavy losses, the Soviet communique said.

As the frozen north flared into activity, front dispatches reported continued gains in the western Ukraine despite unseasonable rain and mud. Here Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's 1st Ukrainian army increased its threat to the key communications centre of Rowne (Rovno), 110 miles south of Pinsk.

Lord Halifax Confers With Hull

Washington, Jan. 19. (AP)—Lord Halifax, British Ambassador, conferred with State Secretary Cordell Hull today concerning Pravda's publication of rumors of a "separate peace" talk between two Britons and Nazi Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop.

Lord Halifax, it was apparent, was just as much mystified by the Pravda incident as President Roosevelt professed himself to be yesterday at his news conference. So far as is known here the Russians apparently have made no effort to explain to any Anglo-American representatives the purpose behind Pravda's publication of the rumors, attributed to Cairo sources.

The fact that the Russians now have given widespread publication to an official British denial of the rumored meeting has occasioned considerable interest here, though not producing any new theories of why the rumor was printed in the authoritative Communist Party publication in the first place.

Prime Minister Attends Celebration For Sir W. Mulock

Ottawa, Jan. 19 —(CP)— Prime Minister Mackenzie King was in Toronto today to attend the celebration of Sir William Mulock's 100th birthday.

Mr. King is a close friend of the former chief justice of Ontario, who was responsible for his entrance into public life more than 40 years ago. When Sir William was postmaster-general in Sir Wilfrid Laurier's cabinet, he was given the task of setting up a department of labor.

He chose Mr. King, then a student of social problems and industrial relations, as the first Deputy Minister of the new department. In 1908, Mr. King entered the cabinet and succeeded Sir William as Minister of Labor.

'Flying Grandmother' 'Will Start Training To Fly Helicopter

Ottawa, Jan. 19 (CP)—Mrs. Wallace J. Cohoe, the Canadian-born "flying grandmother" who obtained a pilot's licence after reaching her 61st birthday, is going to learn to fly a helicopter. Here on a visit from her New York home, Mrs. Cohoe, now 63, said that a movie company has asked her to learn to fly a helicopter. She said she planned to start her training course shortly.

Mrs. Cohoe, a native of Peterborough, Ont., said that she always wanted to fly but didn't get the opportunity until after Pearl Harbor. Then she signed up with the U.S. Civil Air Patrol.

She passed all medical exams and other tests and when she took the pilot's course she headed a class of 20.

Although somewhat reticent about her success, she admitted that her instructor has said she is a good flier and could do most of the advanced army and navy manoeuvre.

Mediterranean War Theatre Appears Surrounded, Inhabited by Canadians

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Jan. 19 — (CP) — The Mediterranean war theatre appears to be a large area surrounded and inhabited by Canadians.

Anyone knows that other Nations are represented there, too, but as a Canadian just returned from an 8,000-mile, three-week trip to Africa, Italy, Malta and a couple of intermediate points, the number of fellow-countrymen I saw remains amazing.

I visited eight air stations which contained all sorts of units ranging from fighters to coastal bombers, and each had Canadian personnel. One Air Force officer told our party of Empire correspondents he believed Canada was represented in every squadron in the theatre, except perhaps one or two complete Australian or South African units.

Canadian soldiers, too, were everywhere. In Italy, as we drove from Foggia to the Sangro River for an interview with Gen. Montgomery, the Canadian 1st Division was strung along the road and in olive groves. It was waiting to relieve a British division and the next day it moved into the line. Other Canadian soldiers camped around the Naples district on the other side of the front.

In Bari, Italian town on the Adriatic, I met a one-time schoolmate, Pat Mills of Toronto, tank commander with the Three Rivers Regiment. By a strange coincidence, the last time we met was in Barrie, Ont. That was six years ago.

No Way to Spend Leave

"It's a long way from Barrie to Bari," said Pat, now a Major. Our conversation was interrupted, however, by German bombers which decided to attack the harbor that night. Two ammunition ships blew up and a total of 17 vessels were destroyed. We had a drink in a

PADRE SCOTT DIES AFTER ILLNESS OF THREE WEEKS

Was Most Beloved Figure in Canadian Corps in First Great War

82 YEARS OF AGE

Quebec, Jan. 19 —(CP)— Archdeacon Frederick George Scott, beloved padre of the Canadian corps in the First Great War, died in hospital today after an illness of more than three weeks. He was 82.

The end came while messages expressing hopes for a speedy recovery for "our grand old soldier," as many of them referred to him, continued to pour into Jeffrey Hale Hospital from all parts of Canada as well as from Britain and the United States.

Archdeacon Scott—better known to thousands of Canadian as Canon Scott, the designation he always preferred—entered hospital Christmas Eve, suffering an attack of influenza that later resulted in a lung congestion.

He had retained almost until the end that keen interest in current events that characterized his life, and throughout his illness asked for newspapers daily.

The esteem in which he was held by all members of the Canadian Corps of the First Great War is well known. But his reputation went beyond that into the international field, as shown by the fact that during the Quebec Conference last summer he was invited to a private interview with Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt.

For them he recited one of the many poems he wrote since the outbreak of the present conflict, 'To England." He looked upon that as one of the best of his later poems, together with "Hymn in Wartime," written after the fall of Hong Kong, set to music and first sung in Chalmers-Wesley Church here at a Hong Kong memorial service.

Since 1905 he had been chaplain to the Royal Rifles of Canada, a battalion of which was at Hong Kong when it fell.

His last public appearance was in St. Matthew's Anglican Church here Dec. 19, when he celebrated Holy Communion in the church in which he had served—except for four years' leave of absence during the First Great War—for 37 years as curate and rector until his retirement in 1933.

Archdeacon Scott, wounded in the 1914-18 conflict and awarded the Distinguished Service Order for valiant conduct during that time, tried to join the army again in the present war. Turned down because of his age—he was 78 then—he did his utmost to promote morale, chiefly through his patriotic poems. A number of his poems during the tough days of 1940-41 were widely published.

Born in Montreal April 7, 1861, he married Amy Brooks of Barnet, Eng., in 1887. His wife died six months ago, after a marriage of more than 56 years.

He is survived by four sons; Prof. Frank R. Scott of McGill University, National Chairman of the C.C.F., Prof. Elton Scott of University of Bishops College at Lennoxville, Que., William B. Scott, Montreal lawyer, and Arthur E. P. Scott, Quebec notary; one daughter, Mrs. A. R. Kelly of Quebec and a brother, Frank Scott of Montreal. One son, Henry Hutton, was killed in the First Great War.

A military funeral service will be held in St. Matthew's Anglican Church, his old charge, Friday afternoon.

There will be a short service in Christ Church Cathedral in Montreal Saturday, after which interment will take place in Mount Royal Cemetery.

RAILROADS HANDED BACK

Washington, Jan. 19 —(AP)— The nation's rail transportation system was back in the hands of private operators today but Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Dem.-Mont.) warned that it still faces a critical manpower problem.

President Roosevelt announced settlement of the wage dispute, with raises all around, late yesterday, and War Secretary Henry Stimson ordered the seized railroads returned to their owners, effective at midnight.

Sir W. Mulock, Canada's 'Grand Old Man', 100 Years Old Today

Toronto, Jan. 19 (CP)—Sir William Mulock, Canada's "grand old man," today celebrated his 100th birthday by visiting Osgoode Hall to receive the congratulations of Judiciary and Bar and by holding a reception at his home attended by friends from al walks of life, including Prime Minister Mackenzie King who came from Ottawa for the occasion.

Still active despite his age, Sir William only yesterday officiated at a convocation at the University of Toronto of which he is Chancellor, conferring an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws on Crown Prince Olaf of Norway.

Born in the village of Bondhead in Simcoe County Jan. 19, 1844, Sir William can look back on a life largely devoted to the service of his country and to his native province of Ontario.

Called to the Bar in 1868 after graduating from the University of Toronto and Osgoode Hall, he was elected to the Dominion parliament in 1882 as Liberal member for York North which he represented until he retired in 1905. He was never defeated in an election contest.

Named Postmaster General in the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier's cabinet in 1896, he introduced penny postage and the Canada-Australia Imperial Cable during his nine years in office. In 1900 he reorganized the Federal Government of Labor and became head of that department while retaining his portfolio as Postmaster General.

He chose Mr. King, then a student of social problems and industrial relations as first Deputy Minister of Labor.

In 1905 Sir William, who had been Knighted in 1902, retired from political life and became Chief Justice of the Exchequer Division of the High Court of Justice in Ontario. Later he became Chief Justice of the Province, retiring from that post in 1936.

STIMSON ASKS NATIONAL SERVICE LEGISLATION

Says Troops Demand All Americans Accept Responsibility of Service

LABOR TROUBLES

Washington, Jan. 19. (AP)—War Secretary Henry Stimson asked the United States Congress for National Service legislation today with the assertion that industrial unrest and a "lack of a sense of patriotic responsibility" on the home front has "aroused a strong feeling of resentment and injustice among the men of the armed forces".

"It will be tragic indeed if the discontent and resentment felt by our gallant soldiers on the fighting fronts burns deeply and festers in their hearts", he told the Senate Military Committee.

"The voices of these soldiers speak out very clearly today in demanding that all Americans accept the same liability which a soldier must accept for service to country. They are far away now, but some day they will return."

Reviewing recent labor troubles in the U.S. railroad, coal and steel industries, Stimson declared "it does not require great imagination to realize the effect of these occurrences upon our troops", and added:

Would Hasten Victory, Save Lives.

"I believe it is hazardous to belittle the effect which such a situation will have upon the ultimate welfare of our democracy.

Appearing as the first administration witness before a committee which includes many senators hostile to the idea of labor conscription, Stimson said National Service would hasten victory, and asserted:

"Every month the war is prolonged will be measured in the lives of thousands of young men, in billions of dollars".

Stimson, who will be followed later by Navy Secretary Frank Knox, was accorded a hearing by the Senate Military Committee, which is sitting on the Austin-Wadsworth National Service Bill and showing no inclination to get up.

A House Committee pigeonholed the legislation indefinitely yesterday and several members of the Senate Committee were outspokenly critical of it, despite President Roosevelt's assertion that it was needed to insure full war production.

One of the critics, Senator Edwin C. Johnson, (Dem., Colo.) last night said Stimson and Knox were trying to "Prussianize" the people.

"Why must the President listen to these military reactionaries' in the conduct of civilian affairs?" Johnson demanded in a radio speech.

The plan would require registration of civilian men and women for possible assignment to war jobs, at prevailing rates of pay, in places where volunteer labor forces proved insufficient.

TWO AIRMEN KILLED

Toronto, Jan. 19 —(CP)— Headquarters of No. 1 Training Command, R.C.A.F., announced today that the two student airmen killed Monday when their planes collided in mid-air six miles from Dundalk, Ont., were LAC. H. E. Stewart of Vancouver, and LAC. Reginald Panting of Toronto.

STRICKEN CITY EXPERIENCES 10TH MINOR QUAKE

Occurs as the President Addresses Survivors From City Square

TOLL UNCERTAIN

Buenos Aires, Jan. 19—(AP)—The stricken city of San Juan last night experienced its 10th minor earthquake since a major tremor levelled most of its buildings and killed more than 1,500 persons during the weekend.

The new shock came just as President Gen. Pedro Ramirez, addressing survivors and broadcasting to the nation from a square amid the ruins, called for a minute's silence in respect for the dead.

The quake cut the wires connecting the microphone and caused some confusion. Ramirez was one of the first to ask for order and he then completed his address.

A Chilean army truck caravan bearing medical supplies is expected to arrive at San Juan today and Brazilian Red Cross workers also are expected to arrive by air to join Chilean and Uruguayan doctors and nurses who are assisting Argentines at the scene. A United States offer of assistance was gratefully accepted by the Argentine government yesterday.

Survivors arriving from the stricken zone on refuge trains meanwhile gave graphic descriptions of Saturday night's catastrophe.

"I heard a terrific noise," said one. "Everything was moving around me and in the streets it looked like a tidal wave. The Andes Mountains, as far as we could see, looked like they were collapsing in a cloud of dust which covered everything."

Another witness said he saw a statue "dancing" and a five-storey modern theatre moving around like a castle "made of cards."

Total number of dead and injured still is uncertain.

400 Times More Bombs Drop on Huns in 1944 Than Upon Britain

London, Jan. 19 (AP)—The Royal Air Force has dropped 400 times more bombs on Germany so far this year than the German air force has dropped on Britain, Air Minister Sir Archibald Sinclair told Commons today.

From Jan. 1 through the night of Jan. 17-18, the British bomber command dumped some 6,000 (long) tons ow explosives on German targets while only about 15 tons were unloaded by the enemy on Britain.

The biggest Royal Air Force raids in 1944 have been: Berlin, 1,000 tone, Jan. 1; Berlin, Jan. 2; Stettin, Jan. 5; and Brunswick, 2,000 tons, Jan. 14. No official figures have been released on the second Berlin raid or on the bombing of Stettin, but it was estimated that they were of 1,000 tons each.

PRAVDA INCIDENT APPEARS CLOSED SAYS DAILY MAIL

Soviet Broadcast Of Official British Denial Helps to Ease Situation

EDEN GIVES VERSION

London, Jan. 19 —(CP)— British newspapers, which yesterday expressed high indignation over Pravda's publication of a rumor of British - German peace talks, appeared placated today by the Moscow radio's broadcast of the official British denial.

At the same time, Moscow dispatches said Britons and Americans in the Soviet capital also expressed relief at the broadcast, which went to the whole nation and was transmitted to the Russian press.

The London Daily Mail, which yesterday called the Communist Party organ's account "an insult to the British people," headlined its story today: "'Peace' Lie is Now Dead." The News Chronicle said the Germans were spreading peace talk rumors, "hoping to gain respite."

In broadcasting Britain's denial, the Moscow radio also gave the first inkling of a possible explanation for the Pravda story by quoting a London Sunday Times dispatch of Jan. 16 from Ankara which said that the Nazis were fishing for terms. The London Sunday Times is a newspaper distinct from The Times of London.

Germans Harp on Theme.

German propaganda broadcasts meanwhile harped on the theme that the Pravda story was intended by Moscow to draw a renewed British and American pledge of allegiance toward Russia, "regardless of how the Polish question is being solved by the Soviets."

German officials, themselves denied that Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop had been in contact with the Allies, a Nazi-controlled Scandinavian telegraph bureau dispatch said.

The News Chronicle said in a Stockholm-dated dispatch today that a "German peace move—on conditions—is on the way." The dispatch said the nature of the alleged terms was not known and added, "that they will be rejected goes without saying."

Situation Difficult Says Eden

London, Jan. 19—(CP)— Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons today that the Soviet-Polish border problem is "extremely difficult and delicate" but said the British government is keeping in close touch with both Moscow and the Polish government in London in an attempt to effect a settlement.

"Our prevailing desire," Eden said, "is to bring about a friendly settlement between the two countries, and this achievement would be of the utmost consequence to the future of Europe."

Replying to a remark by Morgan Philips Price (Lab., Forest of Dean) that the differences between the Russians and Poles are fraught with "extreme danger," Eden declared:-

"We are not without the hope that a favorable solution may be attained. I am sure the House will feel the utmost reserve should be practised at this particular moment."

Eden also told Commons that Britain would not ask the United States to bear an investigation of Japanese internment camps in the United States in retaliation for Japan's refusal to permit a similar probe of conditions affecting Allied prisoners in Japanese hands.

He referred to a report that the Japanese government had asked the Spanish government as a protecting power to make an investigation of Japanese internment camps in the United States.

Eden said the matter of whether such an investigation should be permitted in view of Japan's attitude was "clearly one for the United States to decide."

Print British Denial

Moscow, Jan. 19 — (AP) — The Russian press gave the people the news today of the British Foreign Office's denial of a peace proposal meeting as reported by Pravda's Cairo correspondent Monday, but made no editorial comment.

At the same time the press printed a story from London quoting the London Sunday Times, which said

Leapfrog Landing Three Weeks Ago Prepares Way for Present Crossing

PRISONERS TAKEN

London, Jan. 19—(CP Cable)—The Cairo radio said today that Canadian troops on the Adriatic front have captured a hill 1½ kilometres northwest of San Tommaso. The broadcast was recorded by The Associated Press.

San Tommaso, about a mile inland from the Adriatic Coast, was one of the points from which the Canadians launched their drive on the German Arielli River defences at dawn Monday.

Other dispatches today said the Canadians had met stiff resistance and suffered casualties. Allied headquarters reported the Dominion forces had lost some ground before German counter-attacks.

Algiers, Jan. 19 (AP)—British troops of the Allied 5th Army, advancing under intense mortar and machine-gun fire, have crossed the lower Garigliano river at three points converging on the ancient Appian way, for centuries the main coastal highway to Rome.

The attack was launched at 9 p.m. Monday, Allied headquarters announced today, and all three bridgeheads were secured despite violent enemy resistance which included rain of fire on the river itself, 80 miles southeast of Rome.

The first crossing was made near Suio, a village seven miles inland from the Tyrrhenian coast and located on a hill 500 yards beyond the river. Headquarters said heavy fighting still is in progress there.

The second bridgehead was established along the railroad running from Capua to Rome, 4 miles from the coast.

The third was at Argento, almost on the coast itself, where the Germans countered with a tank attack in a desperate but futile effort to drive the British back across the river.

Preparations Made

Preparations for the crossings apparently were made by British raiders who made a leapfrog landing north of the estuary of the Garigliano less than three weeks before and delivered heavy blows behind the enemy's lines in the Minturno area.

This penetration on the night of Dec. 30 destroyed an important highway and railway bridge used by the Germans, cut other communications and resulted in capture of prisoners who were brought back to the 5th Army headquarters for questioning. The raid force withdrew after stiff fighting, after accomplishing its aims.

The new offensive on the coastal lowlands came while American and French troops probed vigorously at the so-called Gustav line around Cassino, 20 miles inland from the mouth of the Garigliano.

American patrols had crossed the

Swedish Papers Carry Story Hitler Seeking Talks With Russia

New York, Jan. 19 (AP)—David Anderson, NBC reporter in Stockholm, said today that Stockholm newspapers are carrying a story to the effect that Hitler had dispatched semi-official representatives to Ankara to discuss separate peace terms with Russia. The story was credited to the Geneva newspaper La Suisse.

LIBERALS HOLD PARTY CAUCUS

Will Give "Qualified Support" to the Drew Government

Toronto, Jan. 19—(CP)—The 15 liberal members of the Ontario Legislature will give "qualified support" to Premier Drew's progressive conservative government which holds 38 of the 90 House seats, it was stated today by W. L. Miller of Bruce Mines, Liberal M. P. P. for Algoma-Manitoulin.

Mr. Miller said in an interview that a caucus yesterday attended by 65 Liberal M. P. P.'s and Liberal candidates defeated in last year's provincial election decided they would support any legislation they considered to be in the best interests of the province. Support would be given such legislation whether it was offered by the government or the C.C.F. opposition, which holds 34 seats.

The decision was not a reversal of one reached at a caucus last year when it was reported the liberals had decided to support the government, said Mr. Miller who is caucus chairman.

"Our support was qualified then, although it was not interpreted that way by some 'papers," said Mr. Miller. "It is still qualified."

The caucus also passed a vote of confidence in Harry C. Nixon, former premier and member for Brant, as party leader.

Flat Rate Charge For Power Supplied Under Discussion

Toronto, Jan. 19 (CP)—A proposal for a flat rate charge to Ontario municipalities for power supplied by the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Comission was under discussion today at a private meeting of the postwar committee of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association. J. B. Hay of London, Ont., is chairman of the meeting.

The committee asked all interested municipalities to submit views on the flat rate proposal—the present rates are based on a mileage charge --in connection with preparation of a report for the association's annual meeting in Toronto Feb. 8 and 9.

Officials said a statement may be available late today.

U.S. Indians Stalk Japs in Jungles, Break Foe Defences, Capture Guns

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Jan. 19—(AP)—Knife-wielding American Indians of 20 tribes, backed by tanks and bombing planes, are stalking Japanese in the tropical jungles of New Britain.

Proud of their ability to threat through dense growth, these skilled tribesmen of Arizona and New Mexico ended a stalemate Sunday at invaded Arawe on the southwest coast by breaking through main enemy defences to such depth that field guns were captured, Allied headquarters reported.

These Indians, forming part of the 158th Regiment of "Bushmasters," penetrated 1,000 yards through enemy lines while the Japanese still were groggy from an 87-ton air bombardment.

Pilots said the bombing was the most concentrated yet unleashed in the jungles.

The "Bushmasters" were sent to Panama during the early days of United States participation in the war to become the first American troops trained in jungle tactics.

Last April, they left the canal zone and on June 30 first appeared in the southwest Pacific war zone.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

Fifteen Recruits Joined Sea Cadet Corps Monday

Announcement was made by Lieut. Aubrey Coe, Acting Officer Commanding the local Sea Cadet Corps, that fifteen recruits had been enlisted into the corps for training. The new cadets all joined on Monday night, being introduced by members of the Corps and others wishing to join on their own account. The Sea Cadet Corps will be sponsoring a much wider drive for recruits in the near future and it is anticipated that the strength of the unit will rise rapidly from its present number to approximately one hundred and fifty members before the winter. The Corps offers many advantages of training to youths between the ages of 15 and 17 in seamanship, practical knowledge and recreation. Drill periods, which also include instruction classes, are found to be of great interest to those who have already been attending and are now wearing the uniform supplied by the Navy. Every co-operation is given to these lads by their officers who also receive the fullest co-operation from the Royal Canadian Navy both in equipment, instruction and summer camp facilities. To be a Sea Cadet, in the opinion of most of the Corps' members, is tantamount to being in the Navy, and many of those already training are looking forward to the day when they will be old enough to "Go Active."

Film 'Training Table' Attracted Much Favorable Comment

Patrons of the Belle Theatre had the opportunity the past three days of witnessing "Training Table" in technicolor, featuring the story of the scientific diet of the R.C.A.F. and showing that what those men in the R.C.A.F. eat to be fit is good for the health of all Canadians. The picture was taken in air stations showing the preparation and eating of meals in camps and was produced by the medical branch of the R.C.A.F. for showing in camps. President Fitzgibbons of Famous Players, Canadian Corporation had the picture made into standard film to be shown to the people of Canada that they might benefit by the experience of the scientific diets prepared for men in the Air Force. The film, lasting 23 minutes, opens with a brief introduction by Air Minister, the Hon. C. G. Power and then proceeds with a picture of the rations of food which are the lot of the Royal Canadian Air Force for fitness. It is most illuminating for all Canadians and particularly for those who have the selection and preparation of food.

Manager G. P. Forhan, who has been complimented on the showing of the film here said: "I am proud to have been able to show it." The picture is being distributed to all theatres free for the benefit of the health of the people.

STILL OVERCROWDING

Kingston, Jan. 19 —(CP)— The basement of Victoria Public School, which already has 16 classrooms, will soon relinquish more of its dwindling space for another. Overcrowding of students which forced arranging of the others is also responsible for the latest makeshift addition.

Thos. E. Fleming, Of Huntingdon Elected Warden

First Appointee From That Township in Past 55 Years

IVANHOE MERCHANT

The first appointed from that particular township in 55 years, Reeve Thomas E. Fleming of Huntingdon township was elected Warden of Hastings County at the inaugural meeting of the January session held at Shire Hall, Tuesday afternoon. Reeve Fleming won out over Reeve F. J. Wilson of Sidney and John A. Bell of Marmora, on the second ballot.

Member of Hastings County Council since 1938 when he first came to Shire Hall as representative for his township, Warden Fleming has risen rapidly in municipal government. First elected to his township council in 1937, he was made reeve the following year and now holds the honored position in county council.

Native of the township, which he represents, Warden Fleming was born in Huntingdon. He follows naturally into municipal affairs as his father before him was for several years reeve of Huntingdon. During his term as county councillor he has acted as chairman for the Finance Committee and also for the House of Refuge Committee, while last year he served on the Roads and Bridges Committee. The last time his township had the wardenship was back in 1889 the late Mathew Robinson had the honor.

Born the son of a farmer, the newly elected Warden still carries on agricultural pursuits. He considers, however, the role of a general merchant as his life's profession. For the past 30 years he has operated a general store at Ivanhoe, while for the same period he has been post master at the office which his grand uncle, Mr. Thomas Emo founded. The late Mr. Emo had the honor of giving the name to Ivanhoe, he getting the name from "Scott's novel, "Ivanhoe".

Warden Fleming has three children, two sons in the R.C.N.V.R., and a daughter, Shirley, attending Madoc High School. One son, Able Seaman John Fleming has been in the Navy for the past 18 months and is stationed aboard a corvette, while the second boy, George "Bud" Fleming is still in training.

Filtration Plant Records.

30,909,180 gallons of water more were pumped through the Belleville Purification Plant last year than in any other previous year in the history of the plant, Mr. Scott told the Commission. In 1943 there were pumped through the plant 925,833,000 gallons and 42,761,300 gallons of wash water. The high day's pumpage was 3,231,000 gallons and the low 2,081,000 gallons. There was used 153,569 pounds of alum which was 38,230 pounds less than that used the previous year and the chlorine used was 1,182 pounds less than the previous year. The total rainfall of last year was 26.94 inches and the snowfall 95.9 inches, with a total precipitation of 35.50 inches.

Mayor Opposes Motion.

Mayor Rollins opposed a motion, which passed, "That the recommendation as set forth in the minutes of December 21st., 1943, regarding a refund to Mr. Harry Mulvey for past lawn watering service be and is hereby rescinded and that no refund be made and the usual charges for lawn watering services be continued." Mayor Rollins in opposing the motion, stated that the manager should have carried out the recommendation of the Commission and reiterated his stand that all persons caught using water service for any other purpose than that intended should be warned and brought before the Commission and if the practice persists should be hailed into court and fined.

Commissioner Wotten explained that new information had been obtained by the manager and was entirely different to that received by the Commission when the motion was passed. Mayor Rollins still insisted that the will of the Commission should have been carried out by the manager and then if any redress was needed the resident could appear before the Commission. His Worship also stated that any complaints against service or matter pertaining to the Commission should be tabled in a letter and then they could be properly dealt with.

Accounts Written Off.

A number of accounts totalling $28.63 for the electric division, $9.10 for gas, $56.32 for water and $11.48 for the Hydro Shop were ordered written off when the manager explained that the accounts were uncollectable. Some of the amounts in each division were for credits. Chairman Duff explained that it was not a total loss because if any person who owed a bill came back to the city and applied for service the account would be facing them before the service could be obtained.

All members of the Commission including the manager will attend the O.M.E. convention at Toronto on February 8th and 9th.

New County Warden Calls For United Effort on the Home Front

Thos. Fleming, Huntingdon Twp., Installed as Warden at First Session of Council

Calling for a united effort on the part of county residents to back Canadian fighting boys to the limit and to prepare for their victorious return from overseas, Reeve Thomas Fleming of Huntingdon township accepted graciously the highest honor that can be bestowed upon a councillor as the January session of Hastings county council opened on Tuesday afternoon. Reeve Fleming was chosen Warden of the county over two other aspirants, Reeve Wilson of Sidney and Reeve Bell of Marmora township.

"I deem it a great honor to be chosen Warden of this banner county," stated Warden Fleming in his inaugural address to the council members. "For we have a great deal to be proud of in Hastings."

He referred to the county's production of cheese and minerals, which in time of war, assumed tremendous importance. But most important was termed the response of the county's sons for overseas service. Their number and calibre was unexcelled, and they were fighting for the freedom of their homes "that this county council may continue for another 100 years."

No Radical Changes

"I have no radical changes in mind for the general procedure of council," he continued. "I ask only that you back our boys to the very limit. The war is brighter, yes, but we are yet far from winning it. We must now prepare for the return of our boys from overseas; the most that we can do will not be too much."

The Warden thanked councillors for the honor conferred upon him and welcoming the five new members to county council, expressed a hope that the same co-operation shown him would be shown to them. The experience of four ex-wardens who were members of council would prove a great asset to the current council, he said.

Installation of Warden Fleming to his office was conducted by Clerk Erle S. Denyes, he being assisted to his chair by Reeve Fred J. Wilson of Sidney.

Repairs For County Home

Reading of correspondence constituted the business portion of the inaugural meeting, one of the principal items being a report from the provincial supervisor of the Old People's Home with recommendation for alterations and repairs. The report was not read but the recommendation asked that the barns be painted and the verandah's repaired. Replastering was needed in several rooms while owing to the crowded condition of the men's quarters, it was recommended that the proposed addition to this wing be commenced as soon as possible. The report was referred to the House of Refuge committee.

Appointment of the nominating committee for selection of personnel of the various county committees was made by the Warden just as the session concluded. Named to the nominating committee were Deputy Reeve Sam Nicolson; Deputy Reeve J. W. Morrison and Reeve J. A. Moore. Committee personnel will be announced Wednesday morning.

In an R. A. F. station on Malta we met Canadian airmen, including FOS. Murray Hendershott of Windsor, Ont., a observer.

In Italy, only a few minute by air from the front line, we stood on an airfield of the tactical bombing force and chatted with airmen. A Boston bomber pilot was FO. Ross Lipsitt of Grimsby, Ont., who joined the Air Force three years ago in Vancouver.

In an orange grove near the Fifth Army front we had lunch in a mess tent with members of the crack city of London (England) Beaufighter squadron which had destroyed 124 enemy aircraft up to mid-December. We chatted with a slim flying officer, John Turnbull, D. F. C. and Bar, of St. Thomas, Ont., who has shot down 11½ planes.

The city of Windsor Spitfire squadron, of course, is made up of Canadians. Led by Sqdn. Ldr. Bert Houle of Massey, Ont., who celebrated his recent appointment as commanding officer by shooting down two German fighter-bombers within 15 seconds, the unit daily patrols the Eight army front.

Among other city of Windsor pilots were Flt. Lt. Hedley Everard, Timmins, Ont., and WO. Walter Chittenden of St. Catharines, Ont. There are no non-commissioned pilots on the squadron, with the exception of a couple of warrant officers.

Back in Africa we met plenty of other Canadians including FO. Ted Farah, one-time Toronto colleague now a public relations officer with the R. C. A. F.

Rapido river in the Cassino area, but were forced to return with reports that the Germans apparently were concentrating their defences for one of the most furious battles since the fall of Naples. French forces operating in the mountains on the right flank of the Americans increased their bag of prisoners to 600 in six days.

Rain Drenches Troops

In contrast to the clear, cold weather which prevailed over most of the 5th Army front, rain drenched the 8th Army on the Adriatic end of the line across Italy.

Canadian troops on the Adriatic coast advanced against fierce opposition to take limited objectives but then were forced to withdraw by German counter-attacks and headquarters said the Canadians still are engaged in heavy fighting.

(A Reuters News Agency dispatch from the 8th Army front said the Canadians had slightly improved their positions and that the Germans were digging in to avoid heavy artillery fire. The correspondent said that up to the time his dispatch was written no German counter-attacks had developed. "The Canadians have met stiff opposition and have suffered casualties," he reported.)

Canadians in Action

The Canadians are driving against German defences on the south bank of the Arielli river, a minor stream guarding the highway to Pescara, main immediate objective of the 8th Army. From Pescara an important highway runs across Italy to Rome. Present fighting is three to four miles northwest of Ortona, captured by Canadians Dec. 27 after heavy street fighting.

At Sant' Angelo, on the Sangro river in the mountains four miles north of Capracotta, British troops clashed with Nazi ski patrols.

under an Ankara dateline that while it was true that Frans Von Papen, German ambassador to Turkey had not made peace proposals it was untrue that peace proposals had not recently been made by the Germans. The Sunday Times, a paper distinct from the Times of London, said peace proposals were in fact made two months ago to Turkey, which refused to relay them to the Allies. It said similar proposals were made in Lisbon and Stockholm.

(Quotation of the London paper's story may be Moscow's way of saying that stories of peace-talk rumors were printed in Britain as well as in Soviet Russia.)

Printing of this story put the question right back where it was when Pravda, communist party newspaper, printed the original story—it is again the biggest topic in town.

The first reaction on the reprinting of the story from the Sunday Times' Ankara correspondent was, "you see, something is up."

Many Russians who may have to some extent discounted the original story now are convinced that Britain has been listening—if nothing else—to peace proposals from Germany.

"What troubles me most," said one Russian, "is that part as reported by the Sunday Times correspondent where he said the Germans would reserve the right of limited freedom of action in the East. That means us."

Another term of the reported proposal of the Hitlerite government—still quoting the London Sunday Times' Ankara correspondent—was that dealing with Germany's willingness to scrap her fleet and submarines immediately.

"Destroying her subs," said another Russian friend of mine, "would of course bring lots of satisfaction to the United States."

Nazi Commentator Scoffs At Idea of Early Allied Balkan Invasion

Stockholm, Jan. 19—(AP)—A German military commentator, Lt.-Col. Von Olberg, writing in the Danziger Verposten, scoffed today at the possibility of an early Allied invasion of the Balkans from Italy and asserted that the Allies could not make such a move until they get beyond Rome.

Olberg also asserted that the Allies must advance to the Po river in Italy before they can hope to mount an attack against the Southern French coast between Toulon and Marseille.

Christ Church Vestry Wardens Are Re-elected

Congregational Meeting is Given One of the Best Reports in History of the Parish

$10,000 RAISED

At the annual Vestry meeting of Christ Church held Monday night in the Parish Hall the church wardens, Messrs. E. W. Vanner and Horace Wright presented one of the best reports in the history of the parish. The Rector, Rev. G. G. Wright, presided, with Mr. D. L. Cleland elected to the office of vestry clerk.

Reports were presented from the various parish organizations showing that they, without exception, had shared in the general welfare of the parish. A total of over $10,000 has been raised during the year of which over $1,300 was given to missions and $600 to various war appeals, and for comforts for the boys overseas. All obligations have been met in full, and a substantial balance left in the treasury to begin the operations of the new year. Through the work of the Women's Guild the Rectory has been painted and funds provided for a complete re-decoration of the interior which is now going on.

Chapel Re-modelled.

The Chapel has been re-modelled and re-decorated, the work being done by members of the Men's Club under expert direction and the necessary funds provided by the women's organizations. It is now a delight to the eye and the pride of the parish. St. George's Guild have met all their obligations and had the interior of their Sunday School hall cleaned and wood work painted. All organizations reported a healthy growth in membership and finances. In connection with work outside the parish, 900 articles were sent in to the Red Cross Society by the different groups.

Large Sunday School Increase.

The Rector reported the usual services held with a large increase in the average Sunday attendance. He had officiated at 65 baptisms, 52 marriages and 28 burials during the year, while a class of 63 candidates had been presented to the Bishop for Confirmation. He referred to the loss, which had been sustained by the parish in the death of Mr. G. B. Smith, who had been church warden on two separate occasions, and both when the parish was facing difficult problems, also a delegate for many years to the Synod of the Diocese, and, for a time, a member of its executive committee. Mr. Smith was a man whose judgment was always valuable, and his counsel will be greatly missed.

Plans were laid by the Vestry looking to the cleaning of the interior of the church during the coming summer.

Donor Thanked for Chair.

The Vestry expressed its thanks to Mrs. James Thompson for the beautifully carved Bishop's chair presented to the church as a memorial gift, also to Mr. Alex Carmichael for his generosity in connection with the restoration of the Chapel.

The Rector appointed Mr. E. W. Vanner to continue as his warden for next year, and the Vestry reelected Mr. Horace Wright. Mr. Fred Terry was elected to represent the parish at the Synod for the next two years, and Messrs. George Meades and H. W. Dowsett were elected to a similar office for the next three years.

Mrs. Wright Thanked.

The Vestry expressed its deep appreciation of the leadership which has been given by the Rector during the past twelve years, and to Mrs. Wright for her continuous kindly hospitality.

Appreciation was also expressed to Mr. Everett Smith and to Mr. George Meades for their work in assisting at the services in the church and their leadership in the two Sunday Schools of the parish, both of which are in a flourishing condition with a total registration of over 450.

The sexton, Mr. McCullough, was commended for his unfailing courtesy and the manner in which he performed his duties.

The meeting closed with the benediction of the Rector.

Vestry Meeting At St. Thomas' Largely Attended

Wardens Re-elected and New Appointments Made to Diocesan Synod

RECTOR PRESIDES

The annual meeting of the vestry of the Church of St. Thomas was held in the church on Monday evening and was largely attended. The Rector, the Rev. Rural Dean A. Beauchamp Payne, presided and Mr. Norman E. Edwards was reappointed vestry clerk.

The reports submitted by the wardens, Col. E. A. Geen and Mr. F. Potter were highly satisfactory and the reports of the various organizations in connection with the parish showed great activity and much progress during the year.

The Rector re-appointed Mr. F. Potter as his warden and the vestry re-elected Col. E. A. Geen as People's Warden. Mr. B. F. Jennings was elected chairman of the Sidesmen's Committee and Mr. H. W. Dillnutt was elected Envelope Secretary.

The following with the Rector and wardens will compose the Council of Vestry: Messrs. L. C. Patrick, W. Pomfret, B. F. Jennings, P. W. Geen, Edgar Bateman, G. W. Wilkinson, Robert Pringle, W. E. Wheatley, J. J. Fitzpatrick, H. Keller, F. Codling, Wilson Bird, Fred Cory, William Sherry and Squadron Leader Elson Clarke.

At the close of the meeting of the vestry a congregational meeting was immediately held and Mr. Norman E. Edwards and Mr. W. E. Burrowes were re-elected representatives to the Diocesan Synod for a term of three years and Mr. Fred Cory for a term of one year to fill the unexpired term of the late J. G. Skelcher.

Sgt. Thos. Peets Presumed Dead

Reported as missing last summer following aerial operations overseas, Sgt. Thomas W. Peets, 22, son of the late David Peets and Mrs. Mary Peets, 97 Chatham St., is now for official purposes presumed dead, his mother has been notified.

Born in Belleville, Sgt. Peets attended St. Michael's Separate and High School, and enlisted in the R.C.A.F. in 1941. He trained at No. 5 I.T.S, in Belleville, at Jarvis and graduated as a bombardier from St Johns, Quebec. He went overseas in November, 1942.

Surviving besides his mother are two sisters, Alice and Doris of this city, and six brothers, Edward, James, John R. in the R.C.A.F., Lawrence, and Francis and David, the last two named still being in school.

ASSEMBLY.

And Then There Were Five.

Perhaps as a result or Mr. Turner's request that students take a greater part in the weekly Assembly program, the Symphonette Reed Choir turned up with a medley of tunes from "This is the Army", arranged by Mac Dowsett, as are all of the Symphonette numbers. Webster's defines a medley as: "a melodious combination of distinguishable musical selections". Whether this cap fits is a matter that is open to discussion, for the wise range of time measures for each number presented great difficulties for the famous five. The quintette hastened to make up for their slip by offering their version of the "Victory Polka". The audience quickly forgave them, and brought them back for an encore.

The Symphonettes began in 1942, with an original octet composed of Dowsett, Baird, Dafoe, Edmondson, Juby, Muirhead, Robinson and Williamson. Subsequent changes have brought them to their present number, including Muirhead and Dowsett of the old combination ,and newcomers Wells, Rose and Holloway.

Made famous by "Der Fuehrer's Face", their best pieces since have been raucous, corny elections such as "Pistol-Packin' Momma" and "Idiot's Delight", which utilized to the utmost their distinctive style. Exception to the rule was "Paper Doll". Surprisingly enough, they have yet to be used as a drawing card at a Tea Dance, although they have had "engagements" outside of the school, such as the Christmas performance at the House of Refuge.

Planned by the Symphonettes is a survey of the type of music preferred by the student body. The members of the small orchestra are split between a desire to show that they can do serious classical numbers and an equal desire to please with the more popular piece of the day.

They are, with their rivals of the B.C.I.V.S. Quartet, a splendid example of co-operation amongst students to provide entertainment at the weekly Assemblies, and are to be congratulated each time they return to the school stage.

Dear Miss Bea Seeye:

One of the most unusual announcements made during our weekly Assembly periods occurred last week for the Girl Cadettes' Tea Dance on Wedneday.

Bedraggled Vera Flindall brought on betogged Helen McLean and Joan Watson. While the meaning of the whole thing was more than slightly obscured by the hayseed, the theme of the coming tea-dance stood out vividly. Apparently Vera didn't know whom to marry; but since one of them was going to take her to the Tea Dance, and since Vera is an officer in the Girls' Cadettes, the obvious answer was reached after a week of deliberation.

While the announcement was murky and ponderous, the originality made a marked impression upon the students, and it is expected that the Tea Dance on Wednesday will be well attended.

You will remember that the Tea Dance held on last St. Valentine's Day, which was sponsored by this organization, was the outstanding dance of the last term. It was the first to dust off and present a floor show, novelty dances and door prizes. The prevalent confusion amongst the Grade Niners is whether this one is a costume affair or not.

P.S.—It isn't!

Visitors Praise Musical Facilities.

The school was visited this week by Mr. Roy Fenwick, superintendent of Music for Ontario, and Mr. Leslie Bell, head of the Music Department of the Ontario College of Education. Both came to the school in connection with the new Departmental examinations for Grade XIII students who have taken the Music Option. Addressing the students, Mr. Fenwick said that ours was one of the most completely equipped schools, with regard to musical facilities, in Ontario. He mentioned the complete course in Music now offered from Grade IX to XIII, the band and the Glee Club. (Unmentioned were the Symphonettes and the Quartet, which he had not heard.) Mr. Fenwick quoted a recent speech by Col. Drew, who said that we must learn to live, and to do that completely, we must understand and appreciate the fine arts, including music.

Mr. Bell acted as the guest conductor of the band, during the Assembly. Said he "We'll both start and end at the same place: they'll be good—I won't." He then proceeded to belie his statement by his expert conducting.

A very musical Assembly period included a hymn by the student body; a selection by the Glee Club (the bass section of which was sadly depleted), "Where'er You Walk"; "The National Emblem" and "End of a Perfect Day", the latter featuring a cornet solo by Ron Moorman.

Library Club Donations.

The last Assembly was marked by a presentation by Theda Moorcroft, on behalf of the Library Club, of thirty books to the school. Mr. Turner thanked the Club, and remarked on the fine work being done by the organization.

The books presented included nine pieces of fiction: "Pray For the Wanderer" by K. O'Brien; "River Supreme", A. T. Hobart; "Landfall" and "Ordeal' by N. Shute; "Peril at End House" by A. Christie, and "When the Gangs Came to London" by E. Wallace, a pair of thrillers; "Bitter Tea of General Yen" by G. Z. Stone; "The Sea Tyrant", P. Frenchen; and a historical novel, "Farewell Toinette" by B. Harding.

Also donated were: "Watch on the Rhine", a drama by Lillian Hellman; "Glorious Adventure" by R. Halliburton; "Nansen" by L. Lewis; "Lives of Great Musicians", E. Hubbard; "Passing of the Aborigines", D. Bates; "Report from Tokyo", J. C. Grew; "Seaman's Portrait", C. Mitchell "Women of Britain", Jan Struther; "Front Line", the Official document on the Civil Defence of Britain; "The World in the Air" (two volumes) by F. T. Miller, and a set of encyclopedias (ten volumes).

The Library Club earns its money by mending books; buying and selling second-hand text books; and through tea-dances, etc.

Trenton Wins Home Game.

The Girls' Basketball team played Trenton High School in Trenton on Friday, January 14, but were defeated with a score of 10-7.

The gymnasium was so small that our girls continued to run the length of the floor. Margaret Taylor showed her skill in making the seven points for our team. The guards played an excellent game in their small corner of the petite gym.

The Coach, Miss Morton, won the favor of her team by the friendliness, and good sportsmanship which she displayed. The team enjoyed the trip very much, especially the bus rides, when they entertained the bus occupants with a round of singing

Forwards: Margaret Taylor, Shirley Marinoff, Eleanor Davidson; Marion Warren, Alice Vandervoort.

Guards: Vera Flindall, Barbara Rutherford, Lorna Ogilvie, Betty Johns, Dena Pappas, Nancy Hunter.

Timekeeper: Jean Diamond.

Scorekeeper: Phyllis Ward.

FINANCES.

On to Four Thousand.

Mr. Hill reported that we are nearing the $4,000 mark in our War Saving Stamp Sales, and that if the Assembly period had been on Wednesday, he could probably have congratulated us on reaching that objective. Sales for the short (five days between Assemblies) week amounted to $120.75, with X-D as High Form, with sales of $928. There are now fourteen forms over the $100 objective.

Over Three Hundred.

Mr. Turner announced that we had made a net profit of $332.88 on the recent concert by the Don Cossack Chorus, in a clear and complete financial report to the student body.

He congratulated and thanked Mr. Hancock and his committee, the ushers for the fine handling of the large audience, and Miss Nichols of the Quinte Book Shop for the sale of tickets.

The expenditures for the concert included: $84.75 for Advertising, $210.94 Government Tax, $632.70 to the Choir, and $4.73 for miscellaneous costs.

Cuff Notes.

A slight flurry of snow put a layer of fluff over the surface of the school rink, but as soon as possible on Saturday morning, Johnny Locke was seen shovelling away at the north end of the rink. That certainly shows that the B.A.S. president is all-out in his efforts to make the rink a success . . .The boys' Physical Training classes are changed considerably. All the lads from Grades Nine to Thirteen are decked out in gym shorts, and occasionally a sweat-shirt. It is very drafty in the gym—this reporter knows. . .But, on to warmer subjects. The Girl Cadettes are plugging their tea-dance (first teadance in Leap Year 1944) for all they are worth. Let's hope that they will succeed in their endeavors.

The lighting used for the Don Cossacks' performance seemed to baffle the back-stage wizards, but they finally found out a week later how to turn on the back lights without creating chaos in the auditorium. . . . It seems that news hot-off-the-press is the issue of the day, so the writers of the various sections of Collegiate News salaam deeply to the Editor, and sorrowfully shake their heads when he asks for news on Monday mornings instead of on Fridays. How about a string around their collective fingers, Stuart?

Fire Department Spends Busy Day

Answering four alarms in the brief space of only a few hours, members of the Belleville Fire Department spent rather a busy day Monday. Blazes in each case were extinguished before any material damage resulted, according to firemen.

First alarm was to the Bay Bridge Road where fire in the marsh had set highway fence posts ablaze while the second was to Graham's Dried Foods on South Pinnacle Street, where soldering equipment had set a work bench ablaze. Although employees quickly turned in the alarm, they immediately went to work on the blaze and had it practically under control upon the arrival of firemen. The third alarm was to 211 Coleman Street where a defective chimney had caused a wall at the back part of the house to get ablaze. The fire was extinguished with only small damage resulting. The final alarm turned out to be merely a smoke investigation at 337 1-2 Front Street.

Magistrate Clamps Down on Absentees From Batt. Parades

Indications that civilian courts intend to uphold and enforce, as far as in their jurisdiction, the attendance of members of Canada's Reserve Army to parades was seen in local police court Tuesday when one local young man was convicted on three separate charges of failing or neglecting to attend military parade while a member of the Argyll Light Infantry (R). The man, Tpr. E. E. Dunlay, of Belleville, was convicted of missing three separate reserve army parades and fined $7.50, including costs on each charge, making the total assessment levied by Magistrate Lloyd exactly $22.50.

"The prosecution of this war comes first today and in the event of default of payment the jail sentence will be ten days on each of the three charges, to run consecutively," added His Worship. The fines were paid.

Tpr. D. W. Allen, also of the Argyll Light Infantry, pleaded guilty to a single charge of failing to attend military parades at the Armouries and paid $7.50 in all. "You must attend parades," warned Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., after Captain K. R. Holmes, Adjutant of the local reserve army unit, produced parade records.

A similar charge preferred against Tpr. Adams was withdrawn when it was learned the accused man had joined the active armed services.

German Agents Pour Into Spain

New York, Jan. 19 (AP)—The New York Times said yesterday in a delayed Jan. 10 dispatch from Madrid that German agents had been pouring into Spain "in an obvious effort by Germany to save what she can of a situation that has gone badly against her."

The Times said the dispatch, written by Harold Denny, was received from Madrid by way of London and was not censored in Spain.

"A thousand gestapo agents and other German representatives have appeared in Madrid, alone, in the past fortnight," the dispatch said.

"These reinforce the army of German spies, saboteurs and provocateurs already long active in chinks and crannies of the country's political and economic structure. In Madrid, spies swarm in the big hotels in such numbers that even casual visitors cannot help noticing them."

"Germany," the dispatch continued, "has some reason to resort to desperate measures, for the struggle for the Iberian Peninsula—the most important bloodless battlefield of the war—now seems to have turned conclusively in our favor. Germany's objective in this field was the use of Spain to flank the whole Allied position in the Mediterranean.

"Now, however, the war has moved so far ahead that observers here do not see how Germany can damage us seriously in this field.

"Realizing that Adolf Hitler is a psycopath, and a desperate one, they do not rule out the possibility that he may crash into the Iberian Peninsula as a mad gesture to show that he could still make conquests. But they do not see how he could gain anything here now commensurate with the costs of such a venture, for the Spaniards would fight him."

Tito Far Eclipses Mihailovic In Yugoslav War Against Nazis

By ROSS MUNRO

(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

London, Jan. 19 (CP)—The tumultuous affairs of German-occupied Yugoslavia, which may become an operational theatre for large formations of Allied troops in the final assault on the Nazis in Europe, have raised some of the war's most intricate problems.

The ascendancy of Marshal Tito and his Partisan army of 250,000 which is effectively harassing the German forces in Yugoslavia, has brought the complicated question of Yugoslav affairs to world attention as well as the big issue of Allied policy in southeastern Europe.

British Policy

The present British policy is formally this:-

1. To give all the practical help in Britain's power to those elements in these countries which are actively resisting the enemy.

2. To make clear that so far as Britain can exert any authority it shall be used to ensure that these countries shall be free to choose their own governments when they are liberated.

3. To work in the closest concert with her Allies.

Thus Britain sends war materials and supplies across the Adriatic from Italy. Air support is given from Italian bases. A British military mission is at Tito's mountain headquarters and a number of British officers—including at least one Canadian, Maj. William Jones of Toronto, serve with the Partisan army. Russia, too, is sending a military mission to Tito.

In the military sphere British policy is all-out for Tito and has veered away from support to Gen. Draja Mihailovic and his Chetnik force whose resistance to the Germans had gradually dwindled to nothing and whose followers now number less than 40,000.

Ardent Communist

Tito, reported an ardent Communist, has far eclipsed Mihailovic as the anti-Nazi leader in the nation. Tito also has established his own provisional Yugoslav government which has strong support within the country.

Mihailovic has been repudiated by the great mass of Yugoslavs in the country. He leaned in the direction of authoritarian government by the Serbs, particularly the officer clique of the old Yugoslav army which was the nucleus of his Chetnik outfit. Mihailovic clashed with Tito on political grounds and military policy.

While Tito has been overshadowing Mihailovic in the struggle against the enemy, the Royal Yugoslav government and young King Peter have been established in Cairo, moving there from London.

The British government formally recognizes Peter as the sovereign of Yugoslavia as well as his government of which Mihailovic is still Minister of War although absent from cabinet councils.

In the military field Britain supports Tito but in the political recognizes the government which Tito disavows. Russia and the United States are in exactly the same position, which is viewed as highly anomalous by some Balkan experts here.

General Allied policy regarding the Balkans evidently is in the process of evolution. One thing is firmly fixed—military support for Tito, political questions and the position of the refugee government will come under further scrutiny and there may be adjustments made on both sides.

Treasure of House Of Savoy Reported Seized by Germans

At the Swiss-Italian Frontier, Jan. 19 (AP)—The treasure of the House of Savoy, containing the coin collection of King Victor Emmanuel, was reported to have been seized by the Germans and turned over to the puppet Fascist refime.

Turin newspapers told conflicting stories of the treasure admitting that it may not be the "veritable" Savoy treasure but that nonetheless its value was more than 1,000,000,000 lire (about $10,000,000). Contained in 370 cases, it was recently discovered by the Germans when they occupied the Royal Chateau Pollenzo near Cueno.

All of the cases, many of them marked "Marie Jose" and others "Trousseau of ueen Elena," and "Prince Victor Emmanuel," were brought from the villa Savoia in Rome, home of the Royal family.

Pravda Report 'Insulting' Says London Paper

London, Jan. 19 (CP)—The Foreign Office denial of the authenticity of Pravda's "separate peace" story has been brought to the attention of the Soviet government by the British Charge D'Affairs in Moscow, it was announced.

Meanwhile, the Daily Mail labelled the rumor an "insult to the British people."

Morning newspapers frankly expressed disappointment at Pravda's publication of the rumor. Not a single afternoon paper carried the Moscow story but it was splashed on the front pages and most papers had editorials that minced no words.

Most outspoken was the Daily Mail which denounced "this canard" and said it "bears all the marks of enemy origin."

"No government even remotely suspected of this sort of conduct would live for a day," the Mail said. "The newspaper Pravda must be remarkably ignorant of British national standards. That is the only excuse we can find for it."

Under a front-page streamer "Britain kills separate peace lie," the Mail said "in view of the wide circulation given the report later by the Moscow radio the government may deem it necessary in the near future to reassert in the Commons their determination to abide by their agreements never to make a separate peace."

"What sort of people does Pravda think we are?" The London Evening News said in commenting on the separate Anglo-German peace rumor.

"Do the staff of Pravda and the Russian broadcasters who repeated that ridiculous story really believe that Mr. Churchill is the man to betray his Allies after struggling through abysses to victory?

"Do they believe that the British people would think of such a thing or tolerate such a thing for a moment?. . . .

"This to us is a fight to the finish and when the end comes we will be there."

No Nazi Comment

New York, (AP)—The Federal communications commission said that no reports of any broadcast by any Nazi domestic radio station had mentioned the "peace rumor" story published in Pravda.

The only German use of the story developed in a few dispatches for foreign consumption by the Nazi Transocean Agency. One of these said the Pravda story had caused "big laughter in the German capital." A summary of Berlin pages, transmitted to German agents abroad did not indicate that the story had been published in German newspapers.

Canada's Navy

Canada is proud of her navy, the third most powerful among the United Nations' sea forces. Its growth has been phenomenal from slightly over 1,700 at the start of the present war to over 80,000. The navy began in the first war with Germany with 336 in personnel and at the close of that struggle had 8,826 officers and men.

Now the Royal Canadian Navy is to man with officers and men two escort aircraft carriers of the Royal Navy. Britain has made the gift of two British cruisers and two destroyers to the Canadian fleet.

Vice-Admiral Nelles who is given much of the credit for the development of Canada's fleet of warships is going overseas as Canadian senior naval officer in Britain and will have a part in the invasion plans which will strike at Germany.

Canada's ships have performed a ceaseless vigil on the seas in the war against enemy U-boats and they have been in far-away waters. The work on the protection of convoys has been of the greatest value.

In these coming days Canadians are to see more of the fruits of the majestic sea force which has been developed since the outbreak of war.

Belleville and this district have a large number of young men serving in the Canadian Navy and therefore maintain a deep interest in this service.

Back in the Commons

The hold which Prime Minister Churchill has over the minds and hearts of the people of Britain was indicated on Tuesday when he took his seat in the British Commons. He had come unexpectedly home from Morocco where he had been recuperating since his illness which affected him as he reached Carthage in North Africa on his trip westward from Teheran and which detained him in that place for eleven days.

To welcome back a friend after a spell of sickness is always an event. In Mr. Churchill's case the M.P.'s showed by their cheers how Britain and the Empire love this great man who is one of the greatest of Englishmen in all history. It meant welcoming back to his seat in the House, from which he has served his country and humanity so faithfully in the past four years, one in whom Britain pinned her faith in the trying days of 1940 when he came into the premiership and one whom Britons have never ceased to admire for his rugged strength, his self-sacrificial service, and for his sheer genius. The hearts of the British people and of the peoples of the Dominions and of the Allied Nations have been with the worthy Prime Minister during his illness and during his recovery.

It is no wonder the House cheered this man of men who is back again to serve with all his spirit and strength the great cause of liberty and democracy. While he was ill he was still serving and keeping in closest touch with events.

Now that Mr. Churchill is well again and back in England and in the Commons, the people of Britain are happy for they trust so in his rare gifts of leadership. That he means to labor with his old time zeal and thoroughness is indicated by his reply to a question what steps he was taking to relieve himself of some of the official duties he has been carrying to conserve his health. He graciously thanked the inquirer saying he was much appreciative of the solicitude he had shown "but I have no changes to propose at present in my regime." Here is the same wit along with the same high sense of devotion to the duties of his high office.

1943 Best Fair Year

Belleville fair's financial success in 1943 was the best on record, it was revealed at the annual meeting of the Belleville Agricultural Fair Board held on Tuesday when plans were laid for another year's activities. Figures prove interesting, the operating revenue was $10,871, while total receipts were $11,581. Gate admissions brought in $4,756, the grandstand $1,148, the strip tickets $202, the midway netted $1,678 and rental of space $250, entry fees and score cards $245, and provincial and municipal grants aggregated $1,846. These all show how important the Belleville fair is becoming as an institution for every branch brought in substantial revenue.

The substantial character of the exhibition is indicated by the outlay, $2,968 for prizes, $1,829 for attractions, $1,224 for racing and other prizes, $494 for wages, $450 for rent and $650 for salaries.

Cash on hand totalled $1,427 at the end of the year and there was a current surplus for the year of $987.

Belleville Fair Board has now a substantial set of buildings valued at $7,348 and has also valuable equipment.

The fair is an institution which performs an important service in any community. The war has brought more and more attention upon the life of agriculture as it has upon industry as supremely important factors in the national life and in the community life.

Though both city and rural populations have borne heavier tasks during the war years, they have not allowed the fall fairs to disappear for they are of value in the national economic structure.

The Old, Old Story

(Sunday Chronicle, London)

The world has learned to its cost that the peaceable, beer-drinking German is nothing but a figure in a fairy tale—a myth with murder in its heart. Once upon a time there was a shining Kaiser in a golden helm, who built a mighty fleet and trained an army of six million men, not to challenge Britain, but to defend Europe against Asia. When that withered figure had been toppled from his throne to cut down trees at Doorn, the good Weimar Republic bustled busily upon the scene. Gun mountings appeared on the tramways of Berlin. Armies were trained secretly. Labor battalions marched upon the road. Young Germans, bronzed to the waist, played happily with gliders. And, most visibly, outside the cafes of Geneva the jovial Stresemann drank beer. It was a pretty tale, and there were many people in the democracies who were taken in. But now Germany has revealed herself, for good and all. Do these astonishing Germans really think we have forgotten the rape of Europe and the ravaging of all that we held dear?

The Intelligent Worm

(Leeds Yorkshire Post)

On the edge of the pansy bed I found several old lilac leaves standing upright in the soil, their leaf-stalk ends uppermost. Nothing astonishing in that? I agree; worms commonly plug the mouths of their burrows with dead leaves. But note this striking fact—in every instance the worm had drawn its leaf into the mouth of the burrow by its tapered tip, which was the obviously sensible thing to do.

I should hardly have dared to read evidence of intelligence into this if I had not the authority of Darwin himself on the matter. He noticed the same thing in his garden, made many experiments with wedge-shaped bits of paper and leaves.

I look upon the too good opinion of himself by a man as the nursing mother of all false opinions, both public and private.—Montaigne.

HIS MOTHER TALKS

"I would not mind it now," she said,
"Were he to track the place today
Or block the sidewalk with his sled
Or fail to put his things away.
Ten times, ten times I'd climb the stair
To lift his garments from the floor,
But he is facing death somewhere
And we've a little boy no more.

"Now downright happy I should be
Were he to plead for pie or cake
Or beg the frosting dish from me
The days I set aside to bake.
Untouched for hours the cookies stay,
And no one slams the kitchen door.
He's in some foxhole far away
And we've a little boy no more.

"I used to scold the times he'd shout,
As passing by went other boys,
And many a time I've sent him out
For what I said was too much noise.
But silence! Silence, day by day,
I'd trade for what disturbed before.
Somewhere he's holding Japs at bay
And we've a little boy no more.

"His room is neat as it can be.
In perfect order all is kept.
No longer does it fall to me
To make the bed in which he slept.
The quiet which one time I sought
Is bitterer than the cares I bore,
For he's where war is being fought

Mrs. G. Woodley was unanimously elected chairman of Board of Education at the inaugural meeting of the Board which was held last evening. The following members were present: H. W. Ackerman, F. H. Chesher, John Elliott, William Harvey, P. Harrison, Arthur Jones, Col. E. D. O'Flynn, Fred B. Smith, George T. Woodley, Arthur McGie, Mrs. Florence Boyes, Mrs. J. A. McFee, A. B. Collins, Col. W. N. Ponton, Don C. Bleecker and J. W. Cook.

The Belleville Gunners sent the Kingston team home last night with a 4 to 2 defeat and at the same time took the lead in the league with two wins and no losses. Kingston is trailing close with two to the good and one bad one. Whalen, Symons and Armstrong played their position well, back checked, stick handled and shot beautifully. Canning played his usual clever game and was ably assisted by Goyer who is splendid defensively and rushes well. Scott in goal can always be relied on and we are not disappointed. The following composed the teams: Belleville Gunners, Scott, Goyer, Canning, Symons, Whalen, Armstrong, subs., Williams and Hay. Kingston, McCarthy, Angrow, Millan, Devlin, Lanos, Walts, subs., Angrow and Logue. Gilmour of Point Anne handled the game.

Canadian Scene A Century Ago

By J. L. G.

The object of these fragmentary "stories" is to keep green and vivid the memory of Canada's enterprising pioneers whose courage and endurance have proved inspirational.

A good smoke was relished even more in the old days than it is now, for tobacco was one of the few luxuries that men could afford. Hudson's Bay posts of the west stocked up heavily in the "weed", and down east the settlers always found a corner of cleared land in which to grow their year's supply. . . . In the cultivation of tobacco the object was to have the leaves as large and numerous as possible. As soon as these became brittle the plants were cut close to the ground and then hung up on lines to dry. When perfectly dry the leaves were stripped from the stalks and made into small bundles. Finally the leaves were cleansed with salt and water, and the midribs removed. After being finely cut the tobacco, called "shag", was ready for pipe-smoking.

* * *

At the time of the discovery of America tobacco was already cherished by the Indians. It was introduced into England after the voyages of Drake and Sir Walter Raleigh to this hemisphere. But the powers on the other side of the Atlantic strongly opposed its use in Turkey, smoking was, for a while, a capital offense. . . . Meanwhile the pipe of peace continued to make its rounds at gatherings of Indian tribes, and meetings of friendly "pale-faces" and "red-skins".

* * *

The origin of this companionable custom is buried deep in the mists of antiquity. According to Longfellow, it came into being at the bidding of the Great Spirit, the Master of Life, who, after he had summoned his Indian warriors spoke as follows to them: "I am weary of your quarrels, Weary of your wars and bloodshed, Weary of your prayers for vengeance, Of your wranglings and dissensions; All your strength is in your union, All your danger is in discord; Therefore be at peace henceforward, And as brothers live together. . . Bathe now in the stream before you wash the war-paint from your faces, Wash the blood-stains from your fingers; Bury your war-clubs and your weapons, Break the red stone from this quarry, Mould and make it into Peace-Pipes, Take the reeds that grow beside you, Deck them with your brightest feathers, Smoke the calumet together, And as brothers live henceforward!"

Radical Alterations of Present Car Will Not Be Made Until Some Time After End of War

The guest speaker, Mr. Howard B. Moore, general manager of the Federation of Automobile Dealers' Association for Canada, addressed the Belleville Kiwanis Club at their weekly Tuesday luncheon in the Hotel Quinte on the theme of what can the automobile industry promise for post-war consumers. Mr. Moore related incidences that arise from time to time in the industry and the increase of the numbers of automobiles in Canada from approximately 34,000 registrations in 1912 to over a million and a half in 1942, which must make the automobile industry a recognized utility. He said that there were hundreds of questions asked every day, which he wished he could answer, that the men at the head of the industry would also like to be able to answer; when are the new cars going to be available to the public; what are they going to look like, and what will be the prices. These are questions, which must wait until a time, when the automobile industry has been given the "go ahead" on production. But, he said, there will be no immediate, radical alterations in design at first.

"The automobile has multiplied man," said Mr. Moore "by making it possible for him to be in several places within a short period of time, here now and, in a few minutes, miles away." He pointed out, that at one time the automobile was considered a luxury goods, but it has proven itself to be as much an essential as is food and clothing. The automotive industry was taken over by the government and has produced the means by which the victories our armies are realizing today were made possible. And, when a commodity proves to be a utility by performance, as the automobile and the truck is doing on the battlefields of Africa and Italy, it can no longer be classed as a luxury.

British Pattern Imposed

"British pattern of automobile manufacture was imposed upon Canada at first and became a danger to the industry," said Mr. Moore. "We could not take the British pattern and get away with it for, when you take away the average Englishman's car you have really not taken away anything from him personally because few Englishmen ever owned a car, but to do the same thing to the Canadian worker, or average citizen, would be to take away an essential way of life, his means of getting to and from work." "In most Canadian cities," said Mr. Moore, "when new factories are constructed, the first requisite is a parking lot near, or considered into the plan of the factory's ground plan to accommodate the automobiles of the men, who will work there. This was illustrated in Hamilton, where there were 36,000 automobiles registered and some of the older plants were unable to furnish parking places for the cars their employees drove to work.

Public Dictates Design

In speaking of the appearance of the new post-war car, Mr. Moore said that the public dictated the design by their desires as expressed to their dealer, or to the manufacturer direct. To truly streamline an automobile would be impossible because it would not conform to the public's opinion of what streamlining is. The best example is the aeroplane; blunt in the nose and tapering to a point at the rear. The public considers that an automobile runs faster if it is sharp on the nose and the width at the rear. Consequently, there are more blunt nose aeroplanes designed scientifically and more sharp nose automobiles designed by public opinion. "Competition in the industry will keep down the prices," said Mr. Moore, and there will be small cars, even though the public does not want small cars. The only possibility of a rise in the price of cars will come with a shortage of gasoline and oil, but there is little likelihood of this danger for some time to come. Mr. Moore concluded his talk by stating, that there were four requirements to be considered, first, high gear performance; second, a large appearing car; third, ample room inside the car; and fourth, economy in performance and price.

Many Guests at Luncheon

The guest speaker was responded to by Mr. I. L. Moore, who said that the weekly talks were much like a book, each week being a new chapter opened and read. The general business of the Club took place before the speaker was introduced by Jack Trudeau. Lieut. Cmdr. Kernohan, R.C.N.V.R., and Lieut. Chamberlain, R.C.N.V.R., and six others were guests of the Kiwanians at this week's luncheon Mr. Norm Edwards announced the annual meeting of the V.O.N. to be held on Thursday, January 20th, at the Y.M.C.A., and congratulations were offered by President Jack McVeigh to the newly elected Directors of the Chamber of Commerce, Jack McIntosh, Clarence Jewell and O. W. Duff, all Kiwanians, who were present at the luncheon. The Mayor's plan of a Reception Committee to meet returned men coming back to the city from overseas was endorsed by the Club and the endorsement announced by President McVeigh. He said, that the Club would appoint a committee to co-operate with the Mayor's Citizens Committee. The meeting was closed with the singing of "O Canada."

JOHNNYCAKE

Word experts have been trying for years to trace its origin.

In the Southern States johnnycake is generally made of corn-meal toasted or baked before a fire, often in the ashes; elsewhere the meal is generally baked in an oven.

The Australians make a cake of wheat-meal which they make in ashes or fry in a pan and which they also call johnnycake.

For instance, a man named Romans wrote a book in 1775, entitled "Florida," in which he said: "Notwithstanding it (rice) is . . . only fit for puddings . . . or to make the wafer-like bread called journey-cakes in Carolina."

Will H. Lowdermilk, in his "History of Cumberland" (Maryland), advances an interesting theory on the subject. A favorite article of diet among the Shawnee Indians, who lived in Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia and Ohio, he says, was a cake made of corn beaten as fine as the means at command would permit. This was mixed with water and baked on a flat stone which had been previously heated in the fire. The early hunters and trappers in this region followed the example of the Indians in making these cakes, which they called "Shawnee cakes" after the tribe. After a lapse of a few years "Shawnee cake" was corrupted into "johnnycake" by those who did not know its origin and real meaning.

The "journey-cake" theory is based on the thought that such cakes were baked in pioneer days in preparation for a journey, because they were compact, rich in food value, convenient to carry and had good keeping qualities.

Neither of these theories is necessarily correct. "Johnnycake" may be derived from some Indian or other old word that has been completely lost. This is suggested by a quaint couplet in Benjamin Thomson's "New England Crisis," published in 1675:

Then times were good; merchants cared to rush
For other fare than jonakin and mush.

This "jonakin" may, and again it may not, be the ancestor of our "johnnycake."

Do What Your Doctor Does If Child Is Listless

Because the tongue is the upper end of the stomach and bowels, it is usually the first thing a doctor looks at when he examines a sick child. He knows that a coated tongue and bad breath is a danger signal—a warning of an upset condition below, which may lead to real illness.

Don't you take chances—look at your child's tongue and check the breath every day! And at the first sign of bad odor on the breath or a coated tongue, give Children's Own Tablets. Small, pleasant-tasting tablets made especially for youngsters from runabout age to 15 years, they are wonderfully effective in helping to clean out harmful wastes and sweeten sour, upset stomachs. No drastic weakening flush-out action like many old-fashioned laxatives have.

Mrs. M. McAuley Accepts Suit On Behalf of Husband

Featured during the Deacon Brothers Limited "Open House" held on Monday afternoon and evening was the presentation of a specially constructed electrically heated flying suit to Mrs. M. McAuley, who accepted the gift of the workers and management on behalf of her husband PO. "Mike" McAuley, R.C.A.F., serving with the "Lion Squadron". The presentation was made by Mr. Reg. Hinchey, chief designer of the Deacon Brothers' plant. Mrs. McAuley spoke a few words in appreciation of the gift and turned it over to be placed in the show room on the main floor where it might be autographed by the employees and guests of the day. Over five hundred names were enscribed on the white lining of the suit before the program ended at 9 p.m. The flying suit will be flown to England by bomber and presented to PO. McAuley at his squadron. Visitors and guests were also requested to sign a "Visitors' Book" provided for that purpose, and over nine hundred names were affixed to it during the afternoon and evening. An estimated total of 2,500 visited the plant and accepted the hospitality of the firm to witness the actual production of clothing used by the men who are fighting in the far-flung battle zones.

Golden Wedding Anniversary Is Observed

Mr. and Mrs. E. Irvine, Grier St., Recall Many Happy Memories

On Saturday, the 15th, Mr. and Mrs. E. Irvine, 29 Grier St., celebrated the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary. It was indeed worthy of a great celebration, but owing to the ill health of Mrs. Irvine, the day was spent quietly. Nevertheless, best wishes and messages of congratulation were received from their many relatives and friends during the day.

Happy reminiscenes of those years of wedded life together were recalled to Mr. and Mrs. Irvine from that day in January, 1894, when they were married near Corbyville at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Clarke by the Rev. Dr. Gardiner. They had become man and wife on Mr. and Mrs. Clarke's wedding anniversary and their attendants had been Mrs. S. Hamilton, now residing in Halloway and Mr. Charles E. Bennett, a brother of the bride, who is at the present living in Western Canada.

Mrs. Irvine was the former Catherine Bennett, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bennett, of Madoc Junction. Both she and her husband are members of the Tabernacle United Church.

Living in this district for twenty-six years, Mr. and Mrs. Irvine have one son, Mr. John Edward Irvine, of this city and two grandchildren, Diane and Catherine Irvine.

AVONDALE NEIGHBORS' AID

Avondale ladies and their friends spent a very enjoyable Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harry Elvidge. Euchre was played, the winners being Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Champaign. The most recent grandmother, Mrs. Nellie Chambers was also presented with a gift. Tea was served by the hostess assisted by Miss Carson and Mrs. Mitchell. The sum of $6.50 was raised to swell the War Service funds. Mrs. L. Read thanked the hostess for the lovely afternoon.

GILEAD W.M.S.

The January meeting of the Gilead W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. F. Yorke, the president. The attendance was ten and collection, $1.30. It was decided to have the February meeting on the regular world day of prayer. Worship service was opened with a reading on "Christian Stewardship" by Mrs. O. Bertrand. Mrs. J. Huffman took second part with a Scripture reading and prayer, after which Mrs. E. Yorke took charge of the following: A reading by Mrs. F. Balcanquel; a solo by Mrs. Bertrand; reading by Mrs. W. Treverton. Mrs. E. Yorke led a quiz on the Bible which was interesting as well as instructive and some questions on the geography of the Bible were also asked. All were pleased to hear that the branch was successful in meeting the allocation this past year. Mrs. Yorke served refreshments.

UNIONDALE W. I.

The January meeting of Uniondale W. I. was held in the evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Frost, with a good attendance of members and visitors, including a number of men folk and with the President, Mrs. Morley Sine, in the chair. The program, prepared by Mrs. Geen was as follows: A reading by Mrs. G. Morrow, piano solo, M. Morrow; vocal solo, Lois Bush, with guitar accompaniment. The topics chosen for the meeting. "How to Improve Our Schools" and "How to Make Canada a Better Place in Which to Live," were given by Miss H. Wallis and Miss Bedford; a reading by Mrs. Grills, "A Good Fellow." As Mrs. Hough is leaving the institute, Mrs. E. Burkitt was appointed to act in her place as convener of Red Cross activities. A reading was given by Mrs. G. Burkitt. The last item on the program was a presentation to Mrs. Hough of a boudoir lamp. Lunch was served by Mrs. Geen and Mrs. Hough.

U.P.E.-BELLEVILLE WOMEN'S CLUB

In rooms bright with winter sunshine and flowers, the United Prince Edward-Belleville Women's Club was entertained by Mrs. A. S. Calnan, 57 W. Bridge St., for the January meeting. In welcoming her guests, the hostess was assisted by her husband and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Clinton Calnan. Mrs. Charles Ackerman presided. Minutes and discussion of work committees was then taken up. Mrs. Anderson's group reported 1 crib quilt donated to Tabernacle Church bazaar, 2 quilts sold at $4.75 each and two heavy tie-downs donated to Salvation Army. Money raised amounted to $18.75. The new committee of six to take over and carry on was selected. Thanks for flowers during illness were expressed by Mrs. Reid and Mrs. Weese. Twenty-six were present and four new members were added. Excellent papers were given on "The Flag on the Farm," "No Real Kick Coming," "There's a World of Peace Ahead," "Too Tired to Pray." A contest was won by Mrs. P. Parliament and the history of N. Marysburg was given in an interesting way by Mrs. Boyd. The hostess served refreshments, assisted by Mrs. Boyd and Mrs. C. Calnan. Mrs. P. Lent kindly offered to entertain the group in February and a hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Calnan for their hospitality.

INVICTAE MISSION CIRCLE

The Mission Circle of Bridge St. United Church held its monthly supper meeting in the church parlors on Tuesday night, January 18. A tasty supper was provided by the supper committee composed of Miss Phyllis Clapp's group, after which the business part of the meeting was conducted with the President, Phyllis Clapp, in the chair. In charge of the devotional period were Misses Eleanor Finkle, Phyllis Dickens, Nell Davidson and Jean Meyers. The guest speaker of the evening, Mrs. W. P. Youdale, who was introduced to the girls by Eleanor Finkle, gave a most inspiring address on the "Life of Mrs. Kagawa."

HOLLOWAY ST. CHURCH Y.P.U.

A most successful fireside hour was held by the Y.P.U. of Holloway St. United Church on Sunday evening at the home of the President, Miss Marjorie Hitchon, West Moira St.

A very lively sing-song, led by Donald Wilson of No. 5 I.T.S., brought the young people into the proper spirit to enjoy several quiz contests conducted by Ross Green.

Miss Leona Morton favored with several selections on the autoharp. Miss Marion Geering rendered two very delightful vocal selections, accompanied by Miss Myrtle Hubble at the piano. A much appreciated contribution to the evening's enjoyment was provided by Mr. William Connor, who, in his usual inimitable manner, played several piano solos, following which Mrs. F. Houston sang several solos.

Hot toasted sandwiches and hot chocolate added the final touches to a very enjoyable evening, at the close of which a hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. Hitchon by Mr. Ross Green on behalf of the Y.P.U. for her kindness in opening her home for the fireside hour.

Much credit and thanks must be tendered to Miss Dorothy Craighead and her committee for arranging such an enjoyable evening.

Fathers' Night At K. G. School H. and S. Club

Fathers of pupils attending King George School acted as hosts to the members of their Home and School Club on Monday evening during the annual Fathers' Night program. Mrs. Ward, President, welcomed the members and guests, after which Mr. Brown called on Rev. Mr. Hornsby, who introduced the guest speaker, Flight Lt. Ross Cameron. His topic for the evening was "Reconstruction," one which is of current interest to all today. He emphasized the importance of the school, home and church. The object of education is to make people more aware of situations, and circumstances of life; common sense and intelligence will be required to face the obstacles which will stand in one's way. The speaker said the principles of democracy are based on Christianity and Christian faith teaches all men they should live harmoniously together, also live in a spirit of unselfishness, sharing with others. "We have to believe our liberties are precious, because they are marked with human blood. To sum it all up, do unto others as you would be done by and men who try it sincerely never fail."

A vote of thanks was extended to Flt. Lt. Cameron by Mr. Fetterly and seconded by Mr. Brown for his fine address. During the program Miss Ethel Smith sang, "With My Head in the Clouds" and "Say a Prayer for the Boys Over There." Mrs. Hibbard acted as pianist. Mrs. Aman led in community singing, after which lunch was served.

25th Anniversary Is Observed By Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Latta

Address is Read and Silver Tea Service Presented to Mark the Occasion

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Latta were hosts to quite a gathering of their friends and relatives at a surprise party on Friday evening, January 14, to celebrate with them and to congratulate them on the occasion of the 25th anniversary of their wedding. A very enjoyable evening was spent in games, and singing. Later the gathering was called to order and Mrs. Murney Hick, a niece, read an address which showed the esteem in which the couple are held. Their grandson, Earl Yateman, presented them with a silver tea service. Both Mr. and Mrs. Latta thanked their friends very graciously, after which they were showered with confetti. An amusing incident occurred when Mrs. Percy Mott, dressed as a very old lady, presented them with a badly battered aluminum tea service "to save their new one." A lunch was served by their daughter, Mrs. Clarence Woods and Mrs. Harold Yateman, the centre of attraction being a wedding cake decorated appropriately for their 25th anniversary.

WEDDINGS

ISTEED—McQUAID

The home of the bride's father, Burr's, was the scene of a lovely wedding at high noon, Jan. 11th, when Frances, only daughter of Mr. Stanley McQuaid and the late Mrs. McQuaid, became the bride of Elmer Kenneth, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Erastus Isteed, Christian St. The dining room was beautifully decorated with pink and white streamers to the dining room table centred with the wedding cake. The ceremony took place beneath an arch of evergreen and pink and white streamers centred with a large white bell. Rev. Lorne Burr officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her wedding dress of blue alpaca trimmed with velvet, and hat to match. Her bouquet was of Briarcliffe roses and forget-me-nots.

Miss Helen McQuaid of Point Petre, was bridesmaid and wore a pretty frock of rose sheer with hat to match. Her bouquet was the same as that of the bride.

The groom was supported by Leonard Phillips. The wedding music was played by Mrs. J. Duncan. During the signing of the register, Mrs. Lorne Burr sang very sweetly, "I Love You Truly."

Mrs. Chas. Peterson, aunt of the bride, wearing blue figured crepe, and the groom's mother in turquoise blue alpaca with bronze trimming, received the guests. A delicious wedding dinner was then served to 30 guests. Assistants were Mrs. Gerald Brooks, Mrs. Frank Osterhout, Misses Evelyn and Phyllis Isteed, Mr. Frank Osterhout and Mr. Gerald Brooks.

Amid showers of confetti, the happy couple left on a wedding trip to points west. The bride chose for travelling a gold crepe dress with shoulder bouquet, green coat and black accessories.

The groom's gift to his bride was a wrist watch; to the bridesmaid, a gold necklace; to the groomsman, a leather billfold; the pianist and soloist each a pyrex pie plate.

A large number of beautiful gifts including a handsome cheque from the groom's parents, expressed the best wishes of all for a happy wedded life.

Fashion Flashes

FRESHNESS AND CHARM characterize the white lingerie-trimmed dark frock. Navy blue triple sheer makes a pretty frock with frothy white lace in a ruffled frame around the deep V neckline, and finishing off the long, tight sleeves.

GLEAMING IN THE RAIN next Spring will be many smart satin rain coats. Black slipper satin, water-proofed and made on belted trench coat lines, makes a coat so handsome that the girl who has it will likely pray for rain.

A WEALTH of new blouses to do right by suits and separate skirts is now in the shops. Silk organdie in azure blue is used for a lovely blouse that has a neckline self tied in a big bow. Silver thread marks out a big checked pattern.

Stomach Cancer Need Not Be Fatal

The slogan "early cancer is curable" has been the means of saving thousands of lives. It has made physicians, medical students and the general population "cancer conscious".

While this slogan has done more for the prevention of deaths from cancer than perhaps anything else, nevertheless it has left on many the impression that nothing can be done for those who have had cancer for a considerable time before it is discovered. This is not true because some forms of cancer grow rapidly throughout the body and others do all their growing in one place and grow slowly.

One of the "dangerous" places in which cancer occurs is the stomach and because there are often few if any symptoms, it may grow to dangerous proportions before "attacks of indigestion" call attention to it.

What are the results from treatment of stomach cancer? In Archives of Surgery, Chicago, Drs. W. Walters, H. K. Gray, and J. T. Priestly, report that from 1907 to 1938 inclusive, cancer of the stomach was found in 10,890 cases at the Mayo Clinic. Of this number it was found that 4,638, nearly 43 per cent, were too late or not in condition for operation. The remaining 6,242 cases, 57 per cent underwent an "exploratory" operation to find out if operation could, or should be, performed with reasonable safety. Of this 6,242 cases the exploratory operation showed that 2,431 cases were too late for operation. In an additional group of 1,039 cases, although operation could not be performed, other treatment could and was given to relieve symptoms.

With these three groups not under operation, about 29 per cent lived 25.5 per cent, underwent operation. Thus 1 of every 4 patients had the cancer removed by surgery and with cancer removed had some chance of living for a time at least. While the death rate for the entire period was about 16 per cent, it has been reduced to about 11 per cent since 1938.

Of the patients who survived the operation about 39 per cent lived five years or longer and about 6 per cent lived twenty-five years or longer. As stated before cancers are not all alike which accounts for the difference in the life expectancy following operation. An important point in estimating life expectancy was the presence of lymph glands near the stomach. If these glands were not affected by the cancer, the life expectancy was much longer; this is the usual result in cancer, of other parts also.

Perhaps the most gratifying finding of these research workers was the fact that if a patient lived for five or more years after surgical removal of cancer of the stomach the chances of survival during the years following was found to be about the same as it is for any person of the same age in the general population.

New Beauty Method can bring you smoother, softer skin! PROVE IT IN YOUR OWN HOME!

Compare your shoulders with your face. Isn't it true they look years younger? You see, shoulders stay smooth, soft, elastic—while faces have pores clogged with make-up, unable to breathe for hours at a time. And when pores can't breathe, skin becomes lifeless and prematurely aged. But this needn't happen to your complexion. Palmolive can keep your complexion young.

Look younger in 14 days! Each time you wash, with a face cloth massage Palmolive's lather into your skin for—one full minute. Then, a quick rinse and pat dry! It's this 60-second Palmolive Massage that—in just 14 days—can give your complexion the elastic soft smoothness of shoulder skin.

Leafs Overwhelm Bruins 7-2 With Carr Going Into Lead Of Scoring Race in the NHL

Boston Loses Services of Busher Jackson, Who Sustains Wrenched Knee

SECOND TO CANADIENS

By the Canadian Press

Lorne Carr has battled his way to the top of the National Hockey League's individual scoring race, proving that Coach Happy Day knew what he was talking about when he labelled Carr the "ace" in the Toronto Maple Leaf lineup.

Carr last night reached top spot for the first time this season by registering three goals and an assist to move ahead of Bill Cowley as Leafs overwhelmed Boston Bruins 7-2 before a capacity 13,500 crowd at Boston Garden. The veteran right winger may be hard to displace, for Cowley will be absent for at least two more weeks as a result of the shoulder injury he suffered against Leafs 11 days ago.

The loss left Bruins four points behind Toronto in the duel for second place and the game cost them the services of Harvey (Busher) Jackson, versatile veteran who suffered a wrenched knee and an elbow injury when he crashed into the end boards in the first period.

The calamity was another in a series of misfortunes for Bruins. Besides Cowley and Jackson, Bruins are without the services of star defenceman Johnny Crawford, who had a head injury.

Boston also used rookie Maurice Courteau from Boston Olympics of the Eastern Amateur League in goal instead of Bert Gardiner, detained in Philadelphia where his wife is ill.

In achieving a conquest, which lifted them within 5½ games of the leading Montreal Canadiens, Leafs jumped into a four-goal lead in the first period, scored again in the second before Art Jackson scored the first of his two goals for Boston, and then outscored the Bruins 2-1 in the last period. Babe Pratt, Elwin Morris, Bob Davidson and Ted (Teeter) Kennedy produced the other Leaf scores.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sport Writer

New York, Jan. 19—(AP)—Looks as if round two of that battle of the Minor League convention would begin when baseball's post-war planning committee meets next month . . . Judge W. G. Bramham, the Minor League boss, didn't spare anyone's feelings in his "suggestions"—least of all the chain operators . . . And as the first reply, President Shag Shaughnessy of the International League pointed out that local ownership of Minor League clubs may be the ideal situation, but only such smart baseball men as Earl Mann, Mike Kelley, Jack Dunn and Charley Graham have made it work . . . The chain system has its faults, but it does provide the best "baseball brains" for the little clubs . . . Wonder where that puts Shag? He's a right smart and independent man but he heads a league in which every club is owned by or closely associated with a Major League outfit.

LLOYD MARSHALL WINS OVER BOLDEN

Cleveland, Jan. 19—Lloyd Marshall returned to his native Cleveland last night to pound out an easy 10-round decision over Nate Bolden of Chicago in what matchmaker Larry Atkins billed as a duration light heavyweight title bout.

Tye win was Lloyd's foutrh in five Cleveland appearances and it earned him a March engagement with Joltin' Jake Lamotta, the roughhousing Bronx middleweight.

Rated by ring magazine as the number one active light heavy, Marshall caught up with the backpedalling Chicagoan enough times to unleah a slashing assortment of rights. One of these sent bolden to the canvas for a nine count in the third round after Nate temporarily ceased his bicycling to stagger Marshall with a left hook.

Bolden was the aggressor in only one heat—the fourth. He landed two hard rights that rocked Marshall on his heels and continued with an assault that forced Lloyd to cover up.

Marshall weighed 168¼, two and a quarter pounds less than Bolden. The 5,910 customers contributed $13,394.

Shaughnessy Favors Chain Baseball in Minor Leagues

By the Canadian Press

President Frank Shaughnessy of the International Baseball League had a reply last night to President W. G. Bramham of the Minor League's Association who urged against farm clubs in his proposed post-war program for baseball. Returning to his New York office after a holiday in Montreal, "Shag" expressed the view the minor loops found assistance from major clubs essential and added: "Eliminate the chains and you take the best brains out of the game."

Shaughnessy declared the minor leagues were "just about through after the 1932 season" but the development of the farm-club system saved the situation. The small leagues needed major backing to survive and not many minor league towns could afford independent club ownership. The only possible control of the chains would be to restrict the number of farms a major league club could possess. This would prevent any owner from gaining a monopoly of players.

Sgt. Barney Ross of the U. S. Marines, Capt. Jim Braddock of Army and Lt.-Cmdr. Jack Dempsey will be among the representatives of 4,100 boxers in the armed services to whom the Edward J. Neil Memorial Plaque will be formally awarded at New York tonight as boxing's "men of the year."

The last appearance of Wally Kilrea, leading sniper of the American Hockey League, in a hockey uniform with the Hershey Bears will take place Jan. 26 in the exhibition bond-selling game with Boston Bruins at Hershey. He joins the U. S. Army Jan. 27.

Following the discovery of Sam Langford, the "Boston tar baby", living blind in a cheap harlem rooming house, a committee has been organized in New York to organize a fund so that the former great heavyweight boxer may spend his days in modest ease.

Bill Klem, veteran baseball arbiter, urged at New York yesterday the adoption of the practice by the Major Leagues of having four umpires for a game.

Although, at one time, he used to go through two to three dozen golf balls in a 72-hole tournament, Gene Sarazen said yesterday at New York he had played through the recent Miami tourney with a total of five balls, all of which were still in good condition.

Toronto, Jan. 19 —(CP)— Quick Hemmingway, the smelling salts! Either bowling or curling are quite complicated enough for this operator but the citizens of Abernethy, Sask., have devised a combination of both. Pat Ferguson turned out a set of bowling pins in his carpenter shop and, with the fellow conspirators, devised the new game.

The pins were set halfway down the curling ice with two players stationed at each end. Strikes, spares and all bowling counts were possible with rocks going from end to end. Either five pins or 10 pins could be used.

The report to Dave (Regina Leader-Post) Dryburgh did not give the new game a name but we'd suggest "durdling," a combination of trundling and curling, and hope the fans don't sour on us.

Puck Pastor:

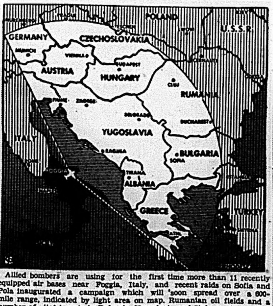
Remember the case of George Abbott, the unknown who substituted in Boston Bruins goal when Bert Gardiner was ill last November? Trainer Win Green of Boston says: "You know he turned out to be a high-class guy and the boys felt their necks when they discovered later he was an ordained minister. Some of the dressing-room language was pretty steep."

Disrespectful:

Syl Apps, Billy Taylor, Gordon Drillon and Hank Goldup should have introduced themselves as former National Hockey League stars when they played for the Simcoe Army team against Brantford No. 5 S. F. T. S. the other night. The Brantford boys apparently didn't know they were supposed to be smothered by the big stars and Brantford won 13-10. They played rough, too, and Taylor was taken out with an injury early in the game. Apps scored four goals and Drillon five.

Round and About:

Lieut. Terry Reardon, former Boston and Canadiens hockey star, has arrived overseas . . Now the Winnipeg R. C. A. F. Senior team has been broken up by headquarters order, name players Peter Langelle, Wally Stanowsky, Alf Pike, Paul Platz, Butch Marchant and Scotty Milne are playing in the R. C. A. F. Inter-unit Intermediate League at Winnipeg . . . Connie King, 34-year-old former Drumheller, Alta., hockey amateur who had quite a minor professional career, has entered the thoroughbred horse breeding business in Victoria. Connie has bought "Little Argo" as a stock horse . . . Lieut. Alan Kuntz, former New York Rangers player now located at Camp Bordon, Ont., is reported to have hung up his skates although he is coaching a service team at Borden.



Allied bombers are using for the first time more than 11 recently equipped air bases near Foggia, Italy, and recent raids on Sofia and Pola inaugurated a campaign which will soon spread over a 600-mile range, indicated by light area on map. Rumanian oil fields and a number of vital targets in Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and Italy are in for bigger and heavier attacks, and, it was stated, the big bombers can take off and return to their new coast bases along the Adriatic without serious trouble from the enemy fighters.

OSHAWA CHALKS UP 14TH WIN IN SIXTEEN STARTS

Generals Defeat Marlboros 5-2 to Remain at Head of Group

KROEHLERS WIN

By the Canadian Press

Oshawa Generals chalked up their 14th win of the season in 16 starts by disposing of Toronto Marlboros 5-2 in half of the Junior O. H. A. doublet at Maple Leaf Gardens last night. In the second encounter, Stratford Kroehlers were trailing Toronto Young Rangers 4-3 at the end of the second period but registered three goals in the final frame to win out 6-4.

In the Junior "A" fixture at Port Colborne, the Galt Kists forced the recreationists into overtime before conceding the verdict, the home club scoring two in the extra play to take the struggle 5-3. There was no first-period scoring and Port Colborne held a 2-1 margin at the close of the second stanza, only to have Galt tie it up before the 60-minute mark. In the overtime Simpell broke the deadlock with his second counter of the night and Gravelle added his second goal. Podolsky of Galt was also a two-goal scorer.

Scoring honors in the Toronto duet went to Scilizzi of Stratford in performing the hat trick while Tindall accounted for two. Imonti starred for Young Rangers in collecting a brace. Five Oshawa puckhounds, Love, Chenier, Ezinicki, Smith and Curry, all scored one in measuring Marlboros, for whom the successful sharpshooters were Harding and Lawlor. Last night's results failed to change the respective club positions in the standings of the two groups.

Fancy Skaters, Wire Artists Will Perform

Of interest to the district civilian populace, as well as the personnel of the R.C.A.F., comes news of a gala ice carnival to be held at the spacious Trenton Main Station rink on Feb. 3rd, to which the public is invited to attend either as participants or spectators. Prizes will be awarded to skaters appearing in the best costumes at which the civilian public is invited to compete in contest with the airmen of Trenton and the surrounding district, Trenton R.C.A.F. officials announced today.

Aside from the costume parade a galaxy of fancy skaters from the Toronto Granite Club will entertain the gallery with some of Canada's foremost fancy and figure skaters taking part in this phase of the night's mardi gras that is being arranged by Flt. Lt. Horton, chief sports officer at the Trenton R.C.A.F. Station.

To add thrills and a feature that is new in the annals of an ice carnival, slack wire walking exhibitions will be given by AC2 Bell, of Montreal, Canadian slack wire champion, as well as AW. Collins, formerly of Vancouver, and now stationed at Trenton with the Women's Division of the R.C.A.F. Miss Collins is also an outstanding slack wire artist and both wire wizards will perform high over the ice surface of the skating rink where a mismove might mean permanent injury.

The renowned Trenton R.C.A.F. Band will be in attendance for this winter attraction, the most outstanding of its kind ever presented in Eastern Canada.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

Looking Ahead

As Smith and Jones were waiting at the bus stop, a passerby stopped and asked Jones the time. Jones did not reply.

After the stranger had passed on Smith asked:

"Why didn't you answer him?"

"Well, it's this way," Jones replied. "If I'd told him the time, he might have got chatting then we might have had a drink together, and in the end I might have asked him home to supper."

"There he might have met my daughter—and she's a very pretty girl and they might have fallen in love. Finally they might have got married. And let me tell you, I don't want a fellow for my son-in-law who can't afford to buy a watch."

Flyers are Out

Flt. Lt. "Buff" Horton's Trenton R.C.A.F. Flyers dropped out of group No. 2 of the O.H.A. last night, leaving Trenton, Stirling-Marmora "Combines" and Belleville Juniors to battle matters out. The decision came after the management of the youthful Flyers requested the Belleville Juniors to play their last night's scheduled game commencing at ten o'clock at night. Naturally the management of the local team balked at such a late starting hour, as many of the local juniors are students.

It seems Flt. Lt. Horton, who is chief sports officer at the Trenton Main Station, has an intramural service league operating and composed of 22 teams. Of course these teams have first call on the Air Force open air rink and when it was suggested Belleville play following two service group games, Coach "Toots" Holway and company flatly refused. It is an unfortunate situation that arose, but after all the O.H.A. calls for covered rinks and the teams in group No. 2 of the O.H.A. only agreed to play at Trenton in order to give the station personnel outside hockey games.

In explaining the Trenton R. C. A. F. hockey set-up, Flt. Lt. Horton was perhaps justified as he has 22 inter-department teams, besides the station team entered in the Quinte Service League, which should give the boys at No. 8 Manning Pool just about all the hockey they need while studying to become Canada's air aces.

In the meantime, Trenton, the Combines and Belleville will meet at the Hume Arena tonight to redraft a group schedule as junior hockey is booming in the Quinte area and should be encouraged. (And there's a juvenile practice at the rink tonight also.)

Big Business

Before Ottawa put the clamps on the army hockey teams, President Jack McVeigh had partially made arrangements to have the star-studded Kingston Army senior hockey team appear in an exhibition game here versus the Hamilton Majors, that boast of two former Belleville players, Bill Sherry and Doug Runions. The receipts were to be given to the Kiwanis Blood Donor Centre, with Kingston coming for bare expenses through the courtesy of the players and President Bill Watt. When Ottawa put the skids under that project, then President McVeigh endeavoured to arrange a game between the Toronto Maple Leafs and the strong Kingston Army seniors, but by now things were in such a tangle that Kingston referred the local Kiwanians directly to Ottawa, and that deal went by the boards. Now the Kiwanis Club, still interested in the promotion of their idea, are endeavouring to get a major portion of the famed Ice Follies of 1944, which appear in the Maple Leaf Gardens, Jan. 31st to Feb. 4th, to play an engagement at the Hume Arena on Saturday, Feb. 5th. This would be big business on the part of the Kiwanis Club of Belleville.

Then along comes Flt. Lt. "Buff" Horton, chief sports officer at the Trenton R.C.A.F. Station, to say he is proposing to bring the Kingston Army team and the Toronto Navy seniors to Belleville for an exhibition game later in the season. "I have already contacted the management of both teams and they're quite willing to come to Belleville. Later when our Trenton Air Force team gets up to strength we hope to bring other strong senior hockey clubs to Belleville," added Flt. Lt. Horton.

Then, and not least, will be the Quinte Skating Club's gala ice carnival at the Hume Arena on Feb. 18th, while out at the Trenton Air Station an ice carnival will be held on Feb. 3rd to which civilians are invited to compete for prizes as well as attend as spectators. (See what we mean, "big business?")

What's Doing in Sport

Miami—(AP)—Long short mudders yesterday captured both divisions of the Tamiami purse at Hialeah track. The first "heat" of a mile and one furlong went to Stinging Bee which paid $21 for $2 while Alaflag took the other half of the feature to pay $13.50.

Chicago —(AP)— President Phil K. Wrigley of the Chicago Cubs yesterday called Clarence Rowland, now 10-year President of the Pacific Coast League, "the best posted man in baseball" and predicted great success for the former White Sox manager.

Chicago—(AP)—Earl Davis, iceman of the Chicago Hockey Stadium boasted yesterday he had ducked more paper airplanes, shot by rapid fans toward the playing surface, than any other man in the world. He said the ice crew scooped up more than 300 pennies, as well as nickels, dimes and quarters, during a recent game—and complained of the danger to the players.

Cleveland—(AP)—Two Canadians won their 10-round semi-finals at the Cleveland Arena boxing show last night. Maxie Berger, 147, of Montreal, knocked out Pete Galiano, 148, Baltimore, in the second round while Len Wadsworth, 160, scored a six-round technicolor knockout over Fitby Fitzpatrick, 165, of Cleveland.

ON LAST BIRTHDAY

Sir William Mulock, Canada's Grand Old Man, is celebrating his 100th birthday at his home in Toronto, Ont., on Jan. 19th. A printed birthday card which he is sending to his friends says: "I bring to thee, my beloved Heavenly Father, a grateful heart, for my long years of happiness, for the kindness and affection of my fellow-citizens, for the lavish devotion of a widowed mother and the fond regard of dear relatives. All of these have given me unbroken contentment and a happy life."

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 280

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You may have the impression that Gypsy Rose Lee discovered the strip-and-end play. But that ain't the way I heard it, Johnny. It is one of the clever stunts in the play of a bridge deal.

The play gets its name from a combination of acts. First, you strip (exhaust) two or more suits. In the end, you throw an opponent into the lead and make him lead favorably to you.

Have another session with this deal:

NORTH
♠9 8 7 5 4
♥A K 2
♦K Q
♣5 4 2

WEST
♠None
♥10 9 8 6 4
♦7 6 4 3 2
♣8 6 3

EAST
♠Q J 10
♥Q J
♦J 10 9 8
♣J 10 9 7

SOUTH
♠A K 6 3 2
♥7 5 3
♦A 5
♣A K Q

South is declarer at a six spade contract. West leads a heart. Dummy wins with the king and east drops the jack. It looks as if the third round of hearts must lose.

The spade ace wins a round of trumps. East is marked with a cinch trump trick. So, the heart loser must be saved, or else.

There is one hope of saving the heart loser. That is by the stripping of enough suits with an end play finish. It may result in a sluff and a ruff (trumping.)

To start stripping, another round of trumps is won with the spade ace. Two rounds of diamonds and three rounds of clubs strips south and dummy of the two minor suits.

A heart is then led and won by dummy ace. When east drops the heart queen on it, east is stripped of hearts. So, a trump is led and east must win it. That strips east of trumps.

East is now stripped of spades and hearts. He is endplayed into leading a diamond or a club. Whichever he leads, declarer gets a sluff and a ruff.

South can trump and dummy can sluff a heart. Or south can sluff a heart and dummy can ruff.

The end justifies the strip.

AT THE BELLE

"Naughty Marietta"

Hollywood critics see all the pictures and are inclined to become "hardboiled" as a result. When they start turning handsprings over a picture you can be sure it's really tops.

That's why the comment of the Hollywood Reporter's critic on "Naughty Marietta" opening today at the Belle Theatre is worth repeating. Here it is—with not a word changed.

"Naughty Marietta" has lilting music that thrills its way throughout the picture and thrills by its performance. The lovely familiar Victor Herbert aria as sung by Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy are something one can't afford to miss. It's a picture that should be labelled "Must see".

The public owes itself the privilege of hearing Nelson Eddy in this role. He sings his way through with the greatest of ease, with a voice that has a surprisingly great range with a personality that is easy-going and charming, and with the physical attributes of a hero.

Director Van Dyke turns his talents on a musical and manages to give it the same fast-moving excitement and comedy that he injects into all his pictures.

Jeanette MacDonald has the happiest role of her career. She looks so beautiful in the costumes and her voice is an inspiration. All in all the picture is something to shout about for the whole family".

The Canadian news of the Day and a funny Barney Bear color cartoon "One Ham's Family" precede the feature attraction. Continuous shows will be presented today.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Coney Island"
(In Technicolor)

"Coney Island," 20th Century-Fox's new Technicolor musical picture, coming to the Capitol Theatre next, contains a veritable fountain of hit tunes by the ace composing team of Leo Robin and Ralph Rainger. Included are "Take It From There," "Beautiful Coney Island," "Miss Lulu From Louisville" and "There's Danger in a Dance."

"Few pictures have boasted so many hit tunes and such a beautiful girl to sing them as Betty Grable, who stars in the film with George Montgomery and Cesar Romero.

"Vengeance of the West"

Gun-roaring adventure is certain to blaze its way across the Capitol Theatre screen next when Bill Elliott and Tex Ritter gang up in "Vengeance of the West" to shoot up outlaws and whoop up songs! Dealing with the adventures of Joaquin Murietta, fabulous Robin Hood of the Mexican plains, the new Columbia thriller also features Adele Mara and comedian Frank Mitchell. Frank Lambert Hillyer directed.

A color cartoon and the serial, "Secret Service in Darkest Africa," complete the grand weekend attraction.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Lost Horizon"

Crowds thronged the McCarthy Theatre all day today to see Frank Capra's "Lost Horizon". In it they saw the fantastic imaginings of James Hilton's best selling novel made real and concrete. What was to Hilton a mere fabric of fancy, Capra with the invaluable assistance of his scenarist Robert Riskin, has translated into vivid actuality. The result is an unforgetable tale of adventure and high romance.

"Lost Horizon", fresh from its roadshow triumphs in over 100 cities, is full of the things that make a picture great. Capra knows these essentials, probably better than anyone else in Hollywood, and he uses them so subtly and so effectively that they hold one enthralled. The burning of the aerodrome at the very beginning of the picture, the quick shot of the camels straining at their tethers as the airplane takes off on its second great hop the unbelievable contrast between the icy mountain peaks and the lush beauty and serenity of the hidden valley of Shangri-la; these are the minutae whereby "Lost Horizon's" adventurous take has been varnished and buttressed until it becomes the beautifully rounded epic that has been made of it.

The characterization is excellent throughout. Ronald Colman, one of our suavest leading men, is the ideal choice for Robert Conway, the empire-builder who longs for peace of spirit. John Howard is equally effective as his impetuous brother. Just the right spicing of comedy is provided by Edward Everett Horton as the absent minded paleantologist and Thomas Mitchell as Barnard, the fugitive American financier. Jane Wyatt brings added beauty ot Shangri-la as Sondra and Isabel Jewell and Margo fulfill admirably the roles assigned to them.

"Lost Horizon" is by all odds the finest film of romantic adventure seen on the screen in a month. The men who made "Mr. Deeds" and "It Happened One Night"—Frank Capra and Robert Riskin—have scored what in certainly an even greater triumph in "Lost Horizon". It can be recommended as entertainment that is spectacular and unforgetable.

Little Benny's Note Book

I smelt a swell smell when I opened the front door at supper time, thinking, Oh boy, frankferters and sowerkraut.

Being my favorite thing even including desserts, and pop and ma were half through eating already, pop saying, The late Mr. Potts, I believe? and ma said, Really, Benny I mean really, this continual lateness for meals is exceedingly wearing and tearing. I should think you'd be only too glad to have a nice hot meal to come home to in a nice warm house when you think that 9 tents of the world in these gassly times has no conception where the next meal is coming from and hardly any remembrance of the last one. I should think you'd be only too appriciative, she said.

Well G, ma, I am, only G roozlem, I said, and ma said, All right, all right, you can pospone your long winded excuses till later, and meanwhile I want you to sit down and eat your dinner before it gets still colder for land sakes.

Which I started to do being among the best frankferters and sowerkraut we ever had, and ma said, And now you can give us your own version of why you were late for dinner again after all the explicit warnings you've been showered with lately.

Which just then Nora brought in the lemmon merrang pie, and I said, Aw G, ma, cant I eat my dessert first?

Which I did, including a 2nd helping and a half of a third, and then I said, Well what happened was, I was over at Puds Simkins's house and his father and mother went out together for dinner, so Puds ate his supper exter early and I ate it with him so he wouldn't have to eat it all alone.

The result being ma quick grabbed away the 2nd half of my 3rd helping of pie, me being pretty near ready to see it go anyways by that time.

FATHER OF GENERALS DIE

St. Petersburg, Fla., Jan. 19—(AP)—Leonard R. Gerow, 82, of Petersburg, Va., father of two Army generals, died last night at a local hospital after a brief illness. They are Maj.-Gen. L. T. Gerow, now stationed in Scotland, and Brig.-Gen. Lee Saunders Gerow, formerly stationed at Camp Shelby, Miss.

AT THE BELLE—Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy co-starred in Victor Herbert's best-loved musical romance "Naughty Marietta", now delighting audiences at the Belle Theatre.

AT THE CAPITOL—Things happen in "Coney Island"—Gay times, merry escapades and everything that goes to make up a good time. The technicolor musical comes next to the Capitol featuring Bette Grable, George Montgomery and Cesar Romero. The added western "Vengeance Of The West" stars Bill Elliott.

CHAPTER 6

"Everybody is," Farrish grumbled, "but nobody does anything about it. Well, thanks for the sympathy. Let's stroll."

"Do I have to walk, or must I pay for my own taxicab?"

"Generally in this town," said Farrish, "girls get home the best way they can."

"And usually find," she said pertly, "that alone is the best way."

"For that," he said, "I'll see you to your door."

• •

Darnley was awakened next morning by a page boy bearing a huge box of flowers. In it was a note from the Henry Garden she had met so briefly the night before.

"Just to prove I meant it and could locate your temporary home quickly," read the note. "Will you go to Chico Sanson's party with me tonight? I'll telephone at two."

Darnley was delighted and flattered. She lifted the flowers from their box and rushed with them to her mirror. She was lovely. Life was lovely. "I'm not going to miss anything," she said to herself. "I'm going to see it all and be a part of it all. I'll start tonight!"

There was no one to restrain her, no one to advise or to thwart her. She was her own woman, free and unafraid and confident, as we all are confident, that tragedies are only for other people. She was avid for life.

"In all the world," she told herself, "there's nothing like being beautiful!"

After she had breakfasted she went at once to Wolfgang's. He had not come in yet and she sat down in the large waiting-room. Presently another girl arrived, not one with a strikingly beautiful face, but rather with a mirthful face. Her hair was reddish and her mouth was too large, but there was something pert and mischievous and arresting about her features.

"Wolf in yet?" she asked the receptionist.

"Not yet, Jerry."

"I'll camp. Just got back to town. Been week-ending on a yacht. Believe it or not, I didn't have a gown torn this time."

She sat down in a chair a little way from Darnley and regarded her curiously. "Never saw you around before," she said.

"Miss Shafto—Miss Carfax," introduced the receptionist.

"Whoops!" Jerry cried. "The gal from the town where they still burn witches. Read all about you in De Groot's column this mornin'."

"I only got singed," said Darnley.

The other girl's blue yes darkened and she nodded her head understandingly. "All the same, it must have been tough to take," she said. Then she shrugged her shoulders. "They have other ways of jabbing in the barb here."

"Mr. Wolfgang was going to advise me about finding a place to live," said Darnley.

Jerry studied a moment in silence. "I take a chance. You take a chance. The neighbors take a chance," she said. "I've an apartment up on Eighty-fifth. The lug I was rooming with got Hollywood itch and moved out on me. How's for moving in with me?"

Instinctively Darnley liked the girl. There was something frank and careless and gay about her. And she liked the part about everybody taking a chance.

"If I can afford it," she said tentatively.

"Do I look like Mrs. Astor? Rent, telephone and maid," she said, "will run about a hundred and forty a month."

"Maid?"

"Imagine," said Jerry, "going around and not mentioning 'my maid! My deah! You distress me!"

"Let's go see it."

"Sold!" said Jerry and then to the receptionist, "Tell Wolf I'm back. We'll see him later."

In the subway, Darnley asked suddenly, "Who is Henry Garden?"

"What Already? He finds 'em soon!"

"And who is Sanson?" asked Darnley.

"Either," said Jerry, "you're a blitz worker or you're easy to catch up with. Garden's one of those things. Big-shot advertising lad with a Meadowbrook complex — if he can make it. Likes his gals expensive, and he's practically noiseless in his approach. He'll lead up to an apartment on Park Avenue He handles easy if you bust out laughing. I hear he might hit below the belt in business."

"And Sanson?"

"A party giver," said Jerry. "Meets all the trains to catch the newest celebrity. Does something about tobacco for a living and serves champagne for breakfast. He throws a nobby merry-making."

"Is it all right to go to a party with a man you just met casually?"

Jerry bugged her eyes. "I've got to see that town you came from," she said. "In our racket, dearie, it's all right to go out with anybody who offers expensive food and entertainment. Every meal you get free cuts down living expenses. Just develop a sturdy straight arm and never believe anybody means it, and you'll scramble through. There's just one rule: "Protect yourself in the clinches and don't fall in love."

The two girls inspected the little apartment and Darnley found it adequate. Then they returned to Wolfgang's; he received them grumpily when he heard the news.

"Advice you ask," he said to Darnley, "after you jump. Vell, with Jerry iss nefer a dull minute. Now, Jerry, you have an appointment at two. For you, Darnley, today is yet nothing."

"Then I'll take the day to move," Darnley said.

"Here's the spare key," Jerry told her. "I'll have time to go to lunch with you."

As they went down in the elevator Jerry said, "The technique is to arrive in that part of town where good food is."

"Technique?"

"You don't imagine we're going to buy our own food!" Jerry exclaimed incredulously. "Keep away from Sixty-seventh Street at noon. All artists. Sweet eggs, most of them and good company. But they are used to girls. A sandwich and coffee is what you get. Ever hear of the Colony?

"No."

"Ritzy," observed Jerry. She looked at her wrist watch. "Got to time it right," she said.

They strolled leisurely to Park Avenue and sauntered up that amazing street, pleasantly conscious of masculine heads that turned to stare after them when they passed. From time to time Jerry consulted her watch. They arrived in the Sixties and Jerry reversed their direction, arriving at Sixty-second Street shortly after one.

"It takes them about ten minutes to walk up here," Jerry said.

"Who?"

"How should I know?" Jerry asked. Her eyes were down the avenue studying male pedestrians as a pilot would study the approach to a perilous harbor. "Step it up," she said suddenly.

Two youngish men were approaching and Jerry manoeuvred to meet them almost head on.

"Hello, Jerry," said one.

"Been away?" Jerry asked. "Haven't seen you, Matt."

"You know Bill Webb, don't you, Miss Shafto?" He looked with patent pleasure.

"Miss Carfax—Matt Marsh and Mr. Webb," said Jerry. "Nice to have seen you."

"What's the rush?"

"Walking ounces off the hips," explained Jerry, "before we eat them back on again."

"We're just heading for the Colony. Have lunch with us."

"S'mother day," Jerry said.

"You persuade her, Miss Carfax."

"We-ell—" Darnley commenced, and let it go at that.

"Come on, Jerry; you haven't a date," smiled Webb.

"I was just wondering if I could stand you for a whole lunch hour," Jerry said pertly. "But shall we give him an audition?" Already they were heading northward again in a little group. They entered the restaurant and Darnley and Jerry stepped into the ladies' room.

"That," said Jerry, "is the method. Know where they are when you want them."

During luncheon Darnley's eyes were so busy she had little attention to give her ears. She was shocked at the amount of money that passed from Marsh's hands to the waiter's when they were through. It was more money than she had ever seen spent for a single meal; and because of it, Jerry's device to procure gratis entertainment suddenly seemed to her a species of highway robbery.

Promtly at two Henry Garden telephoned, "How's for the party tonight," he asked.

"I think I should like to go," Darnley replied cheerfully.

"Delighted! I'll come for you at seven-thirty," he told her.

When Garden arrived he was impressive in his dinner coat, distinguished and handsome. His manner was courtly as he put into her hands a small box in which lay a spray of orchids. He helped her on with her wrap, which seemed suddenly provincial and rather mail-order. As it settled over her shoulders she resolved that her first visit tomorrow would be to a gown shop to squander every cent she dared upon clothes. Clothes! Clothes! Nothing was so important as smart, beautiful clothes!

They stopped before a huge apartment house on the river and Garden guided her to the elevator in which they ascended to an upper floor. A colored maid took charge of Darnley and led her to a room where women were repairing such damage to lipstick and eyebrow pencil as had been wrought since leaving their homes. As she entered, a couple of girls eyed her covertly and went on with their decorations. Darnley felt suddenly ill at ease. She did not know what to do next. Scraps of conversation reached her as she pretended to do things to her face.

"Don't worry about Ellen," said one girl. "She carries a compass. Before she even stuck her nose into that apartment she had her a trust fund."

". . . charge accounts everywhere, and not a screech out of him," came from another corner.

Every word she caught referred to money, the spending of money, the obtaining of money from a member of the other sex, whether a husband or some other man. Money! And clothes!

With a shrewd eye to financial security. That word came up—security. As Darnley became better acquainted with New York she found that word in almost every girl's vocabulary.

Garden was waiting for Darnley and presented her to her host, Sanson, in a room of blasting whiteness. Along the wall at the right was a huge, eight-winged screen of mirror glass upon which had been painted a swing orchestra in grotesque postures.

"Miss Carfax!" acknowledged her host, a slender, dapper, bald young man of forty, who smiled blandly. "So nice to have you here. I read all about you in De Groot's column."

So she, too, was a personage! The papers had noticed her. Publicity had tapped her shoulder with its blade and she had been raised above the commonalty. It was another lesson learned, and she ceased to hold resentment against De Groot. If publicity made her welcome here it would make her welcome elsewhere—so she must have more of it.

Garden presented her to various groups, with whom Darnley had the excellent judgment to maintain a courteous reticence. She was feeling her way, watching, studying, listening. What kind of girl did men like and why? What was the successful pattern?

Across the room she saw Lacey Gorse, with a flowing tie, marking him as an artist. He did not see her.

Presently a man touched Garden's elbow. "Some news," he said.

Garden excused himself and walked to a corner. Darnley detached herself from the group and moved about, pretending she had some definite object. She found a spot in a false archway from which she could look at the room and study its occupants. As she stood there, her host and a man older than he, with a granite face and cold eyes, edged over and stood with their backs to her.

"Graham, we've decided," said Sanson as he paused to adjust a long cigarette in an amber holder. "We've decided to make the big break."

Graham looked at Chico with great intensity.

Chico Sanson went on to explain to Graham why he was soon to take his huge Golden Blend account from the Hatch and Miller Agency.

"Too much friction with Hatch!" snapped Chico as Darnley—an involuntary eavesdropper—listened.

"You're going to take the Golden Blend account away from Hatch & Miller?" asked Graham, all but gasping his amazement.

"Yes, but it's hush-hush. No action for thirty days. They don't know it yet."

"Haven't decided."

"Um . . . Plans are to spend how much in the next twelve months?"

"We're going to push Golden Blend from third to first place," said Sanson. "The present program is four millions for advertising."

"It'll cut the soles off Hatch & Miller's shoes. There's six hundred thousand in commissions in that spending."

"Hatch," frowned Sanson, "battled against my Golden Blend Girl idea. Because his outfit didn't think it up, I would say."

They moved away and Darnley stood very still lest she be observed. An advertising agency called Hatch & Miller were going to lose the advertising account of Golden Blend cigarettes, but it was a secret. Golden Blend was going to spend four million dollars and the agent's commission would be six hundred thousand. She sensed that here was important information, valuable information, which she alone, outside of the cigarette company, knew. It frightened her for such enormous sums were involved.

She moved away from that place and sought with her eyes for Garden. He had left his companion and was talking to Lacey Gorse. She walked toward him.

"He's always sticking his neck out," Gorse was saying. "It isn't always salesmanship that sells."

"Sanson," observed Garden, "is a celebrity-dizzy shoo. But he's no sap."

"Where women are concerned," said Gorse, "he rolls downhill with his eyes shut. If the bee could be put on him—"

Garden laughed harshly. "Put it on him," he said, "and then we'll talk business."

Once more Darnley edged away. Secrets! Everybody was concealing something from someone else. Everyone was burrowing underground. The business ethics of which she had read seemed to have flown to other and distant fields. Again it was money. Men as well as women seemed to lay aside their scruples where large sums were concerned.

If she was not mistaken, Lacey Gorse's words had hinted at improper pressure, at something very like blackmail. Darnley shivered a little. She had heard words which it was not safe to hear.

She circled the room and again approached Gorse and Garden who beamed at her. "I thought someone had stolen you," he said. "You know Lacey Gorse, the photographer?"

"And like him as little," said Darnley bluntly, "as on my two other meetings."

Garden's eyes grew big for an instant and then resumed their smile. "Whoosh!" he said to Gorse. "That practically puts you down for the count."

Gorse did not smile. "Miss Carfax," he said softly, "will find that I improve on acquaintance."

He turned on his heels and strode away. Garden looked down at her quizzically. "You quite won Lacey's heart," he said ironically. "Suppose we attack the viands. Then I'll take you on a sight-seeing tour of this roomful of notorieties."

"DRAFT ROOSEVELT" MOVE STARTED

Washington, Jan. 19 —(AP)—An unofficial fourth-term "Draft Roosevelt" movement was started here today by Culbert L. Olsen, former governor of California, with a prediction that his state's democratic convention delegates will vote solidly on the first ballot for renomination of President Roosevelt.

"We feel it to be essential," he said, "that President Roosevelt's leadership be continued in the war and during the period of transition to the peace."

Lord of Admiralty Pays Tribute To Men of R. C. N.

London, Jan. 19—(CP Cable)—A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, paid tribute today to the men of the Royal Canadian Navy. He was replying in the House of Commons to a question by Sir Percy Hurd (Cons.), concerning the part played by naval vessels, aircraft and personnel in the anti-submarine campaign.

"Remarkable expansion of Canadian naval and air forces engaged in the battle of the Atlantic, and their skilful deployment and gallant handling in appalling weather conditions have been important factors in the United Nations' efforts to get the measure of the U-boat," he said.

He added the R.C.N. now provides more than two-fifths of the ocean-going escorts in the North Atlantic while the R.C.A.F. has undertaken one-quarter of the operations against U-boats in that theatre.

Many Canadians are also serving in the Royal Navy and the R.A.F., he said. The R.C.N.'s manpower-strength now approaches that of the Royal Navy in peace-time.

One of the most remarkable features of the work of the R.C.N. was the facility with which its members —many of whose homes were inland—had adapted themselves to naval service, as shown in the high degree of enduring courage and personal gallantry in the face of the enemy.

He enumerated the many decorations awarded Canadian navy men and added that Canada and the United Kingdom now were mainly responsible for the control and in the battle of the Atlantic, and lantic convoys.

Red Cross Names 1943 Officers For Present Year

Lance Corporal C. L. Sheppard Now Reported Dead of Wounds

Trenton, Jan. 19—(Special)—All last year's officers were unanimously re-elected at the Red Cross work rooms on Tuesday afternoon at the annual meeting. Mrs. J. H. Redick, 1st Vice-President of the local branch; is supervisor of the work rooms, with Mrs. C. V. Wilkins, Convener of Sewing; Mrs. W. Bain, Convener of Knitting; Mrs. Watson, Quilt Convener; Mrs. E. M. Parker, Convener of Surgical Supplies and Miss H. Bensley, Convener of Shipping. Mrs. E. A. McQuade is to assist with the bookkeeping for the sewing department.

There was a gratifying attendance of ladies on Tuesday and much work in all branches was accomplished. Among the articles shipped was one large box for Russian relief.

Homemade soup donated by Mrs. O. G. Alyea was raffled and won by Mrs. B. F. Joyce, Mrs. Watson and Miss Bensley, $2.65 being realized from the sale.

Mrs. Joyce asked the ladies to make a special effort to save all their used stamps which are eventually sold to add to the funds of the local branch. Valuable ones are turned over to stamp collectors while the ordinary ones are salvaged for the dye. She announced that during the month of January the sum of $53 was realized from this venture.

A special request was also made for new or used metal ash trays which are needed for the corvette "Trentonian," these to be left with the Red Cross for shipment to the officer commanding.
